It ys the holy writings of the Byble teach us, that there is one God almyghty, that hath neither begynnyng nor endynge: whiche of his owne goodnesse byd create all thynges: of whom all thynges procede, and without whos there is no thyng: whiche is ffather and mercifull: and whiche worketh all thynges in all after his wyll: of whom it is saide not be demaunded wherfore he doth this or that.

Then that this berce God byd create Adam the first man after his owne ymage and spymilitude, and byd ordeyne and appoynte hym lord of all the creatures in the earth. Whiche Adam by the enue of the deuill bysodeyng the commaundement of his maker byd spenne, and brougte spenne into this worlde, suche and so greate, that we whiche be spunge of hym after the flesh are subdued vnto syn, death and dampnation, brougte vnder the yoke and tyranny of the deuill.

And further that Chryst Iesus his son was promised of God the father, to be a sauour to this Adam, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, David, and the other fathers: whiche shoulde deliuer them from theyr synnes and tyrannye of the deuill, that with a quicke and leuynge fawth wolde bylene this promysse: and trust to this Iesus Chryst, hoppyng to haue this deliuerance of hym and by hym. And truly this promysse is very often repeated in the booke of the olde Testament, yea, and the olde Testament is this promysse: as it is called the newe, which teacheth that this promysse is fulfilled.

And that in the meane season / whyle the fathers looked for saluacion and deliuerance promysed, by cause mannes nature is suche that he not onely can not, but also wyll not confesse hym selfe to be a synner, and speciallye suche a synner that hath mede of the sauynge healt promysed, the lawe was gyuen wherethrough men myght knowe synne, and that they are synners: when they see that they doo none of the thynges that the lawe commaundeth with to glad and wyllynge a mynde as God requyret: but rather agaynst theyr wylls, without affection, and as though they were cōstrayned with the feare of that hell whiche the lawe threateneth, saying: Curled be he that maynteyneth not all the wordes of this lawe to kepe them. And that this lawe was gyuen, to thinke that synne and the malice of mennes hertes being thereby the better knownen, me quide the more feruently chryst the commaunge of Chryst, whiche shoulde redeme them from their synnes. As it was spured vnto the Jewes by many ceremonies, hoodes, and sacrifices, which were ordeyned of God, not to thynke to take awaye synnes, but to thewe & declare that they shoulde be put awaye by fawth, in the saluacion promysed thowowe Chryst: and whiche nowe are put awaye by the commaunge of that Chryst, whiche is the very booke of the father that taketh awaye all synne.

Laie of all by the booke of the newe testamēt we are taught, that Chryst whiche was promysed and shadowed in the olde Testament, is sent of the father, at suche tyme as he had determyned with hym selfe, at suche tyme (I saie) as all wekednesse is fawth. And that he was sent, not for any mannes good works (for they all were synners) but to thynke that he wolde traupe thewe the aboundant ryche of grace, whiche he had promysed.

In the new Testament therfore is moost cuidently declared, that Iesus Chryst the true lambe and doot, is come to thynke to recouyle us to the father, payng on the crosse the punishment due vnto our synnes: and to deliuer us from the bondage of the deuill (vnto whome we serued through synne) and to make us the sonnes of God, fawth he hath gyuen us the true peace and tranquillite of conscience, that we no longer do feare the paynes of hell: whiche feare is put awaye by the fawth, confidence and assurance that the father gyueth us dwelinge us vnto his home. For that fawth is the gyfte of God, wherby we bylene & Chryst is come into this worlde to saue synners, whiche is of to greate peth & they whiche haue it desyre to performe all the duties of

CA prologue or pzeface made by the moost reuerende father in God, Thomas Archbpyshop of Canturbery Metropolitan and Bpymate of Englande.

Of two sondrye sortes of people/it se-

Forthemuche necessarye that somethynge be sayde in the entre of this booke, by the waye of a pzeface or prologue: wherby hereafter it maye be both p better accepted of them, which hitherto coulde not well beare it: & also the better used of them, which hitherto haue mysed it. For truly, some there are that be to slowe, and nede not this spurre: some other seme to quicke, and nede moze of the bypell. Some looke the pze face by shorte choynge, some by ouer choynge. Some walke to moche on the left hand, some to moche on the ryght. In the former sorte be all they that refuse to reade, or to heare redde the scripture in theyr vulgar tonges, moche worse they that also let, or discourage the other from the readeynge or hearynge thereof. In the latter sorte be they, which by theyr inordinate readeynge, vndiscete speakyng, contentious disputynge, or other wyse, by theyr licencious spynge, flander and hynder the woide of God, mooste of all other, wherof they wolde seme to be greatest furtherers. These two sortes albeit they be moost farre vnpke the one to the other, yet they both deserue in effecte lyke reppoeche. Neether can I well all wyther of them I maye iudge the moze offender, hym that doth obstynately refuse to godlye and goodly knowledge: or hym that so vngodly and so vngoodly doth abuse the same. And as touchynge the former, I wolde maruaile moche that any man shulde be so madde, as to refuse in darkenes, lyght: in honger, foode: in colde, fyer: for the woide of God is lyght: Luxerna pedibus meis, verbum tuum. Foode: Non in solo pane uiuit homo, sed in omni uerbo dei. fyer: Ignem dei mittere in terram, et quid uolo, nisi ut ardeat. I wolde maruaile (I saye at this) saue that I consider, howe moche custome and blage maye do. So that yf there were a people as some wyte, be Q. pmerijs, which neuer sawe the sunne, by reason that they be situated farre towarde the north pole, and be enclosed and ouershadowed with hygh montaynes: it is credyble and like ynough, that yf, by the power and will of God, the mountaynes shulde synke downe, and geue place, that the lyght of the sunne might haue accessaunce to them: at the first, some of them wolde be offended therewith. And the olde proverbe affermeth, that after pylage of coine was fyrst founde: many delpted moche to feare of mault and acoures, wherewith they had ben accustomed, then to eate biced made of good coine. Soche is the nature of custome that it causeth vs to beare all thynges well and easely, wherewith we haue bene accustomed, and to be offended with all thynges therunto contrary. And therfore, I can well thynke them worthy pardon, which at the comynng abroade of scripture doubted and dyewe backe. But such as will persyste still in theyr wylfulness, I muste nedes iudge, not onely foolyshe, frowarde and obstinate: but also greivous, peruerse and in-durate. And yet, yf the matter shulde be tryed by custome, we myght also allegge custome for the readeynge of the scripture in the vulgare tonge, and prescribe the moze auncient custome. For it is not moche aboue one hundred yeare agoe, sens scripture hath not bene accustomed to be redde in the vulgare tonge within this realme, and many hundred yeares before that, it was translated & red in the Saxones tonge, which at that tyme was oure mothers tonge. Wherof there remaineth yet diuers coppes founde lately in olde abbey, of forshantique maners of wytyngge and speakyng, that fewe men now be able to reade and vnderstande the. And when this language waied olde and out of comen blage, because folke shulde not lacke the frute of heareynge, it was agayne translated in the newe language. Wherof yet also many copes remaine and be dayly founde. But nowe to lett passe custome, and to wepe as wyse men euer shulde, the thyng in hys awne nature. Let vs here distill. What it maye pfectly scripture to be had and redde of the lay and vulgare people. And to this question I entrunder here to sape nothyng: but that was spoken and wyrtten by the noble doctoure and moost mozell diuine sapnt John Chislofome, in hys thyrde sermon de Lazaro: albeit, I wyll be somethynge choiter, and geather the matter into fawer woordes and lesse rowme the he doth there: because I wolde not be tedydous. Heretogeth there hys audience, that every man shulde reade by him selfe at home in the meane dayes and tyme, betwene sermon and sermon: to the entente they myght both moze profoudely fyze in their myndes and memories that he had sayde before vpon both textes, wherupon be had alreadye preached: and also that they myght haue theyr myndes the moze reddy and better prepared to receiue and perceiue that which he shulde say from thensforth in hys sermones, vpon soche textes, as he had not yet declared and preached vpon: therfore sayd he there: Et p comen blage is to geue you warnynge before,

what matter I intende after to entreate vpon, & you your selves in the meane dayes make at the booke in hande, reade, wepe, and perceyue the summe and effect of the matter: and marke what hath bene declared, and what remaineth yet to be declared: so & thereby your mynde maye be the more furnished, to here the reste, that shalbe sayde. And that I exhort you, sayth he, and eue haue & wyll exhort you, & he (not only here in the church) geue care to that, that is sayde by the preacher: but that also, when ye be at home in your house, & applye your selves from tyme to tyme to the reacyng of the holy scriptures: which thing also I earnestlye to brate into the eares of them that bene my samplers, and with whom I haue private acquaintance and conuersacion. Lett no man make excuse and saye: (sayeth he) I am busied aboute matters of the common welth, I beare this office or &. I am a craftes man, I must applye myne occupacion, I haue a wyfe, my chyldren must be fedde, my house-holde must I prouyde for. Briefly I am a man of the world, it is not for me to reade the scriptures, that belongeth to the that hath bedden the world saye well, which lyue in solitarie and contemplacion, that hath bene brought by, and conynually nospiced in leaenynge and religion. To this answerynge: what sayest thou man (sayeth he) is it not for thee to studye and to reade the scripture, because thou art encorbed and distracted with cares and busynesse?

So much the more it is becomenfull for the to haue defence of scriptures, howe moche thou art the more distressed in wooldly daungers. They that bene free and farre from trouble and entraynelyng of wooldly thynges, lyueth in sauegarde and tranquillite, and in the calme of within a sure haue. Thou art in the myddest of the see of wooldly wickednesse, and therefore thou needest the more of goodly succoure and comfort: they lyte farre from the strokes of battayll, and farre out of gonne shotte, and therefore they be but selde wounded: thou & standest in the forefront of the host, and next to thynne enemies, must needs take nothe and then many strokes, and be greuously wounded. And therefore thou hast more neede to haue thy remedies and medicines at hande. Thy wyfe prouoketh thee to anger, thy chyldre gyueth thee the occasyon to take sorowe and penituenes, thynne enemies lyeth in waitte for thee, thy fende (as thou takest him) some tyme churpeth thee, thy neyghbour enuiepoeteth thee, thy ap-prentis quarrels agaynst thee, thy mate or partynner undermineth thee, thy lord iudge, or thy thyetene the powerte is paynfull to thee, the losse of thy deare and welbeloued causeth thee to moene. Wherofeuer exalteth thee, aduertyse thyngert the lowe. Briefly, so busynesse and so manyfold occasyon of cares, tribulacions and temptacions be sette thee, and be segeth the combe aboute. Where canst thou haue armour or fortresse agaynst thynne assaults? Where canst thou haue saluacion for thy soles, but of holy scripture? Thy flesh must nedes be prone and subiecte to fleshly lustes, which daily walketh and art conuersaunte amongst women, seyd they be weepers, set forth to the eye, hencest they nyte and waton wordes, smellst theye balme, cynt and muste, with many other lyke prouocations and sterynges, except thou hast in a redynes wherwith to supprelle and anopde them, which cannot elles where be had, but only out of the holy scriptures. Lett vs reade and seke all the remedies that we can, and all that shalbe tpeitl enough. Howe shall we then do, yf we suffer and take daily woundes, and wha we haue done, wyll lyte spall and scerthe for no incurenes: woelt thou not marke and consider, howe the smyth, mason, or carpenter, or any other handy craftesma, what neede so euer he be in, what other thyfte focuer he make, he wyll not sell or laye to pledge the toles of hys occupacion, for then howe shulde he worke his trade or get hys lyuynge thereby? Of lyke mynde and affecton ought we to be towards holys scripture, for as mallettes, hammers, sawes, chiselles, axes, and hatchettes be the toles of thes occupacion. So bene the bookes of the prophetes, and apostles, and all holys wyte inspired by the holy ghost, y instrumentes of oure saluacion. Wherfore, let vs not stycke to bye and prouyde vs the scripture, that is to saye, the bookes of holy scripture. And lett vs thinke that to be a better Jewell in our house then eyther golde or syluer. For lyke as theues bene lothe to assaulte an house, where they knowe to be good armour and artillery, so wher soeuer these holy and goodly bookes bene occupied, there neither the deuell, nor none of hys angelles dare come neare: And they that occupye them bene in moche sauegarde, and haue greate consolacion, and bene the readyer vnto all goodnes, the slower to all euill, and yf they haue done any thing amplye, anyone euen by the syght of the bookes thes consciences bene admonished, and they woxen for & a mach of the facts. And aduenture, they will saye vnto me: howe and yf we vnderstande nott that we reade, that is conteyned in the bookes. What then? Suppos, thou vnderstande nott the depe and profoude myttees of scriptures, yett canst not be, but that moche frute and holynes must come and growe vnto the by the reacyng: for it cannot be that thou shuldest be ignozaunte in all thynges alike. For the holys ghost hath so ordeered and attempered the scriptures, that in them a well publicanes, yschers, and shepherdes maye fynde thes exhortacion, as greate doctours thes erudit yon: for those bookes were not made to bayne gloste, lyke as were the wytynges of the gentyle philosphers and rethoricyans, to the entent the makers

makers shulde be habbd in admiration for theyr hye styles and obscure maner of wy-where of nothing can be vnderstande without a master or an expostoure. But the apostles and prophetes wrote theyr booke so, that theyr speciall intent and purpose might be vndestande and perceaued of euery reader, which was nothing but the edification and amendement of the lyfe of them that reade or heareth it. Whols that reade or hearing reade in the gospell, Blessed are they that bene meke, Blessed are they that bene mercifull, Blessed are they that bene of cleane herte: and such other lyke places, can perceyue nothing excepte he haue a master to teache hym what it meaneth. Like wyse, the signes and myracles with all other byssnesses of the doynge of Christ or hys apostells, who is ther of so simple wyse and capacite, but he maye be able to perceau and vnderstande them. These be but cruells and cloyed for the eyne, and heurpynges of theyr awne ybell slouthfulness, I can not vnderstande it. What maruaille? Howe shuldest thou vnderstande, yf thou wryt not reade, nor loise thy it: take the booke into thyne handes, reade the hole booke, and that thou vnderstandest kepe it well in memoery: that thou vnderstandest not, reade it agayne and agayne: yf thou can nethe so come by it, counsaile with some other that is better learned. Go to the curate and preacher, therewe thyr selfe to be belicous to knowe and learne. And I doubt not, but God lepinge thy diligence and redynesse (yf no man elles teache the) wyl hym selfe wouchlasse w hys holp shewe to illuminate the, and to open vnto the that which was locked from the.

Remember the Eunuchus of Candace queene of Ethioppe, which albeith he was a man of a wyld and barbarous countrey, and one occupied with worldly cares and busynesses, yet caryng in hys chere, he was reauynge the scripture. Howe caryng, yf hys man passing in hys iorney, was so diligent as to reade the scripture, what thinkest thou of like was he wote to do sitting at home? Agayne, he that letted not to reade, albeit he dyd not vnderstande, what dyd he then, trowellst thou, after that when he had learned and had gotten vnderstanding: for that thou maye well knowe that he vnderstode not what he reade. Iken what Philippe there sayth vnto hym. Vnderstandest thou what thou reade? And he nothyng ashamed to confesse hys ignorance, answereth: howe shulde I vnderstande haupng no body to shewe me the wey? So when he lacked one to shewe hym the weye and to expounde to hym the scriptures, yet dyd he reade: and therefore God the rather prouided for hym a gyde of the wey, that taught hym to vnderstande it. God perceyued hys willinge and towarde mynde: and therefore he sent hym a teacher by and by. Wherefore, let no man be negligēt about hys awne healeth and saluatiō: though thou haue not Philippe all wayes when thou wol-dest, the holy ghoost, which then moued and leed by Philippe, wylde reade yf not faile the yf thou do thy diligence accordyngly. All these thynges bene wrytten for vs to ouer considra-tiō and amendeuēt, which be boie towarde the last: ende of the woilde. The reauynge of scriptures is a greute and strong bulwarke of fortresse against synne, the ignorance of the same is the greater synne and destruccyō of them that will not knowe it. What is the thing that bringeth in herefyll, that is it, that causeth all corrupciō and pryncesse, that it is, y byingeth all thynges out of good order. Hereto, all that I haue sayd, I haue take and gathered out of the forsayde sermon of this holp doctour saynt John Chrysostome. Howe yf shulde in lyke maner bying forth, what the selfe same doctour speaketh in other places, and what other doctours and wryters saye, concerning the same purpose. I myght seme to you to wryte another Bible, rather then to make a preface to the Bible. Wherefore in few wo-rdes to compryehēde the largenes and vtilitie of the scripture, howe it conserueth frutefull instructiō and eruditō for euery man, yf any thynges be necessarie to be learned: of the holy scripture We maye learne it. Yf falshe shall be reuoced, therof we maye gather wherwith all. Yf any thyng be to be corrected and amended, yf there neede any exhortatiō or cosolatiō, of the scripture we maye well learne. In the scriptures be the fatte pastures of the soule, therein is no veynouse mente, no vnholsome thyng, they be the very dayntie and precious feygne. He that is ignorant, shall fynde ther what he shoulde learne. he that is a precious fymer, shall ther fynde his damnatyō to make hym to tremble for feare. he that labonereth to serue God shall fynde ther his glorey, & the promysse of eternall lyfe, exhortyng hym most diligently to labour. In the scriptures maye praynes learne howe to gouerne their subiectes: subiectes obediēce, loue and drede to theyr prynces, husbādes, howe they shulde be hūe the vnto their wyfes: howe to educate theyr children and seruātes. And contray the wyfes, chyldren, and seruātes maye knowe there dūty to theyr husbādes, prynces and masters.
 Here maye all maner of persons, men, women, yonge, olde, learned, vnlerned, ephe, poore, prelates, laymen, Lodes, Labours, offycers, reuātes, and meane men, viceroyes, wyces wodowes, lawers, marchātes, artyspers, husbāde men, and all maner of persons of what estate or conditiō forer they be, maye in this booke learne all thynges what they ought to beleeue, what they ought to do, & what they shulde not do, as well concerning almyghty god concernynge them selues and all other. Wherfore to the readynge of the scripture none of us enemye, but that euey be so fyerke, that they loue not to here of any medecyne: or so that be so ignorant, that they knowe not scripture to be the most heylfull medecyne.

Therefore as touchynge this former parte, I wyl here conclude and take it as a conclusion sufficientlye determined and approued, that it is conuenient and good, the scripture to be red of all sortes & kynnes of people, and in the vulgare tonge without further allegation or probablos for the same, which shall not be, thus I this one place of John Chrysostome is prough sufficient to perswade all thes be not frowardly and puerilllye sett in their awne willfull opinion, specially now that the kynges byrgines byngne supreme hebe nere vnder Christe of this church of Englande hath appoued with his royall assente the setting furthe herof, which onely to all true and obedient subiectes ought to be a sufficient reason, for the allowance of the same, without farther delaye, reclamation, or resistance although there were no preface nor other reason here in expessed. Therefore now to come to the secnde and laste part of my purpose there is nothing to good in this worlde but it maye be abused, and turned from fruitfull and holioine, to hurtfull and noysome. What is there about, better then the sunne, the moone, the starres? Yet was ther froke occasion by the great bewte and vertue of them to dishonoure God, and to despie them selues with ydolatre, granting the honour of the lyuing God and creatour of all thinges, to suche thynges as he had created.

What is there here beneath, better then fyre, water, meates, drynkes, metallis of golde, syluer, yron and steele? Yet we se daylie great harme and moch mische, done by euey one of the, alwell for lacke of wisdom and prouidence of them that suffer euill, as by the malice of them that worketh the euill. Thus to them that be euill of them selues, euey thyng is fether forwarde and encreasech theire euill, be it of his awne nature a thing neuer so good, lyke as contrarie, to them that studyeth and endeuoreth them selues to goodnes, euey thyng prenalet them, and profitteth vnto good: be it of his awne nature a thing neuer so badde.
As saynt Paul sayth, his qui diligunt deum omnia cooperantur in bonum: euen as out of moost venomous wormes is made treacle, the moost soueraygne medecine for the preseruation of manns helth in tyme of daunger. Wherfore I wolde aduise you all, that cometh to the readynge of hearyng of this booke, which is the worde of God, the mooste precious Tuel, and moost holy reliquie, that remaneth vpon earth, that ye bring with you the feare of God, and that ye do it with all due reuerence, and vse your knowledge therof, not to vayne glorie and frivolous disputatio: but to the honour of God, encrease of vertu, and coruption both of yd selues and other. And to the extent that my wordes maye be the more regarded, I wyl vie in this parte the auctorite of saynt Gregoie Nazianzen, lyke as in the other I byd of S.
John Chrysostome. It appereth that in this tyme there were some (as I feare me, there bene also nowe at these dayes a great number) which were ydell bablers, and talkers of the scripture out of reason, and all good order, and without any encrease of vertu, or exaple of good lynyng, to them be wyrteth all this syst boke, be theologia. Either of I shall bespeke gather the hole effecte, and recite it here vnto you. There ben some (sayeth he) whole not onely eares and tonges, but also their eyes bene wibbled and ready bent all to contencion and unprofitable disputation, whom I wolde wishe as they bene chemicke and trest to reason the matter with tongue: so they were also ready and pactive to do good dedes. But for asmoche as they, subuertynge the order of all godlynes, haue respecte onely to this thyng. Howe they maye hynde and looke subtile questions, so that now euey market place, euey alchouse and tancene, euey craft house: be they euey company of men, euey assemblye of women is fylled with such talke. Sems the matter is so (sayeth he) and that our saynt & holy religion of Christ begynnet to wat nothing els: but as it were a sophistreye or a talking craft. I can no lesse do but saye something therunto. It is not fitte (sayeth he) for euey mā to dispute byng questions of diuinite, necher is it to be done at all tymes: necher in euey audier must we discuse euey doubte: but we must knowe whā, to whom, and how farre we ought to enter into such matters. First, it is not for euey man: but it is for suche as be of exacte and exquisite indygiments, and suche as haue spente the tyme before in studye and contemplation: and suche as before haue clenched them selues adwell in soule, as bodye: or at the least, embowed them selues to be innde cleane. For it is daungerous (sayeth he) for the vncleane to touch that thyng, that is mooste cleane: lyke as the foye eye taketh harme by lookinge vpon the sunne.
Secoundlye, not at all tymes but when we be reposed: and at reste frome all outwarde dreeggs and trouble, and when that oure headdes be not cumbered with other worldlye and wanderyng ymaginatyons: as yf a man shulde myngle balme and dyate together. For he that shall iudge and determine suche matters and doubtis of scriptures, muste take the tyme, when he maye applye his wittes therunto, that he maye thereby the better see, and discern what is truerhe.

Chydelye

Chyche where, and in what audience. Chere and amonge those that bene studious, are, and not amonge such as haue pleasure to teyle with suche matters as with other thynges of pastyme, which repute for there theye delicates the disputacion of hygh questiones, to shewe there wittes, learninge and eloquence in reasonyng of hygh matters. Four-the, it is to be considered howe farr to wade in suche matters of difficultie. For further (sayeth he) but as euery mannes owne capacyte wyl serue him, and as nyne no further the the weakenes of intelligence of the other audience maye bere. For yf as to great noyse hurteth the eare, to moche meate hurteth a mannes bodye, to heuie burdenis hurteth the brete of them, to moche rapine both more hurte then good to the grounde, likewise in all thynges to much is no poultice, eue so to wke wittes & wke chylces maye soue be oppressed w ouer hard questios. I say not this to disuade me frome y knowledg of God, & readyng or studying of y scripture. For I saye, y y is as necessarye for the lyfe of mānes soule, as for y body to breathe.
 And yf it were possible so to lyue, I woulde thinke it good for a man to spende all hys lyfe in that, and to do no other thyng. I comende y haue whyche byddeth to indicate & studie the scriptures all wayes both nyghte and daye, and Sermons and preachynges to be made both moynyng none and eueryng. And God to be lawbed and blessed in all tymes, to be ad-warded, frome bedde, in oure toynys, and all oure other workes. I saye ydd not to reade, but I saye ydd to reason. Rather saye ydd to reason so farr as is good and godlye. But I followe not that is done oute of season, and out of measure and good order. A man maye eate to moche of honeye be it neuer so swete, and ther is tyme for euery thyng; and that thyng, that is good is not good, yf it be vngoodly done. Euen as a flower in wynter is oute of season, and as womans apparell becometh not a man, nether contrarylye, the mannes, the woman: nether is weeping comenient at a byedale, nether laughyng at beeryall. Howe yf we can obseue and kepe that is comely and tyme in all other thynges, shall not we then be rather do the same in the holpe scriptures? Let vs not runne furth as it were wold horse chat can suffer nether bypell in thre mouthes, nor lyter on thre backes. Let vs kepe vs in oure boundes, and nether let vs go to farr on thone syde, lest we recoize into Egypte, nether to farr ouer y other, lest we be caried a waye to Babilon. Let vs not syng the songe of our Loide in a straunge lande, that is to saye, let vs not dispute the wordes of God at all auentures, as well where it is not to be reasoned, as where it is, and as well in the eares of them yf we not lyte therfore, as of the that be. If we can no wyse forbere, but that we must nedes dispute, let vs forbere thus moche at the leaste, to do it oute of tyme, and place conuenient. And let vs entreate of those thynges which be holye, holye, and vpon those thynges y bene mysticall, mysticall, & not to utter the dyuine multerys in the eares vnwoorthy to heare them, but let vs knowe what is comely as well in oure splende and talkyng, as in oure garments weyinge, in oure fedyng, in oure gestur, in oure goynges, and all oure other be haupng. Chys contentyon and debate aboute scriptures, and doubteth therof: specially whan suche as ppretende to be the fauours and students therof cannot agre wthin the selfes, both moche hurte to oure selfes, and to the furtherpyng of the cause & querelis that we woulde haue forthere aboute all other thynges. And we in this (sayeth he) be not vnlyke to them that beyinge madder, sett there a wne house on fyer, and that se there a wne chylde, or beate there a wne parentes. I maruaile moche (sayeth he) to recomite wherof cometh all this despaye of vayne glozye, wherof cometh all this tongue itche, that we haue so much delight to talke and clatter. And wherin is our communication: Not in the comendacions of vertuous and good deades of hospitalite, of loue betwene christiane brother & brother, of loue betwene man & wyfe, of virginitye and chasticite, and of almose to wardes the poore. Not in Psalmes and godly songes, not in lamentyng for oure synnes, not in repressyng the affections of the body, not in prayes to God. We talke of scripture, but in y meane tyme we subbe we not oure fleshe, by fastyng, wakyng, and wepyng, we make not this lyfe a meditation of death, we do not tyme to be lordes of oure appetites & affections. We goo not aboute to pull downe oure proude & hygh myndes to grate oure fummylye & rancorous stomakes, to restrayne oure lutes & bodely despletions, oure vndiscrete sowowes, oure lasciuious merthe, oure nozbilate lookyng, oure vnscarable herpyng of vanities, oure speakyng without measure, oure incomenient thoughtes, and herebyl, to reforme oure lyfe and maners: but all oure holynes co-sylteth in talkyng. And we pardon eche other frome all good lpyng, so that we maye flyt fast together in argumentacyon, as though there were no moo wayes to breuen, but this alone the waye of speculation and knowledg as they take it) but in verye deade, it is rather the waye of superfluous congition and sophisticy. he herto haue I receyued the mynde of George Mayanene in that booke which I spake of before. The same without sayeth also in an other place that the learninge of a Chyristen man ought to begynne of the feare of God, to ende in mysters of hygh speculacy, and not contraryly to begynne with speculation

...de in feare. for speculatiō (saith he) other hye connyng and knowledg, p̄t he not, sayed with the bybell of feare to offende Godde is badgerous and enough to stumble a man ydelinge downe the byll. Therefore, sayeth he, the feare of God must be the fyrst begynnynge and as it were an abce or an introductis to all them that shall enter to the very trew and most frutefull knowledg of holy scriptures. Where as is the feare of God, there is, sayeth he, the keepynge of the commaundementes, and where as is the keepynge of the commaundementes, there is the cleynge of the fleshe, which fleshe is a cloude before the soules eye, and suffereth it not puerlye to see the beame of p̄scently lght. Where as is the cleynge of the fleshe, there is the illumination of the holy ghoſt, thence of all oure deſyres, and the very lght whereby the veritye of scriptures is seen and perceyued. This is the mynde and almost the wordes of Gregorie Nazianzene doctour of the greke church of whom saynt Jerome sayeth, that vnto hys tyme, the latten church had no wyterable to be compared, and to make an euen matche with him. Therefore to conclude this latter parte, euery man that cometh to the readynge of this holy booke ought to bynne with hym fyrst and formeſt this feare of almyghtye godde, and then nexte a fayne and ſtable purpoſe to refoyme hys awne ſelfe accordynge ther vnto, and ſo to conynue p̄cede, and p̄ſp̄ce ſome tyme to tyme, thewynge hym ſelfe to be a ſober and frutefull better and leener, which p̄t he doo, he ſhall proue at the lgh̄t well able to teach, though not with hys mouth, yet with hys lypynge and good example, which is ſuer the moſt lypely, and moſt effectcouſe foyme and maner of teachynge. he that otherwyſe intermedleth with this booke, let hym be aſſured, that on he ſhall make accompte therfor, when he ſhall haue ſayde to hym as it is wyrtten in the Propheete Nauiā, Deccatoz dicit deus etc. Into the vngodly ſayde God, why doest thou p̄che my lawes, and takeſt my teſtament in thy mouth: Where as thou hateſt to be reformed, and haſt caſt my wordes behynde the. When thou ſaweſt a thefe, thou conſentydſt vnto hym and haſt bene partetaker with aduoucers. Thou haſt lett thy mouth ſpeake wychevnes, and with thy tonge thou haſt leſſed diſceyte. Thou ſatteſt and ſpakeſt agaynſt thy brother and haſt ſlandered the awne in others ſonne. Theſe thynges haſt thou done. & I helde my tonge and p̄ thoughteſt (wychevly) that I am euen ſuche a one as thy ſelfe. But I wyllecepoſe the, and lett before the, the thynges that thou haſt done. Conſyder this, yet that forget God leſt I plucke you a waye, and there be none to deliuer you. Who ſo offereth me thākes and praye he honoureth me, and to hym that ordereth hys conuerſation ryght: wyl I thewe the ſaluation of godde.

God ſaue the kynge.

The fyrst Chapter.

¶ Howe heauen and earth, the lyght, the firmamēt, the sunne, the moone, the starres, and all beastes, fowles, and fyshes in the seer were made by the word of God. And howe man also was created.

¶ 1. sat. ch. b.
¶ 2. r. b. g. a.
¶ 3. r. b. g. a.
¶ 4. r. b. g. a.

In the begynnyng * God created heauen and earth.
The earth was voyde and empty: and darcknes was upon the face of the depe: and the spere of God moued upon the face of the waters. And God sayde: let there be made lyght, and there was light made. And God sawe the light that it was good. And God made a diuision betwene the light and darknesse. And God called the light, daye: and the darke he called, nyght. And the euenyng and the morning was made one daye.

And God sayde: let there be a firmamēt betwene the waters: and let it make a diusion betwene waters and waters. And God made the firmament, and let a diuision be-twene the waters which were vnder the fir-mamēt, and the waters that were aboue the firmament. And it was so. And God called the firmament, heauen. The euenyng also and the morning was made the secōd daye.

¶ 5. r. b. g. a.
¶ 6. r. b. g. a.

And God sayde: * let the waters vnder heauen be gathered together into one place, that the dype lande maye be fene. And so it came to passe. And God called the dype lāde Earth: and the gathering together of waters called be the seas. And God sawe that it was good.

And God sayde: let the earth bring forth grene herbe, which maye engendre seed: and fruitefull tre, yelpyng fruite after hys kynde, whose seed maye be in it self vpon the earth.
And it came to passe. And the earth brought forth grene herbe, makinge seede after hys kynde: and tree yelpyng fruite, whose seed was in it selfe after hys kynde. And God sawe that it was good. The euenyng also and the morning was made the thyrde daye.

¶ 7. r. b. g. a.
¶ 8. r. b. g. a.

And God sayde: * let there be made lyghtes in the firmament of heauen: and let them make a difference betwene the daye and the nyght, and let them be vnto signes, and vnto appointed seasons, and vnto dayes, and vnto yeres. And let them be vnto lyghtes in the firmament of heauen, that they maye geue lyght vpon the earth.
And so it came to passe.

¶ 9. r. b. g. a.

And God made * two greate lyghtes: a greater lyght to rule the daye, & a lesse lyght to rule the nyght (And he made) Arctes also:
And God set them in the firmament of heauen, that they myght geue lyght vpon the earth, and that they might rule the daye and the nyght: and to make a difference betwene the lyght and the darcknes. And God sawe that it was good. The euenyng also and the morning was made the fourth daye.

And God sayde: * let the waters bring forth moonyng creature that hath lyfe, and foule that maye flye vpon the earth in the face of the firmament of heauen. And God created great walles and euery lyuing and mouyng creature, which y waters brought forth after their kynde: and euery feathered foule after their lynde. And God sawe that it was good. And God blessed them, sayinge: Growe & increase and fyll the waters of the see: and let fethered foules be multitypled in the earth. The euenyng also and the morning was made the fyfth daye.

¶ 10. r. b. g. a.
¶ 11. r. b. g. a.

And God sayde: let the earth bring forth lyuing creature after his kynde: cattell, wylme and beast of the earth after his kynde: and so it came to passe. And God made the beast of the earth after his kynde, and cattell after their kynde: and euery thyng that creepeth vpon the earth after his kynde. And God sawe that it was good.

And God sayde: let vs make man: * in oure ymage after oure lykenes, and let them haue rule of the fysh of the see: and foules of the ayre and cattell, and all the earth, and of euery creeping thyng that creepeth vpon the earth. And so God created man in his owne ymage: in the * ymage of God created he hym, * male and female created he them.

¶ 12. r. b. g. a.
¶ 14. r. b. g. a.

And God blessed them, and God sayd vnto them: Growe and increase and repleyn the earth, and subdue it: and haue * dominion of the fysh of the see, and foules of the ayre: and of euery lyuing thyng that moueth vpon the earth. And God sayde: Beholde, I haue geuen you euery herbe bearinge seed, which is in the vpper face of all the earth: and euery tree in the which is the fruite of tree, and that foweth seed, that they maye beate vnto you. To euery beast of the earth also, and to euery byrde of the ayre, and to euery luche thyng as creepeth vpon the earth (wherein is a lyuing soule) I haue geue all greynesse of herbe to be meat. And it came to passe.
And God sawe euery thyng y he had made,
* and beholde, it was exceeding good. The euenyng also and the morning was made the sixth daye.

¶ The second Chapter.

¶ The balouryng of the Sabbath daye. The foure fowles of the ayre. The creeping of the fowles of the see. The tree of knowledge in the garden of Eden named all creatures. The creation of Adam.
The institution of marriage.

thou which sayde: I heare the voyce in the garden, & was afrayed, because I was naked, & hid my selfe. And he sayde: Who tolde the, that thou wast naked? halt thou not eaten of the fennel tre, concerninge the which I commaunded the, that thou shouldest not eate of it? And Adam sayd: The woman, whom thou gauest to be with me, she gaue me of the tree, and I dyd eate.

C And the Lorde God sayde vnto the woman: Why hast thou done this? And the woman sayde: yonder serpent begyled me, and I dyd eate. And the Lorde God sayde vnto the serpent: because thou hast done this, thou art cursed above all catell, and above every beast of the felde. Upon thy belly shalt thou go, & dust shalt thou eate all thy dayes, of thy lyfe. I will also put enmitye betwene the & the woman, betwene thy seede and hyr seede: C * * * The same shall treade downe thy head, and thou shalt treade vpon hyr heile.

But vnto the woman he sayde: In multitude shall I multiplye thy sozowes & thy conceyvinge: In sozowes shalt thou brynge forth chyldren, & thy lust shall percerne to thy husbände, & he shall haue the rule of the.
* * * vnto Adam he sayde: Because thou hast hearkened vnto the voyce of thy wyfe, & hast eaten of the tree: concerninge the which I commaunded the, sayinge, Thou shalt not eate of it: cursed is the ground for thy sake. In sozow-es shalt thou eate of it all the dayes of thy lyfe. * * * Thow also & thy sle shall it cause to growe vnto the, & thou shalt eate the herbe of the felde. In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eate bread, tyll thou be turned agayne into the ground, for out of it wast thou taken, in as much as thou art dust, & into dust shalt thou be turned agayne.

10.11.13.

D And Adā called his wyues name: Heua, because she was the mother of all lyuyn-
g. vnto the same Adam also & to hyr wyfe dyd the Lorde God make letheren garmentes, & clothed them. And the Lorde God sayde: Beholde, yonder man hath bene euen as one of vs, that he myght knowe good and euill. And now lest happily he put forth hyr hand, and take also of the tree of lyfe, and ea-te, & lyue for euer. And the Lorde God sent to be droue out man, & at the east syde of the garden of Eden, he set Cherubim, & the gly-steringe flame of a Chalyngre swerde, to ke-pe the waie of the tree of lyfe.

but also by his brethren is cursed. The generation of Enoch: Chabuciaci: Tubal: Kainir: Gog and Enos.

C Cain knewe heuyn his wyfe: Whose conecyunge, bare Cain, sayinge: I haue gotten a man of the Lorde. And the procreacyunge furth, brought forth hyr brother Habel, and Habel was a keeper of shepe.
But Cain was a tyler of the grounde. And in pcelle of dayes it came to passe, that Cain brought of the fente of the grounde an obla-cyon vnto the Lorde. Habel also brought of the fyrstlynge of hyr shepe, and of the fat therof. And the Lorde had respect vnto * * * Habel, & to hyr oblacon. But vnto Cain and to hyr offeringe he had no respect. For the whych cause Cain was exceeding wro-the, and hyr countenance abated. And the Lorde sayde vnto Cain: Why art thou wro-the, & why is thy countenance abated? * * *
thou do well, shall there not be a promociō.
And yf thou dost not well, lictyn not thy syn ne in the doyes: * * * vnto the also pertayneth the lust therof, and thou shalt haue dominiō ouer it. And Cain spake vnto Habel hyr brother: * * * (let us go furth.)

Cain: Where is Habel thy brother? Whych sayd: I wote not. Am I my brothers keeper?
And he sayde: What hast thou done? The voyce of thy brothers bloudes crieth vnto me out of the grounde. And now art thou cursed from of the erth, whych hath opened hyr mouth, to receaue thy brothers bloudes from thy hande. If thou tply the grounde, she shall not proceade to yelde vnto the byr strength.
Fugitiue, and vagabounde shalt thou be in the erth. And Cain sayde vnto the Lorde: Myne * * * iniquite is more, then I maye be daye from the vyrtue face of the erth, and fro thy face shall I be hyd: Fugitiue also and a

* Job. 11. 1.

And the Lorde set a marke vpon Cain, lest any mā synnynge him, shoulde kill hym.
And Cain wente out fro the presence of the Lorde, & dwelt in the lode of Adā eastward fro Eden. Cain also knewe his wyfe, whych bore enoch & Hare: Enoch & byrthinge a chyld, he called the name of the luyne cysle after the name of hyr sonne Enoch. vnto the same Enoch was borne Irad, Irad begett Abel, a ij. chylde,

them hurty from the garden of Eden, to des-se the grounde that he was taken out of. And hualai, & Methuselah begat Methuselah. Methuselah begat Lamech. And Lamech took unto him two wives: & the name of the one was Ada, & the name of the other was Zilla. And Ada bare Jabel, which was the father of such as dwell in tents, & of such as have cattle. His brothers name was Tubal, which was the father of such as handle harp & organ. And Zilla also begat Tubal Cain, which wrought cunningly every craft of brass & of iron. The sister of Tubal Cain, was Naama.

And Lamech spake unto his wives Ada and Zilla: Hear ye my voice ye wives of Lamech, hearken unto my speech: for I have not slain a man to the wounding of my selfe, & a vengeance will I take upon my punishment. If Cain shall be avenged, I will be avenged. I will slay Adam, because he slew my brother.

Adam knew his wife againe, & she bare a sonne, and called his name Seth: for God (sayde he) hath appointed me another seed in stead of Abel, which Cain slew. And unto the same Seth also there was borne a sonne, & he called his name Enos. Then began they to make innocency in the name of the Lord.

Chapter.

The cause of the flood. God warned Noe of the coming of the flood. He preparinge of the Ark.

And it came to passe, that man began to be multiplied in the vpper face of the earth, and there were daughters borne vnto the. & the sonnes of God also sawe the daughters of men that they were faire, and they took them wyues from amonge all that they had chosen. And the Lord sayde: My spirit shall not alwaye stirre in man, because he is flesh, and his dayes shall be an hundred & thretye yeeres. But there were giants in the earth in those dayes: and after that the sonnes of God came vnto the daughters of men, and they had gotten vnto them, the same became mighty men of the world, and men of renowne.

But God sawe that the malice of man was greete in the earth, and all the imagination of the thought of his heart was only evil continually. And God repented that he had made man in the earth, & he was touched with sorrow in his heart. And ¶ the Lord sayde: I will (from the vpper face of the earth) destroye man, whom I haue created: both man, catell, worme, & foule of the ayre, for it repenteth me ¶ I haue made them.

But Noah founde grace in the eyes of ¶ the Lord: The cleane ¶ generacions of Noah & Noah was iust & perfect in his generacions, and he walked with God. Noah begat the sonnes: Sem, Ham, & Japheth. The earth also was corrupte before God, & the same earth was fylled with crueltie. And God looked vpon the earth, and beholde he was corupt: For all flesh had corrupt his waye vpon earth.

And God sayde vnto Noah: The ende of all flesh is come before me, for the earth is fylled with crueltie from the face of them. And beholde, I will destroye them with the earth, Make the an Arke of fyne trees. habitacions shall thou make in the Arke, and shalt putt therein & without with pyrch. ¶ And of this fashion shalt thou make it. The lengthe of the Arke shall be three hundred cubytes: The bryeth of it, fiftie cubites, & the heygth of it thirtie cubytes. I wyndowe shall thou make in the Arke, and in a cubite shall thou synthesize above, but the doze of the Arke shall thou set in the syde therof. With the loftee one above an other shalt thou make it.

And behode, I, euen I, do bring a floude of waters vpon the earth, that I maye destroye all flesh: wherein is the birth of lyfe vnder heauen: And euery thyng that is in the earth, shall dye. With the also will I make my couenant, & thou shalt come into the Arke: thou & thy sonnes, thy wife & thy sonnes wyues with thee. And euery lyuing thinge, and of all flesh, a payre of euery one shalt thou bringe into the Arke, to kepe them aloue with thee. They shall be male & female. Of the foules also after theyr kynde, & of catell after theyr kynde, of euery wombe of the earth after his kynde: two of euery one shalt thou come vnto me, that thou mayst kepe them aloue. And take thou with thee of all meate that is eaten, and thou shalt laye it vp with thee, that it maye be meate for thee & them. Noah therefore dyd accordyng vnto all that God commaunded hym: euen so dyd he.

¶ The viij. Chapter.

¶ The entrance of Noe, and of them that were with hym, into the Arke. The clyng of the floude: wherewith come all thyngs vnder heauen.

¶ And the Lord sayd vnto Noah: Come thou and all thy house into the Arke for the sake of me. I sene & reprouous before me in thy generacion. Of euery & cleane beast thou shalt take with thee seuen and seuen: The male and his female: But of vncleane catell, two, the male and his female. Of foules also of the ayre, seuen and seuen, & male & the female, to kepe seuen aloue vpon the face of all the world: For yet after seuen dayes I will rapyne the earth fortye dayes & fortye nyghtes. All substance that I haue made, will I destroye from the vpper face of the earth.

Noah therefore dyd accordyng vnto all that God commaunded hym. And Noah was syre hundred yeres, & the founte of waters was vpon the earth. And Noah came (and his sonnes, & his wyfe, & his wyues wyues with hym) vnto the Arke, because of the waters of the floude. Of cleane catell, & of vncleane catell, & of fpyenge foules, and of euery such as creepeth vpon the earth, there came two and two vnto Noah into the Arke, the male and the female, as God had commaunded Noah. It fortuned also after seuen dayes, and the waters of the floude were vpon the earth.

In the syre hundredth yere of Noes lyfe in the seconde month, the fourth daye of the moneth. In the same daye were all the fountaynes of the great dree broken vp, and the wyndowes of heauen were opened. And the rayne was vpon the earth fortye dayes and fortye nyghtes. In the like same daye entred Noah, Sem, Ham, & Japheth, the sonnes of Noah, & Noahs wyfe, and the thre wyues of his sonnes with them into the Arke: They, & euery beast after his kynde, and all catell after theyr kynde, & euery wombe that creepeth vpon the earth after his kynde, and euery byrde after his kynde, and euery thinge that hath lyfe.

And they came vnto Noah into the Arke two and two, of all flesh wherein is the birth of lyfe. And they entering in, came male and female of all flesh, as God had commaunded hym. And God shut hym in rounde aboute. And the floude came fortye dayes vpon the earth, & the waters were increased, and bare vpon the Arke, whiche was lyfte vpon the earth. The waters also pswauled, & were increased exceedingly vpon the earth, and the Arke went on the vpper face of the waters. And the waters pswauled exceedingly vpon the earth, & all the byrdes that are vnder the whole heauen, were couered. Fyftene cubytes vwarde vnto the waters pswauled, so that the mountaynes were couered.

And all flesh dyed that moued vpon the earth, in foule, in catell, in beast, and in euery wombe that creepeth vpon the earth: & euery man also. What fouer was (in whole world) the birth of lyfe dyd die, all that was in the vpper lande dyed. And euery thyng was destroyed, that remained, & that was in the vpper parte of the ground: both man and catell, and worme, and foule of the ayre: they were euen destroyed from off the earth. And Noah onely remained aloue, and they that were with hym in the Arke.

waters prechaied vpon the earth an dūch and by the dapes.

The viij. Chapter.

Where the fountayne oute of the rauen and the dowe, that went forth of the Arke: and offereth sacrifice.
The naturall conuersion of manns herie.

AND God remembered Noah, and euery braste, and all y^e catell that was with him in y^e Arke. And god made a wind to passe vpon the earth, and the waters crafsed. The fountaynes also of the depe and the windowes of heauen were stopped, and the rayne from heauen was restrayned. And the waters from the erth were returned, goyng and comyng agayne. And after the ende of the hundredth and fyftieth daye, y^e waters were abated. And in the seuenth moneth in the seuententh daye of the moneth, the Arke rested vpon y^e mountaynes of Aruena. And the waters truly were goyng and decreasyng vntyl the tenth moneth: for in y^e tenth moneth, & in the fyfth daie of y^e same moneth were the toppes of the mountaynes seene.

AND after the ende of the fortieth daye, it happened that Noah opened the wyndowes of the Arke which he had made. And he sent forth a rauen, which went out goyng forth and returning agayne, vntyl y^e waters were dreyed by vpon the earth. And agayne he sent forth a dowe from hym, y^e dowe yf the waters were abated from y^e vpper face of the grounde. And the dowe founde no rest for y^e sole of her fote, & she returned vnto hym agayne into the Arke: for the waters were in y^e vpper face of the whole erth. And he, when he had put forth his hāde, toke her, and pulled her into hym into the Arke.

And he abode yet other leuen dayes, and proceedyng further, he sent forth the dowe out of the Arke. And the dowe came to hym in y^e euen tyme, and lo, in her mouth was an olīue leafe y^e he had pluckt, whereby Noah did knowe, that the waters were abated vpon the earth. And he abode yet other fene daies and sent forth the dowe, which proceeded not to retorne vnto hym any more.

E And it came to passe in the fyfth hundredth & one yere, in the fyfth moneth, & in the fyfth daye of the moneth, the waters were dreyed vpon the earth. And Noah remoued the couering of the Arke, & looked, & beholde, the vpper face of y^e grounde was dreyed vp. And in the secunde moneth, in the seuen & twenty daye of the moneth, was the earth dreyed.

And God spake vnto Noah sayyng: Go forth of the Arke, thou & thy wyfe, thy sonnes, & thy sonnes wyues with the. And thyng forth with the, euery braste that is with the:
of all fleshe, both foule & catel, & euery wo-me that creepeth vpon the earth: that they make gentyl in y^e carth, & byygng forth frute, and & increase vpon the. And so Noah came forth and his sonnes, his wyfe, & his son-nes wyues with hym. Euery braste also and euery woyme, euery foule, and whatsoeuer crepeth vpon the earth (after theye kyndes) went out of the Arke.

And Noah buylded an altare vnto y^e lorde, and toke of euery cleane beast, and of euery cleane foule, & offered sacrifices in y^e altare.
And the lorde smelled a sweete (or quyet) sauoure. And the lorde sayde in his herte:
I wyl not proceede to curs^e y^e grounde any more for mannes sake, for the y^e pingny-tyon of manns herte is enclenched fro y^e youth.
Nepther wyl I adde to smite any more euery thyngge luyngge, as I haue done, yet her-fore shall not so wyng tyme, a haruest, colde and heate, somer & wynter, daye & nyght, ceasse, all the dapes of the earth.

The ix. Chapter.

God blessed Noe & his sonnes. He forbydeth to eat the blood of brastes: & to shed mannes blood. The labor of the fowle. He maketh a covenante that he wyl betrowe the wythe no more by water: & the youth the reyssels by a token and confirmacion of the same. Noe is dynowen. He com vnto Noe with hym, and getteth his curse.

AND God & blessed Noah & his sonnes, and sayde vnto them: byygne ye forth frute and multiplie, and replenche y^e earth. The feare of you and the drede of you shalbe vpon euery beaste of y^e erth, and vpon euery foule of the ayre, in all such y^e frute byygngth forth, and in all the spheces of y^e ffece.
Into your hande are they deliuered. Euery thyngge that moueth it selfe, and that lyueth, shalbe meate for you: Euen as y^e grene herbe haue I geuen you all thynges. But & fleshe in the lyfe therof, and in y^e bloude therof shall ye not eat. His your bloude of your lyues wyl I requyre: from the hande of euery beaste wyl I requyre it, and from the hande of man: from the hande of manns brother wyl I requyre y^e lyfe of man. Who so & sheddeth mannes blood, by man shall

This is the token of the couenant whiche I haue made betwene me and all flesch that is vpon erth.

The sonnes of Noah govyng furth of the Ark, were: Sem, Ham, and Iapheth. And Ham truly is the father of Chanaan. There are y the sonnes of Noah, & of the was the whole erth ouersped. Noah also beganne to be an husbande man, and planted a vineyard. And he bynyngye of the wyne, was drunken, and diuouered wythin hys tent.

And Ham the father of Chanaan seynge the nakednesse of hys father, tolde hys two bretheren wythout. And Sem and Iapheth, they two, takynge a garment, laped it vnto their shulders: & comynge bakwarde, couered the naked petyties of their father: namely, they face beyng turned awaye, lest they shoulde se the fathers petyties.

And Noah awoke from hys wyne, and knewe what his yonger sonne had done vnto hym. And he sayde: Cursed be Chanaan, a seruant of seruantes shall he be vnto hys bretheren. He sayde mozeouer: Blessed be the Lord God of Sem, & Chanaan shalbe hys seruaut. God shall enlarge Iapheth, and he shall dwell in the ctes of Sem, & Chanaan shalbe theire seruaut. Noah lyued after the floude the hundredth and fyfte yeares. And all the dayes of Noah were nyne hundredth & fyfte yeares. And he dyed.

¶ The .x. Chapter.

¶ The genealogie of Iapheth: Sem: and Ham.

These are the generacions of the sonnes of Noah, Sem, Ham and Iapheth: And vnto them were chyldren boine after the floude.

The chyldren of Iapheth: Gomer and Magog, and Madai, and Iauan, and Tubal, and Mesch, and Theras. The chyldren of Gomer: Arkenas and Kaphach and Thogarma. The chyldren of Iauan: Etila and Tharsis, Rithym, and Modanin. Of these were the Iles of the Isles demped in the landes, euery man after hys tonge, & after hys hundreds in their nacyns.

The chyld of Ham: Cush & Mizraim,

and Shut and Chanaan. And the chyldren of Cush: Seba and haualab and Sabtha, and Rahina, Scherba and Dedan. Cush also begat: Nimrod. The same beganne to be myghtye in the erth. For he was a myghtye hunter before the Lord. Wherefore it is sayde: Euen as Nimrod the myghtie hunter before the Lord. The beginning of his kyngdome was: Babel and Cerech and Arad, and Calne, in the londe of Shinar. Out of that londe came Assur, and buyled: Ninue, and the strettes of the cite of Calah. Iselen also betwene Ninue and Calah, and it is a grate cite. Mizraim begat: Ludim, & Gennim, & Lehabim, and Kephthim. Pathrusim also and Casuthim, out of whom came Philistim and Caphtorim.

Chanaan begat: Sidon his first borne sonne, and heth, & Jebus, and Emoz, & Gergas. Hathi also and Haarki and Hattini, and Haaruabi, and Hazmar, and Habemathi. And afterwarde were the bynyngs of Canaanites spred abrode. The border of the Canaanites was from Sidon, as thou comest to Garar vntill Gaza, and as thou goest vnto Sedoma, and Gomora, and Bania, and Jebolun, euen vnto Leis. These are the chyldren of Ham in their kyndes, in theyr tonges, countrees and in theyr nacyns.

Vnto Se also the father of all the chyldren of Eber (and elder brother of Iapheth) there were chyldren boine. The chyldren of Sem: Elam and Assur, Iepthachad, and Lud and Aram. The chyldren of Aram: Uz and Hul, Gether & Was. Iepthachad begat: Selah, & Selah begat: Eber. Vnto Eber also were boine two sonnes: The name of the one was Peleg, for in hys dayes was the erth deuyded. And hys brothers name was Tahetan. Tahetan begat: Almodad and Shalcyb, Hazarmaueth and Terah, and Hobozan & Dital and Michla. Dital also & Abimaci and Scheba, and Dphir, and Hauila, and Jobab. All these were the chyldren of Tahetan. And theire dwellinge was from Mes, as thou goest vnto Sephar a mount of the east. These are the chyldren of Sem after theyr bynyngs and tonges in theyr londes and nacyns. And so these are the bynyngs of the chyldren of Noah, after theyr generacions in theyr peoples, and of the seue the nacyns demped in the erth after the floude.

¶ The .xi. Chapter.

¶ The bynyngs of the tober of Babel. The sonnes of Sem. The generacions of Sem the sonnes of Noah: Babel, Chanaan, & Gomer. And so on.

And the whole erth was of one language & of one speche. And it happened when they went furth fro the east, they founde a playne in the londe of Shinar, & there they abode. And they sayde sayd curry one to his neyghboure: Come, let vs prepare bylde, & burne them in the fyre. And they had bylde for Stone, & stymie had they in stende of moyster. And they sayde: Go to, let vs bylde vs a citie & a towre, whose toppes maye reach vnto heauen: & let vs make vs a name, lest haply we be scatred aboide in to the vpper face of the whole erth. But the Lorde came downe, to se the cytie and towre whych the chyliden of men bylde.

And the Lorde sayde: Beholde, the people is one, and they haue all one language, & thus they begynne to do, neyther wyl it be restryned fro them, whatsoeuer they haue ymagined to do. Come on, let vs go downe, and confounde theyr language, that euery one perceiue not hys neyghbours speche. And so the Lorde scatred them fro that place into the vpper face of all the erth. And they left of to bylde the cytie. And therfore is the name of it called * Babel, because the Lorde dyd there confounde the language of all the erth. And from thence dyd the Lorde scatter them aboide vpon the face of all the erth.

These are the generacions of Sem: Sem was an hundredth yere olde, and begat Arphachad two yere after the floude. And Sem liued (after he begat Arphachad) fyue hundredth yeres, and begat sonnes and daughters.

Arphachad liued fyue and thyrty yeres, & begat Shelah. And Arphachad liued (after he begat Shelah) foure hundredth & thyr yeres, and begat sonnes & daughters. Shelah liued thyrty yeres, & begat Eber. And Shelah liued (after he begat Eber) foure hundredth and thyr yeres, and begat sonnes and daughters.

Eber liued foure and thyrty yeres, and begat Peleg. And Eber liued (after he begat Peleg) foure hundredth and thyrty yeres, & begat sonnes and daughters.

Peleg liued thyrty yeres, & begat Reu. And Peleg liued (after he begat Reu) two hundredth and nyne yeres, and begat sonnes and daughters.

Reu liued two and thyrty yeres, and begat Serug. And Reu liued (after he begat Serug) two hundredth and seue yeres, and begat sonnes and daughters.

Serug liued thyrty yeres, & begat Nahoz. And Serug liued (after he begat Nahoz) two hundredth yeres, and begat sonnes and daughters.

And Nahoz liued nyne & twenty yeres, and begat Terah. And Nahoz liued (after he begat Terah) an hundredth and nyntene yeres, and begat sonnes and daughters. Terah liued seuentye yeres, and begat Abiam, Nahoz, and Haran.

These are the generacions of * Terah: Terah begat Abiam, Nahoz & Haran. Haran begat Lot. And Haran dyed in the presence of Terah hys father, in the lode of hys natyuitie, ene in the er of the Caldees. Abiam and Nahoz toke them wyues: The name of Abias wyfe was Sarai, & the name of Nahozs wyfe was Hili, the daughter of Haran the father of Hili, & the father of Jira. But * Sarai was barren, & had no chylde.

And Terah toke Abiam: his sonne, and Lot the sonne of Haran, hys sonnes sonne, & Sara hys daughter in lawe, hys sonne Abias wyfe. And they departed together fro the er of the Caldees, that they myght go into the lode of Chanaan: & they came vnto Charan, & dwelt there. And the dayes of Terah were two hundredth and fyue yeres, and Terah dyed in Haran.

C The .xij. Chapter.

Abiam is blessed of god: & goeth forth. Lot into the lode of Chanaan, wher Abram is: & hee cometh vnto him and dwelleth. Abram goeth into Egypte: & Sarai his wyfe is sold for his selte by the king of Chanaan: & hee is rescued.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Abia: * Get the out of thy countrey, & out of thy nacoon, and from thy fathers house, vnto a lode that I will shewe the. And I will make of thee a grete people, and wylle * blese the, & make thy name grete, that þ mayest be euen a blessing. I will also blese them that blese the, & curse such as curse the, & in the shall all the kynreds of the erth be blessed.

And so Abia departed euen as the Lorde spake vnto him, & Lot wete wyth hym. And Abia was seuentye & fyue yeres olde, wher he departed out of Haran. And Abiam toke Sarai his wyfe & Lot his brothers sonne, & all theyr * substance that they had in possed, & the * soules that they had begotten in Haran. And they departed, & they myght come in to the lode of Chanaan, and in to the lode of Chanaan they came. Abiam passed thorowe the londe vnto the place of Sichem, & vnto the playne of Moze: And the Canaanite was then in the londe.

And the Lorde apereyng vnto Abiam sayd: vnto thy * sele wyl I geue this lode. And there bylde he an altare vnto the Lorde, euen wher he had appered vnto hym.

C And remouynge thence vnto a mountayne that was call'd warder from Bethel, he pitched his tent, hauynge Bethel on the west syde, & Hai on the east. And he buydynge an altare vnto the Lorde, &yd call on the name of the Lorde. And Abraham wente furth goinge and departed vnto warder the south.

But there was a dert in that londe, and therfore wente Abrah downe in to Egypte, & he myghte solourne there, for there was a lorde dert in the londe. And it happeneth whā he was come nere to entre in to Egypte, he sayde vnto Sarat hys wyfe: Beholde, I knowe, that thou art a knyge woman to lorde vpon. Therfore shall it come to passe & whā the Egyptians se the, they shall saye: she is hys wyfe. And they shall kylle me, but they shall laue the alyue. Saye (I praye the) that thou art my syster, that I maye fare well for thy sake, and that my soule maye lyue throzow thy detyloun.

D And so it happened, whan Abraham was come in to Egypte, the Egyptians behelde & wound, for he was very saye. The pynces also of Idharao sawe her, and commended her before Pharaon, and the woman was taken into Pharaons house. And he truly intreated Abraham well for her sake, and he had shepe & oxen and beaues, men seruantes and mayde seruantes, & asses & camels.

And the Lorde smote Pharaon and hys house with greute plagis because of Sarat Abrahams wyfe. And Pharaon callinge Abrah, sayde (why hast thou done this vnto me? why dydest thou not tell me, that she was thy wyfe: & now therfore beholde, there is thy wyfe, take her, and go thy waye: & And Pharaon gaue the men commaundemēt conceyninge him and they conuayed him furth, and hys wyfe, and all that he had.

¶ The xliij. Chapter.

¶ Abraham and Lot departed out of Egypt. & Abrah bought the lande & cattell with Lot hys brot her lande of Canaan.

A And so Abraham got him vp out of Egypte, he & hys wyfe, & all that he had, & Lot with hym, to warder the south. And Abraham was very ryche, in cattell in shepe & golde. And he wente furth on hys tourney from the south to warder Bethel, vnto a place where hys tent had bene at the begynnyng, betwene Bethel & Hai. Euen vnto a place of the alyre which he had made there at the first, and there Abraham called on the name of the Lorde.

Lot also which went with Abraham had shepe, cattell & tentes: & the lande was not able to receaue them that they myght dwell to gether, for the & substaunce of thei ryches was greute, & they coulde not dwell to gether. And there fell a stryfe betwene & herden of Abrahams cattell, & the herden of Lots

Then sayde Abraham vnto Lot: Let there be no stryfe (I praye the) betwene the and me & betwene my herden and thynne, for we be & byerhyn. Is not all the & hole lande before the? & departe I praye the fro me. If thou wilt take the lefte hande, I will go to the ryght: or if thou departe to the ryght hande I will go to the lefte. And so Lot lye-tyng vpon hys eyes, beholde all the contre of Iordanne, which was a pleteous contre of water euery where, before & Lord destroyed Sodome & Gomozra, euen as the garden of the Lorde, lyke the lande of Egypt as thou comest vnto zoar.

¶ Then Lot chose all the playne cositrey of Iordane & toke hys tourney from the east. And so departed the one brother from the other. Abraham dwelled in a lande of Canaan: and Lot abode in the cyties of the playne, & tented vntyll Sodome. But & the men of Sodome were wicked, and cete a dyngge synners before the Lorde.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Abraham, after that Lot was departed from him. & lye vpon thynne eyes now, & loke sed the place where & part, northwarde, southwarde, & westwarde, for all & the lande whiche thou seekest wyl I geue vnto the and to thy seed for euer. Arise and walke about in the labe. after the length of it after the brydth therof, for I will geue it vnto the. And Abraham takynge downe hys tente, came and dwelled in the okregroue of Hamir, namely in & Bezon, and buyded there an alter vnto the Lorde.

And the Lord visited Sara as he had sayde and byd vnto her: accord-yng as he had promysed. For Sara was wyth chyldre and bore Abraham a sonne in his olde age, euene the same season whiche the Lord had appointed him. And Abraham called his sonnes name that was borne vnto hym which Sara: vnto him, Isahac: & Abraham circumcised Isahac his sonne whē he was. viij. dayes olde: as God commaunded hym. And Abraham was an hundred yere olde: whē his sonne Isahac was borne vnto hym. But Sara sayde: God hath made me a laughing stocke: so that all that heare: will laugh at me. She sayde also: who wolde haue sayd vnto Abraham: that Sara shulde haue geuen chyldre such: for I gaue hym him a sonne in his olde age. The chyldre grew: and was weened: and Abraham made a great feast: the same daye that Isahac was weened. Sara sawe also the sonne of Isahac the Egyptian (whych the had borne vnto Abraham) to be a mocker.

Wherefore she sayde vnto Abraham: & put a waye this bondmayde & hyr sonne: for the sonne of this bondewoman shall not be heyr with my sonne Isahac: & thes sayngs was very greuous in Abrahamys syght because of hyr sonne. And God sayde vnto Abraham: let it not be greuous in thy syght, because of the ladd and of this bondmayde. All this Sara hath sayde vnto the, heare hyr voyce, for in Isahac shall thy seed be called. Moreover of the sonne of the bondewoman wilt I make a nation: because he is thy seed.

And so Abraham rose vp early in the morninge, and toke bread and a bottell of water, and gaue it vnto Isahac, puttynge it on hyr shoulders wth the ladd also, & sent her a waye.
who departed, wandred vp and downe in the wyldernes of Beer Sheba. And the water was spent in the bottell, and she cast y^e ladd vnder a bush and went and sat on the other syde a grente waye, as it were a bowshot of: for the sayde: I will not se the death of the chyldre. And she lyytynge downe on the other syde, lpyt vphyr voyce and wepte.

And God herde the voyce of the chyldre.
And the angel of God called Isahac oute of heauen and sayde vnto her: what ayleth the Isahac? I care not, for God hath herde the voyce of the chyldre where he lyeth. Ayle, and lpyt vphyr ladd, and take hym in thy hande, for I will make of hym a grente people. And God opened hyr eyes: and she sawe a well of water. And she went and fylled the bottell with water, and gaue the boye dyynke. And God was wyth the ladd, and he grewe and dwelt in the wyldernesse, and became an archer. And he dwelt in the wyldernesse of Beran. And hyr mother gaue hym a wyfe out of the lande of Egypte.

And it chaunced the same season, that Abimelech and Ishicol hyr chiefe captayne spake vnto Abraham sayng: & God is wyth the in all that thou doest. And nowe therfore swere vnto me euene here by God, that thou wilt not hurt me nor my chyldren, nor my chyldrens chyldre. But that thou shalt deale wyllyngly with me and the contrie wher thou halt bene a stranger, accordyng vnto the kyndnesse that I haue shewed the. And Abraham sayd:
I will sweare.

And Abraham rebuked Abimelech for a well of water, which Abimelechs seruants had violently take awaye. And Abimelech sayde: I wote not who hath done this thyng. Also thou taldest me not: neither herde I of it, but thus sayde. And Abraham toke shepe and oxen, and gaue the vnto Abimelech.
And they made both of them a bonde together. And Abraham set. vii. ewe lambs by the felices. And Abimelech sayd vnto Abraham: what meane these. vii. ewe lambs which thou hast set by these felices? he answered: for these. vii. lambs shalt thou take of my habe, that they maye be a wyrrisell vnto me, that I haue dygged this well. Wherefor the place is called Beer Sheba, because that there they swore both of them. Thus made they a bonde to gether at Beer Sheba. And Abimelech & Ishicol his chiefe Captayne rose vp, and turned agayne vnto the lande of the Philistines. And Abraham planted a wodd in Beer Sheba, and called there on the name of the Lord, the euerslastyng God: and sogeourened in the Philistines lade a longe season.

Chap. xxi. Chapter.

The sayde of Abraham is prouen in offeringe his sonne Isahac. Wher ouer sauour is promysed.
The generation of Isahac: Abrahamys byrther.

After these sayngs it happened that God byd & prouen Abraham and sayde vnto hym: Abraham. Whych answered: here am I. And he sayde take thy sonne only Isahac whom thou lovest, & get the vnto the lande of Moia, and sacrifice hym there for a sacrifice vpon one of the mountayns, whych I will shewe the:
Then Abraham rose vp early in the morninge, & saddled his asse, and toke two of hyr younge mē wyth hym, and Isahac hyr sonne:
and clove wodd for the sacrifice, and rose vp and gott hym to the place whych God had appointed hym.

And he made daue Abraham lpyt vphyr eyes, and laue the place a farre of: and sayde vnto his younge men: hyde here with the asse.
I and the lad will goo ponder and agone wo-lpyt, & come agayne vnto you. And Abraham toke the wodd of the sacrifice and layde it vpon Isahac his sonne, but he hym self toke fyre in his hande and a knyfe. And they went both of them together.

Then

Then spake Iſaac vnto Abraham bys father and ſayde: My father: And he answered: here am I in ſoyne. He ſayd: Se here is frye and wood, but where is the ſhepe for ſacrifice? Abraham answered: my ſonne, God wyl prouyde him a ſhepe for ſacrifice. And ſo they wente both together.

And when they came vnto y place whiche God had thewed hym, Abraham made an altur there, & dyelled the wood, and bownde Iſaac bys ſonne, & layde him on the altur, aboue vpon the wood. And Abraham ſtrechyng forth his hande, toke the knyfe to haue kylled bys ſonne. And the angell of the Lorde called vnto him from heauen, ſaying: Abraham! Abraham! And he ſayde: here am I. And he ſayde: laye not thy hande vpon the chyld, neither do any thinge at all vnto him, for now I knowe that thou feareſt God, and haſt for my ſake not ſpared thyn ſonely ſonne. And Abraham ſtepte vpon his eyes, loked aboue: and beholde, there was a ram caught by the hornes in a thychette. And he wente & toke the ram and offered hym vp for a ſacrifice in the ſteade of bys ſonne. And Abraham called y name of the place, the Lorde wyl ſee. As it is ſayde thys daye: in y mounte wyl the Lorde be ſene.

And the Angell of the Lorde cryed vnto Abraham from heauen the ſecōde tyme, and ſayde: & by my ſelfe haue I ſwoorne (ſayth the Lorde) becauſe thou haſt done thys thyng and haſt not ſpared thy ſonely ſonne: that in bleſſynge I wyl bleſſe the, and in multipliynge I wyl multiplye thy ſced as the ſtarcys of heauē & as the ſande which is vpon the ſee ſpde. And thy ſced ſhall poſſeſſe the gate of bys enemies. And in thy ſced ſhall all the nacōns of the erth be bleſſed, becauſe thou haſt herde my voyce. So turned Abraham agayne vnto bys pouge me, and they cole vp and went together to Beer ſeba. And Abraham dwelt at Beer ſeba.

And it chaunced after theſe thynges, that one tolde Abraham ſayinge: Beholde, Micha, the ſhephalſo bozne chyldren vnto thy brother ſachoz. Thus bys eldeſt ſonne, and thus bys brother, and ſhemuell the father of the ſoylans, and caſed, & hnoſo, and yſylbas, & yebnaph, & yethuel. And yethuel begat Rebecca. Theſe eyght dyd Micha bere to ſachoz Abraham's brother.

And bys concubyne called Abuma the bare alſo Teſab, & ſaham, & ſahase & ſahacha. C. The xxiii. Chapter.

¶ Sara wyfe and is buryn in the felde that Abraham bought of ephron the hebreite.

Sara was an hyded and xxviii. ye. & ſe olde (ſo longe luyd ſhe) & ſara dyed in kyziat Arba. The ſame is hebron in the lande of Canaan.

And Abraham came to moſue ſara, and ſo wyfe for her. And Abraham ſode vp fro the ſpyght of bys cooſte, and talked wyth the ſonnes of heh ſayinge: I am a ſtraunger & a foryner amonge you, geue me a poſſeſſyon to burye in wyth you, that I maye bury my cooſte out of my ſpyght. And the chyldren of heh answered Abraham, ſaying vnto him: heere ys Lorde, thou art a pyrnce of God amonge vs. In the cheſt of oure ſepulchres bury thy dead: ſone of vs alſo ſhall ſo bury the bys ſepulchre, but thou mayeſt bury thy dead therein: Abraham ſode vp and bowde hym ſelfe befoze the people of the lande y chyldren of heh. And he comoned wyth the ſayinge: If it be your mynde that I ſhall bury my dead out of my ſpyght, heere me: And ſheke for me to ephron the ſonne of zoar: that he maye geue me the dubyll caue which he hath, and that is in the ende of bys felde: but geue it me moche money, as it is woorth ſhall he geue it me in the preſence of you, for a poſſeſſyon to burye in. ſoz ephron dwelled amonge the chyldren of heh.

And ephron the hebreite answered Abraham in the audience of the chyldren of heh and of all that went in at the gates of bys cyte, ſayinge: ſoz ſo my Lorde, heere me. The ſelde geue I the, and the caue y therein is geue I the alſo: and euen in the preſence of the ſonnes of my people geue I it y, bury thy dead. And Abraham bowde hym ſelfe befoze the people of the lande, & ſpake vnto ephron in the audience of the people of the cōtre ſayinge: I praye the heere me yf it pleaſe the: I wyl geue ſiluer for the ſelde, take it & I wyl bury my dead there. Ephron answered Abraham ſayinge vnto hym: My Lorde, hearken vnto me. The lande is woorth iij. hyndred ſyluer of ſiluer: what is y bet wythe the and me: bury theſoz thy dead. And Abraham harkened vnto ephron: weped by the ſpyce whych he had byden, in the audience of the ſonnes of heh. Euen iiii. hundred ſyluer ſylces of current money amonge marchantys. And the ſelde of ephron wyth the dubyll caue whyche was befoze ſamue: cūe the ſelde and the caue y was therein and alle the trees y were in the ſelde, & that were til all the borders rounde aboute, was made ſure vnto Abraham for a poſſeſſion, in the ſpyght of the chyldren of heh, befoze all that went in at the gates of the cyte. ¶ The xxiij. Chapter.

Abraham maketh hys seruante Eliezer and sendeth hym to seke a wyfe for Isahac hys sonne. The seruante was fapthfull & brought Medecca which Isahac toke to hys wyfe.

Abraham was olde and dryken in dayes, and the Lorde had blessed hym in all thynges. And Abraham sayde vnto his eldest seruante of his house whych had rule ouer all he had: But thy hande vnder my thygh, & I will make the sweare by the Lorde God of heauen and God of the erth, that thou shalt not take a wyfe vnto my sonne, of the daughters of Chanaan, amonge whych I dwell. But thou shalt goo vnto my contrey and to my natyue lande, and take a wyfe vnto my sonne Isahac.

But the seruante sayde vnto hym: preadventure the woman will not agree to come wyth me vnto thys lande, shall I brynge thy sonne agayne vnto the lade whych thou cammest out of? To whom Abraham answered: be ware, that thou brynge not my sonne thither agayne. The Lorde God of heauen whych take me fro my fathers house and from the lande where I was bozne, and whych spake vnto me and that swaue vnto me, saynge: vnto thys seed wyl I geue thys lande, he shall sende hys angell before the, and thou shalt take a wyfe vnto my sonne from thence. Fewer the lisse of the woman wyl not agree to folow the, that shalt thou be woth out daunger of thys my ooth. Onely brynge not my sonne thither agayne. And the seruante put hys hande vnder the thygh of Abraham his master, and swaue to hym as concernynge that matter. And the seruante toke .x. camels of the camels of hys master and departed, and had of all maner goodes of hys master woth hym, and rode vp and went to Mesopotamya, vnto the cite of Nahor. And made hys camels to lye downe wthout the cite by a well spe of water, at euene: aboute the tyme that women come out to drawe water, and he sayde.

Lord God of my master Abraham, sende me good speche this daye, and let me meete vnto my master Abraham. Lo I stande here by the well of water, and the daughters of the men of thys cite come out to drawe water: shewe the damsell to whome I saye, drawe downe thy ppter & wyape the that I maye brynke. If she saye also:

brynke, and I wyl geue thy camels drynke: the same is she that thou hast ordeyned for thy seruante Isahac: yee, and thereby shall I knowe that thou hast shewed mercy on my master. And it came to passe yee he had left speakynge, be holde, Rebecca came out, the daughter of Bethuel, sonne to Esau the wyfe of Isahac Abrahams brother, and hys ppter vpon hys shoulder: The damsell was verie faple to loke vpon, and yet a mayde and unknowen of man. And she went downe to the well, and fylled hys ppter and came vp. And the seruante reynynge vnto her, sayde: let me luppe a litle water of thy ppter. And she sayde: brynke my Lorde.

And he hastned and lett downe her ppter vpon hys arine, and gaue hym drynke. And when he had gauen hym drynke, she sayde: I wyl drawe water for thy camels also, vntill they haue drinke enough. And she powred out hys ppter in to the trough herself, and raine agayne vnto the well to fete water: and dyde for all hys camels. And the man wondered at her: but she bese his peace, to wete whether the Lorde had made hys tourney prosperous or not. And it fortuned as the camels had leste drynkyng, the man toke a golden earpyng of halfe a sicle weight, and two bracelettes for hys handes, of .x. sicles weyght of gold, and sayde: whose daughter art thou: tell me I praye the, is there rowme in thy fathers house for vs to lodge in? She answered him: I am the daughter of Bethuel the sonne of Esau which he bare vnto Isahac: and sayde moreouer vnto hym: we haue lither and prouender pough, and also rowme to lodge in.

And the man bowed him selfe, and worshipped the Lorde, and sayde: blessed be the Lorde God of my master Abraham, whych reasteth not to deale mercifullly and truly wth my master, and hath brought me the waye to my masters brothers house. And the damsell ranne and tolde them of her mothers house these thynges. And Rebecca had a brother called Laban.

And he ranne out vnto the man, euene to the well: for as soone as he had sene the earpynges and the bracelettes in hys sisters handes, and hearde the wordes of Rebecca hys sister saynge: thus sayde the man vnto me: he went out vnto the man. And loo, he rode wth the camels by the well syde. And he sayde: come in thou blessed of the Lorde, wherfore standest thou wthout? I haue dresed the house, and made rowme for the camels. And shewe the man come in to the house: and he vnsplied the camels (Laban) brought lither and prouer for the camels, and water to wsete and the mennes sete that were to hym, & set meate before hym to eat. But he sayde: I will not eat, until I haue sayde myne arande. And he sayde: saye on. And he sayd: I am Abrahams seruante, & God hath blessed my master out of measure, that he is become grete, and hath geuen hym shepe, and oxen, & yslure and golde, men seruantes, and maybe seruantes, camels and asses. And Sara my masters wyfe bare hym a sonne, when he was olde: and vnto hym hath he geuen all that he hath. And my master made me swere sayinge: thou shalt not take a wyfe to my sonne amonge the daughters of Canaanites in whose lade I dwell: But thou shalt go vnto my fathers house & to my kynred, and take a wyfe vnto my sonne. And I sayde vnto my master: peradventure the wyfe will not folowe me / And he answered me: The Lorde, before whom I walke, will sende his angell with the, and prosper thy iourney, and thou shalt take a wyfe for my sonne, of my kynred and of my fathers house. Then wale thou be gyftlesse of my curse, whan thou comest to my kynred. And if thy geue the not one, thou shalt be gyftlesse of my curse.

And so I came thys daye vnto the well and sayde: O Lorde, the God of my master Abrahams, yf it be so now that thou makest my iourney wherch I go, prosperous: beholde I stande by thys well of water, and wbe a byrgyn cometh forth to drawe water, and I saye to her: geue me I praye the a lytle water of thy ptycher to dryncke, and the saye to me: bypncke thou, and I will also drawe for thy camels: that same is the wyfe whom the Lorde hath prepared for my masters sonne.

And before I had made an ende of speakinge in myne harte: beholde Rebecca came forth, and hys ptycher on hys shulder, and she went downe vnto the well & drew water. And I sayde vnto her: geue me bypncke I praye the. And she made bass, & toke downe hys ptycher from of hys, and sayde bypncke, and I will geue thy camels bypncke also. And I drinke, & she gaue the camels bypncke also. And I alack her, sayinge: whose daughter art thou? she answered: the daughter of Esauuels Rahouys sonne whom she bare vnto hym. And I put the earring vpon hys face, and she bycelletes vpon hys habes. And I bowed my selfe, and worshipped the Lorde, & blessed the Lorde God of my master Abrahams wherch had brought me the ryght wyfe, to take my masters byrders daughter vnto hys sonne.

Nowe also yf we will deale mercifully and truly with y master, tell me: and yf not, tell me also: I maye turne me to the ryght bande & left.

Then answered Laban and Bathuel, sayinge: This sayinge is proceeded euen out of the Lorde, we can not therefore saye vnto the, ether good or bad: beholde, Rebecca is before the, take her and goo, that she maye be thy masters sonnes wyfe, euen as God hath sayde. And when Abrahams seruaut heard thes wordes, he worshipped the Lorde, flatt vpon the erth. And the seruaut toke forth iewelles of sflure and iewelles of golde and rayment, and gaue them to Rebecca. And vnto hys brother and to hys mother, he gaue gyftes. And they byd eate & dryncke, both he and the men that were with him, and carped all nyght. And whan they rose vp in the morninge, he sayde: let me departe vnto my master. hys brother & hys mother answered: let the damsell abyde with vs a whyle, and it be but euen x. dayes, and then shall she go. he sayde vnto them: bynd me not, beholde, the Lorde hath prospered my iourney. Sende me awaye therfore, that I maye goo vnto my master. And the sayde: we will call the damsell, and enquire at hys mouth. And they called forth Rebecca, and sayde vnto her: wilt thou goo with this man? And he answered, I will goo.

So they let Rebecca thes yfter go and her noyse Abrahams seruante, & hys men. And the yf blessed Rebecca, and sayde vnto her: Thou art oure yslter, growe in to thousande thousandes: and the seed possesse the gate of theys empyres. And Rebecca aroole and hys damsell, and satt them vp vpon the camels, and west theys waye after the man. And the seruaut toke Rebecca, and went hys waye.

And Isahac was a compyngge from the waye of the well of the lyinge and seynge me, for he dwelt in the south cotepe, & Isahac was gone out to praye in the felde at the eue tpe. And he lyst vp hys eyes and sawe the camels compyngg. And Rebecca lyst vp hys eyes, and when she sawe Isahac, the lyght of the camell, and sayd vnto the seruaut: what ma is this that cometh walke agaynst vs in the felde? And the seruaut sayde: it is my master. Therefore the toke hys cloke, and put it about her. And the seruaut tolde Isahac all thynges that he had don. And Isahac broughte her in to his mother Sarahes tete, and toke Rebecca, and she became hys wyfe, and beloued her: and so Isahac receaued comforte after hys mothers

And they dygged another well, and stroue for that also. And he called the name of it * Sitenai. And than he departed thence, and dygged another well for the which they stroue not: therefore called he it * Rechoboth, sayinge: the Loyde hath nowe made vs rowme, that we maye encrease vpon the erth. And he went by thence, to Beer Seba. And the Loyde appeared vnto hym the same nyght, and sayde: I am the God of Abraham thy father, feare not, for I am with the, & will blesse the, and multiplye thy seed for my seruant Abrahams sake. And Jacob went and fet them, and brought them to hys mother. And hys mother made meate ſuch as he knewe his father loued. Then went Jacob to Isaac hys father, and he ſet hym and ſayd: the voyce is Jacobs voyce, but the handes are the handes of Elau. And he knewe hym not, becauſe hys handes were rough as hys brother Elaus handes, and ſo he blesſed hym.

And he bened hym: art thou my ſonne Elau? And he ſayde, that I am. Then ſayde he: bypnye me & let me eate of my ſonnes bypnyon, that my ſoule maye blesſe the. And he brought hym and he eate. Then hys father Isaac ſayde vnto hym: who art thou? he answered: I am thy eldeſt ſonne Elau. And Isaac was greatly aſtonyſhed out of ſenſure, and ſayde: which is he & where is he then that hath hunted bypnyon and brought it me? and I haue eaten of all beſore thou cameſt, and haue blesſed hym, & he ſhall be bleſſed. When Elau herde þe wordes of hys father, he cryed out greatly and bytterly, aboue meſure, and ſayde vnto hys father: blesſe me alſo my father. Who answered: thy brother came wyth ſubtilte, & hath takē a wape thy blyſſynge. a woman.

And so Iacob called Jacob and þ blessed hym, & charged hym, & sayde unto him: se thou take not unto Laban, sonne of Bethuel the Hittite, and brother to Rebecca Jacob and Elaus

When Elau sawe that Iacob had ble-sed Jacob, and sent him to Mesopotamia, to see him a wyfe there, and that as he ble-daughter of Isaac Abrahams sonne, the syster of Laban to be his wyfe. Jacob departed from Beer Sheva, to come unto Ha-and put it vnder hys heade, and laye hym had layde vnder hys heade, and pitched it vp

And he called the name of þ place Bethell, but the name of the cytie was called Lus be-

ne. Tha sayde Lea happy am I, for the daughters wyl call me blessed. And called hys name Aser.

And Ruben went out in the dayes of the wet barrell and founde mandragoras in the felde, and brought them vnto hys mother Lea. Then sayd Rabel to Lea: geue me of thy sonnes mandragoras. To wha Lea answered: Is it not ynough that thou hast taken awaye my husbande, but wouldest take awaye my sonnes mandragoras also? Tha sayde Rabel: well, let hym slee w the thys nyght, for thy sonnes mandragoras. To wha Jacob came from the felde at euē, and Lea went out to mete hym, and sayde: come into me, for I haue bought the wyth my sonnes mandragoras.

And he slepte with her that nyght. And God herde Lea, that she concealed & bare vnto Jacob the v. sonne. Tha sayde Lea: God hath geuen me a reward, because I gaue

my mayde to my housholde, & she called hym Ysachar. And Lea conceaued yet agayne, & bare Jacob the vi. sone. And Lea sayd: God hath enderwed me wth a good dowrye. Nowe will my husbande dwyll wth me, because I haue borne hym. vii. sonnes: & called his name Zabulon. After that she bare a daughter, and called hyr name * Dinah.

* Gen. 37.

And God remembered Rachel, hearde her,
and made her fructifull: so that she conceaued & bare a sone, & sayd: God hath taken awaye my rebuke. And she called hyr name Joseph, sayinge: The Lord geue me yet a nother sonne. As soone as Rachel had borne Joseph, Jacob sayde to Laba: He be me awaye that I maye go vnto my a wne place and chie-re, geue me my wyue and my chyld for whom I haue serued the, and let me goo: for thou knowest what seruyce I haue done the.

* Gen. 37.

To whom Laba answered: yf I haue soude fauoure in thy syght (for I suppose that the Lord hath blessed me for thy sake) appoynt what thy rewarde shall be, and I will ge-ue it the. But he sayde vnto hym: thou know-est what seruyce I haue done the, and in what takinge thy cattell haue bene vnder me: for it was but lyte that thou haddest before I came, and nowe it is increased into a multitude, and the Lord hath blessed the for my sake. But nowe when shall I make prouyson for myne a wne house also? And he sayde: what shall I then geue the? And Jacob answered: thou shalt geue me nothinge at all, yf thou wilt do thys one thyng for me: and then will I turne agayne, and fede thy shepe and kepe them.

* Gen. 37.

I will go aboute all thy shepe thys daye, and separate from them all the shepe that are spotted and of dyuers coloures, and all blacke shepe amonge the lambs, & the parte, and the spotted amonge the kyddes: and the same shall be my rewarde. So shall my rightwysnesse answer for me: to mo-rowe, and shall come for my rewarde before thy face, and euery one that is not speckled and partye amonge the goates and blacke amonge the shepe, I same shall be thet wth me.
And Laba sayde: Go to, wolde God it myght be accordyng to thy sayeng. Therefore he toke out that same daie the be goates that were partye and of dyuers coloures, and all the be goates that were spotted and partye coloured, and all that had whyte in the, and all the blacke amonge the shepe, and put them in the keepinge of hyr sonnes, & let thys daye journeye betwixte hym selfe and Jacob. And so Jacob kepte the rest of La-bans shepe.

Jacob toke roddes of grene poplar, ha-sell & of chehn nut trees, & pylled wth thee trakes in them, & made the wth the agere in the roddes. (But thes that were to be: remembred are:

and thus was it made a variable colour.) And put the roddes wth the shepe, and the shepe brought the shepe, in the gutters & wateringe troughes when the shepe came to dyynke: that they shulde conceue when they came to dyynke.
And the shepe conceaued before the roddes, & brought forth lambs streaked, spotted and partye. And Jacob parted the lambs & turned the faces of the shepe towards the spotted thynges, and towards all maner of blacke, that was amonge the shepe of Laba. Same-ly, puttynge hyr a wne flocke by the selfe, not puttynge them wth Labas shepe. And it fastuned yⁿ euery rampinge tyme of the stronger shepe, Jacob layed the roddes before the eyes of the shepe in yⁿ gutters: namely, that he myght make them chere before the roddes. But wth the shepe were fe-ble, he put the not in. And so the fader were Labans, and the stronger Jacobs. And the man increaced exceedingly, and had a great flocke, maye seruauntes and man seruants, camels and asses.

¶ The xxx. Chapter.

¶ At the commaundement of God Jacob departed from Laban: & toke hyr goddes wth hym. In which

cob. The commaund betwixte Laban and Jacob.

But he hearde the wordes of Labans sonnes sayeng: Jacob hath taken awaye all that was our fathers, and of oure fathers goodes hath he gotten all thys honoure. And Jacob beheide the countenance of Laban, & beholde, it was not as yesterdaye and yeres daye. And the Lord sayde vnto Jacob: turne agayne in to the lande of thy fathers and to thy kynred, & I will be wth the. Therefore Jacob sent and called Rachel and Lea to the fide vnto hyr flocke, & sayde vnto them:
If yⁿ your fathers countenance that it is not

But the God of my father hath bene wth me.
And ye knowe howe that I haue serued to hurte me. When he sayde, the spotted shall be thy wages, than all the shepe bare spotted: And when he sayde, the streaked shall be ked: thus hath God taken awaye your fathers shepe, and geuen them me. But in rampinge tyme it happened, yⁿ I lyfied wth my-ne eyes & sawe in a dreame, & beholde the rimes leaped vpon the shepe yⁿ were streaked, vnto me in a dreame, sayeng: Jacob. And I answered: here am I. And he sayde: lyfte up nowe thine eyes & see all yⁿ rimes leaping vpon the shepe that are streaked, spotted & partye: for I haue sene all that Laban doth sayde moreover to Jacob: beholde, thy shea-pe and thy she mares which I haue for thee, betwixt me and thee: thy she heaue be wyne-fesse and also thy she mares that I will not come ouer thy she draye to the, and thou shalt not come ouer thy she draye and thy she mares vnto me: to do ouer harme. The God of Abraham, the God of Isac, & the God of thy fathers be iudge betwixt vs.

And Jacob swaue by the feare of hys father Isahac. Then Jacob dyd sacrifice vnto p mount, & called his brether to cate byed.
And they dyd cate byed & taried all nyght in the byll. And early in the mornynge Laban rose vp and byssed hys chyldren and hys daughters, and blessed them: and Laban departynge, went vnto hys place agayne.

¶ The xxviii. Chapter.

¶ The vision of y angelis. Jacob sendeth presentes vnto his brother Esau. How he was iudged much y angelis which chaunged his name and called hym Israel.

But Jacob went forth on his iourney. And the angelis of God came, & met hym. And wher Jacob sawe the, he said this is Goddes booke: & called the name of y place

¶ Mahanaim. ¶ That is in arme. And Jacob sente messengers before him to Esau his brother, vnto y land of Seir & the felde of Edom. And he commaunded them sayinge. Thus shall ye speake to my Lord Esau: thy seruante Jacob sayth thus: I haue loggeyned & bene a stranger wth Laban vnto thy she ymme and haue oger, asses & shepe men seruantes and women seruantes, and haue lent to the weyt my Lord, that I may fynde grace in thy syght. And the messengers came agayne to Jacob sayinge: we came vnto thy brother Esau, and he cometh agaynst the & hath iii. hundred men wth hym.

But Jacob was greatly afrayed, and wylnot whych waye to turne hym selfe, and deuyed the people that was wth hym & the shepe, & oger & camels, into ii. companyes: & sayd: If Esau come to the one parte & symple it, the other shall saue it selfe.

And Jacob sayde agayne: O God of my father Abraham, & God of my father Isahac: Lorde whych saydest vnto me & returne vnto the to thy coite and to thy kynred, & I will do all well wth the. I am not worthy of the least of all the mercys and truthes whych thou hast shewed vnto thy seruante. For wth my shal come I ouer thy Iordane, & now haue I gotte ii. houses. Welyue me from the handes of my brother Esau: for I feare hym: lest he wyl come and smyte the mother wth the chyldren. Thou saydest:
I wyl surely do the good, & make thy seed as the sande of the see, whych can not be nom-bered for multitude.

And he taried there that some nyghte, & told of that whych came to hys, & presented for Esau hys brother, ii. hundred the goates, & x. he goates. ii. hundred shepe and x. rammes: thy she ymme camels wth the she coltes. xl. kyne, & x. bulles. & the asses & ten foles: and deliuered them into the handes of hys seruantes, euerye thow by them felmes, and sayde vnto hys seruantes: go forth before me, and put a space betwixt, dyone, & dyone. And he commaunded y foremost sayinge.

If Esau my brother mete the and aske the sayinge: whos art thou, and wherest thou?
thou: & whos are these that go before the?
thou shalt saye, thy she y seruante Jacob, and it is a yese: sent vnto my Lord Esau, and beholde, yehym selfe cometh after vs: And so commaunded he the seconde, and the thyrde, and all that folowed the dyones sayinge of hys maner: se that ye speake vnto Esau when ye mete hym and saye moreouer: thy seruante Jacob also commeth after vs, for he sayde: I wyl pte his wyath wth y yselent that goeth before me, and afterward I wyl se hym my selfe, y ygraducature he wyl recraue me to grace:
So went the yselent before hym and he ta-ried all that nyght in the company, and rose vp the same nyghte, and toke hys two wynes and hys two maydens, and hys eleuen sonnes, and went ouer the forde Jacob And he toke the and sent them ouer the yner, and sent ouer that he had, and taried behind hym selfe alone.

And there & wasled a man wth hym vnto the breakynge of the daye. And when he sawe that he coulde not puenyale agaynst hym, he knote hym vnder the the, and the senowe of Jacobs the the, as he wanstled wth hym. And he sayde: let me goo, for the daye breaketh. Which answered: I wyl not let the goo, excepte thou blesse me. And he sayde vnto hym: what is thy name? he answered: Jacob. he sayde: thou shalt be called Jacob nomore, but Israel. For as as a ypuce hast thou wasled wth God:
and wth man, and hast puenyaled.

And Jacob alied hym sayinge: tell me thy name. And he sayde, wherfore dost thou so aske after my name: and be blessed hym there. And Jacob called the name of y place ¶ Bethel, for I haue sent God face to face, & my lyfe is pserued. And as he went ouer Bethel, the sonne rose vnto hym, and he bat-led vnto hys the. And therefore is it that the chyldren of Israel cate not of the senow that thouke in that place of the the, vnto this daye: becaue that he touched the place of Jacobs the in the senow that thouke.

And he lyfte vp hys eyes & ſawe the women, and the chylidren, and ſayde: Wherce haſt thou theſe? (And do they beſeige vnto the.) And he answered: they are the chylidren wherch God haſt geuen thy ſervanthe. Then came the mapdens forth, & their chylidren, and dwd theſe obeyſaunce. Lea alſo with hys chylidren came & dwd theſe obeyſaunce. And laſt of all came Joſeph & Rahele, & dwd theſe obeyſaunce.

And he ſayde: what is all þe droue wherch I mett? he answered: that I maie fynde grace in the ſpyghte of my Loide. And Eſau ſayde: I haue ynough my brother, kepe that thou haſt vnto thy ſelfe. So Eſau went hys waye agayne that ſame daye vnto Seir. And Jacob toke hys journey towards Seir, & dwd hym in a houſe, & made doothes for his catell. And therefore is it, that the name of the place is called * Seir.

And Jacob came to ſhall a ctyte of Seir, which is in the laude of Canaan, after that he was come from Eſopotamia, and pythed before the ctyte, and bought a par-cell of grounde (were he pythed hys tent) of the chylid of hemoz: Sichem father & he had an hundred pces of money. And he made there an altar, & called vpon þe myghtie God of Iſrael.

Dina þe daughter of Lea * which ¶ Gen. xxxiv. she bare vnto Jacob, went out to ſe the daughters of the laide. Whom whan Sichem the ſonne of hemoz the heuile Loide of the country ſawe, he toke her, and laye with her, and forced * her: and hys harte laye vnto Dina the daughter of Jacob. And he loued that damſell and ſpake kindly vnto her, and Sichem ſpake vnto hys father hemoz ſayinge, gett me this mapden vnto my wyfe. And Jacob hearde that he had beſyled Dina hys daughter, hys ſonnes bringe with theſe catell in the ſelde, and he geide hys peace, vntyll what were come. And hemoz the father of Sichem went out vnto Jacob, to comen with hym. And whan the ſonnes of Jacob comynge out of the ſelde herd it, it geued the, & they were not a lytle wrooth, becauſe he had wroughte folpe in Iſrael, in that he had lyen with Jacobs daughter, which thinge ought not to be done. And hemoz comyned with them ſayinge: the ſoule of my ſone Sichem longeth for your daughter: geue her hym to wyfe, and make mariaiges with vs: and geue your daughters vnto vs, and take oure daughters vnto you, & ye ſhall dwell with vs, and the lande ſhall be before you, dwell and do your buyuers, and haue your poſſeſſions there in. And Sichem ſayde vnto hys father and hys brethren, let me finde grace in your eyes, and what ſocuer ye apornte me, that wyll I geue. The ſeely of me both the dowry and geytes, and I wyll geue accordynge as ye ſaye vnto me, ſo that ye geue me the damſell to wyfe.

But the ſonnes of Jacob answered to Sichem & hemoz hys father talkynge amoge them ſeelyes deceptfully, becauſe he had beſyled Dina theſe ſyſter. And they ſayde vnto them, we can not do theſe thynges that we ſhalde geue oure ſyſter to one that is vncircumciſed, for that were a ſhame vnto vs. But in theſe wyll we conſent vnto you: If ye wyll as we be and all the men chylidren amonge you be circumciſed, then wyll we geue oure daughters to you and take your daughters to vs, and wyll dwell with you and be one people. for to do the tpyng, because he had a lust to Jacobs daughter: he was also most set by of all that were in hys fathers house. Than hemoz & Sychem hys sonne went unto the gate of their cite, and comened with the me of their cite, sayinge: these men are unfa-ined towards vs, and dwell in the lande and do their occupacion therein. And in the lande is rowme enough for them, we will take their daughters to wyues, and geue the oure daughters: only here in will they consent unto vs for to dwell wryth vs & to be one people: yf all the men chyldren that are amonge vs be circuncysed as they are. Shall not their goodnes and their substance and all they ca-sell be oures, only yf we consente unto them for they will dwell wryth vs.

And unto hemoz and Sychem hys sonne harkened all that went out at the gate of hys cite. And all the men chyldren were circuncised whatsoeuer went out at the gates of his cite. And it happened the tpyde daye went in to the cite boldly, and slew all that was male, and slewe also hemoz and Sy-and toke wyne out of Sychems house, and went their waye.

And the sonnes of Jacob cōpyng vpon the deede, spoyled the cite, because they had despyed their syster: & toke their shepe, oxen, and their asses and whatsoeuer was in the cite and also in yfeldes. And all their goo-des & all their chyldren, and they wyues to-ke they eneyne and made hauouck of all that was in the house.

But Jacob sayde to Symeon and Levi:
ye haue troubled me and made me spynke before the inhabitants of the labe, before the Canaanites and the pherezites. And I beyng fewe in nombr, they shall gather them scues together agaynste me & depine, and so shall I and my house be despoyled. And they answored: shulde they deale with oure syster

¶ The xxxviij. Chapter.

¶ Joseph comforted his brethren. Joseph dreamed and he tolde of his brethren and he tolde to the Egyptians. Jacob bewepeth Joseph.

In Jacob dwelt in the lande where in his father was a stranger, even in the lade of Chanaan. These are the generacions of Jacob. when Joseph was. xviij. yere olde, he kepte shepe with hys brethren, and the lad was with the sonnes of Bilha his fathers wyues. And he broughte vnto their father an euyl sayinge of them. But Israel loued Joseph more than all hys chyldren, because he begat him in hys olde age, and he made hym a coote of many coloures.

¶ And when hys brethren sawe that theyr father loued him more than all his brethren, they hated hym & coulde not speke peaceably vnto hym. ¶ Wherefore whan Joseph * had dreamed a dreame, he tolde it his brethren whych hated hym yet the more. ¶ And he sayde vnto them: heare I praye yowre thys dreame which I haue dreamed: beholde we were byndinge thewes in the felde: & lo, my thewe arose, and stode vpryght, and pourses stode rounde aboute and made obeysaunce to my thewe. ¶ To whom hys brethren sayde: halt thou be thoue kynge in dede: or shalt þ in dede haue dominyon ouer vs: And they hated hym yet the more, because of hys dreames, and of his wordes.

¶ And he dreamed yet another dreame and tolde it his brethren sayinge: beholde, I haue had one dreame more: me thought the sonne

and the moone & xj. starres made obeysaunce to me. And when he had tolde it vnto his father and hys brethren, hys father rebuked him & sayde vnto him: what is thys dreame which thou hast dreamed: shall I & thy mother and thy brethren come to fall on the grounde before the? And hys brethren hated him, but hys father noted the sayinge.

Hys brethren also went to kepe their fathes shepe in Sichem, and Israel sayde vnto Joseph: do not thy brethren kepe in Sichem: come, and I will sende the to the. he answered & here am I. And he sayde vnto him: goo and see whether it be well with thy brethren and the shepe, and byngne me worde agayne. And so he sent him out of the vale of hebron and he went to Sichem. And a certayne man founde hym, and beholde he was woundyng out of hys waye in the felde, and the man asked him: what seest thou? he answered: I see my brethren, tell me I praye the where they kepe shepe. And the man sayde, they are departed hence, for I herde them saye: let vs goo vnto dothan. & thus went Joseph after his brethren, and founde them in dothan.

And when they sawe him a farr of befoze he came at them, they toke conseil agaynst him, for to slei hym. For one sayde to another: beholde this * dreame cometh: come nowe therfore and let vs slei hym and cast hym in to some pytt, and we will saie a wyched beest hath deuoured hym, and we shall se what wyll come of hys dreames.

¶ When Ruben hearde that, he * spake hym out of their handes and sayde, we will not kyll hym. And Ruben sayde mozeouer vnto them, thede not his * blonde, but cast him in to thys pytt þ is in the wyldernes, and laye no hande vpon him: * (then he sayde), namely, that he myghte fynd him out of their handes & deliuer him to hys father agayne. ¶

And it happened that whan Joseph was come vnto hys brethren, they strypte him out of his coot, hys party coloured coote þ was vpon hym, and they toke hym and cast hym into an emptye pytt: wherein was no water. And they satt by the downe to eate herbe. And as they lyft vp their eyes and loked aboute, there came a compaigny of Imaelites from Gilead, and their camels lade with spicery, baulme, and myrr, and were goyng downe to carie it into Egypte.

And Iuda sayde vnto his brethren: what * aunpleth it þt we slei our brother, and kepe hys blonde secrete: come on and let vs * sell hym to the Imaelites, and let not oure hande be vpon hym: for he is oure brother and oure kinshe. And hys brethren were content. ¶ Than as the Iudaumes marchaunt men passed by, they drewe and lyft Joseph out of the pytt and sold him vnto the Iymelytes toz.

¶ The marriage of Iuda. The trespass of Er and Onan, and the bingraunce of God that came thre upon Iuda after with his daughter Thamar. The birth of Iudars and Iacob.

In fortunat that tyme, that Iudas went downe from his brethren, and gatt hym to a man called Hira of Doolam, and there he sawe the daughter of a man called * Sina a Canaanite: And he toke her and wite in to her. And he conceaued & bare a sonne and called hys name Er. And he conceaued agayne, and bare a sonne and called hym Onan. And he conceaued agayne, & bare yet a sonne, whom he called Sela: * and he was at Chesph when he bare him.

And Iudas gaue Er hys Eldest sonne a wyfe, whose name was Thamar. And Er Iudas eldest sonne was * wycked in the syghte of the Lorde, & the Lorde slewe hym. And Iudas sayde vnto Onan: goo into thy brothers wyfe and marie her, fthou mayest byprie vp seed vnto thy brother. And when Onan perceaued that the seed shulde not be his, therfore when he went into his brothers wyfe, he spylled it on the greonde, and gaue not seed vnto hys brother. And the thynge whych he byd, displeased the Lorde, wherefore he slewe him also. Than sayde Iudas to Thamar hys daughter in laue: remayne a wydowe at thy fathers house, tyll Sela my sonne be growne: for he sayde: Lett peradventure he dye also, as hys brethren byd. And Thamar wente and dwelt in her fathers house.

And in pprocess of tyme, the daughter of

And one tolde Thamar sayinge: beholde, thy father in laue goeth vp to Thymnath, to * there hys shepe. And he put hys wydowes garmentes of from her & couered her wyth a clothe, and dyspleid her selfe: And satt her downe in a comon place which is by fhye wayes fyd to Thymnath, for because the sawe f Sela was growne, and he was not genen vnto him to wyfe.

And he turned to her vnto the waie, & sayde, come I praye the, let me lye with the, for he knewe not that it was hys daughter in laue. And she answered: what wilt thou giue me, for to lye with me? Than sayde he, I will sende thea kydd from the flacke. She sayde, Than geue me a pledge tyll thou sende it. he sayde, what pledge shall I geue the? She answered: thy lygnett, thy bracelet, and thy staffe that is in thy hande. And he gaue it her and lay vnto her, and he was with chyld by hym. And he gatt here vp and went and put her mantell from her, and put on hys wydowes raiment. And Iudas sent the kydd by hys frende of Doolam, for to receaue hys pledge agayne from the wyfes hande. But he founde her not. Than aske he the men of the same place sayinge, where is the whoore that satt openly by the waie syde? They answered, & here was no whoore here. he came therfore to Iuda agayne & sayde vnto him: I can not finde her, and also the men of the place sayde, that there was no whoore there. And Iuda sayde, let her take it to her, lett we be shamed. Beholde I sente the kydd and thou hast not faunde her.

And it came to passe that after .iiij. monethes, one tolde Iuda sayinge: Thamar thy daughter in laue hath playd the whoore, and wyth playng the whoore is become great with chyld. Chap. xxxix. Chapter.

¶ God prospereth Joseph. Pharaos wyfe spied hym. He is accused & cast in prison. God hath mercy vpon hym.

Joseph was brought vnto Egypte, and Putiphar * a Lorde of Pharaos & his cheefe steward an Egyptian, boughte him of the Imaelites which had broughte him thither. And God was with Joseph, & he became a lucheie man, continuinge in the house of his master the Egyptian. And his master sawe that God was with him, & that God made all that he dyd to prosper in his bande. And Joseph founde grace in hys masters syghte, and serued him. And made hym ruler of hys house, and put all that he had in his bande. And it fortuned from the tyme that he had made him ruler oure hys house and ouer all that he had, the Lorde * blessed the Egyptians house for Josephs sake, and the blessinge of the Lorde was vpon all that he had in the house, and in the felde. And therefore he left all that he had in Josephs bande, and looked vpon nothinge that was to hym, saue only on the bread which he dyd eate.

And Joseph was a goodly person, & a well fauored. And it fortuned after thys, that his masters wyfe cast hys eyes vpon Joseph and sayde: come lye with me. But he refused, and sayde to hys masters wyfe: Beholde, my master woitheth not what he hath in the house with me, and hath commytted all that he hath to my bande. * There is no man greater in the house than I, neyther hath he kepte any thinge from me, but only the, because thou art hys wyfe. howe than can I do this great wickednes, and synne agaynst God? And after thys manner spake the to Joseph daye by daye: but he hardened not vnto her, to slepe with her, as to be in hre company.

C And it fortuned on a certayne conuincient daye, that Joseph entred into the house, to do hys busynesse: and there was none of the household by, in the house. And she caught him by the garment sayinge: come slepe with me. And he left hys garment in hys bande and fled, and goot hym out. And it chaunced. When she sawe that he had left his garment in hys bande, and was fled out. * (and he not regarded.) And she called vnto the men of his house, and tolde them, sayinge: Se, he hath broughte in an hebrewew vnto vs to do vs shame, for he came in to me, for to haue slepe with me. And I begane to reue with a lowde voyce. And when he heard I left up my voyce & cryed, he left hys garment to me, and fled awaye, and goot him out.

And she layde up hys garment by her, vntill hys Lorde came home. And she tolde him with these wordes sayinge: Thy husbandes seruante vnto which thou hast broughte vnto vs, came into me to do me shame. But as soone as I left up my voyce and cryed, he left hys garment with me and fled out. When his master. * (cominge to light of conscience.) hearde the wordes of hys wyfe which she tolde hym sayinge: after this maner dyd thy seruante to me, he waxed wrooth.

And the master toke Joseph & put hym in * prison euen in to the place where the hynges prisoners laye bounde. And there continued he in prison, but the Lorde was with Joseph, and the wech hym merce, and goot hym fauoure in the syghte of the Lorde of prison. And the keeper of the prison commpited to Josephs bande all the prisoners that were in the prison house. And whatsoeuer was done there, that dyd he. And the keeper of the prison looked vnto nothinge that was vnder his hande, seinge that the Lorde was with him. If or what soeuer he dyd, the Lorde made it to prosper.

Chap. xl. Chapter.

Ad it chaunced after this, that the butler of the hynges of Egypte and hys baker had offended their Lorde the hynges of Egypte. And Pharaos was angrie agaynst his two officers: agaynst the butler & the cheefe baker: and put them in ward in hys cheefe stewardes house: euen in the prison and place where Joseph was bounde. And the cheefe steward gaue Joseph a charge with them, & he serued the. And they continued a season in ward.

And they dreamed ether of them in one nyght: both the butler and the baker of the hynges of Egypte which were bounde in the prison house, ether of them his dreame, and eache mannes dreame of a sondre interpretation. When Joseph came in vnto them in the moorninge, and looked vpon them: beholde; they were sadd. And he asked Pharaos officers that were with hym in hys masters ward sayinge: Wherefore looke ye so saddy to daye? They answered hym: we haue dreamed a dreame, and haue no man to declare it. And Joseph sayde vnto them: do not interpretunges belonge to God: yet tell me. And the cheefe butler tolde his dreame to Joseph, and sayde vnto him: In my dreame me thought there stode a vyne besyde me, and in the vyne were. iii. boughches, and it was as thought it budded, and the blossoms were forth: and the grapes there of waxed vyne.

And Pharaoh cuppe in my hande, and of the grapes and wosonge thm inco Pharaohs hande, and deliuered Pharaoh out of his byrde. And Joseph sayde unto hym: this is the interpretation of it. The three byrdes are the dayes: wherein the dayes shall Pharaoh lyt by one hea-de, and sette the into thynne office agayne, and thou shalt deliuer Pharaoh cuppe in to his hande, after the old maner wherein thou wast wont to geue hym drynke. But yet thou thynke on me with the, when thou art in good case, (the word mercey) I praye the vnto me. And make mencion of me to Pharao, and bypasse me out of thys house: for I was solden out of the lande of the hebrues, and here also haue I done nothyng at all, wherfor they shoulde haue put me in to thys dungeon. When the chefe baker sawe that the interpretation was good, he sayde vnto Joseph: me thought also in my dreame, that I had thye wyffe basnettes on my hende. And in the uppermost basnet there was of all maner bakersmeates for Pharaoh. And the byr-des vnder eate the out of the basnet that was vpon my head.

And Joseph answered and sayde: this is the interpretation therof. The three basnet-tes are the dayes, for thys daye thre dayes shall Pharaoh take thy hende from the, and shall haue the on a tree, and the byrdes shall eate thy fleshe from of the.

And it came to passe the thyrde daye which was Pharaohs byrth daye, that he made a feast vnto all hys seruantes. And he lyfted vp the head of the chefe buttelar and of the chefe baker amonge hys seruantes. And restored the chefe buttelar vnto thys buttelarshyppe agayne: whiche also reched the cuppe in to Pharaohs hande, but he hanged the che-fe baker: euen as Joseph had interpreted vnto hym. After this vnder the chefe buttelar remembered Joseph, but forgot hym.

¶ The xlii. Chapter.

¶ Pharaohs dreame art expounded by Joseph he is made euen more all that he hath two dyners: one a souerayn & another. The first be-cometh in Egypt.

And he fastened after two yeres, that Pharaoh dreamed, and beholde, he stode by a ryuers syde, & there came out of the ryuer seven goodly hyne and sette felshes; and feddin in meadowe. & viij. other hyne came vp after them out of the ryuer, euell fauored and leane felshes, and stode by the other hyne vpon the bynke of the ryuer.

 And the euell fauored and leane felshes hyne vnder eate by the seven well fauored and fat hyne: and Pharaoh awoke. And he drepte agayns, and dreamed the seconde tyme. And beholde, seven eares of corne grew vpon one stalk, ranche and goodly. And agayne, seven thynne eares blasted with the east wynde, sprang vnder them: and the seven thynne eares deuorwed the seven ranche and full eares. And Pharaoh awoke: and se, it was a dreame. And when the morning came, his sperte was troubled. And he sent and called for all the soothsayers of Egypt, and all the wyle men therof, and Pharaoh tolde the hys dreame: but there was none of the that coulde interpretate it vnto Pharaoh. Then spake the chefe buttelar vnto Pharaoh sayinge:
 I do remember my sawes thys daye. Pharao bringe nigra with hys seruantes, put in wardes the chefe Stewardes house vnto me & the chefe baker. And we dreamed both of vs in one nyght, and eche manns dreame of a sondre interpretation.

And there was with vs a pouge man, an hebraic boyme, seruante vnto the chefe Steward. To whom wha we tolde them, he declared our dreames to vs accordyng to ether of our dreames. And as he declared the vnto vs, euen so it came to passe.
 For he restored me to myn office agayne, & hanged hym.

Pharaoh sent therefore and called Joseph.
 And they brought hym basnet out of * presson. And he shewed hym selfe and chaunged hys rayment, and came in to Pharaoh. And Pharaoh sayde vnto Joseph: I haue seie a dreame, and no man can interpretate it, and I haue hearde spee of the, that as soone as thou hearest a dreame, thou canst interprete it. Joseph answered Pharaoh, sayinge:
 Not I, but God shall geue Pharaoh an an-swere of peace. And Pharaoh sayde vnto Joseph: in my dreame me thought I stode by a ryuers syde, and there came out of the ryuer seven leane felshes, and well fauored hyne, & fedd in the meadowe. And then seven other hyne came vp after them: poore and very euell fauored and leane felshes: such as I neuer sawe in all the lande of Egypt, they were so euell fauored. And the seven leane & euell fauored hyne vnder eate by the syde. And I awoke. And when they had eaten the vp, a man coulde not perceiue that they had eaten them: but they were still as well fauored as they were at the begynnyng. And I awoke. And I sawe agayne in my dreame & beholde, viij. eares sprang one of one stalk.

fool and fappe, and viij. order eares agayne, wythered, thynne and blasted with the east wynde, spange by after the. And the thynne eares benewyed the viij. good eares. And I haue tolde it vnto 8 forth layers, but there was no man that coulde tell, what it meant. And Joseph answered Pharaao: both Pharaaos dyames are one. And God hath thewed Pharaao what he is aboute to do. The viij. good eare hinc are. viij. yeares: and the viij. good eares are seven yeares also, and it is but one dyame. Lp the wylf. p. vii. thynne and euell fauored hinc that came out after the, are. viij. yeares: and the viij. enuyte and blasted eares shalbe. viij. yeares of hunger. ¶ The wher I haue sayde vnto Pharaao, is it that God is aboute to do, and therewith it vnto Pharaao.

Beholde there come. viij. yeare of great plenteuousnes throug out all the lande of Egypte. And agayne there shall ayle after them. viij. yeares of hunger. And all the plenteuousnes shalbe forgoet in the lade of Egypte: And the huger shall consume the lade: neither shall the plenteuousnes be knowe in the lande, by reason of that hunger that shall come after, for it shalbe exceedinge great. And as concerning that the dyame was doubled vnto Pharaao the secnde tyme, beholde, the thenge is certainly prepared of God, & God wyl shewly byngie it to passe.

Nowe therfore, let Pharaao ppyoude for a man of vnderstonynge and wylsome, and sett hym ouer the lande of Egypte. And let Pharaao do this also, that he make officers ouer the lade, and take by the fyfte parte of the lande of Egypte in the. viij. plenteuous yeares, and let them gather all the fooode of these good yeres that come, and lay vp coine vnder the hande of Pharaao, that there maye be fooode in the cyties, and there let them kepe it: that there maye be fooode in sooze in the lande, agaynst the seven yeares of hunger wher shall come in the lande of Egypte, that the lande perthe not thowynge.

¶ And the sayng pleased Pharaao and all hys seruantes. Then sayde Pharaao vnto hys seruantes: where shall we fynde such a man as this is, in whom is the spere of God? And Pharaao sayde vnto Joseph: for as moche as God hath thewed the all this, there is no man of vnderstonynge or of wylsome lpe vnto p. ¶ Thou therfore shalt be * ouer my houle, and accordynge to thy worde shall all my people be ruled, only in bynges seate wyl I be aboute the. And Pharaao layde agayne vnto Joseph: beholde, I haue sett the ouer all the lande of Egypte. And he toke of hys rynge from hys hande, and put it vpon Josephs hande, and arrayed hym in cloth of rappes, and put a golden cherne aboute hys necke, and sett hym vpon the best charet that he had, saue one. And they cryed before hym: Bowe the knee, and Pharaao made hym ruler ouer all the lande of Egypte.

¶ And Pharaao sayde vnto Joseph: I am Pharaao, without the shall no man lpe by hys hande or tote in all the lande of Egypte. And he called Josephs name: * Joseph: * zaphnath Paena. And he gaue hym to wyfe Asenath the daughter of Putiphar parr of On. ¶ Then went Joseph abrode in the lande of Egypte. And he was thyrty yeare olde * when he stode before Pharaao kynge of Egypte. And Joseph departyng from the presence of Pharaao, went thowme out all the lande of Egypte.

¶ And in the seven plenteuous yeares they made theues and gathered vp all p fooode of the lande of Egypte, and layd vp the same in the cyties. The fooode of the felde that grew to woude aboute euery cyte, layd be vp in the same. And Joseph layd vp coine in sooze, lpe vnto the lande of the set, in multitude out of meliur, vntill he left nobbyng: for it was without nombre. And vnto Joseph were bozne two sonnes: before the yeares of hunger came) which Asenath the daughter of Putiphar parr of On, bare vnto hym. And Joseph called the name of p first sonne * Manasse, for God (sayde he) hath made me forgett all my laboure. And all my fathers houtholde. ¶ The name of the secnde called he Ephraim, for God (sayde he) hath caused me to growe in the lande of my trouble.

¶ And when the seven yeares of plenteuousnes that was in the lande of Egypte were ended, then came the seven yeares of * berch accordynge as Joseph had sayde. And p berch was in all lades: but in all the lade of Egypte was there yet fooode. And when the lande of Egypte also began to hunger, the people cryed to Pharaao for bread. ¶ And Pharaao sayde vnto all the Egyptians, goo vnto Joseph, and what he sayth to you, that doo. And the berch was chozow out all the land. And Joseph opened all that was in the cyties, and solde vnto the Egyptians. For the hunger waied soze in the lande of Egypte: And all countres came to Egypte to Joseph for to bye coine: because that the huger was so soze in all lades.

And he sayd: beholde, I haue hearde that there is cozne in Egypt. * Sete you downe thither & bye vs cozne from thence, that we maye lyue & not dye. So wente Iosephs ten brethren downe to bye cozne of the Egypciens. But Ben Iamin Iosephs brother wolde not. Jacob sende with his other brethren, for he sayd: lest some mysfortune happen hym.

And the sonnes of Israel came to bye cozne amonge other that came, for there was dreech in the lande of Canaan. And Ioseph was gouernour in the lande, and solde to all the people of the lande. And his brethren came, and fel sat on the grounde before hym.

When Ioseph sawe his brethren, he knewe them: and made hym selfe straunge vnto thein, and spake roughly vnto them, sayinge: Whence come ye? They answered: out of the lande of Canaan, to bye vnto you. And Ioseph knewe his brethren, but they knewe not hym.

And Ioseph remembred his dreames which he dreamed of them, and sayd vnto them: ye are spies, and to fe where the lande is weakie is your compinge. And they sayd vnto hym: nap my Loide: but to bye vitaple thy seruantes are come. We are all one mas ioners, and meane trulp, and thy seruantes are no spies. And he sayd vnto them agayne, nay, but euen to fe where the lande is weakie, is your compinge. And they sayd: we thy seruantes are. Iii. brethren, the sonnes of one man in the lande of Canaan. And beholde, the pongest is thys dape with oure father, and one, no man woteh where he is. And Ioseph sayde vnto them, y is it that I spake vnto you, sayinge: ye are spies. here by ye shall be proued. By the lyfe of pharaao, ye shall not goo hence, excepte your pongest brother come hither. Sende out one of you whych man sett your brother, & ye shalbe kepte in yre lone, that your wordes inaye be purd, whether there be anye trueti in you: or els by the lyfe of pharaao, ye are but spies. And he put them in ward the dapes.

And Ioseph sayde vnto them the thys dape: Chys doo and lyue, for I feare God. If ye meane no hurte, let one of your brethren be bounde in the house of your yre son, and goo ye bynyng the necessarpe fowoe vnto your householders, but bynyng your pongest brother vnto me: that your wordes inaye be tryed, and that ye be not. And they dyd so.

And one sayde to another: we haue be-rely spinned agaynst oure brother, in that we sawe the angryth of his soull when he besought vs, & we wolde nat heare hym: and therefore is chys troublill come vpon vs. And it bene answered them sayinge: sayde I not vnto you that ye shulde not * synne agaynst the lad: and ye wolde not heare. And see, his bloude is requayred. They were not aware that Ioseph understode them, for he spake vnto them by an interpreter. And he turned from them & wepte * and turned to them agayne, and comened with them, & toke out Symeon from amonge the, and bounde hym before theys eyes, and Ioseph comanded to fyll theys sacks with cozne, and to put euery mans money in his sacke, and to geue them vnto the to spende by the waye. And thus dyd he vnto the. And they laud theys asses with the cozne and departed thence. And as one of them opened his sacke, for to geue his ass prauender in the inne, he spyed his money: for it was in his sackes mouth. And he sayde vnto his brethren: my money is redde me agayne: for lo, it is euen in my sacke. And they harte sayled them, and they were alsonyd, and sayde one to another: why hath God deale thus with vs? And they came vnto Jacob theys father vnto the lande of Canaan, and tolde hym all that had happened them, sayinge: The man, euen the Loide of the lande spake roughly to vs, and toke vs for spies of the countre. And we sayd vnto hym: we meane trulp & are no spies. We be. Iii. brethren, sonnes of oure father, one is awaye, and the pongest is thys dape with oure father in the lande of Canaan. And the Loide of the countre sayde agayne vnto vs: here by shall I knowe yf ye meane trulp: leaue one of your brethren here with me, and take foode necessary for your householders and get you awaye, & bynyng your pongest brother vnto me, that I maye knowe that ye are no spies, but meane truely: So wyl I deliuey you your brother, & ye shall occupie in the lande.

And it fortuned as they empeded theys sacks, beholde: euery mans bundell of money was in his sacke. And whil both they & their father sawe the bundells of money, they were ascaped.

And Jacob theys father sayde vnto them: Aye haue ye robberd of my chyldren: Ioseph is awaye, and Symeon is awaye, and ye take Ben Iamin awaye. All these thynges are agaynst me. Ruben sayde vnto his father: Wile my two sonnes, yf I bynyng hym not to the agapne. Wyl pier hym to my hande, and I wyl bynyng hym to the agapne: And he sayde: my sonne shall not go downe with you, for his brother is dead, & he is left alone. If some mysfortune happen vnto him by the waye which ye go, ye shall bynyng my gras head with sorowe vnto the graue.

¶ When Ben Jamin was brought: thej retort: me with griefe: & mede is distressed out of ppyson Joseph goeth aske and departy. They lead together.

And the deth was greate in the lande. And is fustuned whē they had cast vpp coine whych they brought out of y^e lāde of Egypte theyr father sayde vnto them: goo agayne, & by vs a lytle food.

* Gen. xliij. b.

Juda answered hym, and sayde: the man dyd testify vnto vs, sayinge: * loke that ye see not my face, excepte your brother be with you. If thou wilt sende oure brother to vs, we will go dwelle, and byete the food. But yf thou wilt not sende hym, we will not goo downe: for the mā sayde vnto vs: loke that ye see not my face, excepte your brother be with you. And Israel sayde: wherfore delt ye so cruelly with me, as to tell the man that ye had bet a brother? They answered: The mā asked vs trawpily of oure lypned sayinge, is your father yet alive? haue ye not another brother? And we tolde hym accordyng to these wordes. Could we knowe y^e he wolde saye: byynge your brother downe with you?

¶ Then sayde Juda vnto Israel hys father: sende thei with me, that we maye carye y^e goa, & that we maye lyue & not dye: both we, thou & also oure chyldren. I wylle surety for hym, of my handes that I shoulde requyre hym. If I byynge hym not to the agayne, & let hym before thine eyes, & than let me beere y^e blame for euer. Truly except we had made this caryenge: by this, we had bene there twyle and come agayne.

* Gen. xliij. g.

¶ And theyr father Israel sayde vnto the: If it must nedis be to nowre: than do thus. Take of the best frutes of the lāde in your dwelles, and byynge the man a present, a curtesye bawme, and a curtesye of honny, & spices and myrrer, nottis & almondes. And take double money in your bande. And the money that was brought agayne in your lackes, take it agayne with you, lest peradventure it was some overpyghte.

¶ Take also your brother with you and, asyle and goo agayne to the man. And God almyghty geue you mercye in the syghte of the man, y^e he maye deliuer you your other brother, & this Ben Jamin, and I shall be robbed of my chyldre, as I haue bene.

¶ Thus tolde they the present and twyle to moche more money in theyr bande with Ben Jamin. And rose vp, went downe to Egypte, and stode before Joseph. When Joseph sawe Ben Jamin with them, he sayde to the ruler of hys house: byynge these men home, and slep and make reche: for these men shall dyne wth me at noone. And the mā dyd as Joseph bad, & brought the into Josephs house.

¶ When the men were brought into Josephs house, they were asfayne, and sayde: because of the money y^e came in our lackes mouthes at the first tyme, are we brought in, y^e he maye pycke a quarell wth vs, & to lare some thyng to oure charge, and so byynge v^{yn} bondage and oure allyes also. Therefore came they to the man that was the ruler oure Josephs house, & comened with hym at the doore of the house, and sayde:

¶ Oh saye, we came downe byder at the first tyme to bye food: & as we came to an inne, it happened y^e we opened oure lackes: and beholde, euery mannes money was in hys sache with full wepyghte: And we haue brought it agayne in oure bande, and of other mony haue we brought also in oure bandes, to bye food, but we cannot tell howe put oure money in oure lackes. And he sayde: & peace be vnto you, feare not, your God and the God of your father hath geue you that tescaule in your lackes, I had your money. And he brought stymed out to the, and the man led them into Josephs house, and gaue them water to washe theyr feet, & gaue theyr asses p^{re}auder: And they made reche theyr present agaynst Joseph came at noone, for they herde saye that they shoulde & rare beed there. Whē Joseph came home, they brought the present into the house to hy, whych was in their bandes, & fell flat on the groude before hym. And he welcomed them courtcouly sayinge: is your father yet alive? and is he yet alive? they answered: thy seruus unte oure father is in good health, as is yet alive. And they bowed downe theyr heades, and made obap^{re}taunce.

And he sayde: God be mercifull vnto the my sonne. And Joseph made hast for hys hert dyd melt vpon his brother & sought where to wepe, & entered into his chamb^{re}, & wepte there. And he watched his face & came out and c^{re}sp^{re}nded hym selfe, and sayde: let b^{re}ad on the table.

¶ And they prepared for hym by hym selfe, and for them by the selues, & for the Egyptians whych dyd eate with him by them selues, because the Egyptians maye not eate b^{re}ad with the hebreys, for that is an abhominacyon vnto the Egyptians. And they satt before hym: the eldest accordyng vnto hys age, & the yongest accordyng vnto hys pouthe. And the men mencruel amonge them selues. ¶ The xliij. Chapter.

¶ Joseph accuseth his brethren of theft. Juda be-cometh surety for Ben Jamin.

AND he commaunded the ruler of his house sayinge: fill the mes sackes wth foode, as much as they can carpe, and put euery mans money in his sacke mouth, and put my silver cup-in the sackes mouth of the pongest. and hys come money also. And he dyd accordinge to the worde that Joseph had sayde. And in the morninge a lioone as it was lyghte, the men were let goo, they and their asses. And when they were out of the ctyte and not yet farr awaye, Joseph sayde vnto the ruler of hys house: vp and folowe after the men, and when thou dost ouertake them, thou shalt saye vnto them: wherfore haue ye rewarded euill for goodis that not the cuppe the which he prophethye haue euill done that ye haue done.

25 And when he ouertoke them, he sayde the same wordes vnto them. And they answered hym: wherfore sayest my Lord such wor-des? God forbyd that thy seruantes shul-de do so: Beholde, the money which we founde in oure sackes mouthes, we broughe agayne vnto the, out of the lande of Chana-des house, either silver or golde? with whō-soemer of thy seruantes it be founde, let him dye, and we also will be my Lordes bond-men. And he sayde: Howe also let it be ac-cōpyng vnto poure wordes: he with whom it is founde, shall be my seruante: and ye shall be harmelesse.

C And attonce euery man toke downe hys sacke to the grounde, and euery man opened hys sacke. And he serched, and began at the eldest and left at the pongest. And the cuppe was founde in Ben Jamins sacke.
26 ¶ Then they * rent their clothes, and laded euery man his ass, and went agayne vnto the ctyte. And Juda and hys brethren came to Josephs house for he was yet there, and they sell befoze him on the grounde. And Joseph sayd vnto the: what dede is this which ye haue done? wote ye not that soche a man as I can prophete?

¶ Then sayde Juda: what shall we saye vnto my Lord? what shall we speake, or what excuse can we make? God hath founde out the wykednesse of thy seruantes. Beholde, both we & he with whom the cuppe is founde, are my Lordes seruantes. And he answered. God forbyd that I shulde do so, but the man with whō the cuppe is founde, he shall be my seruante. And go ye in peace vnto poure father.

¶ Then Juda went vnto hym and sayde:
oh my Lord, let thy seruante speake a wo-de in my Lordes eares, and be not wrooth with thy seruante: for thou art cūen as Ishmael. ¶ The Lord asked his seruantes saying: haue ye a father or a brother? And we answered my Lord: we haue a father that is olde, and a yonge lad which he begat in hys age: and the brother of the ladde lad is dead, and he is all that is left of that mother.

And hys father loneth hym. And thou saydest vnto thy seruantes: bynge him vnto me, & I maye sett myne eye vpon him. And we answered my Lord, that the lad coulde not goo from his father, for yf he shulde leaue his father, he were but dēd. ¶ Then saydest thou vnto thy seruantes * excepte poue youngest brother come with you, loke that ye se my face no moare.

¶ And when we came vnto thy seruante Joure father, we shewed hym what my loyde had sayd. And oure father sayd vnto vs: goo agayne, & bye vs a lytle foode. And we answered: we cannot goo downe. ¶ Acerthele: yf oure youngest brother go vnto vs, then wyll we go downe, for we maye not see the mannes face, excepte oure youngest brother be wth vs. And thy seruante oure father sayde vnto vs: ye knowe that my wyfe bare me ij. sonnes. And the one went out from me, &c.
¶ I sayde: of suretye he is * to me in peace, and I sawe hym not since. And ye take this also awaye fro me. ¶ If some myfostunc happen vnto him, * ye shall bynge my gras hēd

¶ Howe therfore, when I came to thy seruant my father, and the lad be not with vs (seynge that his lyfe danger by the laddes ne as he seeth that the lad is not come, he wyll dye. So shall we thy seruantes * bynge the gras hēde of thy seruante oure father with sozowe vnto the graue. ¶ For I thy seruant became suretye for the lad befoze my father and sayde: * yf I bynge him not vnto the agayne, I wyll bere the blame vnto my father all my lyfe longe. ¶ Howe therfore let me thy seruante byde here for the lad, and be my Lordes bondman: and let the lad goo vp wth his brethren. ¶ For howe can I goo vp to my father, yf the lad be not with me: o-nelle I wolde see the wretchesnes that shall come on my father.

Wherfore God sent me before you to make promysion, that ye myghte continue in the erth, and to saue youre lyues by a greate deliuerance. So now it was not ye that sent me hyther, but God: which hath made me a father vnto Pharaos & Lorde of all hys house, & ruler thowout all the lade of Egypte. hast you, and goo vp to my father and tell him. This sayeth yf sonne Joseph: God hath made me Lorde of all Egypte. Come downe therefore vnto me, tarpe not. And he fell on hys brother Ben Jamins necke and wepte, and Ben Jamin wepte on hys necke. Wherfore he kyssed all hys brethren and wepte vpon them. And after that, hys brethren talked with hym. And the wybenges came vnto Pharaos house, so that they sayde: Josephs brethren are come, & it pleased Pharaos will and all hys seruantes.

And Pharaos spake vnto Joseph: saye vnto thy brethren, thus do ye: lade your bestes and get you hence, vnto the lande of Canaan. Take youre father, and your householdes and come vnto me, and I will geue you the good of the lande of Egypte, and ye shall eate the fat of the lade. Also, regarde not youre stuffe, for the good of all the lande of Egypte is yours.

And the chyldren of Israel byd cuen so. And Joseph gaue them charrettes accordyng

So sent he hys brethren a waye to departe: And he sayde vnto them: se that ye fall not out by the waye.

They departed therefore from Egypte and came in to the lande of Canaan vnto Jacob thez father, and tolde hym sayinge: Joseph is yet alive, & is gouerner ouer all the lande of Egypte. And Jacobus here wauered, for he beleued them not. And they tolde hym all the wordes of Joseph, whych he had sayde vnto them. And when he sawe the charrettes whych Joseph had sent to carpe hym, the spere of Jacob thez father remyned. And Israel sayde: I haue enough that Joseph my sonne is yet alive: I will goo, and se hym, yet that I dye.

When oure money is spent: & then sayde Joseph: bringe your cattell, & I will geue you for your cattell, yf ye be without money. And the y brought theyr cattell vnto Joseph. And Joseph gaue them bread for horses & shepe, and oxen, and asses, and fed the wyth bread for all theyr cattell that yere.

But when that yere was ended, they came vnto hym the nexte yere, & sayde vnto hym: we will not hyde it from my lord how y our money is spent, my lord also had oure cattell & beastes, neither is there ought left in the syght of my lord, but euen oure bodies and oure lādes. wherfore letteth thou vs dye before thyne eyes, & the lande to goe to nought: by vs & our lādes for bread: & both we and oure lādes will be hōde to Pharaao. Onely geue vs seed, that we maye līue and not dye, & that the lande goo nat to wast.

¶ And so Joseph boughte all the lād of Egypte for Pharaao. For y Egyptians solde euery man hys lande because the berth was soze vpon the: & so the lād became Pharaaos. And he appointed the people vnto y eptics, for one tyde of Egypte vnto the other: only the lande of the priestes bought he not. For the priestes had an ordinaunce of Pharaao, y they shulde eate that which was appoynted vnto the: which Pharaao had geue the wherfor they solde not theyr lādes.

¶ The Joseph sayde vnto the folke: beholde I haue boughte you this daye & your lāde for Pharaao. Take thre bread & seide & sowe y the lād. And of the increase, ye shall geue the fyfte parte vnto Pharaao, & iij. partes shalbe your a wīre, for seed of the seib: & for you, and them of your householdes, and for your chyldren, to eate. And they answered: Thou haste saued oure lyues. Let vs fynde grace in the syght of my lord, & we will be Pharaos seruantes. And Joseph made it a lawe ouer the lande of Egypte vnto this daye: that Pharaao shulde haue the fyfte parte, excepte the lande of the priestes only, wherby was not Pharaos.

And Israel dwelt in Egypte: euen in the countre of Gosan. And they had theyr possessions therein, & grew and multiplied exceedingly. Moreover, Jacob liued in the lande of Egypte xliij. yeres, so that the hole age of Jacob was an hundred and xliij. yere.

¶ When the tyme drew nye, y Israel must dye: he sent for his sonne Joseph, & sayde vnto hym: If I haue founde grace in thy syght, oh, put thy hande vnder my eye, and deale mercifully and truly w me, that thou burye me not in Egypte: but I will lye w my fathers, and thou shalt carrie me out of Egypte, & burye me in thy buryall. And he answered: I will do as thou hast sayd. And he sayde: swere vnto me. And he swore vnto hym. And Israel, & was wyppyd to ward the beddes head.

¶ The xliiij. Chapter.

¶ After these deades it happened, & a messenger sayde vnto Joseph: thy father is siche. And he toke w him his ii. sonnes, Manasses & Ephraim. Then was it sayd vnto Jacob: beholde, thy sonne Joseph cometh vnto the. And Israel toke his strength vnto hym, & satt vp on the bedd, & Jacob sayde vnto Joseph: God allmoghthe appeared vnto me at * And in the lande of Canaan, & blessed me, & sayde vnto me: beholde, I will make the growe, & will multiply the, & will make a great * nombre of people of the, and will geue thee land vnto the lēd after the vnto an euerlastyng possession. And now thy ii. sonnes Manasses & Ephraim which were bozne vnto the in the lande of Egypte, & before I came to the in to Egypte, are myne: euē as Ruben & Symeon are myne. And the chyldren which thou hast gotten after the, shalbe thynne a wīre: & shalbe called after the names of theyr byerthe in theyr enheritaunce. And when I came from the sopotamia, Rachel dyed vpon my hād in the lande of Canaan, by the waye: when ther was but a selde byde to come vnto Ephraim. And I buried her there in the waye to Ephraim. The same is Bethlechem.

And Israel behelde Josephs sonnes and sayde: what are these? Joseph sayd vnto his father: they are my sonnes which God hath geue me here. And he sayde: oh, byngne them to me, & let me blesse the. And the eyes of Israel were dymme for age, so y he coulde not well see. And he brought them to hym, and he kyssed them and embraced them. And Israel sayde vnto Joseph: I had not thought to haue sene thy face, & yet loo, God hath shewed it me and also thy seed. And Joseph toke them awaye from his lappe, & was wyppyd on the grounde before hym.

Israel's ryghte hande, & brought them vnto hym. And Israel streched out hys rygher hande & layde it vpon Ephraim's heade which was the yonger, & hys lyfte had vpon Manasses hebd, gydinge hys handes wplyt, for Manasses was the elder. And he blessed Joseph & sayde: God, before whome my fathers Abraham & Isahac dyd walke, God whych hath fedd me all my lyfe longe vnto this daye, And the anuell whych hath deliuered me from all euyl, bleste these laddes: & let my name be named in them, & the name of my fathers Abraham & Isahac, & that they maye growe into a multitude in the myddes of the erth.

When Joseph sawe that hys father layde hys rygher had vpon y^e heade of Ephraim, it displeased him. And he lyfte vp his fathers hande, to haue remoued it from Ephraim's heade vnto Manasses heade, & Joseph sayde vnto hys father: Not so my father, for this is the eldest. But thy ryght hande vpon hys heade. And hys father wolde not, but sayde: I knowe it well my sonne, I knowe it well. He shalbe also a people & shalbe great. But hys yonger brother shalbe greater than he, and hys seed shal be full of people. And he blessed them that daye and sayde: In the let Israel bleste & saye: God make y^e Ephraim and as Manasses. And lett Ephraim be as Manasses.

And Israel sayde vnto Joseph: beholde, I dye. And God shalbe wyth you and brynge you againe vnto y^e lade of youre fathers. Moreover I haue geuen vnto the, a p^{ar}ty of * lande aboute thy brethren, which I gat out of the hnde of the Amorite in my swerde and in my bowe.

¶ The xlii. Chapter.

¶ Jacob blesteth all his aunc^{ts} tonnes and sheweth what is to come. He appoynteth wher he wylthe burie: and deeth.

¶ Ad Jacob called for hys sonnes and sayde: come together, that I maye tell you what shal happen you in the last dayes. Gather you together, and heare ye voices of Jacob, hearken vnto Israel pour father.

Ruben * myne eldest sonne, thou art my myghte and the begynnyng of my strength, & the noblenesse of dignite, and the noblenesse of power. As unstable as water. Thou shalt not be the cheffest, because thou wentest vp to thy fathers bed. When then dydest thou despit it, it was no more my couche.

The brethren Simeon and Leui, euell instrumentes in thy habitacons. In to their secretes come not my soule, vnto their congreagayon be my honoure not coupled: for in their * wrath they slewe a man, & in their selfe wyl they, * digged downe a wall. And sed be their wrath, for it was shamelesse, and

He shal bynde his sole vnto y^e vyne, and hys altescole vnto the brannche. He wylde byn garment in wyne, and hys mantell in the blonde of grapes. Hys eyeres redde than wyne, & his teeth whityer then mylke.

* Zabulon shal dwell by the heauen of the see and npe the heauen of Asyppes. His bozder shalbe vnto Sydon.

Issachar a stronge alle couchinge hym downe betwene y^e borders, and sawe that rest was good, & the lande that it was pleasant, and bowed hym shulder to beare, and became a seruante vnto tribute. * Manassas iudge hys people as the tribes of Israel. Dan shalbe a serpet in the waye, an eader in the path, byrnyng the heele heles and hys ryder fell backwarde: after thy saluacyon haue I looked: o * Lozbe.

Reuben is a swifte hynde, geuynge goodly wordes. That kofpshynge childe Joseph, that plectious chylde by the well syde, the daughters ran vpo the wall. They haue prouolued hym, and shot hym thugh with darts. The archers haue cunped him: But hys bowe abode fast, and the arrowes of hys handes were made stronge, by the handes of the myghty God of Jacob. Out of hym shal come an herde man, a stone in Israel: from thy fathers God which lanchedy the, and with the slinge the which hath blessed the wyth blessinges from heauen aboue, wyth blessinges of the beyr that lenth vnder, and wyth blessinges of the bestes and of the wombe. The blessinges of thy father were stronger then the blessinges of my elders, vnto the vntom of the hylls of y^e worlde, and they shalbe on the heade of Joseph, and on the toppe of the heade of hym y^e was y^e parat from his brethren.

And discharged them, and sayde vnto them: Uthan I haue gathered vnto my * people, burye me wyth my fathers, in the caue that is in the felde of Ephron the hethyke, in the double caue that is in the felde by the cowntre of Hamer in the lande of Canaan. Whych felde Abraham boughte of Ephron the hethyke for a possession to burye in, where as were buried Abraham and Sarah his wyfe. And where as were buried Isahac & Rebecca his wyfe. And there I buried Lea. The felde and the caue that is therein, was boughte of the chyl- dren of hebr.

And when Jacob had commaunded all that he wolde vnto hys sonnes, he plucked vp his feet vnto the bedd and dyed, and was * put vnto hys people. And Joseph fell vpon hys fathers face, and wepte vpon hym, and kysed hym.

¶ Jacob is buried Joseph ingreth hys brethre the manner that they dyd to hym. And he dyeth.

E And Joseph commaunded hys seruantes the Philicpous, to embawme hys father, and the Philicpous embawmed Israel xl. dayes longe, for to lode dorth the embawmyng last, and the Egyprians beweped hym .lxx. dayes.

And when the dayes of weeping were ended, Joseph spake vnto the houle of Pharao sayinge: I haue founde fauoure in your eyes, forake in the cares of Pharao sayng: my father made me swere & sayde: loo, I dye, * burye me in my grane whych I haue made me in the lande of Canaan. Nowe therfore let me goo and burye my father, and thā will I come againe. And Pharao sayde, goo and burye thy father, accom- panyng as he made the swere.

And Joseph went vp to buye hys father, and with hym went all the seruantes of Pharao that were the eldres of his houle, and all the eldres of the lande of Egypte, & all the houle of Joseph, and his brethren and hys fathers houle, only they chylidren and their shepe and their cattell lefte they beynde in the lande of Golan. And there went with him also Charrees and hoislinen: & it was an exceedyng great companye.

And they came to the coyne flooze of Atad whych is beponde Iordane, and there they made a great and exceedyng foze lamenta- tion. And he * mourned for hys father. viij. dayes. And when the inhabitants of the lande (euen the Canaanites) sawe the mournynge in the coyne flooze of Atad, they sayde: this is a greates mournynge vnto the Egyprians. Wherfore the name of the place is called, The mournynge of the Egyprians, and it is be- ponde Iordane: And hys sonnes dyd vnto him accompyng as he had commaunded the.

For hys sonnes carped hym * in to the lande of Canaan, and buried him in the double caue of the felde: whych caue * Abraham boughte, and the felde also, to be a place to burye in, of Ephron the hethyke before Hamer. And Joseph returned in to Egypte agayne, he and hys brethre (and all that went vp with him to burye hys father,) allone as he had buried hym.

And when Josephs brethren sawe that their father was dead, they sayde: Joseph myghte fortune to haue vs * a rewarde as agayne all the euill which we dyd vnto him. And they dyd a commaundement vnto Joseph sayinge, thy father charged vs before hys death sayinge: The hys wyfe shall ye sape vnto Joseph, foryeue I praye the the trespass of thy brethre, and they: for they rewarded the euill. And nowe (we praye the) foryeue the trespass of the seruantes of thy fathers God. And Joseph wepte, when they spake vnto hym.

For hys brethren came vnto hym, & fell flat before hys face sayinge: beholde, we be thy seruantes. To whō Joseph sayde: feare not. I am God: ye thought euell agaynst me: but God turned it vnto good, to byngge to passe, as it is this daye, and to saue much people alpyce. Feare not therefore, nowe, I will noy the pou, and your chylidren, and be comforted them, & spake kindly vnto them.

Joseph dwelt in Egypte he and hys fathers houle, and Joseph luyed an hundred and .x. pere. And Joseph laue * Ephraims chylidren, euen vnto the thyrde generacion. And vnto Machir the sonne of Manasse were chylidren bozne, on Josephs knes.

And Joseph sayde vnto hys brethren: I dye. And God will suretye & vprytt you & byngge you out of this lande, vnto the lande whych he swore vnto Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. And Joseph toke an ooth of the chylidren of Israel, sayinge: God will not faile but vprytt you: and ye shall carpe my * boones hence. And so Joseph dyed, when he was an hundred & .x. yere olde.

And they embaw- med hym wyth spices, & put = tynge him in a chest in Ege- pte.

The second boke of

Moses called in the hebrue: Ezeleth Schemoth: And in the Latin, Exodus.

The first Chapter.

The children of Jacob are nombred. The names Pharaos oppresseth them. The acts of the godly childmire.

In these are the names of the children of Israel, which came to Egypt with Jacob, every man came to his hou-sholde: Ruben, Simeon, Levi, and Juda, Isachar Zabulon, and Benjamin, Dan, Ne-phthali, Gad and Aser. All the soules came out of the loynes of Jacob were. lxx. But Joseph was in Egypt alle theie. And Joseph died and all his brethren and all that generation, and the * children of Israel grew, encreased, multiplied, and waxed exceeding myghty: and the land was full of them.

But there rose up a new kynge in Egypte whiche knewe not Joseph. And he sayde unto his folke: beholde, the people of Egipt are greater and myghtyer than
we. Come on, let vs playe wisely wyth the, lest they multiplye, a lest it happen, that (yf there chaunce any warre) they ioyne the fellows unto oure enemies and fighte agaynst vs, and so gete them out of the lande.

Therefore dyd they sette taskmesters ouer them, to kepe them vnder to byrchens. And they byrte vnto Pharaos trenture cities: Pithon and Ramesses. But the more they vndertoke, the moare they multiplied and grew, so that they abhorred the children of Israel.
And the Egyptians helde the children of Israel in bondage without mercey. Therefore was their lyfe bytter vnto the in thine cruel bondage, in clasp a byrthe, and all maner of woke helpeles. For all their byddage which they ferued them, was full of paynnyng.

And the kynge of Egypte sayde vnto the mydwines of the hebrue women, of which the ones name was Schemoth and the other

Phua: when ye do the office of a mydwife to the women of the Egiptes and is in the byrth tyme that it is a boye, ye shall kylle it.
But yf it be a daughter, it shall lyue. And withstandynge the mydwines feared God and dyd not as the kynge of Egypte comma-unded them: but saued the men children.

And the kynge of Egypte called for the mydwines and sayde vnto them: why haue ye done thus maner, and haue saued the men children? And the mydwines answered Pharaos, that the hebrues women are not as the women of Egypte: for they are hardie women, and are belmyered yet the mid-wines come at the. And God therefore helpe well with the midwines. And the people multiplied and waxed very myghtye. And it forgotten because the midwines feared God, that he made them houses.

And Pharaos charged all his people, sayynge: All the men children that are borne, cast into the ryuer, and saue the mayde-children alpye.

The seconde Chapter.

The childer to be borne and cast into the rynges. The tale up of Pharaos daughter. The birth of Moyses.
The surety and marck of a boye. The Israelites were vnto the Egipt.

And there went a ma of * the house of Levi. And toke a daughter of an Egipt. And the wyfe conceiued and bare a sonne. And when she sawe that it was a proper chyld
* the byrd hym thre monethes. And when she coude no longer hyde him, she toke a basket of bulrushes and daubed it with aspe and pytche, and layde the chyld therein, and put it in the flagges by the ryuers bynke. And his sister stode a farte of, to wete what wold come of it. * And the daughter of Pharaos came bounce * to walke herselfe in the ryuer, and hyr maydens walked alonge by: the ry-uers syde. And when she sawe the basket amonge flagges, she sent hyr mayde to fetch it. And when she had opened it, she sawe it was a chyld: and beholde, the babe wepte.
And she had compassyon on it, and sayde: it is one of the hebrues children. Then sayde hyr syster vnto Pharaos daughter: shall I go and call vnto the a nurse of the hebrues women, to nurse the, the chyld? Pharaos daughter answered her: So do. And the may-de came and called the chyldes mother. To whom Pharaos daughter sayde: Take this chyld a waye, and nurse it for me, I will reward the. And the woman toke the chyld, and nursed it up.

The chyld grew, & he brought it vnto Pharaos daughter, & it was made hyr sonne.
& she called the name of it * Moyses, because (sayde she) I toke him out of y water. And it happened in those dayes, when Moyses was

waged great, that he went out vnto his brethren and looked on their burdens, & spied an Egyptian smytinge an hebreue whych was one of hyss brethren. And he looked rounde aboute, and when he sawe no mā by, he slew the Egyptian, and hyd him in the sonde. And whā he was gone out another daye: beholde two hebraues strone to gether. And he sayde vnto hym that dyd the wronge: wherefore smytest thou this fellowe: he answered: * who made the man of auctoryte to ludge vs? speakest thou to kill me, as thou spiledst the Egyptian? And Moses feared & sayde: of a suertie this thyng is knowne: And Pharao herde of it, and went aboute to sle Moses. And Moses fledge fro the face of Pharao, dwelt in the lande of Midian, and he sat downe by a wellles syde.

The weast of Midian had. vij. daughters which came and drew water, and spiled the trowghes, for to water their fathers shepe. And the shepard came & browe them a waye: but Moses toke vp and helpe the, and watered their shepe. And when they came to Raguel their father, he sayde: howe happeneth it if ye are come so soone to dape? And they answered: a man of Egypte delivered vs fro the hande of the shepardes, and so drew vs water, & watered the shepe. he sayde vnto hyss daughters. And wher is her wyf haue ye to leste the man? All hym that he maye cate bread. And Moses was content to dwell with the man. And he gaue Moses zephora hyss daughter, which whā she bare a sonne. * called him Gerson: for he sayde: I haue bene a stranger in a strange lande.

And it chaunced in processe of tyme, that the kynge of Egypte dyed, and the chyldren of Israel soughed by the reason of bondage, and cryed. And their cōplaine came vp vnto God from the bddage: and God hearde their mone. And God remembered hyss promise with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. And God toke vpon the chyldren of Israel, and God had respecte vnto them.

¶ The. liij. Chapter.

¶ Moses heyrth wepe. God appeareth vnto hym in a bush, & sendeth hym to the chyldren of Israel, and to Pharao the tyrant.

Moses heyrth the shepe of * Jethio hyss father in lawe, weest of Midian, and he browe the docke to the backespe of the desert, and came to the mountayne of God, Horeb.

* And the angell of the Lorde appeared vnto him in a flame of fyre out of the myddes of a bush. And he looked, & beholde, þ bush burned wth fyre, and the bush was not consumed. Therfore Moses sayde: I wyl goo nowe, and see this greates syght, howe it cometh þ the bush burneth not. And when the Lorde sawe that he came for to see, God called vnto him out of the myddes of the bush, and sayde: Moses, Moses. he answered: here am I. And he sayde: * come not hyther, put thy shoes of thy fete: for þ place where on thou standest is holp grounde. And he sayde: * I am the God of thy father, þ God of Abraham, the God of Isaac & the God of Jacob. And Moses hyd his face, for he was afraped to loke vpon God.

And the Lorde sayde: I haue surely sene the trouble of my people which are in Egypte, and * haue herde theyr crye from the face of their taskmasters. For I knowe their sorowes, and am come downe to deliuer them out of the hande of the Egyptians, and to brynge them out of that lande vnto a good lande and a large: and vnto a lande that floweth with mylke and hony: such vnto the place of the Canaanites and heethites, and Amozites, and Pherezites, and heuites, and of the Jebusites. Nowe therefore, the complaine of the chyldren of Israel is come vnto me, and I haue also sene the oppresyon wherewith the Egyptians oppresse them. Come thou therefore, and I wyl sende the vnto Pharao, that thou mayest brynge my people the chyldre of Israel out of Egypte. And Moses sayde vnto God: what am I to goo vnto Pharao, and to brynge the chyldren of Israel out of Egypte? And he answered: I wyl be with the. And thus shalbe a token vnto the that I haue sent the: after that thou hast brought the people out of Egypte, ye shall serue God vpon thys mountayne.

And Moses sayde vnto God: beholde, when I come vnto the chyldren of Israel, I shall saye vnto them: the God of your fathers hath sent me vnto you, and yf they saye vnto me, what is hyss name, what answer shall I geue them? And God answered Moses: I am that I am: and he sayde: thus shalt thou saye vnto the chyldren of Israel. I am hath sent me vnto you. And God spake further vnto Moses: thus shalt thou saye vnto the chyldren of Israel * the Lorde God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob hath sent me vnto you: thys is my name for euer applied him. And yehozabab took a stone, & cut awaye the foreskynne of hye sonne, & sell at his sette. & sayde: a bloudy husbande art thou unto me. Then he left him goo. And the sayde: a bloudy husbande, because of the circumcysion. Then sayde the Lorde unto Aaron: to wyte Moyses in the wilderness. And he went and met him in the mount of God, and kyssed him. And Moyses tolde Aaron all the wordes of the Lorde which had sent him, and all the tokens which he had charged him withall. So went Moyses & Aaron and gathered all the elders of the chyldren of Israel. And Aaron tolde all the wordes which the Lorde had spoken unto Moyses, and dyd the myracles in the syght of the people, and the people beleue. And wher they herde that the Lorde had visited the chyldren of Israel and had looked upon their tribulacion, they bowed their head, and woxypped.

C The. v. Chapter.

Moyses & Aaron goeth unto Pharaon. The people of Israel are oppressed more and more, & they crye out upon Moyses & Aaron thereto.

Moses & Aaron went in after warde, and tolde Pharaon, thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israel: Let my people goo, that they maye kepe hollye daie unto me in the wilderness. And Pharaon sayde: who * is p Lorde, that I shulde heare hys voyce, & let Israel goo. I knowe not this Lorde, neither will I let Israel goo. And they sayde: the God of the hebrewe hath met with vs: and therfore will we go. iij. dayes journey into the deserte, and sacrifice vnto the Lorde oure God: lest there happen vnto vs ether pestilence or sword. Then sayde the kynge of Egypte vnto them: wherfore daie, Moyses and Aaron let the people from their worke, get you vnto your labour. And Pharaon sayde furthermore: beholde, there is inoche people now in the lande, and ye make them leaue their worke.

And Pharaon commaunded the same daie vnto the taskemasters which were amonge the people, and vnto the officers, sayinge: ye shall geue the people no more strawe, to make hycke with all, (as ye dyd in tyme past). let them go and gather them strawe them selues and the nombre of hycke whyche they were wont to make in tyme past, laye vnto their charges also, and mynysh nothinge therof. For they be ydell and therfore crye sayinge: we will goo & do sacrifice vnto oure God. They must haue more worke layed vpon them, that they maye labour therein, & not regarde dayne wordes.

Then went the taskemasters of the people and the officers out: and tolde the people thus sayeth Pharaon: I will geue you no more strawe, goo your selues and gather you strawe where ye can fynde it, yet shall none of yowre labour be mynyshed. And so were p people scattered abrode thowout all the lande of Egypte for to gather stubblyl in stead of strawe.

And the taskemasters hasted them forwarde sayinge: fullyll yowre worke daye by daye, euen as ye had strawe. And the officers of the chyldren of Israel whych Pharaon taskemasters had sett ouer them, were brast. And they sayde vnto them: wherfore haue ye not fullylled yowre tasken in makinge hycke, both yester daie and to daie, as well as in tymes past?

The officers also of the chyldren of Israel came & complained vnto Pharaon, sayinge: wherfore dealest thou thus with thy seruantes: there is no strawe geue vnto thy seruantes, and they saie vnto vs: make hycke. And thy seruantes are beaten, and thy people is foule intreated. He sayde: ydell as ye, ydell, and therfore ye saie: We will goo and do sacrifice vnto the Lorde. Go therefore now and worke, and ther shall no strawe be geuen you, and yet shall ye deliuer the hole tale of hycke.

And the officers of the chyldren of Israel dyd with heuyness loke on them that sayde: ye shall mynysh the nothinge of yowre daylye makinge of hycke. And thry met Moyses and Aaro, which stode in there waye as they came out fro Pharaon, & sayde vnto the: The Lorde loke vnto you and iudge you, whych hath made the sauoure of vs synke in p eyes of Pharaon & in the eyes of his seruantes, and haue put a sword in their hande to sle vs.

Moyses returned vnto the Lorde & sayde: Lorde wherfore hast thou deale cruelly w this people: and wherfore hast thou sent me, for since I came to Pharaon to speake in thy name, he hath sared foule welych thys folke, and yet thou hast not deliuered thy people at all. Then the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: Howe shalt thou see, what I will doo vnto Pharaon, for in a myghtye hande shall he let them goo, & * in a myghtye hande shall he dyspue them out of hys lande.

The Lorde spake vnto Moses sayynge:
Go in, & speake vnto Pharaos kynge of E-

Moyses and Aaron went out from Pharao, and Moyses cryed vnto the Lorde vpon p apoynement of frogs, whereby he had made vnto Pharao. And the Lorde dyd ac-cordinge to the sayinge of Moyses. And the frogs dyed out of the houses, out of the court-es and feldes. And they gathered them together vpon heapes, & the lande stank of them.

But when Pharao sawe that he had rest geuen him, he hardened his herte and her-ned not vnto them, as the Lorde had sayde.
And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: saye vnto Aaron: stretch out thy rodd and smyte the dust of the lande, that it maye turne to scorpions ouer all the lande of Egypte. And they dyd so. For Aaron stretched out his han-de with his rodd he smote the dust of the reb, which turned to scorpions in man and best, so that all the dust of the lande turned to scorpions, tho-rowe out all the lande of Egypte.

And the enchaunters all dyd lyke wyse with their enchauntements, to bypasse forth scorpions, but they coulde not. And the scorpions were both vpon men and bestes. Then sayde the enchaunters vnto Pharao: it is the syngure of God. And Pharao hart remained obstinate, and he hardened not vnto them, euen as the Lorde had sayde.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: wyse vnto Aaron

vnto Aaron

by early in the morning, and stande before Pharao, for he will come forth unto p water: and thou shalt saye vnto him: thus saith the Lorde: Let my people go, that they maye serue me. Else, yf thou wilt not let my people go, behold, I will sende all manner of flies both vpon the and thy seruantes, and thy people, and into the houses. And p hares of the Egyptians shall be full of flies, and the grounde whereon they are. And the lande of * Goshen where my people are, will I can-se to be wonderfull in that daye: so that thou shalt knowe, that I am the Lorde in the myddes of the earth. And I will put a diuision betwene my people and thine. And euen to morowe shall this miracle be done.

The Lorde dyd enen so: and there came noysome flies into the house of Pharao, and into his seruantes houses, and into all the lande of Egypt: and the lande was corrupte with these flies. And Pharao called for Moses and Aaron, and sayde: Go, and do sacrifice vnto poure God in the lande. And Moses answered: it is not mete that we so do: for then we must offer vnto the Lorde our God, that which is an abomination vnto the Egyptians. But and yf we sacrifice that, which is an abomination vnto the Egiptians before their eyes, shouldest thou not stone vs: we will go the dayes to come into the deserte, and sacrifice vnto the Lord our God as he hath commaunded vs.

And Pharao sayd: I will let you go, that ye maye sacrifice vnto the Lorde poure God in the wilderness: but go not farre awaye, praye for me. And Moses sayde: beholde, I will go out fro the, & praye vnto the Lorde, that the flies maye departe from Pharao, & from his seruantes and from his people to morrow. But let Pharao from henceforth decline nomore, that he will not let the people go to sacrifice vnto the Lorde:

And Moses went out from Pharao, and prayed vnto the Lorde. And the Lorde dyd flies departed from Pharao, and from his seruantes, and from his people, and there remayned not one. And Pharao hardened

The ix. Chapter.

¶ The moyn of beastes. The place of botches and sores. And horrible haile, thunder and lightning.

The Lorde sayd vnto Moses: go in vnto Pharao and thou shalt tell him: thus sayeth the Lorde God of the Egyptians: * Let my people go, p they maye serue me. If thou wilt not let them go, and wilt holde them still, beholde, the hande of the Lorde is vpon thy flocke which is in the feld: for vpon horses, asses, camels, oxen and shepe, there shall be a mighty great moyn. And the Lorde shall do wonderfully betwene the beastes of Israel and the beastes of Egypt: so that there shall nothyng dye of all p pectynch to the children of Israel. And the Lorde appointed a tyme, saying: to morowe the Lorde shall finish this worde in the lande.

And the Lorde dyd it on the morowe, and all the cattell of Egypt dyed: but of the cattell of the children of Israel dyed not one. And Pharao sent, and beholde, there was not one of the cattell of p Israelites dead. And p hert of Pharao was hardened that he wolde not let the people go.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses and ²³
Aaron: take youre handes full of ashes out of the fornace, and Moses shall spynke it vnto into the ayre, in the sight of Pharao, and it shall turne to dust in all the lade of Egypt:
that the maye be swellying sores with blaynes both on man and beaste thowout all p lande of Egypt. And they toke althes oute of the fornace, and stood before Pharao, and Moses spynked it vnto into the ayre. And there were sores with blaynes both in men and in beastes: and the soycers coude not sade before Moses because of p blaynes: for ther were botches vnto p encheris & vpon all the Egyptians. And p Lord hardened the hert of Pharao, & he dyedened not vnto the,
as the Lorde had sayd vnto Moses.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: rye vpearly in the morning, and stande before Pharao, & thou shalt tell him: thus sayeth the Lord God of the Egyptians: * Let my people go, that they maye serue me: or els I will at this tyme sende all my plagues vpon thine herte, and vpon thy seruantes and on thy people, that thou mayest knowe, that there is none lyke me in all the earth. For nowe I will stretch out my hande, that I maye smyte the and thy people with pestilence: and thou shalt perishe from the earth. And in very dede: for this cause haue I kepte the, for to shewe the my power: and that they might declare my name thowout all the world.

¶ Pet thou exaltest thy selfe agaynst my people, that thou wilt not let them go: be-holde, to morowe thys tyme I will sende downe a myghy greates haile: euen soche a one as was not in Egypt. Kneit was grea-de vnto thys tyme. Sende therfore nowe, and gather thy beastes, and all that thou hast in the feld: for vpon all the men and the beastes which are founde in the feld, and not brought home, shall the haile fall, and they shall dye. And as many as feared the worde of the Lorde among the seruants of Pharao, made their seruantes and their beastes flee into the houses: but he that regarded not the worde of the Lorde, left his seruants.

E And the Lorde said vnto Moses: stretch forth thyne hande vnto heauen, that there maye be hayle in all the lande of Egypt: vpon man and vpon bestes and vpon all the herbes of the felde, thowout þe lāde of Egypt. And Moses stretched out his rod vnto heauen: and the Lorde thondred and hayled, and the fyre ran a longe vpon the groude. * And the Lorde so hayled in the lande of Egypt, þe there was hayle and fyre mingled with the hayle, so greuous, and such as there was none thowout all the lande of Egypt, sence people inhabited it. And þe hayle smote thowout all the lande of Egypt, all that was in the felde both mā and best. And the hayle smote all the herbes of the felde, and brome all the trees of the felde: onely in the lāde of Goshan, wher the childre of Israel were, was there no hayle. And Pharaos sent & called for Moses and Aaron, and sayde vnto the: I haue nowe sinned: the Lorde is ryghteous: and I and my people are vngodly. * Haye ye vnto the Lorde: for it is moche that there shulde be thondres of God & hayle. I will let you go, and ye shall carry no senger. Moses sayde vnto him: as thou art out of the cite, I will speche abrode my handes vnto the Lorde, & the thonder shall cease. nerther shall there be any more hayle, þe thou mayst knowe howe þe earth is the Lordes. But I knowe that thou and thy seruantes yet feare not the face of the Lorde God.

E And so the flaxe and the barley were smitten: for the barley was shot vp, and the flaxe was brouled: but the whete and the rye were not smitten: for they were late sowne. And Moses went out of the cite from Pharaos and speche abrode his handes vnto the Lorde: and the thonder and hayle ceased: nerther rayned it vpon the earth. And when Pharaos sawe that the rayne and the hayle and thonder were ceased, he sinned agayne: and hardened his herte, he and his seruantes. And the hert of Pharaos was hardened: nerther wolde he let the children of Israel go, as the Lorde had sayde by the hande of Moses.

¶ The .x. Chapter.

E And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: go in vnto Pharaos: for I haue hardened his herte and the herte of his seruantes, that I might put these my signes amongst them: and that thou tell in the audience of thy sonne, and of thy sonnes sonne, what thynges I haue done in Egypt, and the myracles which I haue done amongst them: þe ye maye knowe howe that I am the Lorde. And so Moses and Aaron came vnto Pharaos, & sayd vnto him: Thus sayeth the Lorde God of the Egiptians: howe longe shall it be oʒ þe wyll submitte thy selfe vnto me? * Let my people go, þe they maye serue me. Or els, * Let my people go, and wyll not let my people go, behold, to morow will I bring grethoppers into thy countrey, & they shall couer the face of the earth, that it cannot be sene: and they shall cate the residue which remaineth vnto you, and is escaped from the hayle: & they shall cate euery grene tree that beareth you fruite in the felde, and they shall fyll thy houses, and all thy seruantes houses, and the houses of all the Egiptians after such a maner as nerther thy fathers, nor thy fathers fathers haue sene, sence the time they were vpon the earth vnto this daye. And he turned him selfe aboute, and went out from Pharaos.

And Pharaos seruantes sayd vnto him: howe longe shall he be a slaunde vnto vs? Let me go, that they maye serue þe Lorde their God: knowest thou not yet þe Egypt is destroyed? And Moses & Aard were brought agayne vnto Pharaos, and he sayde vnto them: So, and serue the Lorde your God. Who are they that shall go? And Moses answered: we will go with oure sponges and with oure olde: yee, and with oure sonnes and with oure daughters, and with oure wepe, and w oure oren we must go. For we must holde a feast vnto the Lorde.

And he sayde vnto them: let it be so. & the Lorde be with you. When I let you go, and your childre also take hede, for ye haue come mischeif in hande. Make, not so: but go they that are men, and serue the Lorde: for that was your desyre. And they thrust them out of Pharaos pience.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: stretch out thyne hande ouer the lande of Egypt for grethoppers, that they maye come vpon the lande of Egypt, and cate all the herbes of þe lande, & all that the hayle left besyde. And Moses stretched forth his rod ouer the lāde of Egypt: & the Lorde brought an east wynde vpon the lande, all that daye, and all that nyght. And in the morning, the east wynde brought the grethoppers, and the grethoppers went by ouer all the lande of Egypt: and remayned in all quarters of Egypt very greuously. & sence then were there no such grethoppers, nerther after them shall be: for they couered all the face of the earth: so that the land was darke. And they byd cate all the herbes of the lande, and all the frutes of the trees, and whatsoeuer the hayle had left: there was no grene thinge left in the trees and herbes of the felde thowout all the lande of Egypt.

¶ The xij. Chapter.

¶ The Lorde commaunded to robbe the Egyptians.
 The deeth of all the fyrst begotten in Egypt.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: yet 101.1. will I bringe one plage more vpon Pharaon and vpon Egypt: and after that, he will lett you go hence. And when he leteeth you go, he shall utterly dync you be-101.2. ce. Speake thou therefore in the eares of the people, that euery man buyowe of his neighbour, and euery woma of her neyghbours 101.3. & iewels of syluer and iewels of golde. And the Lord shall gyue the people fauour in the syght of the Egyptians. Moreover, Moses 101.4. was very great in the lande of Egypt, in the syght of Pharaons seruantes and in the syght of the people.

And Moses sayde: thus sayeth the Lorde:
 101.5. & It mynyngh wyl I go out into the middes of Egypt, and all the fyrste borne in the lande of Egypt shall dye, euen from the fyrst borne of Pharaon & syneth on his seate, vnto the fyrst borne of the mayde seruaunte that is behynde the myle, and all the fyrste gedred of the cattell. And there shall be a great crye thowout all the lande of Egypt, such as there was neuer none before, nor shalbe.

But amonge the chyldren of Israel, shall not a dogge moue his tonge, nor yet man of beest: for ye maye knowe howe the Lorde, 101.6. by a great miracle putteth a difference betwene the Egyptians and Israel. And these thy ser-uantes shall all come downe vnto me. And fall before me, and saye: gett the out and all the people that are vnder thee, and then wyl I departe. And he went out from Pharaon with an angry countenance.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: Pha-101.7. raon shall not heare you, for my wonders maye be multiplied in the lande of Egypt. And Moses and Aaron dyd all these wonders.
 101.8. (And toheris which are written) before Pharaon.
 And the Lorde hardened Pharaon herte, so that he wolde not lett the chyldren of Israel go out of his lande.

¶ The xij. Chapter.

¶ The paffeouer is ceter. The swete herbe. They must teache their chyldren what the paffeouer signifeth. The destruction of the fyrst begotten in Egypt.
 The robbery of the Egyptians. The goinge out of the Israelites.

And the Lord spake vnto Mo-102.1. ses and Aaron in the lande of Egypt, sayinge: This moneth shall be vnto you the beginning of monethes: and the fyrst mo-102.2. neth of the yere shall it be vnto
 you. Speake ye vnto all the congregacyon of Israel, sayinge: In the x. daye of this mo-102.3. neth, euery man take vnto him a lambe, according to the house of the fathers, a labe thowout euery house. If the house shalbe to lytle for the lambe, let hym take hye 102.4. neyghboure which is nexte vnto his house, according to the nombre of the soules: euery one of you, according to his eating, shall make poue counte for a lambe. And let the labe of yours be wout blemyshe, a male of a yere olde, which ye shall take out from amonge the shepe, or from amonge the goates.

And ye shall kepe him in vntyll the x. daye 102.5. of the same moneth. And euery man of the multitude of Israel shall kyl him about eue. And they shall take of the blood, & strike it on the lyfte postes & on the upper doore post 102.6. eue in the houses, where they shall eat hye.
 And they shall eat the flece: the same night rost w fyre & w unleued bread, & w some herbes they shall eate it. Se that ye eate not therof rawe nor soden in water, but rost w 102.7. fyre: the head, fete, & purtenaunce therof. And ye shall let norþynge of it remayne vnto the 102.8. morning. What remayneth of it vntyll the morninge, shall ye burne wth fyre.

Of this maner shall ye eate it: with your loyned gyzed, and your shooes on your fete, and your staues in your handes. And ye shall eate it in haste: for it is the Lordes passeouer: For I will passe thowoe the lande of Egypte this same nyght, and will smyte all the first borne in the land of Egypt, both of man and beaste, and vpon all the goddes of Egypte will I the Lord do execution. And the bloude shall be vnto you a toke in þe house wherein ye are. And when I se the bloud, I will passe ouer you, and the plage shall not be vpon you to destroye you, when I smyte the lande of Egypte.

And this daye shall be vnto you a remembrance: and ye shall kepe it holy vnto the Lord, euen thowout poure generacions shall ye kepe it holye date, that it be a custome for euer. * Seven dayes shall ye eate vnto leuened bread: and the fyfte daye ye shall put awaye leuen out of poure houses. For whosoer eateth leuened bread from the fyfte daye vntill the seuenth daye, that soule shall be plucked out fro Israel. * The fyfte daye shall be an holy conuocation, and the seuenth daye shall be an holy conuocation vnto you. Where shall be no manner of worke done in them, save about that onely which euerie man must eate, that onely maye ye do. And ye shall obserue vnto leuened bread. For this same daye haue I brought your armys out of the lande of Egypte, therefore ye shall ob-serue this daye, all your chyldre after you, by a custome for euer. * The fyfte moneth and the xiiij. daye of the moneth at euen, ye shall eate swete bread vnto the xij. daye of the moneth at euen agayne. Seven dayes shall there be no leuened breade founde in poure houses. And whosoer eateth leuened bread, that soule shall be roted out from þe multitude of Israel: wherby he be a stranger or borne in the lande. Ye shall eate nothyng leuened: but in all your habitacions shall ye eate swete bread.

* Exo. xiiij. c.
Leu. xiiij. c.

Moses called for the elders of Israel, and sayde vnto them: chouse out and take you to euery household of you a shepe, and kyll it for passeouer. And take a bunche of foyse, & dyp it in the bloud that is in the bafen, and strike the vpperposse and the two fyde possers with the bloud that is in the bafen, and noke of you go out at the doore of your house, vntill the morninge. For the Lord will go about to smyte the Egyptians. And when he seeth the bloude vpon the vpper doze posse or the two fyde posse: he will passe ouer the doze, and will not suffer þe destroyer to come into your house to plage you. Therefore shall ye obserue this thing, that it be an ordinace both to the and thy sonnes for euer.

And when ye come into the land which the Lord will geue you, accordynge as he hath promysed, ye shall kepe this seruice.

* And when poure chyldren aske you what manner of seruice is this ye do, ye shall saye:
It is the sacrifice of the Lordes passeouer, which passed ouer the houses of the chyldren of Israel in Egypte, as he smote the Egyptians, and saued oure houses. And the people bowed them selues, and worshipped:
And the chyldren of Israel wote, and vnder-stode as the Lord had commaunded Moses and Aaron. Euen so dyd they.

And at mynnyght, the Lord smote all the first borne in the lande of Egypte, from the first borne of Pharo that satte on his seate, vnto the first borne of the captiue was in prison: and all the fyfte gender of catell. And Pharo arose in the nyght, he and all his seruantes and all the Egyptians:
* and there was a greete cryng in Egypt:
for there was no house where there was not one dead.

And he called vnto Moses and Aaron by nyght, saying: ryse vp, and get you oute from amonge my people: both ye and also the chyldre of Israel, and go and serue the Lord as ye haue sayde. And take your shepe and your boues with you as ye haue sayde, and departe ande. * bleste me. And the Egyptians were fierce vpon the people, that they myght sende them out of the lande in haste:
for they sayde: we dye all.

And the people toke their bowgh before it was fowred, and theye wyngles bounde in clothes vpon theyr shoulers. And the chyldren of Israel dyd accordyng to the saying of Moses: and they bowed of the Egyptians: * it welles of siluer, and it welles of golde, and payment. And the Lord gaue the people fauoure in the syghte of the Egyptians: so that they graunted such thynges as they required. And they robbed the Egyptians. And the chyldren of Israel toke their fornye from Ramess to Suchor: * theye hundred thousande men of fote, besyde chyldren. And moch comon people went also with them, and shepe, and oxen, an exceeding great flocke. And they baked swete cakes of ye downe which they brought out of Egypt, for it was not fowred. For when they were chast oute by the Egyptians, they coude not tarye to prepare them floure any vpon foun of meate.

The dwellinge of the chyldren of Israel, which they dwelled in Egypte, was hundred and xxx. yeres: and when the hundred and xxx. yeres were expired, euen the selfe same daye departed all the hostes of the Lord out of the lande of Egypt. It is a nyght to be obserued to the Lord, in the which he brought them oute of the lande of Egypt. This is that nyght of the Lord which all the chyldren of Israel must kepe thowout theyr generacions.

And

And the Lord sayde vnto Moses and Aaron: This is the lawe of passeouer: there shall no stranger eate thereof. But euery seruant that is bought for money (after that thou hast circumcised him) shall eate thereof. A stranger and a hyerd seruant shall not eate thereof. In one house shall it be eaten. Thou shalt carpe none of the fleshe oute at the house. * Neether shall ye breake a bone thereof. All the multitude shall obserue it.

Ex. xii. 8
aut. it. 8

If a stranger also dwell amonge you, he will holde passeouer vnto the Lord, let him circumcise all that be males: and then lett him come and obserue it, and he shall be as one that is borne in the lande. For no uncircumcised persone shall eate thereof. One manner of lawe shall be vnto him that is borne in the lande, and vnto the stranger that dwelleth amonge you. And all the chyldren of Israel dyd as the Lord comaunded Moses and Aaron. Euen so dyd they. And y^e self same daye dyd the Lord bringe the chyldren of Israel out of the lade of Egypt with their armyes.

¶ The xiiij. Chapter.

The xijth daye must be sanctified vnto the Lord. The memoriall of theys discomfite. When they were carped thorothe wilbernes. The borne of the cloud.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, saying: * Sanctify vnto me all the first borne, that open all manner matriccs amonge the chyldren of Israel as well of man as of beaste: for it is myne. And Moses sayd vnto y^e people: thynke on this daye in which ye came out of Egypt, out of the house of bondage: for thowow a mightye hande the Lord brought you out from thence. * There shall no man leuened bread be eaten. * This daye came ye out in the moneth when cozne begetteth to ryse.

It came to passe, that when Pharaos had lett the people go, God carped them not thowowe the waye and lande of the Philistines, which was the more nyre waye. But God sayde: lett the people bappily repte wha they se warre: so to turne agayne to Egypt. But God led the people about thowowe the waye of the wilbernes of the redde see. And the chyldren of Israel went by barnesled out of the lande of Egypt. And Moses toke the bones of Joseph with him: for he made the chyldren of Israel sweare, saying: * God will surely viset you, and ye shall take my bones a waye hens with you. * And they toke their iourney from Shuruth: and abode in Etham in the edge of the wilbernes. * And y^e Lord wente before them by daye in a pylle of a cloude to leade them the waye: and by nyght in a pylle of fyre to geue them light. y^e they might go both by daye and nyght. * The pylle of the cloude departed not by daye, nor the pylle of fyre by nyght out of y^e sight of the people.

Pharaos heart is hardened and followeth the Israelites with all his host and captaynes, and is aduised. The Israelites grudge. They go thowowe the red see.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, saying: * Spake to the chyldren of Israel, that they turne and remayne before Pharaos betwene Migdol and the see, oueragapne. * And saye y^e to Pharaos: thus saye the Lord, I will sende Pharaos hert, that he shall followe after you: and I will will get me honour upon Pharaon and vpon all his host, the Egyptians also shall knowe that I am the Lord. And they dyed euen so.

B And it was to be the king of Egypt that the people fled. And the hert of Pharaon and of his seruantes turned agaynste the people and they sayde: why haue we this done that we haue let Israel go out of our seruice: and he made ready his charrettes: and toke hys people with him and toke syxe hundred chosen charrettes and all the charrettes of Egypt and captaynes vpon euery one of the. And the Lord hardened the hert of Pharaon kyng of Egypt, and he followed after the chyldren of Israel. And the chyldren of Israel wente

13 out with a nyght hand: and the Egyptians followed after them, and all the hostes and charrettes of Pharaon and his hostemen and his host outtolde them abyding by the see, beynde Pt hieoth beynde Raal syphon. And

C when Pharaon dyed nire, the chyldren of Israel lyft vp their eyes and beholde, y Egyptians followed after them, and they were sore

7 at a trappe. And the chyldren of Israel cryed out vnto the Lord.

But they sayde vnto Moses: because there were no graues in Egypt, hast thou therfore brought vs a waye for to dye in the wilderness: wherefore hast thou serued vs thus, for to carpe vs out of Egypt: whyd not we tell thee this in Egypt, saying: let vs be in rest, y we maye serue the Egyptians? For it had bene better for vs to haue serued the Egyptians then for to dye in the wilderness. And 9 Moses sayde vnto the people: feare ye not. stande still, & beholde, howe the Lord shall saue you this daie. for ye that haue sene the Egyptians this daie, shall se them nomore for euer. The Lord shall fyght for you, and ye shall holde your prynces.

D And the Lord sayde vnto Moses: wherefore reyst thou vnto me: speake vnto y chyldren of Israel that they go forwarde. But lyfte thou vp thy rodd, and stretche oute thy hande ouer the see, and deuide it a sondre, and let the chyldren of Israel go on drye grounde throuwe the myddell of the see. And behold, I will harden the hert of the Egyptians that they maye followe them. And I will get me honour vpon Pharaon and vpon all his host, and vpon his charrettes and vpon his hostme. And the Egyptians shall knowe that I am the Lord when I haue gotten me honour vpon Pharaon, vpon his charrettes and vpon his hostmen.

E And the angell of God which went before the host of Israel remoued, and beganne to go beynde them. And the clowden pillar that was before the face of them beganne to stande beynde them, and came betwene the host of the Egyptians and the host of Israel. It was also a darke clowde, and gaue light by nyght: and all the nyght long the one came not at the other.

F And Moses stretched forth hys hande ouer the see: and the Lord carped a waye the see by a verye stronge calke wynde all that nyght, and made the see drye lande, and the waters were deuyned. And the chyldren of Israel went into the myddell of the see vnto the drye grounde. And the waters were a walle vnto them, on their ryght hande, and on their left hande. And the Egyptians followed and went in after them to the myddell of the see, euen all Pharaons hostes, hys charrettes and his hostemen. And in the morning watch, the Lord looked vnto the host of the Egyptians out of the fyre and clowden pillar: and troubled the host of the Egyptians, and toke of hys charret wheels & carped them a waye violently. So that the Egyptians sayde: Let vs fle from the face of Israel: for the Lord fighteth for them agaynste the Egyptians. And the Lord sayd vnto Moses: stretch oute thine hande ouer the see, that the waters maye come agayne vnto the Egyptian, vpon his charrettes and vpon his hostemen.

G And Moses stretched forth hys hande ouer the see, and it came a gayne to his course early in the morninge, and the Egyptians fled agaynste it. And the Lord ouerthrew the Egyptians in the myddell of the see: and the water returned and covered the charrettes and the hostme: and all the host of Pharaon that came into the see after them, so that there remayned not one of the. But the chyldren of Israel walked vpon drye lande: throuwe the myddell of the see, and the waters were a walle vnto them on the ryght hande of the, and on the left. And thus the Lord deliuered Israel the selfe same daie out of the hande of the Egyptians: and Israel sawe the Egyptians deed vpon the see drye. And Israel in weynghyng power which the Lord shewed vpon the Egyptians: and the people feared the Lord, and beleued the Lord and his seruante Moses.

H The xv. Chapter.

Moses and the people with the women singe at the prynces of Moses: the better waters were sweete. God must be thank. They come to Arim.

I Then Moses & the chyldren of Israel songe this songe vnto y Lord and sayde: I will syng vnto the Lord: for he hath tribulped glorioussly: the hoste and hym that rode vpon him hath be ouerthrowne in y see. The Lord is my strength and prynces, and he is become my saluacion.

he is my God, and I will glorify hym: my fathers God, & I will exalte hym. The Lord is a man of warre. The Lord is hys name. Pharaons charrettes and his host hath be calte into the see. hys chosen captaynes also also are drowned in the red see, the depe waters haue covered them: they soucke to y bottom as a stone. Thy ryght hande Lorde, is become glorious in power: thy ryght hande Lorde hath al to dashed the enemy. And in thy grente gloyp thou hast ouerthrowne the that rose vp agaynst the: thou stentest forth thy wrath which consumed the euen as Sodom. Thowowe the winde of thy nostrils the water gathered together, the floudes fode spilt as an heape, and the depe water congeled together in the heart of the see.

The enemye sayd: I will folowe on the: I will ouertake the, I will denyde the spoule, I will satysfy my lust vpon the, I will diaue my sword, myne habde shall bestrope them. Thon blewest vnto thy wynde, the see covered the, theye soucke as lead in the mighte waters. Who is lyke vnto the, o Lorde, among goddes: who is lyke the so glorious in holynes, & fearefull in prayles, thewowing wonders? Thon stretchest out thy ryght habde, the erth swallowed them. Thon in thy mercye hast carped thes people which thou deliueredst: thou hast brought the in thy strength vnto thy holy habitacyle. The natiues heard and were afrayed, for we came vnto the whilistines. Then the dukes of the Edomites were aynald, and the mightiest of the Moabites, tremblinge came vpon them: all the inhabitants of Canaa wored faynte harted. Let feare and drede fall vpon them in the greatnes of thy name, let them be as styll as a stone, tyll thy people passe thowowe, o Lorde, whyle thes people passe thowowe, which thou hast goren. Thon shalt byunge them in, and plante them in the mountayne of thyne inheritaunce, the place, Lord, which thou hast made for to dwell in, the sanctuare, o Lorde, which thy handes haue prepared. The Lorde shall raigne: euer and all wayes. For yharos boile wtt in his charrettes and hozlemen into the see, & the Lord brought the waters of the see vpon them.

Wnt the children of Israel wnt on dyne lād in the mpydest of the see. And Mir Jann a prophetesse the syster of Aaron toke a tymbell in her hande, & all the women came out after her w tymbels & daunces. And Mir Jann sauge before the: & songe ye vnto the Lorde: for he hath triumphed gloriously: the hoze & his ryder hath he ouerthrowne in the see. And so Moses broughte Israel from the reddy see, & they went out into the wilderness of Sur. And they wet thes dayes longe in the wilderness, and founde no waters. And whā they came to Mara, they coulde not drinke of the waters of Mara: for they were bitter: therefore the name of the place was called, Mara, wh (that is to saye bitterness.) And the people murmured agaynst Moses, sayinge: what shall we drinke? And he cried vnto the Lorde: and the Lorde thewed hym a tree, which when he had cast into the water, the waters were made sweete.

There he made them an ordinaunce and a lawe, and there he proued him, & sayde: If thou wilt hearken vnto the voyce of the Lord thy God, and wilt geue eare vnto his commaundementes, & kepe all thes ordinaunces: then will I put none of these diseases vpon the which I brought vpon the Egyptians: for I am the Lord that healeth the.

The xxviii Chapter. ¶ The children of Israel came into the desert of Sin. It rageth quailles and Anna. Thy prouge.

¶ The children of Israel came to Elim where were xii. wellles of water and lxx. palme trees, and there they badde there by the waters. And they toke their iourney from Elim: & all the hole company of the children of Israel came to the wilderness of Sin, which is betwene Elim and Synai: the xv. day of the ii. moneth after their departing out of the lande of Egypt. And the hole multitude of the childre of Israel murmured agaynst Moses and Aarō in the wilderness: and the children of Israel sayde vnto the: wolde to God we had died by the hande of the Lorde in the lande of Egypt, when we sat by the fletpottes, and when we dyd rate bread our beles full: for ye haue brought vs out into this wilderness, to kyll thes hole multitude with hunger.

¶ Then sayde the Lorde vnto Moses: behold, I will raigne vnto the end of the world, and the people shall go out, and gather daye by daye that I map proue the, whether they will walke in my lawe or no. The vi. daye they shal prepare for the floures of wheat they will byng in, and let it be twice as much as they gather in dayly. And Moses Aaron sayde vnto all the children of Israel: at euen ye shall knowe that it is the Lorde, which broughte you out of the lande of Egypt: and in the morning, ye shall see the gloyp of the Lorde: because he hath heard your grudginges agaynst the Lorde. for the Lorde hath hearde your murmurings which ye murmur agaynst bi: for what are we: your murmurings are not against vs, but agaynst the Lorde.

And Moses spake vnto Aaron: Shave vnto all the company of the children of Israel, come forth before the Lorde: for he hath heard your grudginges. And as Aaron spake vnto the hole multitude of the children of Israel, they looked toward the wilderness: and beholde, the glorie of the Lorde appeared in the cloud. ¶ And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: I haue hearde the murmuringe of the chyldren of Israel, tell them therefore and saye: at euen ye shall eate flesh, and in the morning ye shall be fylled with bread, and ye shall knowe that I am the Lorde your God.

¶ And at euen the quaples came and couered the grounde where they laye. And in the morning, the dew laye rounde about the hoste. And when they were fall: beholde it laye vpon the grounde in the wilderness, small & round and thyn as the hore feet on the grounde. And when the chyldren of Israel sawe it, they sayde euery one to his neyghboure: It is manna. For they wylt what it was. And Moses saye vnto the: this is bread which the Lorde hath geue you to eate. ¶ This is the worde which the Lorde hath commaunded: gather of it euery mā for him self to eate: a gomer full for a man according to the nombre of you, and take euery mā for them which are in his tente.

¶ And they gathered it all morninges, euery man for his eatinge. And alsoone as the heate of the sunne came, it mouldre. And the next day, they gathered it twice to moche bread two gomers for one man: all the rulers of the multitude came, & tolde Moses. He sayd vnto the: this is that which the Lorde hath sayde: tomorrow is the rest of the holy Sabbath vnto the: of dewe: baken that which ye will bake, and feeth that ye will feeth, and y which remayneth, laye vp tyll the morninge. And they laye it vntyll the morninge, as Moses bad: and it stanke not, neither breed there any worme therein. And Moses sayde: that eate this daye: for it is the Sabbath vnto the Lorde: to daye ye shall not fynde it in the felde. Sixte dayes ye shall gather it, and in the seuenth daye which is the Sabbath, there shall be none. Notwithstondyng, there went out some of the people in the seuenth daye for to gather, & they founde none. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: howe longe refuse ye to kepe my commaundmentes and my lawes? The xix. Chapter.

¶ The chylidren of Israel come to the mounte Sinay. The people of God are holy: a reuall prebode. So that toucheth the hill hebr. God appereth vnto mo: for vpon the mounte in thunder: & lightening.

And the thyrde moneth, whā the chylidren of Israel were gone oute of the lande of Egypt, the same daye came they into the wylbernesse of Shynay. * For they were departed from Raphidim, and were come to the deserte of Shynay, and had pitched theyr tentes in the wylbernesse. And there Israel abode before the mounte. * But Moses went vp vnto God. And the Lorde called to hym out of the mountayne, sayinge: thus saith thou sape vnto the house of Jacob, and tell the chylidren of Israel: ye haue sene what I dyd vnto the Egyptians, and toke you vp vpon Eagles wynges, & haue brought you vnto my selfe. Nowe therefore: * yf ye wyl heare my voyce in dede, and kepe myne appoyntement: ye shall be myne awne, aboue all nacpions, for all the earth is myne. Ye shall be vnto me also a kyngdome of * prelates and an holy people: and these are the wordes which thou shalt sape vnto the chylidren of Israel.

Moses came and sayde to the elders of the people, and sayde before theyr faces all these wordes which the Lorde commaunded hym. And the people answered all to gether, and sayde: * All that the Lorde hath sayde, we wyl doo. And Moses brought the wordes of the people vnto the Lorde. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: Lo, I come vnto the in a thyrke cloud, & the people maye beare me talkyng with the, and beleue the for euer. Moses therwiche the wordes of the people vnto the Lorde.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: Go vnto the people, and sanctifye them to daye and to morowe, and let them wash theyr clothes: & be redy agaynst the thyrde daye. For the thyrde daye the Lorde wyl come downe in the syght of all the people vpon mounte Shynay. And thou shalt set markes rounde aboute the people and saye: be ware, that ye go not vp into the mounte, or touche the border of it. Whosoener toucheth the * mounte, shall surely dye. There shall not an hande touch it: for he shall be stoned or shot thowhe: whether it be beast or man, if shall not lye: when the trompe bloweth longe, than maye they come vnto the mountayne.

And Moses went downe from the mounte vnto the people, and sanctified them, and they washed theyr clothes: And he sayd vnto the people: be redy agaynst the thyrde daye, and come not at your wyues. And the thyrde daye in the moynynge there was thunder, and lightening, and a thyrke clowde vpon the mounte, and the voyce of the trompe exceeding clowde, so that all the people that was in the hoste was afraied. And Moses brought the people out of the tentes to meete with God, and they stood vnder the hyll.

And mounte Shynay was all to gether on a smoke: because the Lorde descended downe vpon it in fyre. And the smoke ascended vp, as the smoke of a heale, and all the mount was exceeding fearfull. And when the voyce of the trompe blew and waxed lowder and lowder Moses spake, & God answered him by a voyce. And the Lorde came downe vpon mounte Shynay, euen in the toppes of the hyll, and when the Lord called Moses vp into the toppes of the hyll. Moses went vp.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: go downe: charge the people, that they please not vnto se the Lorde, and so many of them perishe. And let the prelates also which come to the Lorde sanctifye them selues, lest the Lorde destrope them. And Moses sayde vnto the Lorde: the people cannot come vp in to the mounte Shynay, for thou chargest vs saying: set markes aboute the hyll, and sanctifye it: And the Lorde sayde vnto him: a waye, and get the downe: and thou shalt come vp, thou and Aaron with the. And God spak all these wordes and sayde: I am the Lorde thy God, which haue * brought the out of the lande of Egypte, oute of the house of bondage. Thou

Thou shalt not * take the name of the Lorde thy God in vayne, for the Lorde wyl not holde him gyleles that taketh his name in vayne. * Remember the Sabbarth daye that thou sanctifye it. Sixe dayes hath thou labourde and do all that thou hast to do: but the seuenth daye is the Sabbarth of the Lorde: thy God, in it thou shalt do no manner of worke, thou and thy sonne, and thy daughter, thy man seruante and thy maye seruante, thy cattell and the stranger that is within thy gates: for in syx dayes the Lorde made heauen and erth, the see and all that in them is, and * rested the seuenth daye: wherfore I the Lorde blessed the Sabbarth daye and halowed it. * Honour thy father & thy mother, that thy dayes maye be longe in the lade which I the Lorde thy God geueth the.

* Thou shalt not kyll.
* Thou shalt not breake wedlocke.

Thou shalt not couet * thy neyghbours house: nerher shalt p couet thy neyghbours wyfe, or hys man seruante, or hys mayde, or his oxe, or his asse, or what soeuer thy neyghboure hath.

And all the people sawe the thunder and the lychtenyng, and the noyse of the trompe, and the mountayne smokynge, and whē the people sawe it, they rmooued and stood a farr off, and sayde vnto Moyses: * talke thou with vs, and we wyl heare: but let not God talke with vs, lest we dye. And Moyses sayde vnto the people: feare not, for God is come to proue you, and that his feare maye be in yowre face, that ye spurne not.

And the people stood a farr off, and Moyses went into the thyche clowde where God was. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: thus thou shalt saie vnto the chyldren of Israel. Ye haue sene that I haue talked with you from oute of heauen. Ye shall not make therfore with me goddes of siluer neyther shall ye make you goddes of golde. * An alter of erth thou shalt make vnto me, and thereon offer thy burntofferings and thy peace offerings, thy shepe and thyne oxen. In all places where I shall put the remembraunce of my name. * Therfor I wyl come vnto the and blesse the. And yf thou wylt make me an alter of stone, let thou make it not of hewen stone. Els yf thou lyfte vp thy stole vnto it, thou hast pouerd it. Therfor shalt thou goo vp by steyppes vnto myne alter, that thy self thyne self be not shewed there on.

These are the lawes whiche I the Lorde thy God haue geuen thee. If thou haue a seruante that is an hebrewe, syce peris he shal serue, and in the seuenth ye shall goo out fre payng no thinge. If he came alone, he shall goo out alone. And yf he came maried, hys wyfe shall goo oute with hym: And yf hys master haue geuen hym a wyfe and she haue borne hym sonnes or daughters: then the wyfe and hys chyldren shal be his masters and he shall goo oute alone. And yf the seruante saye: I loue my master, my wyfe and my chyldren, I wyl not goo oute fre. Hys master shall bypunge hym vnto the indges, and sett hym to the doore of the doorepost and hys master shall boze hys eare thowme with a naile, and he shal be hys seruante for euer.

And yf a man sell hys daughter to be a seruante: she shall not goo out as the men seruantes doo. If she also please not hys master, and he geueth her to his son, or to his brother, then shall he let hys go fre: to sell her vnto a strange nacion shall he haue no powere, feinge he despyed her. If he haue promysed her vnto hys sonne to wyke, he shall deale with her as men do with thyr daughters. And yf he take hym another wyfe, yett hys fode, hys rayment and dutie of mariage shal be not mynyshe. And yf he do not these thes vnto her, then shall she goo out fre and paye no money. * He that syneth a man that he dyt, shal be slayne for it. And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: I will put hym out of my booke that hath sinned agaynst me. And now go thou, bynging the people vnto the place which I sayde vnto thee: behold, I myne anngell shall go before thee. & certeinly later in the daye when I vyllet, I will vyllet their synne vpon them. And the Lorde plagued the people, because they made the calfe which Aaron made.

¶ The Lorde sendeth an angell before hye people. The Lorde becometh to goe by with the people. The people launche their synne. Moses saith vnto the Lorde.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: be parte, and go hence: thou and thy people, which thou hast brought out of the lande of Egypte, vnto the land which I sware vnto Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, sayinge: vnto thy seed will I geue it: (and I will sende an angell before thee: and will cast out the Cananites, the Amorites, and the Hittites, the Pherezites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites) a lande that floweth with mylk and honye. For I will not go amonge you my selfe: for ye are a stiffnecked people: lest I consume the in the waye. And when the people heard this euell tidynge, they sorrowed: and no man dyd put on his best rayement.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses: saye vnto the chyliden of Israel: ye are a stiffnecked people: I must come once suddenly vpon you, & make an ende of you. Therefore now put thy goodly rayement from thee, & I maye were what to do vnto thee. And the chyliden of Israel sayde their goodly rayement from them, euen by the mount Horeb.

And Moses toke the tabernacle, and pitched it without the hoste a farrre of from the hoste: and called it the tabernacle of witness. And so it came to passe, that euery one which wolde praye vnto the Lorde, wente out vnto the tabernacle of witness, which was without the hoste. And it fortuned, that when Moses went out vnto the tabernacle, all the people rose vp: and stood euery man at his tente doore: and looked after Moses, vntill he was gone into the tabernacle. And alsoone as Moses was entred into the tabernacle, the cloudy pillar descended, and stood at the doore of the tabernacle, and he talked with Moses. And all the people saw the cloudy pillar stande at the tabernacles doore, and they rose vp, and worshipped euery man in his tente doore.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses: & saith: as a man speaketh vnto his frende: & he turned agayne into the hoste. And the chylde Joshua his seruante the sonne of Nun, departed not out of the tabernacle. And Moses sayde vnto the Lorde: se, thou sayest vnto me: leade this people forth, and thou hast not shewed me whom thou wilt sende with me. And thou hast sayde in ignorance: I knowe the by name, and thou hast also founde grace in my syght. Nowe therefore if I haue founde fauour in thy syght, then shewe me thy waye, that I maye knowe thee, and that I maye fynde grace in thy syght: And consider also, that thy synne is thy people. And he sayde: my presence shall go with thee: and I will geue thee rest. He sayde vnto hym: If thy presence go not with me, my waye is not here: for howe shall I be knowe here, that I and thy people haue founde fauour in thy syght, but in that thou goest wth vs? If thou go wth vs, shall not I and thy people haue pietyment before all the people that are vpon the face of the earth? And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: I will do this also: that thou hast sayde, for thou shalt fynde grace in my syght, and I knowe thee by name.

And he sayde: I beseech thee, shewe me thy glorie. And he sayde: I will make all my good go before thee; and I will be called in this name of the Lorde before thee: and will shewe mercy to whom I will shewe mercy, and I will haue compassion vpon whom I will haue compassion. And he sayd further: my presence shall not be my face: for there shall no man see me, and lue.

And the Lorde sayde: behold, there is a place by me, & thou shalt stande vpon a rock: and while my glorie goeth forth, I will put the in a clype of the rock: and wilt put myne hande

Dut. 1. 4.

And the Lord sayde vnto Moyses: * heere the two tables of stone I kee vnto the fyft, and I will wyse vpon them the wordes that were in the first tables which thou bakest. And be care-

And Moyses hewed two tables of stone I kee vnto the fyft, and rose vpearly in the moynynge, and went vpo vnto the mount of Synai, as the Lord had commaunded hym: and toke in his hande the two tables of stone. And the Lord descended in the clowde, and stode with hym there: and he called vpo the name of the Lord. And when the Lord walked before him, he cryed, Lord: * Lord God: mercifull and gracious, long suffering, & abundant in goodness & trouth, & keepynge mercie in store for thousandes, forgynynge wickednes, vngodlynes & synne, & not leauynge one innocent. vyltynge the wickednes of the fathers vpon the chyldren and vpon chyldrens chyldren, euen vnto the third and fourth generacyon. And Moyses bowed him selfe to the earth quckly, and worshipped, and sayde: * If I haue founde grace in thy syghte (O Lord) then lett my Lord go w: vs: for it is a stubborne people, and thou shalt haue mercie vpon our wickednes and oure synne, and shalt take vs for thyne inheritance.

¶ He sayde: beholde, I make an appoyntment before all thy people: and I will doe many thynges: soch as haue not bene done in all the world, neyther in all nacyns. And all the people amonge which thou art, shall se the worke of the Lord: & for it is a terrible thinge that I will do with the: kepe thow

But ouerthrowe their altars, and breake their images, and cut doune their groues. Thou shalt worship no strange God. For the Lord is called gelous, because he is a gelous God: lest yf thou make any agement with the inhabitants of the lande, and they goe a whoring after they: goddesses, and do sacrifice vnto they: goddesses, they call the, and thou eate of they: sacrifice: a thou take of their daughters vnto thy sonnes, and they: daughters goe a whoring after they: goddesses, and make thy sonnes goe a whoring after their gods also.

¶ Thou shalt make the no goddess of metal. The * feast of twete bread shalt thou kepe. Seuen dayes thou shalt eate vnto leuened bread, as I commaunded the in the fyfme of the moneth, when come begynneth to ryse. For in the moneth when come begynneth to ryse, thou camest out of Egypt. * All that breaketh the matcepe amonge thy cattle, yf it be male: whether it be oxe or shepe. But the fyft of the alle thou shalt bye out w: a lambe. And yf thou redeme hym not, thou shalt breake his neck. All the fyft boznie of thy sonnes shalt thou redeme. * And is that no man appere before me empty.

* Syre dayes thou shalt worke, and in y: fourth daye thou shalt rest, bothe from earpyng and reaping. * Thou shalt obseue the feast of workes with thy fyft frutes of whet heuelt, and the frast of yngatyrpyng at the yeres ende. The fyf in a yere shall all pou mens chyldren appere before the Lord Jehovah God of Israel. Withan I call out the nacions before the, and enlarge thy coastes: so that no man shall desyre thy lande, thou shalt go vpo to appere before the Lord thy God, thyrle in the yere.

* Thou shalt not offere the blonde of my sacrifice vpon leuen, neyther shall ought of the sacrifice of the feaste of Passouer be left vnto the moynynge. * The fyft rypte frutes of thy lande thou shalt byng vnto the boule of the Lord thy God. And y: shalt not se the a kydd in hys mothers mylke.

¶ And the Lord sayde vnto Moyses: wyte these wordes: for after the renouce of these wordes I haue made a couenant with the and with Israel. * And he was there w: the Lord fourty dayes and fourty nyghtes, and yd neyther eate bread nor drynke water. * And he wyote vpon the tables the wordes of the couenant, euen ten beles.

Ch. xxxvi. Chapter.

AD * Bezalel wrought, & Aholiab and all wyse harted me, to whom the Lorde gaue wisdom and vnderstandinge, to knowe howe to worke all maner worke for the seruyce of the Sanctuary, and all that the Lorde had commaunded. And Moses called Bezalel, Aholiab and all the wyse harted men and soche as the Lorde had geuen wisdom vnto, and as many as they: hartes conged to come vnto that worke to worke it. And they receaued of Moses all the present, whiche the chyldren of Israell had brought for the worke of the seruyce of the Sanctuary, to make it. And besyde that they brought giftes vnto it euery daye in the morninge.

And all the wyse men that wrought all the holyc worke, came euery man from hyr worke whiche they made, and spake vnto Moses, sayinge: the people bypuge to moche and more then ynough for the scruyce and worke whiche the Lord hath commaunded to be made. * All the wyse harted men therfore, and they that wroughte for the habitacyon, made ten curtaynes of whyle twyned sylke, pe-lowe sylke, purple and scarlet: with pictures of broderd worke made he them. The length of one curtayne was .xxviii. cubytes, and the breadth foure and the curtaynes were all of one syde. And he coupled fyue curtaynes by them selues, and other fyue by the selues. And he made lowpes of yelowc sylke alonge by the edge of one curtayne, euen in the seluage of the couplinge courtayne. And the wyse he made on the syde of y couplinge curtayne on the other syde. If fyue lowpes made he in the one curtayne, & fyue in the edge of the couplinge curtayne on the other syde: and the lowpes helde one curtayne to another.

And he made fyfte rnynges of golde, and coupled the curtaynes one to another with the rnynges: and so was it made one dwellinge place.

* And he made .xi. curtaynes of goates here, to be a tent ouer the tabernacle. The length of a curtayne, had .xii. cubytes and was foure cubites broad, and they all eleuen of one syde. And he coupled fyue curtaynes by them selues, & fyue by them selues, and he made fyfte lowpes alonge by the border of the bismolt couplinge curtayne, and fyfte in the edge of the other couplinge curtayne. ¶ (What they might be joined together.) And he made fyfte rnynges of brasse to couple the tent together, that it myght be one. And he made a conerpyng vpon the tent, of rammed synnes redb, and set anothe of taxus synnes aboute that.

* And he made stundpyng boordes for the tabernacle of Sethim wood. The length of a boorde was ten cubytes, the breadth one cubyte and a halfe. One boorde had two fete, wherby they were ioyned one to another. And thus made he for all the boordes of the Tabernacle. And he made .xx. boordes for the southsyde of the habitacyon, and .xi. sockettes of syluer vnder the .xx. boordes two sockettes vnder one boorde, for his two fete.

* And for the other syde of the dwelling which is towarde the north, he made twetye boordes, & theyr fourtye sockettes of syluer, two sockettes vnder one boorde. And towarde the west ende of the Tabernacle. ¶ (That is to saye, that ende of the tabernacle which indreth towarde the see.) He made fyue boordes, and two other boordes made he in the corners of the habitacyon for eyther syde, and they were ioyned close beueth and aboue with a claippe, and thus they byd to both the corners. And there were ryght boordes & fyfte sockettes, of syluer, vnder euery boorde two sockettes.

And he made barres of Sethim wood fyue for the boordes of the Tabernacle in the one syde: and fyue for the boordes of the Tabernacle in the other syde, and fyue barres for the boordes of the habitacyon in the west ende. ¶ (To wether the see.) And he made the myddest barre to thowse thowse the boordes: euen from the one ende to the other, and ouerlayde the boordes with golde, and made rnynges of golde to thurst the barres thowse, and couered the barres with golde. And he made an hangyng of yelowc sylke, purple, scarlet and whyle twyned sylke, euen with pyccures made he it of broderd worke. And he made vnto foure pillars of Sethim wood, and ouerlayde the with golde. Theyr knoppes were all of golde, and he cast for them foure sockettes of syluer. And he made an hangyng for the tabernacle boye of yelowc sylke, purple, scarlet and whyle twyned sylke of nedle worke. And the fyue pylers of it with theyr knoppes, & ouerlayde the knoppes of them & the wynges with golde. And he

And he made the holy anoyntinge oyle, and the sweete pure incense after the apocryphes crafte.

And of the thousand seven hundred & 120. lyces, he made knoppes to the pillers, and overlaped the heedes and whopied them. ^(With sylke.)

And the brasle of the waiofferynge was 120. hundred weyght, and two thousand, & 400. hundred lyces. And therewith he made the sockettes to the doore of the Tabernacle of witnesse, and the brasle skare and the brasle seuerdyn for it, with all the vessels of the altar, and the sockettes of the court rounde aboute, & the sockettes for the court gate, & all the pyynes of the habitacyon, and all the pyynes of the court rounde aboute.

¶ The xxxix. Chapter.

¶ The apparell of Aaron and his sonnes. All that the Lorde commaunded was of this.

And of the yelow sylke, purple & scarlet, they made the vestimentes of ministracyon to be serued in the holy place, and made the holy garmentes for Aaron, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And he made the Ephod of golde, yelow sylke, purple, scarlet & whyte twyned sylke. And they byd beate the egges aboute thynne plates, & cutte it into wyers: to worke it in the yelow sylke, purple, scarlet, and in the fyue whyte, with bzyerd worke. And they made two sydes for it, to cloose them up by the two edges. And the bzyrdynge of the gyrdell that was upon it, was of the same stuffe, and after the same worke: of golde, yelow sylk, purple, scarlet, and twyned whyte sylke, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And they wrought ouer stones closed 15 in ounces of golde, and graued as sygnettes are graue, with the names of the chyldren of Israel, and put them on the shoulders of the Ephod, that they shuld be stones for a remembrance of the chyldren of Israel, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And he made the breastlappe of conynge worke, and lyke the worke of the Ephod: euen of golde, yelow sylke, purple, scarlet, & twyned whyte sylke. It was. iii. square, and they made the breastlappe double, an hande bzyrdth longe and an hande bzyrdth wyde. And they fylled it with. iii. rowes of stones. The fyyst rowe: a Sardius, a Topas and a Smaragdus: the seconde rowe, a Ruby, a Saphir and a Diamonde: in the. iii. rowe, Ligurios, an Echat, and an Amant: in the fourth rowe a Teras, and Dour, and a Lapis. And they were closed in ounces of golde in theyr incloiers. And the. xii. stones were grauen as sygnettes with the names of the chyldren of Israel: euery stone with his name, accordynge to the. xii. trybes.

And they made vpo the breastlappe, two fastenynge cheynes of wozchen worke and pure golde. And they made two hokes of golde, & two golde rynges, and put the two rynges in the two corners of the breastlappe. And they put the two chaines of golde in the two rynges, in the corners of the breastlappe. And the two cubes of the two chaynes they fastened in the two hokes, and put them on the shoulders of the Ephod upon the fore front of it.

And they made two rynges of golde, and put them on the two corners of the breast-lappe vpon the edge of it whiche was on the inside by the Ephod. And they made two golden rynges, and put them on the two sides of the Ephod, beueth on the foretyde of it and ouer agaynst hys fellowe, about vpon the brydyngge of the Ephod, and they straped the breast-lappe by hys rynges vnto the rynges of the Ephod, with a lace of yelow sylke: that it might be vpon the brydyngge of the Ephod, and that the breast-lappe shide not be lowed frō of the Ephod: as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

E And he made the tuncple vnto the Ephod of women worke, all together of yelow sylke, and there was an hole in the myddell of the tuncple, as the coler of a partlet, with a bonde rounde aboute the coler, that it shide not rent. And in the tuncple they made hemmes with pōgranates, of yelow sylke, purple, scarlet, and whiche twyned sylke. And they made lytle belles of pure golde, and put them amonge the pōgranates rounde aboute vpon the edge of the tuncple: a bell and a pōgranate, a bell and a pōgranate rounde aboute the hemmes of the tuncple to mynistrin, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And they made caters of fyne whyte of women worke for Aaron and hys sonnes, a mytre of fyne whyte, and goodly bonnettes of fyne whyte, and lynen breeches of twyned whyte, and a gyrdell of twyned whyte, yelow sylke, purple and scarlet: ene of redde worke, as the Lorde commaunded Moses. And they made the plate for the holy crowne of fyne golde, and wrote vpon it with grauen worke, the holynes of the Lorde: and tped vnto it a lace of yelow sylke to fasten it an hys vpon the mytre, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

Thus was all the worke of the habitacion and of the Tabernacle of witness spynshen. And the chyldren of Israel dōd accordyng to all that the Lorde had commaunded Moses: euen to dōd they. And they brought the habitacion vnto Moses: the tent and all his apparell, buttōnes, hoodes, barres, pylles & sockettes, the couerage of rams skynned redd, and the couerage of taxus skynned, and the hangynge baple, the arche of witness and the vntres therof and the mercysente: the table and all the vessels therof, & the shewbryde: the pure candell styche, with the lampes therof: euen with the lampes to be prepared and all the vessels therof, and the oyle for lpyghte: the golden altare, and the anoyntynge oyle, and the swete cens, and the hangynge of the Tabernacle doore, and the brasen altare with hys gredyzen of brasile, his barres and all hys vessels, the lauer and hys fote: the hangynge of the court with hys pylles and sockettes: the hangynge to the court gate, and hys pyntes and cordes, and all the vessel of the skurpe of the habitacion for the Tabernacle of witness: the mynistringe vestimentes to serue in the holy place, and the holy vestimentes for Aaron the priest, & his sonnes raymentes to mynistrin, according to all that the Lorde commaunded Moses: euen to the chyldren of Israel made all the worke. And Moses behelde all the worke, and se, they had done it euen as the Lorde commaunded: euen so had they done, and Moses blessed them.

¶ The Tabernacle is reared by. The gloire of the Lord appeareth in a clothe couerage of the Tabernacle.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayinge. In the first moeth of the first mo-neth, shalt thou set vp the habita-cion, and the Tabernacle of witness, and put therin the arche of witness, and couer the ar-che with the baple, and byzinge in the table and apparell it accordyng to the order therof. And thou shalt byzinge in the candell sty-che, and lpyght hys lampes, and sett the cens alter of golde before the arche of witness, and put the hangynge at the doze of the ha-bitacion. And set the burnt offering alter before the doze of the habitacion and Tabernacle of witness, and sett the lauer betwene the Tabernacle of witness and the alter and put water therein, and make the court round aboute, and hange vp the hangynge at the court gate.

* And thou shalt take the anoyntynge oyle, and anoynt the habitacion, and all that is therein, and halowe it with all the vessel therof, that it maye be holye. And thou shalt anoynt the altare of burnt offeringe and all hys vessels, and sanctifye the altare, that it maye be an altare most holy. And thou shalt anoynt also the lauer and hys fote, and sanc-tifye it.

And thou shalt byzinge Aaron and hys sonnes vnto the doze of the Tabernacle of witness, and wahe them with water. And thou shalt put vpon Aaron the holy vestymentes, and anoynt him, and sanctifye hym that he maye mynistrin vnto me. And thou shalt byzinge his sonnes, and clothe them with garmentes, and anoynt them as thou dydest anoynt the father, that they maye mi-nistrin vnto me. For the anoyntynge shall be an euerlastynge priesthode vnto them throwe out the generacions. * And Moses dōd accordyng to all that the Lorde commaunded hym: euen to dōd he.

Thus was the Tabernacle reared by the first daye in the first moeth in the secode pere. And Moses reared vp the Tabernacle and fastened hys sockettes, and set vp the boardes

the bozdes thereof, and put in the barres of it and reared vp byss pillars, and spredde aboue the tent ouer the habitacion, & put the couer ynge of the tent an hye aboue it: as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And he toke the testimonie, and put it in the arcke, & set the barres to the arcke, & put the merciesent an hye vpon the arcke, & brought the arcke into the habitacion, & hanged vpon the vayle, & couered the arcke of wisnesse, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And he put the table in the Tabernacle of wisnesse in the north syde of the habitacion, (but without the vayle) and set the bread in order before the Lorde, euen as the Lorde had commaunded Moses.

And he put the candellsticke in the tabernacle of wisnesse oueragaynst the table towards the south syde of the habitacion, and set vpon the lampes before the Lorde: as the Lorde commaunded Moses. And he put the golden altar in the tabernacle of wisnesse before the vayle, and byent sweete cens theron, as the Lorde commaunded Moses. And he hanged vpon the hanging of the doore of the habitacion, and set the burnt offeringe alter by the entrynge in of the habitacion of the tabernacle of wisnesse, and offered burnt offeringes and meate offeringes theron, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

* And he set the laver betweene the tabernacle of wisnesse and the alter, and pouered water therin, to wash withall. And Moses Aaron & his sonnes washed their handes, & their feet tharat: when they went into the tabernacle of wisnesse, & when they went to the alter they washed their felues as the Lorde commaunded Moses. And he reared vpon the court rounde aboute the habitacion and the alter, & set vpon an hanginge at the court gate: and so Moses fynished the worcke.

* And the clowde couered the tabernacle of wisnesse, and the glorie of the Lorde fylled the habitacion. And Moses coude not entre into the tabernacle of wisnesse, because the clowde abode theron, and the glorie of the Lorde fylled the habitacion. (For the clowde had couered all.)

And when the clowde was taken vp from of the habitacion, the chyldren of Israel toke theyr iourneys thowow out theyr armyes. And when the clowde was not taken vp, they iourneyed not: till it was taken vp: for the clowde of the Lorde was vpon the habitacion by daye, and by night: in the syghe of all the house of Israel thowow out all theyr armyes.

The fyrst Chapter.

The order of the burnt offeringes.

¶ And the Lorde called Moses, & spake vnto hym out of the tabernacle of wisnesse sayinge. Speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and thou shalt saye vnto them. And that wyche is left of the meate offering shall be Aarons and his sonnes, It is a thynge most holy of the offerings of the Lord.

All the meate offerings which ye shall bringe vnto the Lord, shall be made without leuen. For ye shall neither burne leuen nor honie in any offering of the Lord: For with standinge ye shall bringe the fyntypings of them vnto the Lord: but they shall not come vpon the alter for a sweete sauour.

hym, and the people were gathered together vnto the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And Moyses sayde vnto the congregacion: this is the chynge which the Lorde commaunded to be done.

And Moyses brought Aaron & hys sonnes, and washed them with water, and put vpon hym the albe, & girded him wth a girdle, & put vpon hym the tunicle, ^{*(of paleme tunicle)} and put the Ephod thereon, which he girded wth the breasted girdell that was in the Ephod, and bounde it vnto hym therewy. And he put the brethlaspe thereon, and put in the brethlaspe Arim & thumim. And he put the myter vpon hys heed, and put vpon the myter euen vpon the forefront of hys face the golde plate of the holy crowne, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

* And Moyses toke the anoyntpuge oyle, and anoynted the Tabernacle, and all that was therein, and sanctified them, and spynkled therof vpon the alter seuen tymes, and anoynted the alter, and all hys vessels, the inner & his foor, to sanctifye the ^{*(of the oyle)} And he powred of the anoyntpuge oyle vpon Aarons heed, and anoynted hym, to sanctifye hym. And Moyses brought Aarons sonnes, & put albes vpon them, and girded them with girdles, & put bouclers vpon their heedes, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

* And he brought the yonge ore for spume, and Aaron and hys sonnes put theyr handes vpon the heed of the yonge ore that was for spume. And Moyses slewe hym, & toke of the bloude, which he put vpon the hoornes of the alter rounde about wth hys fynger, & purified it, and powred the bloude vnto the bottom of the alter, & sanctified it, and receyued it. And he toke all the fatte that was vpon the inwardes, and the abundance of the lyuer and the two kyndnes, and the fatt, & Moyses burned it vpon the alter. But the yonge ore and hys hynde, his flesh and his legge, he burned wth fyre without the holte, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

And he brought the ram for the burnt offering, and Aaron and hys sonnes put theyr handes vpon the heed of the ram, which Moyses kylled, and spynkled the bloude vpon the alter rounde about, and Moyses cut the ram in peces and burned the heed, the peces and y fatte, and washed the inwardes & the legges in water, and Moyses burned the ram euey whet vpon the alter, for a burnt sacrifice, that it myght be a swete sauoure, and an offering vnto the Lorde, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

* And he brought the other ram, namely the ram of consecracion ^{(of the pynne)} & Aaron and his sonnes put theyr handes vpon the heed of the ram, which Moyses slewe, and toke of the bloude of it, and put it vpon the tpype of Aarons ryghte eare, & vpon the thombe of hys ryghte hande, & vpon the greet toe of his ryghte fote. And Moyses brought Aarons sonnes, & put of the bloude ^{(of the eare)} on the tpype of the ryghte eare of the, & vpon the thombes of theyr ryghte handes, and vpon the greates tores of theyr righte fete, and Moyses spynkled the bloude vpon the alter rounde about.

* And he toke the fatte and the coumpe, and all the fat that was vpon the inwardes, and the aboundaunce of the lyuer, and the kyndnes wth theyr fatte, & the ryghte shoulder. And out of the basket of swete bread y was before the Lorde, he toke one swete cake of oyled heed, & one wafer, & put them on the fatt & vpon the ryghte shoulder: & put altogether vpon Aarons handes, & vpon hys sonnes handes, & waued it as a waueoffering before the Lorde. And Moyses toke them from of their handes, & burned them vpon the alter, euen vpon the burnt offeringe alter: for it was the sacrifice of consecracion, for a swete sauoure & a sacrifice vnto the Lorde. * And Moyses toke the breaste and waued it for a waueoffering before the Lorde, for it was of the ram of the consecracion, and it was Moyses part, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

And Moyses toke of the anoyntpuge oyle, and of the bloude which was vpon the alter, and spynkled it vpon Aaron and vpon hys vestimentes, vpon hys sonnes & on hys sonnes vestimentes wth hym, and sanctified Aarons vestures & hys sonnes, & hys sonnes vestures wth hym. And Moyses sayde vnto Aaron and hys sonnes: beple the fleshe in the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and there * eate it wth the bread that is in the basket of consecracion, as I commaunded, sayinge: Aaron and hys sonnes shall eate it: & that which remaineth of the bread, shall ye burne wth fyre.

And ye shall not departe from the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. viij. dayes, vntill the dayes of your consecracion be at an ende. For viij. dayes shall be full your hande as ye be vpon this day: euen so the Lorde hath commaunded to do, to reconcile you wth all. Therefore shall ye abide in the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse daye and nyght seue dayes longe: & kepe the watche of the Lord, and ye shall not be: for so I am commaunded. And so Aarons hys sonnes dyd all thynges which the Lorde commaunded vpon the bande of Moyses.

At the Lorde spake vnto Moyses and Aaron sayinge: when there appereth a ryngne in any mans fleshe, ether a scabbe, or a glyste rhyngne whych: and the plague of leprosie be in the shynne of his fleshe, he shall be brought vnto Aarons pscalt, or vnto one of his sonnes the pscalts: and the pscalt shall loke on the soze in the shynne of his fleshe. And whan the heere in the soze is turned vnto whyte, and the soze also seme to be lower then the shynne of his fleshe, it wyl be a plague of leprosie, and the pscalt shall loke on hym, and iudge hym vncleane.

If there be but a whyte plecte in the shynne of his fleshe, and seme not to be lower the shynne, nor the heere thereof is turned vnto whyte, the pscalt shall shut him vp fyfte dayes. And the pscalt shall loke vpon hym agayne the seuenth daye: And yf p place seme to him to abyde still, & p place growe not in the the skynne the Priest shall shutt him vp yet vij. dayes moe. And the Priest shall loke on hym agayne the vij. dayes. Then if the plague be darker, & not growen in the skynne, the Priest shall iudge hym cleane, for it is but a scabbe. And he shall wash his clothes, & be cleane. But if the scabbe growe in the skynne after that he is sene of the Priest, & iudged cleane, he shall be sene of the Priest agayne. If the Priest se the scabbe be growen abrode in the skynne, the Priest shall make hym vncleane: for it is a leprolye.

23 When the plague of leprolye is in a man he shall be brought vnto the Priest, and the Priest shall se hym. And if the erysipe be white in the skynne, and haue made the heare whyte, and there be rawe fleshe in the soze it wylbe an olde leprolye in the skynne of his flesh. And the Priest shall make hym vncleane, and shall not shutt hym vp leynge he is vncleane.

If a leprolye bryake out abrode in the skynne, & couer all the skynne, from hys head to hys foote, wherouer the Priest loketh, and the Priest loke vpon hym. And if the leprolye haue couered all hys flesh, he shall iudge the plague to be cleane because it is all turned into whynesse, & he shall be cleane. But ad if ther be rawe fleshe on hi wher he is sene, he shall be vncleane. And if the Priest shall se rawe fleshe, and declare him to be vncleane. For the rawe fleshe is vncleane leynge it is a leprolye.

24 If the rawe fleshe departe agayne & chaunge vnto whyte, he shall come to the priest, and the Priest shall se him & beholde. If the soze be chaunged vnto whyte, and couer the whole man, the Priest shall iudge the plague cleane & he shall be cleane: & the flesh also in whose skynne there is a byle & is healed, & in the place of the byle there appere a whyte erysipe, ether a thynnyng whyte, or som what reddish, it shall be sene of the Priest. And if wher the Priest seyth hym, it appere lower than the skynne, & the heare therof be chaunged vnto whyte, the Priest shall iudge hym vncleane: for it is a plague of leprolye, broken out of the byle.

25 But if the Priest loke on it and there be no whyte heare therein, & if it be not lower then the skynne, but be darker, the Priest shall shutt hym vp. vij. dayes. And if it se be abrode in the flesh, the Priest shall make hym vncleane, leynge it is the plague. But and if the spot stode still, & growe not, it is the pynte of an olde byle, and therfore the Priest shall declare hym to be cleane. If there be any fleshe, in whose skynne there is a bote burnynge, and the fleshe that burneth haue a whyte spot, somewhat reddish, or whyte, the Priest shall loke vpon it. And if the heare in that byght spot be chaunged to whyte, and it appere lower then the skynne, it is a leprolye broken out of the burnynge. And therfore the Priest shall iudge hym vncleane, leynge it is the plague of leprolye. But if the Priest loke on it & there be no whyte heare in the byght spot, and be no lower then the other skynne, but be darker, the Priest shall shutt hym vp seue dayes. And the Priest shall loke on hym the seuenth daye: And if it be growen abrode in the skynne, the Priest shall iudge hym vncleane, leynge it is the plague of leprolye. And if the spot stode still in it, & growe not in the skynne, but is darker, it is a erysipe of the burnynge, & the Priest shall therfore declare hym cleane, leynge it is the pynte of the burnynge.

If man or woman hath a soze vpon the heed or the beard, the Priest shall se it. And if it appere lower than the skynne, & there be in it a palowe heare: & thynne, it was wont to be, the Priest shall iudge hym vncleane, leynge that the same fleshe shall be a token of leprolye vpon the heed or berde. And if the Priest loke on the soze of the pynt, ad it seme not lower then the skynne, and that the heare is not blacke, the Priest shall shutt vp the fretyng soze seuen dayes. And in the seuenth daye the Priest shall loke on the soze: and if the soze be not growen, and there be in it no palowe heare, and the soze seme not lower then the skynne, he shall haue: but the place of the soze shall be not haue, & the Priest shall shutt vp the soze seuen dayes moe. And in the seuenth daye the Priest shall loke on the soze: And if the soze be not growen in the skynne, ner seme lower then the other skynne, the Priest shall cleane hym, & he shall wash hys clothes, and be cleane. But if the soze growe in the fleshe after hys cleansing, the Priest shall loke on hym. And if the soze be growen in the skynne, the Priest shall not se he for pelowe heare, for he is vncleane. But if he se the pynte stonde still, and that there is blacke heare growne vpon therin, the soze is healed, and he shall be cleane, and the Priest shall declare hym to be cleane. If there be whyte spots in the skynne of the fleshe of man or woman, the Priest shall loke vpon it. And if the spots in the skynne of the fleshe be somewhat darker, & whyte wythall, wher may be sure, that it is no leprolye: it is a freckell growynge in the fleshe: Therfore he is cleane.

And the man whose heade is destitute of heare, wherby he is made balde, is cleane. And he that hath hys heare out in his foreheade, is forehead balde and cleane. If the heare in the baulde head or baulde foreheade a whyte reddish soze scabbe, there is leprolye sponge vpon hys baulde head or baulde foreheade. And the Priest shall loke vpon him, and of the erysipe of the soze be whyte reddish in hys baulde head or balde foreheade after the manner of a leprolye which is in the skynne shynne of the fleshe, then he is a leperous ma and vncleane. And the p̄sente shall make hym vncleane, for the plage therof is in hys beed. & he leper in whome the plage is, shall haue hys clothes rent, and hys beed bare and shall put a couerynge vpon hys lyppe, and shalbe called vncleane and despyd. And as longe as the dyscase lasteth vpon hym, he shalbe despyd and vncleane: he shall dwell alone, euen wthout the host shall hys ha-bitacion be.

that he is in.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: * this is the lawe

The quene brought vnto shall let the lpyunge byrde goo fre into the felde.

And he that is censed, shall washe hys clothes, and shoue of all hys beere, and wash hym selfe in water, that he maye be cleane.
And after that shall be come into the hoste, & shall tarye without hys tent seuen dayes: but in the seuenth daye he shall shoue of all hys

And he shall washe hys clothes & hys fleshe in water and he shalbe cleane.

In the eyght daye he shall take two lambs without blemyshe, and an ewellbe of a yere olde without blemyshe, and thre tentheales of fyne flour for a mentof. fyngre myngled with oyle and a logge of oyle. And the p̄sente that maketh hym cleane, shall brynge the man that is to be made cleane and those thynges, before the Lorde, euen before the doore of the tabernacle of witness. And the p̄sente shall take Lorde. And he shall see the lamb in the place where the synnecoffynge and the burntoffynge are sayne: euen in the holy place.

For as the synnecoffynge is, cut is the tresholp.

And the p̄sente shall take of the bloude of the trespassoffynge, & put it vpon the typpes of the eyght eare of hym that is to be censed, & vpon the thombe of hys eyght hande, and vpon the grent too of hys eyght foot.
The p̄sente shall take of the logge of oyle, &

Lorde,

Lxxv. And of the rest of þe oyle that is in hys hande, shall the þreaste put vpon the tpype of the epghte eare of hym that is for to be clesed, and vpon the thombe of hys epghte hande, and vpon the great too of hys epghte foote: euen vpon the bloude of the trespase of- feringe. And the remnaunte of the oyle that is in the þreastes hande, he shall powre vpon the heed of hym that is for to be clesed: and the þreaste shall make an attouement for hym before the Lorde.

And the þreaste shall offer the synne of- feringe, and make an attouement for hym that is to be clesed, for hys vncleynesse. And then shall he kyll þe burnt offeringe, and the þreaste shall offer the burnt offeringe and the meattofferinge vpon the alter: & the þreaste shall make an attouement for hym, and he shall be cleane. * If he be poore, and can not gett so moche, he shall take one lambe for a trespase offeringe to waite it for hys clesynge, and tenth deale of fyne flour inyngled wth oyle for a meattofferinge, and a logge of oyle, and two turtill boues or two yonge pigeons, such as he is able to gett, wherof the one shall be for synne, and the other for a burnt offeringe. And he shall bringe them the viij. daye for hys clesynge vnto the þreaste before the doore of the tabernacle of witness before the Lorde.

And the þreaste shall take the lambe that is for the trespase, and the logge of oyle, and waite them before the Lorde. And he shall kyll the lambe for the trespase, and the þreaste shall take of the bloude of the trespase of- feringe, and put it vpon the tpype of hys epghte eare that is to be clesed, and vpon the thombe of hys epghte hande, and vpon the grente too of hys epghte foote. And þe þreaste shall powre of the oyle into hys epghte hande, and the þreaste shall wth hys fynger synneth of the oyle that is in hys left hande, seven tymes before the Lorde.

And the þreaste shall put of the oyle that is in hys hande vpon the tpype of the epghte eare of hym that is to be clesed, and vpon the thombe of hys epghte hande, and vpon the great too of hys epghte foote: euen in the place where the bloude of the trespase of- feringe was put. And the reste of the oyle that is in the þreastes hande, he shall put vpon the heed of hym that is to be clesed: that he maye make an attouement for him before the Lorde. And he shall offer one of the turtill boues or of the yonge pigeons, soche as he can gett: the one for a synneofferinge and the other for a burnt offeringe wth þe meattofferinge. And the þreaste shall make an attouement for hym that is to be clesed before the Lorde. & this is the lawe of hym in whom is the plage of leprosie, and whose hande is not able to gett that whiche pertaineth to hys

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron sayinge: when ye be come vnto the lande of Canaan whiche I geue you in posses- sion. And yf I put the plage of leprosie in a house of the laube of youre possession, he that oweth the house shall come, and tell the þreaste, sayinge: me thynke that ther is as it were a leprosie in the house. And the þreaste shall comaunde them to emptye the house, before the þreaste goo into it to se the plage: that all that is in the house be not made vncleane, and then must the þreaste go in to se the house.

If the þreaste also se that the plage is in the walles of the house, and that there be howe strakes pale or redde, whiche seeme to be lower then the wall it selfe, the þreaste shall go out at the house doore, and shut vp the house seven dayes. And the þreaste shall come agayne the seventh daye, and yf he se that the plage be increased in the walles of the house, the þreaste shall comaunde them to take a waye the stones in which the plage is, & let them call them into a foule place without the cytie, and he shall comaunde the house to be scraped wythyn rounde aboute, and powre out the dust (that ther scape of) without the cytie into a foule place. And they shall take other stones, and put them in the places of those stones, and other mortar, to plaster þe house wythall. And yf the plage come agayne and beake out in the house, after that he hath taken awaye the stones & scraped þe walles of the house, and after that he hath playstered the house anewe: þe þreaste shall come and se it. And yf he perceaue that the plage hath growne further in the house, it is a fretyng leprosie in the house. It is therfore vncleane. And he shall beake downe the house. And the stones of it, & the ymbriz therof, & all the mortar of the house, shall he carpe out of the epyre vnto a foule place. Whoeuer he that goth into the house all the while that it is thus shut vp, shall be vncleane vntill the euen: he that slepeth in the house, shall walsh his clothes: he yf he wyle that eateth in the house, shall walsh his clothes.

And yf the þreaste come amde, that the plage hath spede no further in the house (after that it is newe playstered) þe þreaste shall iudge that house cleane, because the plage is healed. And let hym take to clesse the house wythall: two byrdes, cedar wood, purple clothe and flope. And he shall kyll one of the byrdes in an erthe vessel and vpon runninge water: & take the cedar wood, & the flope, & the purple & the lpyng byrde, & dyppe the in the bloude of the sayne byrde, and in the runninge water, and synneth the house seven tymes, & clesse the house wth the blood of the

of the hynde and with the runninge water, with the lyminge hynde, with p cedar wood, and the plope, and the purple clothe. But he shall lett the lyminge hynde flee oute of the rounne into the hynde felde, and so make an attornment for the house, and it shall be cleane. These is the lawe for all maner plague of leprouse and licheninge out, and of the leprouse of clothe and house: for a swellinge for a scabber, and for a whete blister. To reach the what it must be made vncleane and cleane. These is the lawe of leprouse.

¶ The xv. Chapter.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses and Aaron sayinge: Speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them: Whosoever hath a runninge yssue out of hye fleshe, is vncleane by reason of that yssue. And this shall be the token of hye vncleannes in hye yssue: when he is vncleane. If hye fleshe runne, or yf hye fleshe congele by the reason of hye yssue, then is it vncleane. Every couche wheron he lyeth that hath the yssue, is vncleane: and euery thyng wheron he lyeth, is vncleane: Whosoever toucheth is couche, shall walke his clothes, & bath him selfe in water, & be vncleane vntill the euen.

And he that lyeth on any thyng wheron he hath that hath the yssue, shall walke hye clothes, and bathe hym selfe in water, & be vncleane vntill p euenynge. He that toucheth the fleshe of him that hath yssue, shall walke hye clothes, and bathe hym selfe in water, and be vncleane vnto the euen. If he also that hath the yssue, lyeth vpon hym that is cleane, he shall walke hye clothes, & bathe hym selfe in water, and be vncleane vntill euen. And what hoise harnesse fouer he pdeth vpon that hath the yssue, shall be vncleane. And whosoever toucheth any thyng that was vnder hym, shall be vncleane vnto the euen. And he that beareth any suche thynges, shall walke hye clothes, and bathe hym selfe in water, and be vncleane vnto p euen. And whosoever he toucheth that hath the yssue, & haue not spelt washed hye hādes in water) shall walke hye clothes, & bathe hym selfe in water, and be vncleane vnto the eue. * The vessel of erth that he toucheth, wherby hath the yssue, shall be broken: and all vessels of wood shall be rymed in water.

When he also that hath any yssue, is cleane of hye yssue, he shall nombe. viij. dayes for hye cleansing, and walke hye clothes, & bathe hye fleshe in runninge water, and so shall he be cleane. And the. viij. daye he shall take to hym two turtill bowes or two pounge pigeons, and come befoze the Lord vnto the doze of the tabernacle of witness, & geue them vnto the pzeast. And p pzeast shall offer them: the one for a spme offprnge, and the other for a burnt offprnge: and the pzeast shall make an attornment for hym befoze the Lord, as concerninge hye yssue.

If any mans seide departe from hym in hye fleshe, he shall walke his fleshe in water, and be vncleane vntill euen. And all the clothes and all the fures wherin is suche seide of fleshe, shall be washed with water, and be vncleane vnto the euen. And pfor that hath suche any pflue of seide, do pte wyth a woman, they shall both walke their felnes with water, and be vncleane vntill euen.

If a womans naturall course of bloude do ruine, she shall be put aparte. viij. dayes: whosoever toucheth her, shall be vncleane vnto the euen. And all that the lyeth vpon, in the tyme of hye naturall disense, shall be vncleane, lyke as euery thyng also p the lyeth vpon, is vncleane. Whosoever toucheth her bedde, shall walke hye clothes, and bathe him selfe with water, and be vncleane vnto the euen. And whosoever toucheth any thyng that she sat vpon, shall walke hye clothes, and bathe him selfe in water, and be vncleane vnto the euen: so that whether he touche her couche or any vessel where on she hath spelt, he shall be vncleane vnto the euen. * And pfor a man lyeth with her, and hye vncleannes come vpon hym, he shall be vncleane. viij. dayes, and all the couche wheron he lyeth shall be vncleane.

* Whena womans bloude runneth longe tyme: out of the tyme of her naturall course: or pfor runne beyonde hye naturall course, let all the dayes of yssue be waded vncleane, euen as p dayes of hye naturall disense, and she shall be vncleane. All her couches wheron she lyeth (as longe as her yssue lasteth) shall be as her couche when she hath hye naturall pzeast. And whatsoeuer she lyeth vpon, shall be vncleane, as is her vncleannes when she is put a parte. And whosoever toucheth any of these, shall be vncleane, and shall walke hye clothes, and bathe hym selfe in water and be vncleane vnto euen.

And after that she is cleanked of hye yssue, she shall counte her seven dayes, and after p, she shall be cleane. In the. viij. daye she shall take vnto her two turtill or two pounge pigeons, and bryng them vnto the pzeast befoze the doze of the Tabernacle of witness. And the pzeast shall offer the one for a spme offprnge, and the other for a burnt offprnge: and make an attornment for her befoze the Lord, as concerninge the yssue of her vncleannes. Therefore shall he separate the chyldren of Israel from their vncleannes, that they be not in their vncleannes: pfor they despye my habitacyon that is amonge them.

And the Lord ſpoke vnto Moſes * after the death of the two ſonnes of Aaron, whē they offered before the Lord, and dyed: And he ſayde vnto Moſes: ſpeake vnto Aaron thy brother, that he come not at all tymes into the holy place wthyn the vayle before ſ mercieſeate, whych is vpo the arke, that he dye not. For I will appare in the * cloud vpon the mercieſeate.

But wth thyſe thynges ſhall Aaron come into the holy place: euen w a bullock for ſynne, and wth a ram for a burnt offering. He ſhall put the holy linnen albe vpon him, and ſhall haue a linnen breeche vpo hys ſhede, and ſhall be girded wth a linnen gyrdell, & put the linnen mytre vpon hys heade: Theſe are holy garments: therefore ſhall he waſhe his fleſhe in water, when he doth put the on. And he ſhall take of the multitude of ſ chyldren of Iſrael, two be goates for ſynne, and a ram for a burnt offering.

And Aaron ſhall offer hys bullock for ſynne, * & make an attonement for hym, and for hys houſe. And he ſhall take the two goates, and preſent them before the Lord at the doore of the tabernacle of wyſneſſe. And Aaron ſhall caſt lottes ouer the ij goates: one lotte ſhall be for the Lord, and the other for the ſcapegoate. And Aaron ſhall byng the goate vpon whych the Lordes lotte fell, and offer hym for ſynne. But the goate on whych the lotte fell to ſcape, ſhall be ſett alyue before the Lord, to reconcile wth, and to let hym goo (as a ſcape goate) ſee, into the wylderneſſe. And Aaron ſhall byng hys bullock for ſynne, and reconcile for him ſelfe, and for hys houſe, and ſhall ſpyll hys bullock for ſynne.

And he ſhall take a cenſer full of burninge coles out of the altar before the Lord, and ſhall ſpyll hys handfull of ſweete cens, beaten ſmall, and byng the wthyn the vayle, and put the cens vpon the fyre before the Lord: that the cloude of the cens maye couer the mercie ſeate that is vpon the wyſneſſe, and that he dye not. * And he ſhall take of the bloude of the bullock, and ſpyll it wth hys ſpynger vpon the mercieſeate eaſtwarde: and before the mercieſeate ſhall he ſpyll of the bloude wth hys ſpynger ſeuenty tymes.

Then ſhall he kyll the goate that is the peoples ſynne offering, & byng hys bloude wthyn the vayle, & doo wth that bloude, as he dyd w the bloude of ſ bullocks, ſpylling it vpon the mercieſeate, and before the mercieſeate. And he ſhall reconcile the holy place from the vncleaneſſes of the chyldren of Iſrael, and from their treſpaſſes in all theſe ſynnes. And ſo ſhall he doo for the tabernacle of witneſſe that is ſet amonge them, euen amonge their vncleaneſſes.

* And let there be no body in the tabernacle of wyſneſſe, when he goeth in to make an attonement in the holy place, vntill he come out. And let hym make an attonement for hym ſelfe and for hys houſeholde, and for all the multitude of Iſrael. And he ſhall goo out vnto the altar that is before the Lord, & reconcile vpon it, and ſhall take of the bloude of the bullock, and of the bloude of ſ goate, and put it vpon the hoznes of the altare rounde aboute, and ſpyll it of the bloude vpon it with his ſpynger ſeuenty tymes, and cleaſe it, and halowe it from the vncleaneſſes of the chyldren of Iſrael.

And when he hath made an ende of reconcylinge the holy place, and the tabernacle of wyſneſſe, and the altar, he ſhall byng the true goate: and Aaron ſhall put both hys handes vpon the heed of the true goate, and confeſſe ouer hym all the iniquities of the chyldren of Iſrael, and all their treſpaſſes, in all their ſynnes: puttynge them vpon the heed of the goate, and ſende hym awaye (by the hande of a conſentment man) into the wylderneſſe. And the goate ſhall beere vpon hym all theſe iniquities vnto the wylderneſſe, and he ſhall let the goate goo ſre into the wylderneſſe.

And Aaron ſhall come into the Tabernacle of wyſneſſe, and put of the linnen clothes whych he put on (when he went in into the holy place) and leaue theſe there. And let hym waſhe hys fleſhe wth water in the holy place, and put on hys owne raiment, and then come out, and offer hys burnt offeringe and the burnt offeringe of the people, and make an attonement for hym ſelfe and for the people, and the fat of the ſynofferinge ſhall he burne vpon the altar. that in the tenth daye of the seventh moneth, ye shall humble your selves, and do no worke at all: whether it be one of your selves or a stranger that sojourne amonge you, for that daye shall the priest make an attonement for you to cleanse you, and that ye maye be cleane from all your synnes before the Lord. Let it be a Sabbath of rest vnto you, and ye shall humble your selves, by an ordinance for euer.

And the priest that is anointed, and whose hands was consecrated (to mynistr in his fathers house) shall make the attonement, and shall put on the linnen clothes & holy vestimentes, and recouyle the holy sanctuary and the Tabernacle of witness, and shall cleanse the altar, and make an attonement then for the priests and for all the people of the congregation. And this shall be an euerlasting ordinance vnto you, that he make an attonement for the chyldren of Israel for all their synnes once a yere: & he dyd as the Lord commanded Moyses.

The xviij. Chapter.

All sacrifice must be brought to the doore of the tabernacle. To deuylls maye they not offer.

Ad the Lord spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: Speake vnto Aaron & vnto his sonnes and vnto all the chyldren of Israel and sape vnto them: This is the thyng which the Lord hath charged, sayinge: what man soeuer of the house of Israel killeth an ore, or lambe or goate in yholle, or that killeth it out of the holle, and byngeth it not vnto the doore of the tabernacle of witness, to offer an offeringe vnto the Lord before the dwellinge place of the Lord, bloude shall be imputed vnto that man, as though he had shed bloude, and that man shall be voted out from amonge his people.

Wherefore when the chyldren of Israel byng their offeringes, that they offer in the wyde felde, they shall bynge them vnto the Lord: euen vnto the doore of the tabernacle of witness to the priest, to offer them for peace offerings vnto the Lord. And the priest must sprinkle the bloude vnto the altar of the Lord which is before the doore of the tabernacle of witness, and burne the fat for a sweete sauour vnto the Lord. And lett the no more offer their offeringes vnto deuylls, after whom they haue gone a whoringe. & thus shall be an ordinance for euer vnto them in their generations.

And thou shalt sape vnto them: what soeuer man it be of the house of Israel or of the strangers which sojourne amonge you that offereth a burnt offeringe or sacrifice, & byngeth it not vnto the doore of the tabernacle of witness to offer it vnto the Lord, that man shall perishe from amonge his people: And what soeuer man it be of the house of Israel or of the strangers that sojourne amonge you, that eateth any manner of bloude, I will sett my face agaynst that soule that eateth bloude, and will destroye hym from amonge his people: for the life of the flesh is in the bloude, and I haue geuen it vnto you vpon the altar, to make an attonement for your selves, for bloude shall make an attonement for the soule. And therefore I sape vnto the chyldren of Israel: let no soule of you eate bloude. Anyther let any stranger that sojourne amonge you, eate bloude.

And what soeuer man it be of the chyldren of Israel or of the strangers which sojourne amonge you, which hunteth and catcheth any beest or soule that maye be eaten, let him poure out the bloude thereof, & coure it with erthe, for the life of all flesh is in the bloude of it, therefore I sape vnto the chyldren of Israel: ye shall eate the bloude of no manner of flesh, for the life of all flesh is in the bloude thereof: who soeuer catcheth it, shall perishe. And euery soule that catcheth it which dyed alone, or that which was toge with wyde beastes: whether it be one of your selves or a stranger, he shall washe his clothes, and bathe hym selfe in water, and be cleane vnto the euen, and then shall he be cleane. If he washe them not, nor bathe his flesh, he shall beare his synne.

Therefore shall ye kepe my watche, that ye committe not one of these abominaciones whiche were committed before you: and that ye defyle not your selves therein. I am the Lorde your God.

C A lawe for the priestes.

As the Lord sayde vnto Moyses: speake vnto the priestes y sonnes of Aaron, and saye vnto them. * Let none be despyed vpon a soule amonge hys people, but vpon hys kynsman, that is nye vnto hym: vpon his father, & his mother, vpon sonne and daughter, and his brother, and on his sister a mayde y is nye vnto him, whom no man hath knowen: vpon her shall he be despyed. But he shall not be despyed vpon him that hath auoyntage amonge hys people, to polute him selfe for him.

Let them not make * baldnesse vpon their bred, nor shoue of the lockes of their bearde, nor make any markes in their fleshe. They shall be holy vnto their God, and nor polute the name of their God, for the sacrificies of the Lord which are as y bread of their God they do offer: therefore they shall be holy.

* Let them not take * wyfe that is an adunotress, or polluted, nor put fers her hande: for such a one is holy vnto his God. B

Thou shalt sanctifye hym therefore, for he offereth by the bread of thy God: he shall therefore be holy vnto the, for I the Lord whyche sanctifye you am holy.

If a priestes daughter fall to playe the whoze, she polureth her father: therefore must she be burnt with fyre.

He that is the hye priest amonge hys brethren, vpon whose head the auoyntage oyle was powred, and * that consecrated hys hande to put on the vestmentes, shall not vncouer his head, nor rent his clothes: * ne: he shall goo to any bred body, nor make hym selfe vncleane on hys father or hys mother, neither shall go out of the sanctuarie, nor polute the holy place of hys God, for the crowne of the auoyntage oyle of hys God, is vpon him. I am the Lord. * He shall take a mayde vnto hys wyfe: but a widow, a denoised woman, or an harlot, shall he not marry: But shall take a mayde of hys owne people to wyfe. As yet they shall be despyed hys seed amonge hys people: for I am the Lord which sanctifye him.

And the Lord spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: speke vnto Aaron, and saye: Whosoever of thy seed in their generacions hath any deformyte, let hym not preace for to offer bread vnto his God: * for whosoever hath any blemish, shall not come here: as yf he be blynde or lame, or that hath a bled nose, or that hath any mpyshapen member, or is broken footed, or broken handed, or * haue no heere on his eye browes, or haue a webbe or other blemish in his eye, or he matunge, or shalld be, or hath hys stones broken.

A man that hath a blemish, and is of the seed of Aaron the priest, shall come nye to offer the sacrificies of the Lord. When he hath a deformyte, let him not preace to offer the bread of hys God. Let him cate the bread of hys God: euen of the most holy and of the holy: vntill let him not goo in vnto y bayle, nor come nye the alter, when he is defouled, that he polute not my sanctuarie, for I am the Lord that sanctifye them. And Moyses tolde it vnto Aaron and to hys sonnes, and vnto all the chyliden of Israel.

And the Lord spake vnto Moyses, saying: Speake vnto Aarō and hys sonnes, that they be separated from the holy thynges of the chyldren of Israel, and that they poutre not my holy name in those thynges wherby they halowe vnto me: I am the Lord. Saye vnto them: whosoever he be of all your seed amonge your generacions after you, that goeth vnto holy thynges wherby the chyldre of Israel halowe vnto the Lord, haupinge hys uncleannes vpon hym: that soule shall perishe from out of my syght. And Let them kepe therefore myne ordynance, lest they for the same lade synne vpon them, and dye for it, yf they defyle it. The Lord sanctifye them.

There shall no straunger eate of the holy thynges, neither a gell of the priestes, neyther shall any hyered seruante eate of holy thynges. But yf the prieste dye any soule with money, he shall eate of it, as he that is bozne in hys house, shall they eate of hys bread. If the priestes daughter also be maried vnto a strainger, she maye not eate of the halowed heuofferings. For withstandyng yf the priestes daughter be a wedowe or denyed, she haue no chyld, but is returned vnto her fathers house agayne, she shall eate of her fathers bread, as well as the dyd in her youth. But there shall no straunger eate thereof. If a man eate of the holy thynges unwittingly, he shall put the fyfthe parte ther vnto, and geue it vnto the prieste with the halowed thynges. And the priestes shall not defyle the holy thynges of the chyldren of Israel: whiche they offer vnto the Lord to lade them felices wth wyddowynge & trespass whyle they eate their holy thynges, for I the Lord do halowe them.

the: whatsover he be of hys house of Israel or straunger in Israel, hys will offer hys sacrifice for all his vowes, and for all hys frewill-offerings whiche they will offer vnto the Lord for a burnt offering, ye shall offer: to reconcile poure felices a male without blempe of the orge, of hys spece, or of the goates. But whatsover hath a blempe, hys shall ye not offer, for ye shall gett no fauoure therwith.

And whosoever bringeth a peace offering vnto the Lord (accordyng as he is appointed) for a vow, or a frewill offering, in ore or spece, that is without defympte, he shall be accepted. There shall also no blempe therein: blinde, or broke, or wounded, or haue a wen, or be mangy, or scabbed. Ye shall not offer soue vnto the Lord, nor put an offering of any soue vnto the alter vnto the Lord.

In ore or a spece that hath any membe out of proportion, mayst thou offer for a frewill offering: but for a vow it shall not be accepted. Ye shall not offer vnto the Lord hys which is broke, or broken, or plucked out, or cut a wape, neither shall ye make any soue in poure lande, whether of a strangers hande shall ye offer bread vnto poure God of any soue. Because their corrupcion is in them, and they haue defouled in them selues, and therefore shall they not be accepted for you. And the Lord spake vnto Moyses saying: when an ox, or a shepe, or a goate is brought forth, it shall be seuen dayes vnder yammer. And fro the viij. daye forth, it shall be accepted, for a sacrifice vnto the Lord. And whether it be ore or spece, ye shall not kill it and her yonge both in one daye.

When ye will offer a thank offering vnto the Lord, offere that ye maye be accepted. And the same daye it must be eaten vp, so that ye leaue none of it vntyll y morowe. I am the Lord. Therefore shall ye kepe my commaundementes and do them. I am the Lord. Neyther shall ye poutre my holy name, but I will be halowed amonge the chyldren of Israel. I am the Lord which halowe you, and that brought you out of the lade of Egypt, to be your God: I am the Lord.

Chap. xxiij. Chapter Of the holy dayes, that they shoulde kepe.

And the Lord spake vnto Moyses, saying: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, & saye vnto them: These are my feastes, euen the feastes of the Lord, whiche ye shall call holy conuocacions. * Seuen dayes ye shall worke, but the seuen daye is the Sabbath of rest, an holy conuocacion: so that ye doo no worke therein, it is the Sabbath of the Lord, in all your dwelllynges. These are the feastes of the Lord, euen holy conuocacions, whiche ye shall proclaime in their seasons. In the .xiiij. daye of the fyfth moneth at euen is the

And in the fyfteenth daye of the same moneth is the feast of sweete bread vnto the Lozbe: seuen dayes ye must eate vntended bread. * In the first daye ye shall haue an holy conuocacyon: ye shall do no laborious worke therein. As in ye shall offer sacrificys vnto the Lozbe thowout those seuen dayes, and in the seuth daye is an holy conuocacyon: ye shall do no laborious worke therein.

Exo. xlii. 4.

* And the Lozbe spake vnto Moses sayenge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel a saye vnto them * when ye be come into the lande (whyche I geue vnto you) a reye downe the harvest thereof, ye shall bynge a shefe of the first frutes of youre harvest vnto the priest, whych shall waue the shefe before the Lozbe to be accepted for you: & euen the morowe after the Sabboth the Priest shall waue it. And ye shall offer that daye whe ye waue the shefe, an he labe without blemish of a yere olde, for a burntoffryng vnto the Lozbe: and the meatoffryng therof, shall be made of two tenth deales of fyne flour mingled with oyle, to be a sacrifice vnto the Lozbe for a sweete sauoure: and the drynkoffryng therof shall be of wyne, euen the fourth deale of an hy. And ye shall eate nether bread, nor parched corne, nor fumentye, nor newe come, vntill the selfe same daye that ye haue brought an offryng vnto your God. Let this be a lawe for euer in your generations and in all your dwellynge.

Exo. xlii. 4.

And ye shall come from the meadowe after the Sabboth: euen from the daye that ye brought the shefe of the waue offryng. by. * Sabbath: is complete: eue vnto the morowe after the seuenth Sabbath shall ye no bye fyfte dayes. And ye shall bynge a new meatoffryng vnto the Lozbe. And ye shall bynge out of your habitacions two waulones made of two tenth deales of fyne flour and that are made with leuen for fyft frutes vnto the Lozbe. And ye shall bynge with the bread & seuen lambs without defoumte of one yere of age, and one pouge or a two rammes, which shall serue for a burntoffryng vnto the Lozbe, with meatoffrynges and theyr drynkoffrynges, to be a sacrifice for a sweete sauoure vnto the Lozbe.

Then ye shall offer an he goate for a synne offryng: and two labe of one yere olde for a praeoffryng. And the priest shall waue the with the bread of the fyft frutes before the Lozbe, and with the two lambs. And these holy thynges of the Lozbe, shall be the prestres. And ye shall prayme the same daye, that it maye be an holy conuocacy vnto you: ye shall do no laborious worke therein: let it be a lawe for euer in all your dwellynge, and in all your generations.

Exo. xlii. 4.
Nu. xxi. 16.

* And when ye receyue your harvest, thou shalt not make cleane ryddance of thy felde, neither shalt thou make any ascergathe ryng of thy harvest: but shalt leaue it vnto the poore and the stranger. I am the Lozbe your God.

And the Lozbe spake vnto Moses sayenge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye: In the tenth moneth, in the fyft daye of the moneth shall ye haue rest, * eue the remembrance of blowyng, an holy conuocacyon: ye shall do no laborious worke therein, but offer sacrifice vnto the Lozbe.

* And the Lozbe spake vnto Moses, sayinge: the * tenth daye also of the selfe: tenth moneth, is a daye of recerdyng, therefore shall it be an holy conuocacy vnto you, and ye shall humble your soulles, and offer sacrifice vnto the Lozbe. Ye shall do no worke the same daye, for it is a daye of recerdyng, to make an atonement for you before the Lozbe your God. For what deserue soule it be that humbleth not hym selfe that daye, he shall be destroyed from amonge his people. And whatsoeuer soule do any manner worke that daye, the same soule will I destroye from amonge his people. Ye shall do no manner worke therfore: Let it be a lawe for euer in your generations and in all your dwellynge. Let it be vnto you a Sabboth of rest, and ye shall humble your soulles in the ninth daye of the moneth at euen: from euen to euen shall ye rest in your Sabboth.

And the Lozbe spake vnto Moses sayenge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye: * the fyfteenth daye of the same seuenth moneth is the feast of tabernacles, seuen dayes vnto the Lozbe. The first daye is an holy conuocacyon: ye shall do no laborious worke. Seuen dayes ye shall offer sacrifice vnto the Lozbe, and in the eght daye shall be an holy conuocacyon vnto you, and ye shall offer sacrificys vnto the Lozbe. It is the * last daye, and ye shall do no laborious worke therein.

These are the feastes of the Lozbe, which ye shall call holy conuocacyon, for to offer sacrifice vnto the Lozbe, burntoffryng, meatoffryng, praeoffryng, and drynkoffrynges. Every daye bys due sacrifice beyde the Sabbothes of the Lozbe, & beyde your gyftes, beyde all your vowe, and all your frewilloffrynges, whiche ye geue vnto the Lozbe.

* Whoeuer in the fyfteenth daye of the seuenth moneth when ye haue gathered in the frute of the lande, ye shall kepe holy daye vnto the Lozbe seuen dayes. The first daye shall be as a Sabboth: lyke wise in the eght daye shall be the rest of the Sabboth. And ye shall take you in the fyft daye, the frutes of goodly trees, brynches of palme trees, and the bowes of thyke trees, and yallowes of the brooke, and shall crye before the Lord your God seuen dayes. And ye shall kepe this feaste unto the Lord seuen dayes in the year. It shall be a lawe for euer in your generacions, that ye kepe it in the seventh moneth. Ye shall dwell in booths seuen dayes: euen all that are Israelites bozne, shall dwell in booths, that your chyldre after you maye knowe, howe that I made the chyldren of Israel to dwell in booths, when I brought the out of the lande of Egypt: I am the Lord your God. And Moyses spake vnto the chyldren of Israel concerninge the feastes of the Lord:

The xliij. Chapter.

¶ The oyle for the lampes. Or that curseth must be stoned. Or that kyleth a beast. Or.

And the Lord spake vnto Moyses sayinge: I commaunde the chyldren of Israel that they kepe vnto the, pure oyle olyue beaten for lightes, to cause the lampes to burne allwaye: without the vayne of wynter in the tabernacle of wynter shall Taron darke them both euen and moynynge before the Lord allwayes. Let it be a lawe for euer in your generacions. Ye shall set the lampes vpon the pure candell yeke before the Lord perpetually.

And thou shalt take fyne flour, and bak twelue wafels therof, two tenthdeales shall be in one wastell. And thou shalt set the in two rowes, fyve on a rowe vpon the pure table before the Lord, and put pure fraunchens vpon the rowes, that they maye be bread of remembrance, and an offeringe to the Lord. Every Sabboth he shall put the in rowes before the Lord euermore: of the chyldren of Israel they be offered for an euerlastyng couenaunte. * And they shall be Aarones and hyss sonnes, whych shall eate them in the holy place. For they are most holy vnto hym of the offeringes of the Lord by a perpetuall statute.

And the sonne of an Israelitish wife whose father was an Egyptian, wet out amonge the chyldren of Israel. And this sonne of the Israelitish wyfe, a man of Israel, trove toger in the hoste. And the Israelitish woman sonne: blasphemed the name of the Lord, and * cuted, and they broughte hym vnto Moyses. Hyss mothers name was Shelomith, whych was the daughter of dyby, of the tribbe of man: and they * put hym in ward, that the mynde of the Lord myght be shewed them.

¶ And the Lord spake vnto Moyses sayinge: hyngge the cuted speaker without the hoste, and let all that hearde hym, put theyr handes vpon hyss heeb, and let all the multitude ston hym. And thou shalt speake vnto the chyldren of Israel sayinge: Whoso curseth hyss God, shall dre his synne: And he that blasphemeth the name of the Lord, let hym be slayne, and all the multitude shall ston hym to deeth.

Whether he be bozne in the lande or a stranger, whā he blasphemeth the name of the Lord, let hym be slayne. And * he that kyleth any man, let hym dre the deeth. And he that kyleth a beast, let hym make hym good, & soule for soule. And yf a mā mapyn his neyghboure, as he hath done, so shall it be done to hym: broke for broke & eye for eye, and toth for toth: euen as he hath mapmed a man, so shall he be mapmed agayne. And he that kyleth a beast, let hym paye for it: and he that kyleth a man, let hym dre. Ye shall haue one maner of lawe: euen for the stranger as well as for one of your selues, for I am the Lord your God.

And Moyses tolde the chyldren of Israel, and they brought hym: that had curseth out of the hoste, and stoned hym with stones. And the chyldren of Israel dyd as the Lord commaunded Moyses.

The xlv. Chapter.

¶ The Saboth of the vii. yeares, and of the yeare of iudic, wherof: called the ieiunye yeare.

And the Lord spake vnto Moyses in mount Synai sayinge: I spake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them: when ye come into the lande whych I geue you, the lande shall rest, & kepe Sabboth vnto the Lord. * Seue yeares shall sowe the selfe, and seue yeare thou shalt sowe the selfe, and seue yeare thou shalt not sowe, and gether in the frute therof. But the * seuenthy yeare shall be a Sabboth of rest vnto the lande. The Lordes Sabboth it shall be: thou shalt nether sowe the selfe, nor cut the vyneyard. That which groweth of the owne accord: thou shalt not reape, neither gather thy grapes that thou hast left behynde, for it is a yeare of rest vnto the lande. And the rest of the lande shall be ment for you: euen for the, for thy seruante, and for thy mayde, for thy hyzed seruante, and for the stranger that sogourneth with the: and for thy catell, and for the bestes that are in the lande, shall all the increase therof be meat. And thou shalt nombe seuen Sabbothes of yeares vnto the, euen seuen tymes seuen yeare: and the space of the seuen Sabbothes of yeares will be vnto the xlii. yeare. And then thou shalt make a tropp blowe: in the tenth daye of the seventh moneth, euen in the daye of attonemet shall ye make the trompe blowe, that ye maye out all your lande. And thou shalt halowe that yeare: eue the xlv. yeare, & proclame it by the eye thorowe out the lande vnto all the inhabitaters thereof, for it shall be a yeaer of g inhelpe vnto you, and ye shall retourne: euery man vnto hys possession, and euery man vnto hys kynred agayne. A yeaer of iudeliye shall that first yeaer be vnto you. Ye shall not sowe neither reape that which groweth of it selfe, nor gether the grapes that are left.

for that yeaer of iudeliye shall be holy vnto you: but ye shall eate of the increase thereof out of the felde. In the yeaer of this iudeliye ye shall retourne euery man vnto hys possession agayne.

¶ If thou sellest oughte vnto thy neighbour, or best of thy neighboures hande, ye shall not disceane one another: but accord-yng to the nombre of yeaers after the iudeliye yeaer thou shalt bye of thy neighbour, and accordyng vnto the nombre of yeaers of of fiftene, he shall sell vnto the. Accordyng vnto the multitude of yeaers, he shall encrease the pryce thereof and accordyng to the fewnesse of yeaers, he shall minyche the pryce of it: for the nombre of fiftene both he sell vnto the. * Disceane not ye therfore euery mā his neighbour, but thou shalt feare thy God.
for I am the Lord your God: wherfore ye shall do after myne ordinaunces and kepe my lawes, and bothert, and ye shall dwell in the lande in safetye. And the lande shall ge-ue her frute, and ye shall eate your fill, and dwell therein in safetye.

¶ And ye shall saye: what shall we eate the seuenth yeaer, for we shall not sowe, nor gether in our increase. I will sende my bles-syng vnto you in the syxt yeaer, and it shall brynge forth frute for thre yeaers: & ye shall sowe the egypte yeaer, and eate yet of olde come vntill the ix. yeaer: euen vntill her frutes come, ye shall eate of olde store. ¶ The lande shall not be solde to be wast: for * the lande is myne, and ye but strangers and sojourners with me. In all the lande of your possession, & ye shall graunt a redemption for the lande.

¶ If thy brother be waxed poore, and hath solde a wyue of hys possession: and if any of his kyn come to redeeme it, let him bye out that whiche hys brother solde. And if he haue no man to redeeme it, let hys hande get as much as maye be sufficient to bye it oute agayne, and let hym counte howe longe it hath bene solde, & deliuer the rest vnto the man to whome he solde it, that he maye re-tourne to hys possession agayne. But and if hys hande cannot get sufficient to restore to the other agayne, then that whiche is solde shall remayne in the hande of hym that hath boughte it, vntill the yeaer of iudeliye:
and in the iudeliye it shall come out, and he shall retourne vnto hys possession agayne.

¶ And if a man sell a house of a dwelling within the walles of a cite, he maye bye it out agayne within a whole yeaer after it is solde: eue after a daye of the yeaer shall be de-ceme it agayne. But and if he bye it not out agayne within the space of a full yeaer, then the house that is in a walled cite, shall be stabilished, and be his owne that boughte it, ad hys successours after him, and shall not go out in the iudeliye. But the houses of villages which haue no walled towne aboute the,

are counted as the felde of the countre, & therefore they maye be boughte out agayne, and shall returne in the iudeliye.

¶ Notwithstandinge the ctyes of the leu-ytes, and the houses of the ctyes of their possession, maye fiftene redeeme at all seasons.
¶ And if a mā purchase oughte of the Leuites, the house that was solde, and the cite of their possession shall go out in the yeaer of iudeliye:
for the houses of the ctyes of the leuites, are their possession amonge the chyldren of Israel.
But the felde of the iudubie that is beyde their ctyes, maye not be solde: but is the perpetuall possession.

¶ If thy brother be waxen poore, and fallen in decaye with the, thou shalt relieue hi, both the stranger and sojourner, that he maye lyue with the. ¶ And thou shalt take none vnti-fye of him, or vantage. But thou shalt feare thy God, that thy brother maye lyue with the. ¶ Thou shalt not geue hym thy money vpon vnti-ye, & nor leide him thy come for increase. ¶ I am the Lord your God, which brought you out of the lande of Egi-pte to geue you the lande of Canaan, & to be your God.

¶ ¶ If thy brother that dwelleth by the,
be waxen poore, and be solde vnto the, thou shalt not compell him to the bondage of seruauntes: but as an hyred seruaunte and as a sojourner he shall be with the, and shall ser-ue the vnto the yeaer of iudeliye, & then shall he departe from the: both he and his chyldren with him, and shall retourne vnto his wyfe kynred agayne, and vnto the possession of his fathers: for they are my seruantes, whiche I brought out of the lande of Egypte, and shall not therfore be solde as bondmen. ¶ Thou shalt not raygne ouer hym cruelly, but shalt feare thy God. ¶ Thy bondseruaunte, and thy bondmayde whiche thou shalt haue, shall be of the heythen that are rounde aboute you: of them shall ye purchase seruauntes and may-des, and of the chyldren of the strangers that are sojourners amonge you, & of theyr generacions that are with you, whiche they begate in your lande. ¶ These shall be your possession, and ye shall take them as inheritaunce for your chyldren after you, to posselle them, they shall be your bondmen for euer. But ouer your brethren the chyldren of Israel, ye shall not raygne one ouer another

ether cruelly.

G If a sojourner or stranger wake & speche by the, and thy brother that dwelleth by him wake poore, and sell him selfe vnto the stranger or sojourner by the, or to any of the strangers hym: after that he is sold, he may be redeemed agayne: one of his brethren may buye hym out: or any that is nye of hymne vnto hym of his kinred, maye redeme hym: either yf his hande can get so much, he maye be loosed. And he shall reckon with hym that boughte hym, from the peare that he was sold in, vnto the peare of subtye & the paye of hys byenge shall be valued accordyng vnto the nombre of yeares. If a hyed seruante shall be he weth hym. If there be yet many yeares beynde, accordyng vnto the let hym geue agayne for hys deliuerance, of y mouey that he was bought for. If there remaine but fewe yeares vnto the peare of subtye, let hym counte weth him agayne, and accordyng vnto his yeares geue hym agayne for hys redempcyon. And he shall be with hym vnto yeare as an hyed seruante & the other shall not ragge cruelly ouer him in thy sighte. If he be not redeemed thus, he shall goo out in the peare of subtye, both he and his chyldren with hym: for the chyldren of Israel are my seruantes, wher I broughte out of the lande of Egypte. I am the Lorde your God.

The .xxij. Chapter.

There are threes that kepe thos thynges that God hath bid.

*Deut. 10. 16.

I shall * make you no ydolles nor grauen ymage, neither reare you vp any stoue, neither shall ye sette vp any ymage of stone in your land to worshippe it: for I am the Lord your God: ye shall kepe my Sabbothes, & feare my lanchiare: for I am the Lorde.

* If ye walke in myne ordinaunces and kepe my commaundementes, and do them, I will sende you rayne in theryght season and the lande shall geue her encrease, and the trees of the felde shall geue the fruite. And the cheskynges shall reach vnto wyne barrell, and the wyneharrell shall reach vnto sowynge tyme, and ye shall eate your bread in plenteousnes, and dwell in your lande safely. And I will sende peace in the lande, & ye shall slepe without any man to make you a feare.

And I will eschew euell bestes out of the lande, and there shall no swerde goothow out your lande. And ye shall chase your enemies, and they shall fall before you vpon the swerde. * And fure of you shall chace an hundred, & an hundred of you shall put ten thousande to flighte, and your enemies shall fall before you vpon the swerde. For I will haue respect vnto you, and make you encrease, and multiplye you, and sett vp my conuenance with you. And ye shall eate olde boger, and carpe out olde for the newe. * And I will make my dwelling place amonge you, & my soule shall not lothe you. I will walke amonge you, and visite your God, and ye shall be my people. * I am the Lorde your God, whiche broughte you out of the lande of Egypte, that ye shalbe not be theye vndermen, and I haue broken the cheynes of your yoke, and made you go bye ryghte.

* But and yf ye will not harken vnto me, nor will do all thele my commaundementes: And yf ye shall despyse myne ordinaunces, either yf your soule abhorre my lawes, so that ye will not do all my commaundementes, but breake myne appoyment, I also will do thes vnto you. For I will bring vpon you fearfullnesse, swellinge of body, and the burning agewe, to consume your eyes, & geaue sowowe of hert. And ye shall sowe your seed in vayne, for your enemies shall eate it. And I will set my face agens you, and ye shall fall before your enemies, & they that hate you, shall ragge ouer you: and ye shall see, when no man lofeth you.

And yf ye will not yet for all this hearken vnto me, then will I punish you seven tymes more for your synnes, and will breake the pye of your stubburnesse. And I will make your heauen as yron, and your erth as brasse. And your labour shall be spent in vayne. For your lande shall not geue bye encrease, neither shall the trees of the lande geue the fruite.

And yf ye walke contrary vnto me, and will not hearken vnto me, I will bringe seven tymes moe plagis vpon you, accordyng to your synnes. I will also sende in wilde beastes vpon you, which shall robbe you of your chyldren, and destroye your cattell, and make you serue in nombre, and raule your hye wayes to growe vnto a wyldecnesse.

And yf ye maye not be reformed by these thynges but shall walke contrarye vnto me, then will I also walke contrarye vnto you, and will punish you yet seven tymes for your synnes. And I will sende a swerde vpon you, that shall auenge my testamēt. And when ye are gathered together wethyn your ctries, I will sende the pestilence amonge you, and ye shall be deliuered into the hande of the enemye. And when I haue broken the staffe of your bread: ten wyces shall bake your bread in one oven, and they shall deliuey you vnto bread agayne by wepyght: ye shall eate, and not be satysfied. And

And yf ye wyll not pet for all this herke vnto me, but shall walke agaynst me. I will walke contrarye vnto you also in indignacion, and wyll chastise you seven tymes for your synnes. * And ye shall cate the flesh of your sonnes and the fleshe of your daughters shall ye deuoure. I wyll destroye youe hye places, and rote out your images, and cast your carnales vpon the bodyes of your ydolles, and my soule shall abhorre you. And I wyll make your cyties desolate, and bypunge your sanctuaries vnto nought, and wyll not smell the sweetnesse of your oboures.

I wyll bypunge the lande vnto a wyldecnesse, and your cinctures which dwel therein, shall wondre at it. And I will strawe you amonge the heathen, and will drawe out a swerde after you, and your lande shall waxe, and your cyties desolate. Then shall the lande enioye her Sabbothes, as long as it lyeth wyde, and ye shall be in your enemies lande: euen then shall the lande rest, and reioyce in her Sabbothes. As long as it lyeth wyde it shall rest, because it vpo not rest in your Sabbothes, when ye dwel vpon it.

And vpo them that are left alpye of you, I wyll sende a fapynitie into theyr heretes in the lande of theyr enemies: the soude of a thakying leaf, shall chase the, and wha they see the swerde, they shall fall: no man folowinge vpon them. They shall fall one vpon another, as it were before a swerde, euen no man folowinge vpo them, and ye shall haue no power to stande before your enemies: And ye shall perishe amonge the heathen, & the lande of your enemies shall cate you vp.

And they that are left of you, shall pynne awaye in their vnyghteousnes, eue in their enemies lade, and in the mydenes of their fathers shall they consume. And they shall confesse their misdoings and the mysdoings of their fathers for their trespass, which they haue trespassed agaynst me, and for that also that they haue walke contrarye vnto me.

Therefore I also wyll walke contrary vnto them, and wyll bypunge them into the lande of their enemies. And then at the last wyse their vntreuneyed bettes shall be famed, and they shall make an attonement for their mysdoings.

And * I will remember my conuauite, with Iacob, and my bade with Isahar, and myne appointment with Zabab, and will thynke out the lande. The lande shall be lesse of them, and shall enioye her Sabbothes, whyle the lyeth wast without the. And they shall make an attonement for their misdoings, because they refused myne ordinaunces: And pet for all that wha they be in the lade of their enemies, * I will not cast them awaye, neyther will I abhorre the, to destroye them vterly, and to breake myne appointment with the: for I am the Lord their God. I wyll for their sakes remember the couenaunt made vnto their fathers, whom I broughte out of the lande of Egypte in the sight of the heathen, that I myght be their God: I am the Lord.

These are the ordinaunces, and iudgements, and lawes, which the Lord made betwene him and the children of Israel in mount Synai, by the hande of Moyses.

The xxvij. Chapter.

Of bloues bores, and of rebres &c.

And the Lord spake vnto Moyses sayinge: I speake vnto the children of Israel, and saye vnto them: If any man will geue a spanguler borne vnto the Lord accordinge to the value of the soules, the value of the male from twentye yere olde vnto sixtye shall be fyfte * species of siluer, after the worth of the sanctuary. And yf it be a female, the value shall be thretye sicles. And from sixtye yeres to twentye, the male shall be set at twentye sicles, and the female at ten sicles. And from a moueth vnto fyue yere, the male shall be set at fyue sicles of siluer, and the female at thre. And he that is fyfte yere olde, and aboue, shall be valued at fyftene sicles, and the woman at ten. But if he be to yooe to be set, he shall present himselfe before the priest: & the priest shall value him, accordinge as the hande of him is bowed is able to gett, euen so shall the priest value him.

If it be a beaste of which men bringe an offryng vnto the Lord: all that any man geuerth of soche vnto the Lord, shall be counted holy. He shall not alter it nor change it: a good for a bad, or a bad for a good. And yf he change beaſt for beaſt, then both the same beaſt and it also wherwith was chaunged shall be holy. If it be any manner of vncleane beaſt, of which men do not offer a sacrifice vnto the Lord, he shall set the beaſt before the priest, and the priest shall value it, whether it be good or bad. And as yf the priest see it, so shall it be. But yf he will be it a gayne, he shall geue the fyfte parte moare a boue that it was set at.

If any man dedicate his house, to be holy vnto the Lord, the priest shall set it, whether it be good or bad: and as the priest hath set it, so shall the value be. And whan he that sanctified it will redeeme his house, lett hym geue the fyfte parte of the money that it was iudged at therto, and it shall be holy.

If a mans halowe a pecce of bys chere recte lande vnto the Lord, it shall be set accordinge to the sicle thereof. If it beare an house home of bulpe, it shall be set at fyfte yeles of syluer. If he halowe his felde immediatlye within the yeare of iudelp, it shall be worth accoꝝdinge as it is estemed. But and yf he halowe his felde after the iudelp, the priest shall reken the monye accoꝝdinge to the nobilitie of the yeares that remaine vnto the yeare of iudelp folowynge, & there after it shall be lower sett.

If he that consecrated the felde, wyl redeeme it agayne, let hym put the fyft parte of the pryce that it was set at there vnto, and it shall be his. And yf he wyl not redeeme the felde, but selleth the felde to another man, he maye (that buyer) redeeme it nomore. But when the felde goeth out in the yeare of iudelp, it shall be made holy vnto the Lord: euen as a felde that is vtterly put awaye, and it shall be the priestes possession.

If a man sanctifye vnto the Lord a felde, wherby he hath boughte, and is not of his inheritance, the priest shall reken vnto hym what it is worth vnto the yeare of iudelp, & he shall geue the pryce that it is set at, the same daye, as a thyng consecrated vnto the Lord. And in the yeare of iudelp, the felde shall returne vnto hi of whome he boughte it, eue to him, whose inheritance it is.

And all settyngs shall be accoꝝdinge to the fyfte * of the sanctuary. One shekel cōteyneth twenye halfpens.

* But the fyft home of the bestes that is appoynted vnto the Lord, maye no man sanctifye: whether it be oxe or shepe, for it is the Lordes aliter. If it be an vncleane beast, he shall redeeme it, as it is sett at, and geue the fyft parte more thereto: Or, yf it be not redeemed, it shall be sold, accoꝝdinge to the value.

Forwithstandynge, no man shal dāned thyng that a man putteth from hym and dedycateth vnto the Lord, of all his good: whether it be mā or beast or lande of hye inheritance: maye be sold or redeemed: for euery thyng to put awaye, is most holy vnto the Lord. Let no damned thyng that a mā separateth, be redeemed, but by the death.

Euery tith of the lande wherby is of the seide of the lande, or of the frute of the trees, is the Lordes, and is sanctified vnto the Lord. And yf a man wyl redeeme ought of his tithes, let him adde the fifth parte thereto. And euery tith of oxe and of shepe and of euery best that goeth vnder the rodde: euen euery tenth shall be holy vnto the Lord. He shall not loke yf it be good or bad, ne change it. Els, yf he change it, both it, and that it was changed withall, shall be halowed vnto the Lord, and maye not be redeemed.

¶ The v. Chapter.

¶ The knowlege of synne. The cleansyng of synne. The lawe of the spyt leude, and of gelousy.

AD the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayyng: commaunde the chyldren of Israel that they put out of the hoste, euery leper and euery one that hath an yllue, and whosoever is defyled vpon a soule. Both male & female shall ye put out: out of the hoste, out as the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, so shal the chyldren of Israel.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayyng: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel: whether it be a man or woman. If they haue comyted any synne that a man doeth, and haue trespassed agaynst the Lorde, that soule hath done amysse: Therefore they shall knowlege their synne, whyche they haue done, and let hym restore agaynst the hurte that he hath done in the hole, and put the fyft parte of it moare thereto, & geue it vnto hym who hath trespassed agensse. But and yf there be not a man to restore the hurte vnto, ner a kynsman of hym, let yfrespace be made good vnto the Lorde, and it shal be the priestes, besyde the rams of the attonement wherby an attonement shalbe made for hym. And euery heue offeringe that is made of the holy thynges of the chyldre of Israel whych they byryng vnto the prieste, shal be hym: and euery mans halowed thynges shalbe his: and whateuere any man geueth the prieste, it shal be hym.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayyng: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and sape vnto them: If any mans wyfe goo a lyde, and trespace agaynst hym, so that another man lye wth her secretly, and it be hyd from the eyes of her husband, and is not come to lpyghte that she is defyled: and there is no wyneuse agaynst her, neyther she taken with the maner, and the spere of gelousye cometh vpon hym, so that he is gelouise ouer his wyfe whych is defyled: or yf the spere of gelousye come vpon hym, so that he is gelouise ouer his wyfe whych is yet vndefyled: then let the man byryng his wyfe vnto the prieste, and byryng wth her an offeringe for her: yf the parte of an Epha of barley meal, but let him potize none oyle vpon it, nor put frankincense thereon: for it is an offeringe of gelousye, an offeringe for a remembrance, enuyng yf synne to be thought vpo.

And the prieste shal byryng her and let her before the Lorde, and let him take holy water in an erten vessel, & of the dust that is in the Rooze of the habytacyon, and put it into the water. And let the prieste let the woman before the Lorde, and vncouer the womans head, and put the memoryall of the offeringe in her handes whyche is the gelousye offeringe, and yf the prieste shal haue bytter and curyd water in his hande, & the priest shal charge her, and sape vnto the woman. If no man haue lpen wth the, neyther haue gone asyde to vncleynesse without thy husband, then haue thou no arme of thy bytter, and curyd waters.

But and yf thou hast gone asyde behynde thy husband, and art defyled, and some other man hath lpen wth the besyde thyne husband. (y the prieste shal charge the woman with an horrible curse, & the prieste shal sape vnto the woman) the Lorde make the to be an abhomyacyon and a curse amonge thy people: when the Lorde doth make thy thyfthe rote, and thy hely swell: These curyd waters goo into the bowels of the that they maye make thy hely swell, & thyfthe rote, and let the woman sape, Amen Amen.

And let the prieste wyte these curys: And whan they be cleinsd, let him cald them in to bytter waters, & geue the woman those bytter & curysd waters to drynke, that those curysd & bytter waters maye entre into her. And then the prieste shal take the gelousye offeringe out of the womans hande, & waue it before the Lorde, & byryng it vnto the alter & the prieste shal take an handful of the offeringe for a memoryall, & burnet vpo the alter, & then make the woman drynke yf water: & when she hath made the woman drinke the waters (yf she be defyled & haue trespassed agaynst her husband) then shal the curysd & bytter waters goo into her, & her hely shal swell, & her thyfthe rote, & yf woman shalbe a curse amonge her people. And yf the woman be not defiled but is cleane, the shal haue no harme, but shal conserue and beare.

This is the lawe of gelousye, wher a wyfe goeth a lyde behynde her husband, and is defyled, or when the spere of gelousye cometh vpon a man, & he byryng gelouse ouer his wyfe, both byryng her before the Lorde, And the prieste shal do accordyng vnto all this lawe: and the man that be gelousye, & the woman shal beare her synne.

¶ The lawe of abhomyke. The cleansyng of the people.

And as longe as he boweth, and is separated, there shall no rature come upon hys heed: But vntill hys dayes be out, in the which he separateth him selfe vnto the Lorde, he shall be holy, and shall let the lockes of hys heere growe. As longe as he consecrateth hym selfe vnto the Lorde, he shall come at no deed booke: he shall not make hym selfe vnclenne at the death of hys father, mother, brother or syster: because that the voue of the abstinence of hys God is vpon hys heade. basket of sweete beere, and the Preade shall offer also his mento offering and his drinke offering. And he shall haue the heed of the abstinence in the doze of the Tabernacle of wythnesse: euen the heed of his abstinence, and shall take the deere of his sober heed, and put it in the fyre, which is vnder the peace offering. And the Preade shall take the foddre shoulde of the ram, and one sweete cake out of the basket, and one sweete waker also, and put them vpon the handes of the abstinence (after he hath haue his abstinence of) and the Preade shall waite the before the Lorde. And these holy thynges shall be the prestes, with the wauebrest and hewe shoulde: and then the abstinence maye drynke wyne. & this is the lawe of the abstinence which hath bowed his offering vnto the Lorde for his consecracyn: Whyspeth those thynges that hys hande can gett, accordyng to the voue which he vowed, euen to he must do after the lawe of hys abstinence.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: speake vnto Aaron and his sonnes sayinge: of hys wyse ye shall blesse the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them.

And Moses spake vnto the chyldren of Israel, that they shulde offer pascouer, and they offered pascouer the xij. dape of the fyfth moneth at euen in the wyldernesse of Synay: accordyng to all that the Lorde commaunded Moses, euen so dyd the chyldren of Israel.

And certayne men were desyde vnto the soule of a man, that they myght not offer pascouer the same dape. And they came before Moses and Aaron the same dape. And the men sayde vnto hym: We are desyde vpon the soule of a man: wherfore are we kepte backe, that we maye not offer an offering vnto the Lorde in the due season, amonge the chyldren of Israel? And Moses sayde vnto the: Stand still, & I will heare what the Lorde will commaunde concerninge you. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayng: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel and saye: If any man amonge you or poure chyldren after you be uncleane by the reason of a carcase, or is in the waite here from you, and will offer pascouer vnto the Lorde the xij. dape of the secde moneth: at eue let them offer it, and eate it with fawte, hiebed and downe herbes: let them leane none of it vnto the morninge: nor beate any boare of it: but accordyng to all the ordinance of the pascouer let them offer it.

But the man that is cleane and is not in a tourney, & yet was negligent to offer pascouer the same soule shall purge him from hyr people, because he brought not the offering of the Lorde in hyr due season: that man shall beere hyr synne. And yf a stranger dwell amonge you, and will offer pascouer vnto the Lorde, accordyng to the ordinance of pascouer and maner thereof, he shall offer it thus: he shall haue one lawe both for a stranger, and for hym that was boyme at home in the lande.

And the same dape that the Tabernacle was reared vp, a cloud covered the habitation, whiche was as a tabernacle of the wytnesse: and at euen there was vpo the habitation, as it were the similitude of fyre vntill the morninge. So it was allwaie, the cloud covered it by dape, and the similitude of fyre by nyghte. And when the cloud was taken vp fro the tabernacle, then the chyldren of Israel iourneyed: and where the cloud abode there the chyldren of Israel pitched theyr tents. At the mouth of the Lorde the chyldren of Israel iourneyed, and at the mouth of the Lorde they pitched. And it chanced þ what the clowde abode a few dayes vpon the habitacō, they abode in their tentes, according to the commaundement of the Lozbe: and they iozneyed also at the commaundement of the Lozbe. And it happened that when the clowde abode vpon the habitacion ſeuen dayes vnto the morning, and was take vp in that morning, then they iozneyed. Whether it was by daye or by night that the clowde was take vp, they iozneyed. And yf the clowd tarped two dayes or a moneth, or a longe ſeaſon vpon the habitacion, and remayned thereon, the chyldren of Iſrael abode ſtill, and iozneyed not. And aſſone as the clowde was taken vp, they iozneyed. At the mouth of the Lozbe, they reſted in the ſtes, and at the commaundement of the Lozbe, they iozneyed, keeping y watche of the Lozbe, at the commaundement of the Lozbe by the bande of Moſes.

¶ The .x. Chapter.

¶ The trumpettes of Iſrael. The Iſraelites departe from ſinai. The captiuitie of the hoſt are numbred. Balaab refuseth to go with Moſes.

And the Lozbe ſpake vnto Moſes, ſaying: ¶ What the two trumpettes of Iſrael: of an whole peeple ſhalt thou make theſe, y thou mayſt vie them to call the congregacion together, and when the hoſt ſhall iozneye. ¶ Before ſhall they blowe with theſe, that all the multitude maye reſort to the before the doore of the tabernacle of witnes. And yf they blowe but one trompet, then the princes which are heedes ouer y thouſandes of Iſrael ſhall come vnto the. But yf ye trompe, the hoſtes y lye on the eaſt partes ſhall go forth to warre. And yf ye trompe the ſecond tyme, the hoſt y lye on the ſouth ſyde ſhall take their iozneye: for they ſhall trompe when they take their iozneyes. But when the congregacion is to be garbied together, they ſhall blowe only, and not trope. And the ſonnes of Aaron y preſt ſhal blowe w their ſilver trumpets, & ye ſhall haue the as a lawe for cuer in your generacions.

25 And yf ye go to warre in your lāde againſt your enemies that bete you, ye ſhall blowe with the trumpettes: and ye ſhall be remembered before the Lozbe your God, to be ſaued from your enemies. Alſo in the daye of your gladnes, and in your feaſte dayes, and in the beginning of your monethes, ye ſhall blowe the trumpettes ouer your burnt ſacrifices & peace offerings, that they maye be a remembrance for you before your God. I am the Lozbe your God.

And it came to paſſe the twelfth daye of the ſecond moneth in the ſecond yere, that y clowde was taken vp from the habitacion of wytheſſe. And the chyldren of Iſrael toke theſe iozney out of the deſerte of ſinai, & the clowde reſted in the wylderneſſe of Pharan.

And the fyrſt toke their iozney at the mouth of the Lozbe, by the bande of Moſes. In the firſt place went the ſtandard of the hoſte of Iuda, according to their armies, whoſe captayne was Naſaſon the ſonne of Aminadab. And ouer the hoſt of the tribe of y chyldren of Iaſachar, was Naſhaneel the ſonne of zua. And ouer the hoſte of the tribe of the chyldren of zabulon, was Eliab the ſonne of helon. And the habitacion was take downe: and the ſonnes of Geſſon & Merari went forth bearyng the habitacion.

And the hoſt of Ruben went forth with y their ſtandard and armies, whoſe captayne was Elizur the ſonne of Sedeur. And ouer the hoſte of the tribe of the chyldren of Simen was Salamiel the ſone of Sur. And ouer the hoſt of the tribe of y chyldren of Gad was Eliſaph the ſonne of Deſuel. The Gharadites alſo went forth to warre and bare the ſanctuarie, & the other dyd let by the habitacion againſt they came. And the ſtandard of the hoſt of the chyldren of Ephraim went forth according to theſe armies, whoſe captayne was Eliſama the ſonne of Amiad. And ouer the hoſte of the tribe of the ſonnes of Manaſſe, was Samael the ſone of Debraur. And ouer the hoſt of the tribe of the ſonnes of Zebulun was Abidan the ſonne of Gebeon.

And the ſtandard of the hoſt of the chyldren of Dan came forth, hauing all the hoſtes together) theſe without their armies: whoſe captayne was Ahiezer the ſonne of Ammiſadai. And ouer the hoſte of the tribe of the chyldren of Aſer, was Iaſagel the ſonne of Ochiam. And ouer the hoſt of the tribe of the chyldren of Nephtali, was Ahiezer the ſonne of Gadi. ¶ Theſe are the iozneyes of the chyldren of Iſrael theſe without theſe armies: and thus the hoſtes remoued.

And Moſes ſayde vnto y hoſt of the ſonne of Iaſagel the Gadadite: which was Moſes father in lawe: we go vnto the place of which the Lozbe ſayd: I will giue it you. Come thou therefore with vs, & we will do the good: for the Lozbe hath promiſed good vnto Iſrael. And he answered hym: I will not go: but will departe to myne awne land and to my kynred. He ſayde: Whyn, leaue vs not: for thou knoweſt oure manſions in the wylderneſſe: and thou haſt bene to vs in ſtede of eyer. And yf thou go with vs loke what goodneſſe the Lozbe ſhall do vnto vs, the ſame will we ſeue vnto the.

And they departed from the mount of the Lozbe, theſe dayes iozneye: and the arche of the teſtament of the Lozbe went before them in theſe dayes iozneye, to ſerche out a reſtyng place for them. And the Lozbe made a ſhadowe for theſe dayes the clowde by day, when they went out of the tentes.

The.xiiij.Chapter.

The people murmur against God, and will be hardened. Calb & Josue. The searchers of the land are. Amalech killeth the Israelites.

Ad all the multitude of y^e people cryed out, and wepte thowout that nyght, and all the chyldren of Irael murmured agaynst Moles and Aaron.

And the whole congregation sayde vnto them: wolde God that we had byed in the lande of Egypte, eyther that we had dyed in thys wildernes. Wherefore hath the Lorde brought vs vnto thys lande to fall vpon the sword: and that our wyues, and oure children shulde be a praye. Were it not better, that we resourne vnto Egypte agayne: And they sayde one to another: We will make a captayne, and resourne vnto Egypt agayne.

But Hophai and Iaron fell on thez fates before all the congregacyon and multitude of the chyldren of Israel. And Tolia the sonne of Nun, and Caleb the sonne of Iephune (which were of them that searched the lande) rent thez clothes, and spake vnto all the compagne of the chyldren of Israel, sayinge: The lande which we walked thorowe to searche it, is a very good lande. If the Lozde hath lust to vs, he will byynge vs into this lande and geue it vs, which is such a lande as floweth with mylke and honye. But in any wyse rebell not ye agaynst the Lozde. * Myther meede ye to feare the people of the lande: for they are but e bread for vs. * Thez: * shadowe is departed from them, and the Lozde is with vs, feare them not therefore. * Druten

But all they which were in that multitude, under stone them with stones. And the glorie of the Lorde appeared in the tabernacle of ymnurle, before all the chyliden of Israel. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: how longe do thou praye people psonally me, and howe longe will it be yer they beleue me: for all þis signes which I haue the wot and ag they: I wyl smyte them with the pestilence and delictioe them: and wyl make of the a greater nacion and a myghtier then they.

And Moyses sayde vnto the Lorde: then the Egyptians shall heare it, for y broughtest thyse people in the myght from amonge them. And it wylde folde to the inhabitants of this land also: for they haue heard of thy wylde, that thou Lorde art amonge these people: and that thou Lorde art sene face to face, and that thy cloud standeth ouer them, and that thy goest before them by thyne tyme in a pylle of a cloude, and in a pylle of fyre by nyght. If thou shalt kyl all thyse people as they were but one man, then the nacyons which haue heard the fame of the, wyl saye: The Lorde is not able to bypnde in these people: into the lande which he swore vnto them: but hath slayne them in the wilderness.

And nowe I beseeche the, let the power of my Lorde be greater, according as thou hast spoken, saying: the Lorde is longer yet be angry, and full of ire, and suffereth inquisite, and spume, and ~~and~~ leaveth no man innocent, and visiteth the vnrpighteousnesse of the fathers vpon the children. In the third and fourth generation: be mercifull. I beseeche the vnto the yuine of this people, according vnto the greater mercie, as thou hast forgouen this people from Egipt, euen vntill now.

And the Lozde sayde: I haue forgotten for it

it, according to thy request. But as truly as I live, all the earth shall be troubled by the gloire of the Lord. But all those men which have seen my gloire and my miracles which I dyd in Egypt and in the wilderness and have tempted me now thus. x. times, and will not herke vnto my voyce, shall not see the land which I swore vnto their fathers: neither shall any of them that pronounced me se it. But my seruant Caleb with whom there was another manner of sperte, and because he hath followed me vnto y^e veriest, hym will I bringe into the land whiche he hath walked in, and his seed shall inheret it, and also y^e Amalekites & Cananites whiche dwell in the playne contraye. To morowe turne you, and get you into the wilderness: euen by the waye of the redd sea.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses & Aaron, saying: howe longe doth this euell multitude murmur agaynst me? I haue heard y^e murmurings of the chyldre of Israhel which they which they murmur agaynst me. Tell them therefore. As truly as I live (sayth the Lord) I will do vnto you, euen as ye haue spoken in myne eares. Your carkasses shall lye in this wilderness. And all you that were tolde thowout your nombers, from x. yeare and aboue: which haue murmured agaynst me, shall not come into the land, ouer which I sware by myne hande, to make you dwell therein, saue Caleb the sonne of Iephune, and Josua the sonne of Nun.

But your chyldren which ye saye shalbe be a pape, them I will bring in, & they shall knowe the land which ye haue refused, and your carkasses shall lye in this wilderness. And your chyldren shall wonder in this wilderness. x. yeres, & suffer for your whoredom, vntill your carkasses be wasted in the wilderness, after the nomber of the dayes in which ye searched out the land: euen forty dayes, & euery daye for a yere shall ye beare your vniuersitroules enen. x. yeres, and ye shall knowe my displeasure. For the Lord haue sayde that I wyl do it vnto all this euell congregation that are gathered together agaynst me. For in this wilderness they shalbe consumed, and here they shall dye.

And the men which Moses sent to search the land, & which (when they came agayne) made all the people to murmur before hym, and brought vp a slander vpon the land, euen those men that bid bying vp that slander vpon it, as though it had bene euell dyed in a great plague before y^e Lord. But Josua the sonne of Nun & Caleb the sonne of Iephune which were of the men y^e wente to search the land, luyed still. And Moses tolde these sayings vnto all the chyldren of Israhel, and the people toke great sorowe.

And they rose vp early in the mornynge, and gat them vp into the toppes of the mountayne, sayinge: * lo, we be here, and wyl go vnto the place of which the Lord sayde vnto vs, for we haue sinned. And Moses sayde: wherefore wyl ye go on this manner, beyonde the worde of the Lord: it will not come well to passe: go not by therefore: (for the Lord is not amonge you) that ye be not slayne before yone enemies. For the Amalekites and the Cananites are there before you, and ye will fall vpon the sword, because ye are turned awaye from the Lord, and the Lord will not be with you.

But they presumed obstinately to go by into the hyll top. Neuerthelater, the arch of the testament of the Lord, and Moses departed not out of the host. Then the Amalekites and the Cananites which dwell in that hyll, came downe, and smote the, and betwix them euen vnto hozana.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israhel and saye vnto them: * when ye be come into the land of your habitacion, which I geue vnto you, & wyl offer an offering vnto the Lord. Namely, a burnt offering of a speciall sacrifice, cyther of a bowe or of a willinge mynde, and in your princypall feastes, to make a sweete sauoure vnto the Lord, of the oten of the flocke.

Then I left hym that offereth his offering vnto the Lord, bying also a meattoffering of a tenth deale of flour, myngled with the fourth parte of an hin of oyle, & y^e fourth part of an hin of wyne for a dyuynchofferyng, and offer with y^e burnt offering of any other offering: when it is a lambe. Or yf it be a ram, thou shalt offer for a meattoffering, two tenth deales of flour, myngled with y^e fourth part of an hin of oyle: and for a dyuynchofferyng, thou shalt offer the thyrde parte of an hin of wyne for a sweete sauoure vnto the Lord.

And when thou offerest a bullocke for a burnt offering of for a speciall bowe of peace offering vnto the Lord, let him bying with a bullocke a meattoffering of iij. tenth deales of flour myngled with halfe an hin of oyle. And thou shalt bying for a dyuynchofferyng euen halfe an hin of wyne, for an offering of a sweete sauoure vnto the Lord. After this manner, shall it be done for an ore, or for a ram, or for a labe or a lypd. Like whate nomber thou makest in the, such a nobte shalt I make in the also. And according to the nomber of such offerings, thou shalt euer offer a meattoffering and the dyuynchofferynges.

All that are of your selues shall do these things after this manner, to offer an offering of sweete sauour vnto the Lorde. And yf a stranger come together with you, or whoso euer be amonge you in your generacions, and will offer an offering of a sweete sauour vnto the Lorde: euen as ye do, so he shall do. One ordinance shall be both for you of the congregation, and also for the stranger. It shall be an ordinance for euer in your generacions, both vnto you and to the stranger before the Lorde. One lawe and one manner shall serue, both for you and for the stranger that together with you.

E And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyliden of Israel, and saye vnto them: * When ye become into the lande to the which I bring you, then will ye will eate of the bread of the lande, ye shall take vp an heuioffering vnto the Lorde. Ye shall take vp a cake of the fyrst of your bow for an heuioffering, * as ye do the heuioffering of the barne, euen so ye shall heue it. Of the fyrst of your bowe ye shall geue vnto the Lorde an heuioffering in your generacions.

And yf ye offer pource selues, and obsequie not all these commaundementes, which the Lorde hath spoken vnto Moyses: euen all that the Lorde hath commaunded you by the hande of Moyses, from the fyrst daie that the Lorde commaunded Moyses, and hence forwarde amonge your generacions. For it happen that ought is committed ignorant-lye of the congregation, all the multitude shall offer a bullocke for a burnt offering, to be a sweete sauour vnto the Lorde, with the meat offering and byrchoffering thereto, accordinge to the manner, and an hegoate for synne. And the priest shall make an atonement for all the multitude of the chyliden of Israel, and it shall be forgiven them: for it is ignorance. And they shall bringe theyr offering for a sacrifice vnto the Lorde: & theyr synnofferynge before the Lorde for their ignorance. And it shall be forgiven vnto all the multitude of the chyliden of Israel, and vnto the stranger that dwelleth amonge you: seeinge all the people were in ignorance.

E If any one soule synne thowow ignorance, he shall bringe a the goate of a yere olde for synne. And the priest shall make an atonement for the soule that synned ignorantly, with the synnofferynge before the Lorde to recompyle hym: and that it maye be forgiven hym. And both thou that art borne of the chyliden of Israel and the stranger that dwelleth amonge you, shall haue both one lawe, whoso doeth synne thowow ignorance.

But the soule that doeth ought presumptuouslye, whether he be an Israelite or a stranger, the same blasphemeth the Lorde.

And that soule shall be rote out from amonge his people, because he hath despised the word of the Lorde, and hath broken his commaundement, that soule therefore shall perish, and his synne shall be vpon him.

And while the chyliden of Israel were in the wyldernesse, they founde a man that gathered thykes vpon the * Sabbath daye. And they that founde him gatheringe thykes, brought hym vnto Moyses and Aaron and vnto all the congregacion: * and they put him inwarde, sayinge it was not declared what shulde be done vnto him. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: Let the man die: and let all the multitude stone him with stones withoute the hoost. And all the multitude brought him withoute the hoost, & stoned him with stones, and he dyed as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyliden of Israel and byd them: that they * make them garbes in the quarters of theyr garments thowow out their generacions, and put vpon the garbe of the quarters a yband of yelow sylke: And the garbe shall be vnto you to loke vpon it, that ye maye remember all the commaundementes of the Lorde, and do them: and that ye seeke not after your awne heart or your awne eyes: after the which ye be to go a whooring: but ye shall remember rather and do all my commaundementes, and be holy vnto your God: I am the Lorde your God, which broughte you out of the lande of Egypte, for to be your God. I am the Lorde your God.

The xlvj. Chapter.

The rebellion of Korah, Dathan and Abiram.

E And * Korah the sonne of Izehar the sonne of Eliazar the sonne of Levi, and Dathan & Abiram the sonne of Eliah, and On the sonne of Isachar, the sonne of Ruben: rose vp before Moyses, with other me of the chyliden of Israel, two hundred and fiftye, which were capaynes of the multitude great and famous men in the congregacion: & they gathered them selues together agaynst Moyses and Aaron, & sayde vnto unto them: ye make moche to do, sepyng all the multitude are holy euery one of the, and the Lorde is amonge them: Why heaue ye your selues vp above the congregacion of the Lorde?

And when Moyses heard it, he fell vpon his face, and spake vnto Cozab and vnto all his company, saying: to morowe the Lorde will the we who are his, who is holy, & who ought to appoynthe vnto him, and whom he hath chosen to come to him. Why do therefore, take your speypannes, both Cozab and all his company and do sƿer therein, and put cens in them before the Lorde to morowe. And the man whom the Lorde both chose, the same shalbe holy. Ye make much to do, ye chyldren of Leui.

And Moyses sapde vnto Cozab: * heare ye chyldren of Leui: Is it but a small thyng vnto you, that the God of Israhel hath separated you from the multitude of Israhel: and brought you to him selfe, to do the scrupel of the dwelling place of the Lorde, and to stāde before the multitude, and to minystr vnto him: he hath take the to him and all thy brethren the sonnes of Leui with the, and seke ye the office of the prestr also. For which cause both thou and all thy cōpany are gathered together agaynst the Lorde: And what is Aaron, that ye murmur agaynst him?

And Moyses sent, and called Dathā and Abiram the sonnes of Eliab, which sapde: we will not come vp. Is it a small thyng, that thou hast brought vs out of a lande that floweth with mylke and hony, to kyll vs in the wilderness, and to cagneye ouer vs also? Hast thou brought vs vnto a lande that floweth with mylke and hony, and gauen vs inheritance of felde and vyneyardes? Wilt thou pull out the eyes of these men: we will not come vp.

And Moyses waxed very angry, & sayde vnto the Lorde. Turne not thou vnto theyr offering. I haue not taken so muche as an asse from them, neyther haue I buete any of them. And Moyses sapde vnto Cozab: We thou and all thy company before the Lorde both thou, they, and Aaron to morowe. And take euery man his censel, and put cens in them, that ye make offre before the Lorde: euery man of the two hundred and fiftye take his censoure, thou also Aarō, that euery one maye haue his censel. And they toke euery man his censel, and put sƿer in them, and sapd cens theron, and stode in the doye of the tabernacle of witness with Moyses and Aaron. And Cozab gathered all the congregacion agaynst them vnto the doye of the tabernacle of witness.

And the glory of the Lorde appeared vnto all the congregacion. And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses and Aaron, sayinge: separate your selues from amonge this congregacio, that I maye consume them aforce. And they fell vpon their faces and sapde: * O moost myghty God of the spertes of all fleshe, if one man hath synned, wyle thou be wroth with all the multitude? And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses sayinge: speake vnto the congregacion and saie: Get you a waye from about the dwelling of Cozab, Dathā and Abiram. And Moyses rose vp, and went vnto Dathā and Abirā, and the elders of Israhel folowed him. And he spake vnto the congregacion, saying: departe from the tentes of these wicked men, and touche nothing of theirs: lest ye perishe in all their synnes. And so they gate them from the dwelling of Cozab, Dathā and Abirā on euery sƿe. And Dathā and Abiram came out and stode in the doye of their tentes with their wyues, their sonnes and their litle chyldren.

And Moyses sayd: herby ye shall knowe the Lorde hath sent me to do all these wordes, and that I haue not done them of mine awne minde. If these men bys comen death of all men: or if they be agaynst after the wisdacion of all men, then the Lorde hath not sent me. But and if the Lorde make a newe thyng, and the earth open her mouth and swalowe them vp with all that they haue: and they go downe quicke into hell: then ye shall vnderstande, that these men haue psonoked the Lorde.

And it fortuned passone as he had made an ende of speaking all these wordes, * the grounde cloued asunder that was vnder the: & the earth opened her mouth, and swalowe them vp, and their houses, and all the men that were with Cozab and all their goodes. And they and all that they had, fell downe alnye vnto hell, and the earth closed vpon them: and they perished from amonge the congregacion. And all Israhel were aboute them sted at the crye of the. And they sayd: lest the earthe swalowe vs by also. And then came oute a sƿer from the Lorde, and consumed the two hundred and fiftye men that offered cens.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: speake vnto Eleazar the sonne of Aaron the prestr, that he take vp the censurs oute of the burnyng, and shatter the sƿer here and there, for the censurs of these synners are halowed in theyr deatthes: and let them make of them thinne beaten platys for a couerpyng of the altare. For they offered them before the Lorde, and therefore they are halowed, and they shalbe a sƿene vnto the chyldren of Israhel.

And Eleazar the prestr toke the brasen censers which they that were burnt had offered, and beate them thynne for a couerpyng of the altare, to be a remembrance vnto the

the chyldren of Israel, that no stranger which is not of the seed of Aaron, come nere to offer cens before the Lord, that it happen not vnto hym lyke as vnto Cozaband hys compaigne, as the Lorde sayde of hym by the bande of Moses.

¶ And on the mozowe all the multitude of the chyldren of Israel murmured agaynst Moses and Aaron, sayinge: ye haue kylled the people of the Lord. And it fortuned that when the multitude was gathered agaynst Moses and Aaron, they looked towards the tabernacle of witness. And beholde, ^{as when they were entred into it} the cloude couered it, and the glory of the Lorde appeared. And Moses and Aaron came before the tabernacle of witness. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: Set you from amonge this congregation, that I maye consume them quickly. And they fell vpon their faces.

¶ And Moses sayde vnto Aaron: take a censser, and put fier therein out of the altare, and powre on cens, and go quierly vnto the congregation, y thou mayest obtayne forgiveness for them. For there is wrath gone oute from the Lorde, and there is a plague begonne. And Aaron tolde as Moses commaunded him, and ran into the myddes of the congregation: and beholde, the plague was begonne among the people, and he put on cens, and made an atonement for the people. And when he stood betwene the ded and them that were alyue, the plague ceased. They that dyed in y plague, were xliij. thousande and seuen hundred: besyde them that dyed aboute the busyness of Cozab. And Aaron went againe vnto Moses before the doore of the tabernacle of witness, and the plague ceased.

¶ And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and take of euery pyntyce of their fathers, euen twelve roddes: and write euery mans name vpon his rodd. And write Aarons name vpon the rodd of Leui: for euery rodd is for a house of their fathers. And put them in the tabernacle of witness, eue in the place where I mete you. And the mans rodd whom I chole, shall blossom. And I will make cease from me the grudgepnyes of the chyldren of Israel, whereby they grudge agaynst you.

¶ And Moses spake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and all the pyntices gaue hym euery pyntyce ouer their fathers houses, a rodd, euen twelve roddes: and the rodd of Aaron was among the roddes. And Moses put the roddes before the Lorde in the tabernacle of

And Moses brought out all the roddes from before the Lorde vnto all the chyldren of Israel: and they looked vpon them, and toke euery man his rodd.

¶ And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: bring Aarons rodd agayne before the witness to be kepte for a token of the chyldrens rebellion, and that their murmuring maye cease from me, and that they dye not. And Moses dyd as the Lorde commaunded him, euen so dyd he. And the chyldren of Israel spake vnto Moses, saying: beholde, we are wasted awaye & consumed: we all come to naught: whosoener cometh nipe the dwelling of the Lorde, dyeth. Shall we vntrely consume awaye?

¶ The offer of the Leuites. Wher spekes and seyth leuites must be geuen them. Aarons vestiage.

¶ And the Lorde sayde vnto Aaron: Thou and thy sonnes and thy fathers house with thee: shall beare the faute of that which is done amysse in the holy place.

¶ And thou and thy sonnes with thee shall beare the faute of that which is done amysse in your presthode. * And the byethest of the trybe of Leui and of thy fathers household y shall take vnto the, that they maye be soyued vnto the and inmystrye vnto the: euen vnto the and thy sonnes with the before the tabernacle of witness. They shall wayte vpon the and vpon all the tabernacle: onely let them not come vnto the vesselles of the sanctuary and the alter, that they and ye also dye not. And they shall be by thir, and wayte on the tabernacle of witness for all y seruyce of the tabernacle, and let no stranger come nipe vnto you.

¶ Therefore shall ye kepe the holy place and the altare, that there fall nomore wrath vpon the chyldren of Israel: beholde, I haue take your brethren the Leuites from amonge the y childe of Israel, which as a gyft of yours are geuen vnto the Lorde, to do the seruyce of the tabernacle of witness. Therefore shalt thou and thy sonnes with the take bede vnto your prestalles office for all thynges y pertyne vnto the altare, and for all y are with in the vable. And be that ye serue: for I haue geue you prestles office vnto you as a gyft: and therefore the stranger that cometh nipe, must be slayne.

¶ And the Lorde spake vnto Aaron: behold, I haue geuen the the keepynge of myne heuerofferpnyes of all the halowed thynges of the chyldren of Israel. Euen vnto the, I haue geuen them for the anoyntinge, and to thy sonnes, for a byrthe for euer. They shall be thyne

And whatsoeuer is fyrst type in theyr lande whych they bynge vnto the Lord, shall be thyne: and all that are cleane in thyne house, shall eat of it.

Further the fyrst borne of man shall thou redeme, and the fyrst borne of vncleane bestes shall thou redeme spewys. Those that are to be redeemed, shall thou redeme fro the age of a moneth, for the value of the money, namely for fyue shekels after the shekel of the sanctuary. A shekel maketh twenty halpys. But the fyrst borne of oren, figs and goates shall thou not redeme. Of this maner ye shall therefor separate an heucofferinge vnto the Lord, of all your tythes which ye receaue of the chyldren of Israel, and ye shall geue ther of vnto y Lord an heucofferinge, whyche shall belonge to Aaron the prelate. The xx. Chapter.

¶ And it came to passe, that the people murmured against Moyses and Aaron, sayinge, We haue sent messengers from Ca- des to spye the lande, and they haue broughte vnto vs a bad report, sayinge, The lande is a lande that eateth the inhabitant, and the people dwell in cities that are walled, and the people are stronge.

And the chyldren of Israel came vnto the whole multitude into the desert: & of sin in the first moneth, and the people abode at Cades.

And there dyed Aale Jann, and was buried there. But there was no water for the multitude. And they gathered them selues together agaynst Moyses & Aaron. And the people chode with Moyses, and spake, sayinge: wolde God that we had perished, when oure brethren dyed before the Lorde. Why haue ye brought the congregacyon of the Lorde vnto this wilderness, that both we and oure cattell shoulde dye in it? Wherefore haue ye made vs to go oute of Egypt, to bringe vs into this vngodly place, which is no place offred nor of bygges nor of wyne, nor of pomegranates, neither is there any water to drynke?

And Moyses and Aaron went from the congregacyon vnto the doore of the tabernacle of witness, and fell vpon theyr faces. And the Lord spake vnto Moyses and Aaron, sayinge, heare the crye of the people, and open thou the treasure, euen a fonteyne of leuynge water, that they maye be satisfied, and that they murmure maye cease. And the glory of the Lorde appeared vnto them. And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses sayinge: take the rodd, and gather thou and thy brother Aaron the congregacyon together, and speake vnto the rocke before theyr eyes, and it shall geue forth wys water. And thou shalt bringe them water out of the rocke, to geue the company dryncke, and theyr beastes also.

And Moyses toke the rodd before the Lorde, as he commaunded hym. And Moyses & Aaron gathered the congregacyon together before the rocke. And Moyses sayde vnto them: heare ye rebellious, must we see your water oute of this rocke? And Moyses lyfte vpon his hand, and with his rodd he smote the rocke two tymes, and the water came oute abundantly, and the multitude drank, and they belesed also.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses & Aaron: because ye beleued me not, to sanctifie me in the eyes of the chyldren of Israel, therefore ye shall not bringe this congregacyon into the lande whiche I haue giuen them. This is the water of stryffe, because yf chyldren of Israel stroue with the Lorde, ye were sanctified in them.

And Moyses sent messengers from Cades vnto the kynge of Edom. Thus saith thy brother Israel: Thou knowest all the trouble that hath happened vs, oure fathers went downe into Egypt, and we haue dwelt in Egypt a longe tyme, and the Egyptians vexed vs & oure fathers. And wha we cryed vnto unto the Lorde, he herde our voyce, and sent an angell, and hath sette vs up out of Egypt. And behold, we are in Canes, cut in the uttermost cye of the boyde. We will go now thowm thy coudre: but * we will not go thowm the feldest or bynepardes, neither will we bypynke of the water of the fountaynes, we will go by the kynges hye waye, and neither turne into the ryghte hande nor to the left, vntill we be past thy coudre. And Edo answered hym. Thou shalt not go by me, lest I come out agaynst the with the swerde. The chyldren of Israel sayde vnto hym: we will go by the beate waye. And ys I and my cattell byynke of thy water, I will paye for it. I will but onely (without any harme) go thowm we on my fete. He answered. Thou shalt not go thowm. And Edom came oute agaynst hym with moche people, and with a myghtie power. And thus Edom denied to geue Israel passage thowm his coudre: wherefore Israel turned awaye from hym.

And the chyldren of Israel departed from Canes, and came vnto mount hoy with all the congregacion. And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses and Aaron in mount hoy, harbe by the coaste of the londe of Edom sayinge: Aaron shall be gathered vnto bys people, for he shall not come into the lade whych I haue giuen vnto the chyldre of Israel: because ye disobeyed my mouth at the water of streffe. Take Aaron and Eleazar his sonne, and byynge them by into mount hoy, and thou shalt strepe Aaron out of bys vestimtes, and put them vpon Eleazar bys sonne, and Aaron shall be gathered vnto bys people and shall dye there.

And Moyses dyd as the Lorde commaunded: and they wete by into mount hoy in the syghte of all the multitude. And Moyses toke of Aarons clothes, and put them vpo Eleazar bys sonne: * and Aaron dyed there in the toppes of the mount. And Moyses and Eleazar came downe oute of the mount. When all the multitude sawe that Aaron was dede, they mourned for Aaron thirtie dayes, thowme oute all the boundaries of Israel.

¶ Ad when bynges * And the Cananites whiche dwelt toward the south, harde tell yf Israel came by the waye that the spyen had founde oute, he foughte agaynst Israel, and toke some of them psoners. And Israel vowed a vowe vnto the Lorde, and sayde: If thou wilt deliuer this people into my hand, I will vterly destroye theye cyties. And the Lorde herde the voyce of Israel, and deliuered them the Cananites. And they destroyed them and theye cyties, & called the name of the place * hoima. And they departed from mount hoy by the waye of the reddy see: to compasse the land of Edom. And the soule of the people fapned by the waye. And yf people spake agaynst Gods agaynst Moyses * wherfore halt thou broughe vs oute of Egypte, for to dye in the wilderness: for here is neither bread nor water, & our soule lotheth this lyghte brade.

* Wherfore the Lorde sent for the serpentes amonge the people, whych stonge them: and moche people of Israel dyed. Wherfore the people came to Moyses and sayde: we haue synned, for we haue spoken agaynst the Lorde & agaynst the, * make intercession to the Lorde, that he take awaye the serpentes from vs. And Moyses made intercession for the people. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: * make the a typtic serpent, & set it vp for a sygne, & as many as are bytted, maye loke vpon it, & lyeue. * And Moyses made a serpent of bialle, and set it vp for a sygne. And when the serpentes had bytten any man, he behelde the serpent of bialle, and was healed.

* And the chyldren of Israel departed thence, and pyched in Oboth. And they departed fro Oboth, and pitched at the heapes of Abarim: euen in the wilderness whiche is by the plapne of Moab on the east syde. And they remoued thence, and pyched vpon the ryuer of zared. And they departed thence, and pyched on the other syde of Arnon, which is in the wilderness, and cometh oute of the colles of the Amozites: for Arnon is the boier of Moab, betwene Moab and the Amozites. Wherfore it is spoken in the booke of the warre of the Lord, what thyng he dyd in the reddy see, & in the ryuers of Arnon. And the heade of the ryuers, that goeth downe to the wellyng of Ar, and stretcheth vnto the boier of Moab: from thence it turneth vnto Beer. The same is Beer, or well wherof the Lorde spake vnto Moyses: gather the people together, and I will geue them water. Then Israel sange this songe: A tyele vp well, singe ye vnto him. The prynces dyged this well, the captaines of the people bygged it, with the teacher, and with theye stanes.

And from the wilderness they went to Wyatana,

Watana, and from Watana to Bahaliel, & from Bahaliel to Baniath, and from Baniath to Balay that is in the felde of Moab vnto the top of the hill that appeareth before Telimon. And Israel sent messengers vnto Sehon, kynge of the Amozites, sayinge:

* Num. 22. 1. and 23. 1. b. * I will go thowoe thy lande: we will not coune into thy felde or thyne pardenes, neither dynike of the waters of y well: but we will goe longe by the kyniges hye waye, vntill we be past thy countre. * But Seho wolde geue Israel no licence to passe thowoe hys countre, but gathered all hys people together and went oute agaynst Israel into the wyl-dernesse. And he came to Iabesa and foughte agaynst Israel.

* Deut. 1. a. and 23. 1. b. * And Israel smote him in the edge of the swerde, and conquered hys lande, fro Arnon vnto Jakob: and vnto the chyldren of Ammon. For the border of the chyldren of Ammon was, * strange. And Israel toke all these cities and dwelt in all the cyties of the Amozites: in Iheson and in all the towncs that longe therto. For Iheson was the cytie of Sehon the kynge of the Amozites, whych he fought before agaynst the kynge of y Moabites, and toke all his lande out of hys hnde, euen vnto Arnon. Wherefore they saie in the prouerbe: come to Iheson, and let the cytie of Seho be bylt & repayzed: for there is a fyre gone out of Iheson, and a flamme fro the cytie of Sehon, and hath consumed Ar in Moab, and the inheritous of the hye places of Sehon. And Moses sent to serche oute Iazer, and they toke towncs belonginge therto, and rooted oute the Amozites that were there in.

* Deut. 1. a. and 23. 1. b. * And they tourned and went by towne Balan. And Ag the kynge of Balan came out agaynst them, he and all his people to fygght at Azei. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses, feare him not, for I haue deliuered him in thy hande, and all his people, and hys lade. And thou shalt do to him as thou dydest vnto Seho the kynge of the Amozites which dwelt at Iheson. They smote hym therfore, and his sonnes, and all his people, vntill there was nothinge left him. And they conquered hys lande:

greue me hys housefull of silver and golde, I can not go by ponde the waight of the Lord my God, to do lesse of moare. Howe therfore sayde he here thus bynght: that I maye write, what the Lord wyl saye vnto me moare. And God came vnto Balaam by nyght, & sayde vnto him: If the men come to call the, cyle vp and go with them: but loke what I saye vnto the, that thalt thou do.

And Balaam rose vpe early, and labeld hys asse, & went with the Lordes of Moab. And the countenance of God was angrye because he went. And the angell of the Lord stode in the waye agaynst hym, as he rode vpon hys asse, and hys two seruantes were with hym. And when the asse sawe the angell of the Lord stode in the waye, and hauiuge a swerde byawen in his hande, the asse turned asyde oute of the waye, and went out into the feld. And Balaam smote the asse, to turne her into the waye.

But the angell of the Lord stode in a path betwene the bynepardes, and there was a wall on the one syde & another on the other.

And whē the asse sawe the angell of the Lord, she wrenched vnto the wall, and he smote her agayne. And the angell of the Lord went forther and stode in a narrowe place, where was no waye to tourne, ether to the ryght hande or to the left. And whē the asse sawe the angell of the Lord, she fell downe vnder Balaam: and Balaam was wroth, and smote the asse with a staffe. And the Lord opened the mouth of the asse, & she sayde vnto Balaam: what haue I done vnto the, that thou hast smitten me nowe the tymes? And Balaam sayde vnto the asse: because thou hast moched me: I wolde also there were a swerde in myne hande, for euē nowe wolde I kyll the. And the asse sayde vnto Balaam: am not I thyne asse whiche thou hast ryden vpon since thou wast bozne vnto this daye? Was I euer wout to do so vnto the? he sayde: nay.

And the Lord opened the eyes of Balaam and he sawe the angell of the Lord standinge in the waye, hauiuge a swerde byawen in hys hande. he bowed hym selfe therfore, and fell flat on hys face. And the angell of the Lord sayde vnto hym: Wherefor hast thou smyten thine alle the tymes? beholde, I came out as an aduersarye, because thou madest thy waye contrary vnto me, and the asse sawe me, and went backe to me this tymes: or els if he had not turned to me: (as myne place to me that stode in the waye.) I had surely slayne the, and saved her alyue. Balaam sayd vnto the angell of the Lord: I haue sinned: for I wyl not that thou stdest in the waye agaynst me. Howe therfore ys it displeak the I wyl turne home agayne. The angell sayde vnto Balaam: go with the men: but what I saye vnto the, that shalt thou speake. And so Balaam went with the Lordes of Moab.

And when Balaam herde that Balaam was come, he went out to mete hym vnto a cite of Moab, whiche is in the border of Arnon, euē in the vtmost coast. And Balaam sayde vnto Balaam: byd I not sende for the, to call the? And wherfore camest thou not vnto me? because I am not able to promote the vnto honoure: And Balaam made answer vnto Balaam: Lo, I am come vnto the. And can I nowe saye any thinge at all. The worde that God putteth in my mouth, that shall I speake. And Balaam went with Balaam, and they came vnto a cite of Beers, and Balaam offered oxen and there, and sent oxen and sheeps for Balaam and for the Lordes: were with hym. And on the morowe Balaam toke Balaam, and brought hym vp into the hye place of Baal, that there he myghte se the vtmost parte of the people.

C Balaam blesseth the people.

And Balaam sayd vnto Balaam: I lac: byde me here seue alters and prepare me here seven oxen and seven rammes. And Balaam byd as Balaam sayde. And Balaam and Balaam offered on euery alter an ore and a ram. And Balaam sayd vnto Balaam: as de by the sacrificie, and I wyl pray for happily the Lord wyl mereme: and what soeuer he sheweth me, I will tell the, and he wyl forth alow. But God met Balaam, and Balaam sayde vnto hym: I haue prepared seven alters, and haue offered vpon euery alter, an ore and a ram. And the Lord put a sapinge in Balaams mouth, and sayde: go agayne to Balaam and saye on thys wyle. And when he went agayne vnto him, lo, he stode by hys sacrificie, he and all the Lordes of Moab. And he toke vp hys parable and sayde: Balaam the kyng of Moab hath sette me from Beelpheztan out of y moztaynes of y cast (syr): come, curse Jacob for my sake: come, & bespe Israel. howe shall I curse the, whō God hath not cursed: or howe shall I bespe him, whom God hath not besped: from the toppe of the rockes I se hym, and from the hylls I beholde hym: lo, the people shall dwell by the selfe, and shall not be reuēd among the nations. Who can tell y dust of Jacob, and the nobles of the fourth parte of Israel? I praye God, that my soule maye by the death of the ryghtrous, & that my laste daye maye be lyke hys. And Balaam sayde vnto Balaam: what hast thou done vnto me? I fet the to curse myne enemyes, and beholde, thou hast blessed them. he answered and sayde: must I not kepe that I speake it, whiche the Lord hath put in put in my mouth: And Balac sayde vnto hym: Come I praye the with me vnto another place, whence thou mayest see them, and thou shalt see but the utmost parte of them, and shalt not see them all: curle them out of y place for my sake. And he brought him into a felde (where men myght see farre of) cuen to the topp of an hill, and bylt seue alteres, and offered an oxe and a ram on euery alter. And he sayd vnto Balac: stande here by thy sacrifice, whyle I go yonder. And the Lord mette

And he toke vp his parable & answered: ryle vp Balac and heare, and herke vnto me thou sonne of Bithor. * God is not a mā that he shulde lye, neither the sonne of a man that he shulde repent: shulde he saye, and not doo: or shulde he speake, and not make it good: beholde, I haue taken vpon me to blesse, for he hath blesed, and it is not in my power to alter it. → He behelde no vanyte in Jacob, nor sawe treuapyn in Israel. And Balac sayde vnto Balaam: neither curle them nor blesse them. But Balaā answered and sayde vnto Balac: tolde not I the sayinge: all that the Lord speaketh, that I must doo: And Balac sayde vnto Balaam: come I praye the, and I will byynge the pet vnto another place: yf peradventure it shall please God, that thou mayst thence curle the for my sake. And Balac broughte Balaam vnto the topp of Idoo, that boweth toward the wyldernesse of Ierlymūd. And Balaam sayde vnto Balac: make me here seuen alteres, and prepare me here seuen oxen, and seuen rammes. And Balac byd as Balaam had sayde, and offered an oxe and a ram on euery alter.

¶ The xliii. Chapter.

¶ Balaam propheseth of the kyngdome of Israel and of the comynge of Chyth. Balac is angrie with Balaam. The destruction of the Amelithites, and of the Emphyres.

And when Balaam sawe that he pteased the Lord that he shulde blesse Israel, he went not as he byd ryle before to sette forth sayinge, but sett hys face towarde the wyldernesse. And Balaā lye vp

Howe goodly are thy tentes o Jacob, and thyne habitacions o Israel: Eue as the vales are they layed abode, and as gardens by the ryuers syde: as the tentes whiche the Lord hath pyched, and as cypers trees besyde the waters. → The water droppeth out of his bouket, and hys seed shall be many waters. * and hys kyngdome shall be byre the Agag. And hys kyngdome shall be exalted. * God broughte hym out of Egypt: as the strenght of an unicorn is he vnto hym. And Balac was wroth wpyth Balaam, and smote hys handes together, and Balac sayde vnto Balaam: I sent for thee to curse myne enemies, and beholde, thou hast blesed the thys thys tymes. Therefore now gett the quickly vnto thy place. I thought that I wolde promote the vnto honoure, but lo, the Lord hath kept the backe fro wrothpyre Balaam answered vnto Balac: tolde I not thy messengers which thou sentest vnto me, sayinge: * If Balaac wolde geue me his house full of siluer and golde, I cannot passe the worde of the Lord, to do other good or bad of myne a womeynpuder: But what the Lord saith, that am I compelled to speake. And now beholde, I go vnto my people: come therefore, and I will aduertise the, what this people shall do to thy folke in the later dayes. And he toke vp hys parable and sayde: Balaam the sonne of Beor hath sayde, the man whose eye is open, hath sayde. He hath sayde that heareth the wordes of God, and hath y knowledge of the most hye, and beholdeth the visyon of the almyghtie, and that fallerh with open eyes: I shall se hym, but not nowe I shall beholde hi, but not nye. * There shall come a starre of Jacob, and ryle a sceptre of Israel, and shall smyte the cottes of Moab & undermyne all the chylde of Seth. * And Edom shall be possessed, and Seir shall fall to the possession of thez enemies, and Israel shall do manfully. Out of Jacob shall come he that shall haue dominio, and shall destrope the remnant of the etie.

And when he looked on Amalech, he toke vp his parable, & sayde: Amalech is the first of the nacynos * but hys latter ende shall

and toke vp hys parable, and sayde: stronge

And he toke vp his parable and sayd: Aias, who shall lye when God doeth thys: The thpyes also shall come out of the colle of I-

¶ The xxx. Chapter.

Of howes when they shall be kept, and when not.

And Moses spake vnto the hea-des of the tribes of the chyldren of Israel, saying: this is y thing which the Lorde hath comaun-ded. * If a man vowe a vowe vnto the Lord, or sweare an oth to bynde his soule: he shall not go back with his worde: but shall fulfill all that is proceded out of his mouth.

If a woman also vowe a vowe vnto the Lorde, and bynde her selfe beinge in her fathers house in the ympe of her youth, and her father heare her vowe and bonde which she hath made vpon her soule, and holde his peacshe hath made vpon her soule shall stand in effect. But and yf her father forbyd her the same daye yf he heareth it, none of her vowes nor bondes which she hath made vpon her soule shall be of valur: and yf a Lorde shall forgeue her, because her father forbad her.

If she had an husband when she vowed or promysed ought out of her lippes, wherwith she bonde her soule, and her husbande hearde it and helde his peace there at the same dape he heard it, then her vowes and her bondes wherewith she bounde her soule, shall stand in effect. And yf her husbande forbade her the same dape that he heard it: and made her vowe which she hath vpon her of none effecte, and released the openinge of her lippes, wherewith she bounde her soule, the Lorde shall forgeue her.

But euery vowe of a wedowe and of her

That is deuozed: þe þey haue bofide: their soule with þall: þall stande in effect w þeim.

If she vowed in her husbandes house, or bounde her soule with an oth, and her husbande heard it, and bethe his peace, and forbod her not, then all her vowes and bondes wherewith she bounde her soule, shall stande. But yf her husbande disannulled them the same daye that he heard them, then nothing þe pzoceadeth out of her lippes in vowes and bondes: wherewith she bounde her soule: shall stande in effect: for her husbande hath lowed them. And the Lorde shall forgiue her.

All vowes and othes that binde to humilitie the soule, maye her husbande stablysh or breake. But yf her husbande holde his peace from one daye vnto another, then he stablysheth all her vowes and othes which she had vpon her, because he helde his peace the same daye that he hearded them: But yf he breake the, & after that he hath heard the, he shall beare her synne him selfe.

These are the ordynances whiche the Lorde commaunded Moyses, betwene a mā and his wyfe: and betwene the father and his daughter, byynge yet a damsell in her fathers house.

And Eleazar the pzeast sayde vnto the me of warre, which came from the battayll: this is the ordinauer of the lawe which the Lorde commaunded Moyses: Golde, syluer, brasse, and yron, eyn and leade, and all that & maye abyde the fier, ye shall make it go theowme the fier, and it shalbe cleane. And take a porcyon vnto the Lorde of the men of warre, which went out to battayll: Ene soule of fyue hundred, both of the women and of the oxen, and of the asses, and of the shepe: and þe shall take it of theþz halfe, and geue it vnto Eleazar the priest, as an heue offering of þe Lord. And of the halfe of the chyldren of Israel, þe shall take one porcyon of fyfte, of the wemen, of the oxen, of the asses and of the shepe, and of all maner of bestes: and geue them vnto the Leuites, which waite vpon the habita- cyon of the Lorde.

And Moses and Eleazar the preaste dyd as the Lorde commaunded Moses. And the boipe and the praye which the men of warre had caughte, was fyve hundred thousande, and lxxv. thousande shepe: and lxxij. thou- sande oxen. lxi. thousande asses: and. xxxij. thousande soules of women, that had yren byn on man.

And the halfe which was the parte of the that went out to warre, was thye hundred thousande and seven and thirtie thousande and v. hundred shepe. And the Lordes part of the shepe was fyve hundred and. lxxv. And the oxen were. xxxvi. thousande, of which þe Lordes parte was. lxxij. And the asses were xxx. thousande and fyue hundred, of which the Lordes parte was. lxi. And the soules of women were. xvi. thousande, of whiche þe Lordes parte was. xxxij. soules. And Mo- ses gaue that summe which was the Lor- des heue offering, vnto Eleazar the preaste: as the Lorde commaunded Moses. And the other halfe of the chyldren of Israel whiche Moses separated from the men of warre, (þe is to wete the halfe þe perteynedz) vnto the congregacion) was. iij. hundred thousande, and. xxxvi. thousande a fyue hundred shepe: and. xxxvi. thousande oxen: and. xxx. thou- sande asses, and fyue hundred: and. xvi. thou- sande soules of women. And the offerers of thousandes of the hooste, the captyues ouer the thousandes, and the captyues ouer the hundredes came forth, and sayde vnto Moses: Thy seruā- tes haue take the summe of þe men of warre, which are vnder oure auenture, and there lacketh not one man of vs. We haue there- fore brought a yelent vnto the Lorde what euery man soude of iewels of golde, chepns, byacelletes, rpynges, carpynges and spāgels, to make an atonement for our soules before the Lorde.

And Moses and Eleazar toke the golde of them, iewels of all maner fashions: And all the golde of the heue offering that they de- ued vnto the Lorde, (of the captyues ouer thousandes and hundredes) was. xvi. thou- sande. vij. hundred and fyfte spels, for the men of warre had spoyled. euery man for him selfe. And Moses and Eleazar the priest toke the golde of the captyues ouer þe thou- sandes and of the captyues ouer the hund- redes, a brought it into the tabernacle of wit- nes, for a memoiall of the chyldren of Israel before the Lorde.

The. xxxij. Chapter.

To Ruben and Gad and to bestie the tribe of Manasse. is promysed the possession beyond Jordan eastward.

The chyldren Ruben and the chy- ldren of Gad had an exceedynge greute multitude of cattell. And when they sawe the lande of Ja- zer and the lande of Silon that it was apte place for cattell, the chyldren of Ruben and the chyldren of Gad came a ha- ke vnto Moses and Eleazar the preast and vnto the lordes of the congregacyon, saying: The lande of Jazer and Silon, Jazer and Achenib, Hesbon and Elealeh, Sabam and Arbo and Beon: which contreye the Lorde synote before the congregacyon of Israel: is a lande mete for a cattell, and we thy seruā- tes haue cattell: wherfore (sayde they) yf we haue founde grace in thy syght, let this land be geuen vnto thy seruantes to possesse, and bying vs not ouer Jordan.

And Moses sayde vnto the chyldre of Gad and of Ruben: Shall your brethren goo to warre, and þe shall spe here: Wherfore dis- courage þe hert of the chyldren of Israel, that they shulde not goo ouer into the lande, which the Lorde hath geuen them: * Thus dyd your fathers, when I sent them fro Ca- den Barne to se þe lāde. For when they wēt vnto the riner of Eskol, and sawe þe lande: they discouraged the hert of the chyldre of Israel, that they shulde not goo into the lande, which the Lorde hath geuen them.

And the Lorde was wroth the same tyme and sware, saying: * Aone of the men þe came out of Egypt from twenty fyve olde and aboue, shall see the lande which I sware vnto Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, because they haue not wholly followed me: I saue Ele- aleh the sonne of Terphune the Kenechite, and Josua the sonne of Nun: for they haue fol- lowed the Lorde. And the Lorde was ang- er with Israel, and made them wandze in the wilderness fourtyr pere, vntill all the ge- neracyon that had done euell in the syght of the Lorde were consumed.

to augmente the feare wth of the Lozde, to Israel warde. For yf ye turne awaye fro after hym, he will yet agayne leaue the people in the wyldernes, and ye shall destroye all theyr folke. And they went nere him, and sayde: we will buyde theyr foldes here for oure shepe and for oure cattell, and cities for our children. But we our selues will go ready armed before the chyldren of Israel, vntill we haue brought thein vnto their place. And our chyldren shall dwell in the fenced cities, because of the inhabitants of the lande. We will not returne vnto oure houses, vntill the chyldren of Israel haue enherited, euery man his enheritance. Neyther will we enheret with them on pondey syde Jordan forwarde, because oure enheritance is fallen to vs on this syde Jordan eastwarde.

And Moses sayde vnto them: yf ye will do this thinge, and goe harnessed before the Lozde to warre, and will go all of you in harnesse our Jordan before the Lozde, vntill he haue cast out his enemies before him: and vntill the lande be subdued before the Lozde, then ye shall returne and be without synne before the Lozde and before Israel, and this lande shall be your possession before the Lozde. But and yf ye will not do so, behold, ye haue synned agaynst the Lozde: and be sure, your synne will synde you out.

Nowe therefore, buyde cities for your chyldren, and foldes for your shepe, and do that ye haue spoken. The chyldren of Gad and the chyldren of Ruben spake vnto Moses, sayinge: thy seruantes will do as my Lozde commaundeth. Our chyldren, our wyues, oure shepe and our cattell shall remayne here in the cities of Gilead. But thy seruantes will goe all harnessed for the warre, and vnto battayll before the Lozde, as my Lozde sayth.

And for thepye sakes, Moses commaunded Eleazar the p^{re}st, and Josua the sonne of Nun, and the ancient fathers of the tribes of the chyldren of Israel: and Moses saide vnto them: If the chyldren of Gad and the chyldren of Ruben will go with you our Jordan, all prepared to fight before the Lozde, then when the lande is subdued before you, ye shall geue them the labe of Gilead to possesse: but and yf they will not go ouer with you in harnesse, they shall haue their possessions amonge you in the lande of Canaan. And the chyldren of Gad and the chyldren of Ruben answered, sayinge: As the Lozde hath sayde vnto thy seruantes, so will we do. We will goe harnessed before the Lozde into the lande of Canaan, that the possession of oure enheritance maye be on this syde Jordan.

Gad and to the chyldren of Ruben, and vnto halfe the tribes of Manasse the soune of Joseph, the kingdome of Schon henge of the Amozites, and the kingdome of the luge of Basan, the labe wth the cities thereof in possessiones and cities of the contrarye shewe about. And the chyldren of Gad buyde Zidon, & Aroth, & Troce, and Aroth, Shophan, Isaser, & Jergaba, Berhimira, & Bertharan, fenced cities, & they buyde foldes for the shepe. And the chyldren of Ruben buyde Helbon, Eleale, Karinataim, Rebo, Zaal, Yreon, & turned their names, & Sibbana also: and gaue other names vnto the cities which they builded. And the chyldren of Machir the sonne of Manasse went to Gilead, and toke it, & put out the Amozites that dwelt therein. And Moses gaue Gilead vnto Machir the sonne of Manasse, and he dwelt therein. And Jahie the sonne of Manasse went and toke the small townes therof, and called them Harnoth Jair. And Abobah went and toke Harnath, and the towne longping thereto, & called it Abobah after his awne name.

And possesse the lande & dwell therein, for I haue geuen you the lande to enioye it. And ye shall decupe the enheritaunce of the land by lot amonge your kyndredes, & geue to the mo the more enheritaunce, and to the fewer the lesse enheritaunce. And your enheritaunce shalbe in the trybe of your fathers, euerj mans enheritaunce in the place where his lot faileth.

* But and yf ye wyl not buye out the inhabitants of the lande before you, thã those whiche ye let remaine of the, shalbe pictures in your eyes, and dart in your spyes, and shall bere you in the lande wherein ye dwell. And ye shall see, it will come to passe, that I shall do vnto you, as I thought to do vnto them.

¶ The coastes and borderes of the land of promysse. Certaine men are assigned to drupre the lande.

And the Loide spake vnto Moses, saying: remaunde the chyliden of Israel, and saye vnto them: when ye come into the lande of Canaan, this is the lande ye shall fall vnto your enheritaunce, the lande of Canaan with her coastes. And * your southquarter shalbe fro the wilderness Sin alonge by the coast of Egipt, so that your southquarter reache vpon the ryde of the salt see eastwarde: & let a compass from the south vp to Akrabim: and reache to sinna. And go out from the south to Cabes Barne, & go out also to Hazer Abar, and go alonge to Aymon: and set a compass agayn from Aymon vnto the ryuer of Egipte, and shall go out at the see.

And let your westquarter be the greatesee: let the same see be your westcoast. And this shalbe your northquarter: ye shall compass your border from the greatesee vnto mount Hoy. And from mount Hoy, ye shall describe your border, tyll it come vnto herimoth, and the ende of the coast shalbe at Zedaba, and the coaste shall reache out to Ziphon, and go out at Hazer Enan. And ye shall Walke your northquarter.

And ye shall compass your eastquarter from Hazaraim to Serphā. And the coast shall go downe from Serphā to Ribla on the east syde of Ain. And the same border shall descende and go out at the syde of the fere of Emmereth eastwarde. And then go downe along by Jordan, a leaue at the last fere. And thus shall be your lāde with the coastes thereof rounde aboute.

And Moses commaunded the chyldren of Israel sayinge: this is the lande wherby ye shall inherite by lot, and which the Lorde commaunded to geue vnto yne trybes and an halfe: * for the tribe of the chyldre of Ruben accordyng to the howholders of theyr fathers, and the tribe of the chyldren of Gad accordyng to theyr fathers howholders, and halfe the tribe of Manasse, haue receaued theyr inheritaunce. Two trybes and an halfe haue receaued their inheritaunce on the other syde of Jordan, oueragaynst Jericho eastwarde.

And the Lorde spake to Moses, sayinge: These are the names of the men, which shall deuyde the lande vnto you: Eleazar the p̄sente, and Josua the sonne of Nun. And ye shall take also a Lorde of every trybe, when ye deuyde the lande. The names of the men are these: Of the tribe of Iuda, Caleb the sonne of Iephur. Of the tribe of the chyldren of Simeon, Semuel the sonne of Amiad. Of the tribe of Ben Iamin, Eldad the sonne of Adon. Of the tribe of the chyldren of Dan, the lorde Bucki, the sonne of Jagli. From amonge the chyldren of Joseph for the tribe of the chyldren of Manasse, the lorde hamei, the sonne of Ephod. Of the tribe of the chyldren of Ephraim, the lorde Camuel the sonne of Sythra. Of the tribe of the sonnes of Zabulon, the lorde Balzaphan the sonne of Barnach. Of the tribe of the chyldren of Issachar, the lorde Eliel the sonne of Amin. Of the tribe of the sonnes of Aser, the lorde Abihud the sonne of Salomi. Of the tribe of the chyldren of Reuben, the lorde Beda El, the sonne of Aminihud. These are they whom the Lorde commaunded to deuyde the inheritaunce vnto the chyldren of Israel in the lande of Canaan.

¶ The xxxij. Chapter.

¶ Into the Leuites are gyven cyties and suburbs. The cyties of refuge. The lawe of an unquelling. For any mans witness shall no man be conuenient.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses in the felde of Moab by Jordan, oueragaynst Jericho, sayinge: commaunde the chyldren of Israel, that they geue saunce of theyr possession, * cyties to dwell in. And ye shall geue also vnto the cyties of the Leuites, suburbs hard by theyr cyties rounde aboute them. The cyties shall they haue to dwell in, and the suburbs for theyr cattell, and for theyr possession and all maner of bestes of theyr. And the suburbs of the cyties which ye shall geue vnto the Leuites, shall reache from the wall of the cytie outwarde, a thousande cubytes rounde aboute. And ye shall measure without the cytie of the east syde, two thousande cubytes. And of the south syde, two thousande cubytes. And of the west syde, two thousande cubytes. And of the north syde, two thousande cubytes also: and the cytie shall be in the myddes. And these shall be the suburbs of theyr cyties.

And from amonge the cyties wherby ye shall geue vnto the Leuites, * there shall be syre cyties for refuge, which ye shall appointe to that intent, that he which killeth, maye fflye thither. And to them ye shall adde xiiij. cyties mo: so that all the cyties wherby ye shall geue the Leuites, maye be xlviii. with theyr suburbs. And these cyties which ye shall geue, shall be out of the possession of the chyldren of Israel. Theyr that haue many, shall geue many. What of them that haue fewe, ye shall take fewe. Euery one shall geue of hys cyties vnto the Leuites, accordyng to p̄ inheritaunce which be inherith.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel and saye vnto them: * whā ye be come ouer Jordan into the lande of Canaan, ye shall appointe you cyties to be cyties of refuge for you: that he which sleeth a soule vnwares, maye fflye thither. And the cytie shall be to fflye from the auenger of bloude, that he whiche killeth dye not, vntill he stande before the congregation in iudgement. And of these syre free cyties wherby ye shall geue ye shall geue thre on this syde Jordan, and thye in the lande of Canaan. And these syre free cyties shall be a refuge hely for the chyldren of Israel, and for the stranger, and for hym that dwelleth in amonge you: that all they which kill any person vnwares, maye fflye thither.

* And yf any mā smyte another with an instrument of yron that he dye, then is he a murderer, and shall dye for it. If he smyte hym with a throwynge stone that a man maye dye with, and yf he dye, he that smote hym is a murderer, let the same murderer be slayne therefore. If yf he smyte him with a handewapon of wodde that a man maye dye with, then yf he dye, he is a murderer: let the murderer be slayne therefore.

The iustice of bloude shall slaye the murderer:

there: when he meeteth hym, he maye slaye hym. But yf the shalut at hym * of hate, or double at hym with lapinge of wyfte, that he dye, or slaye hym with hys hande of enuye that he dye, he that smote him shall dye, for he is a murderer. The iustice of bloude shall slay the murderer, as soone as he fyndeth hi.

But and yf he pulled hym by chaunce and not of hate, or cast at him with any manner of thyng and not of lapinge of wyfte: or cast any manner of stone at him: that a man maye dye with: and save hym not. And he cast it upon hym and he dye, and was not hys enemye, neither sought him any harme. The congregacion shall iudge betwene the slayer and the executer of bloude in suche cases.

And the congregacyō shall deliuer the slayer out of the hande of the aueger of bloude, and the congregacion shall restore hym agayne unto the cite of hyr refuge, whether he was fled. And he shall byde there * unto, the death of the hye pyncle, which was anoynted with holy oyle.

But * yf the slayer come without the borders of his pyncled cite, whether he was fled, yf the aueger of bloud fynde him without the borders of hys fre towne, and slay the murderer, he shall be gylelesse, because he shulde haue bydden in hys fre towne vntill the death of the hye pyncle, and after the death of the hye pyncle to extourne agayne unto the lande of his possession. These commaundementes shalbe a lawe vnto you, for poure generacions in all your dwellinges.

Whosoener killeth a soule, yf same yf man slayer must he slaye him selfe: those we witness. Forther shall one witness answer to put a man to death. Whosoener, ye shall take none aynentes for the lyfe of the murderer which is worthy to dye: But he shall be put to death. Also ye shall take no money of hym that is fled to a fre cite, that he shalbe come agayne, and dwell in the lade, before the death of the hye pyncle. And se that ye pollute not the lande which ye shall dwell in: for bloude defyleth the lande. And the lade can none other wyse be cleined of the bloude that is shed therein, but by the bloude of hym that shedd bloude. We shal not therfore the lande which ye shall inhabyte, for I am in the myddes therof: enen I the Lord dwell among the chyldren of Israel.

¶ An order for the marriage of the daughters of Israel. One of the trybes maye not marrye with another.

And the auncient fathers of the chyldren of Israel the sonne of Machir the sonne of Manasse of the kynred of the chyldren of Joseph, came forth to speake before Moses and the yppres, and auncient fathers of the chyldren of Israel, and sayde: * The Lord commaunded my Lord, to geue the lade to enherit by lotte to the chyldren of Israel. And my Lord commaunded in gods behalfe, to geue the enheritaunce of * zelaphead our brother vnto hys daughters. Whom yf any of the sonnes of the other trybes of Israel take to wyues, then shall they enheritaunce be take from the enheritaunce of oure fathers, and shall be put vnto the enheritaunce of the trybe which they are receaued into: and shalbe taken from the lotte of oure enheritaunce.

And when the pere of iubelye of the chyldren of Israel cometh then shall they enheritaunce be put vnto the enheritaunce of the trybe wherein to they are receaued: and so shall they enheritaunce be taken awaye from the enheritaunce of the trybe of oure fathers.

And Moses commaunded the chyldren of Israel accordyng to the woordes of the Lord sayinge: the chyldren of the trybe of Joseph haue sayd well. This therfore doth the Lord commaunde the daughters of zelaphead sayinge * let them be wyues to whom they the selfe theynch best, onely to the kynred and trybe of theyr father shall they marie, so that not the enheritaunce of the chyldren of Israel erroure from trybe to trybe, when the chyldren of Israel abyde euery man in the enheritaunce of the trybe of his fathers. And euery daughter that possideth any enheritaunce in any trybe of the chyldren of Israel, shalbe wyfe vnto one which is of the kynred of the trybe of her father, that the chyldren of Israel maye enioyne euery man the enheritaunce of hys fathers: Forther ought the enheritaunce to go from one trybe to another: but euery one of the trybes of the chyldren of Israel, must abyden in hys awne enheritaunce.

And as the Lord commaunded Moses enen so dyd the daughters of zelaphead. And Zelabel, Thirza, Hagla, Chila and Noa were maryed vnto theyr fathers brothers sonnes, which were of the kynred of the chyldren of Manasse the sonne of Joseph: and so they enheritaunce remained in the trybe of the kynred of theyr father.

These are the commaundementes & lawes which the Lord commaunded by the hande of Moses, vnto the chyldren of Israel in the felde of Moab by Iordane our agaynst Jericho.

styre that is amonge you: bypnyng (from amonge you) men of wysdome and of vnderstandynge, and experte, accordynge to poure tespes, and I wyll make them rulers ouer you. And ye answered me and sayde: that whych thou hast spoken is good for vs to do. And out of yowre tepres I toke the captaynes, (men of wysdome and that were experte) and made them rulers ouer you: captaynes ouer thousandes & ouer hundredes ouer fyfte and oure ten, and officers amonge yowre tepres.

And I charged yowre Iudges that same tyme saying: heare the cause of poure bestche and * iudge ryghteously betwene every mā and hys brother, and the straunger that is with hym. That ye knowe no facyn in

And when we departed fro hoche, we wote that ouer all that grete and terrible wyldernesse, as ye haue lene alonge by the wape of the hyl of the Amoiates, as the Lorde oure God commaunded vs, and came to Cadēs Barne. And I sayde vnto you: Ye are come vnto the hyl of the Amoiates, whych þe Lord oure God wyll geue vnto vs. Beholde, the Lorde thy God hath set the lande before the:
goo vp and conquere it, as the Lorde God of thy fathers hath sayde vnto the * feare not,

erly one and sayde: * we wyll sende me before vs, to scache vs oute the lande, and to bypnye vs wyde agayne, what waye we must go vp by, & vnto what cyties we shall come. And the sayinge pleased me well, and I toke twelue mē of you, of every tye one.
Whych departed, and went vp into the hyl cāterp, and came vnto the ryuer Escoll, and serched it out, & toke of the frute of the lande

& brought it vnto vs, and brought vs wordes de agayne, & sayde: It is a good lande, whych the Lorde oure God doth geue vs.

Notwithstandynge ye wolde not consente to goo vp, but were disobedient vnto the mouth of the Lord poure God, and murmured in yowre tentes, & sayde: because the Lode hateth vs, therefore hath he brought vs out of the lande of Egipte, to deliuer vs in to the hāde of the Amoiates, and to despoyle vs. Howe shal we goo vp? Oure bestche ha-before your eyes. In the wilderness also thou hast seen how that the Lord thy God bare thee, even as a man doth beare his sonne, in all the waye whiche ye haue gone by, vntill ye came vnto this place. And yet in this thing ye dyd not beleue the Lord your God. He went in the waye before you, to seeke you out a place to pitch your tented in. * In fyre by nyght, & by daye.

And the Lord hearde the voyce of your wordes, and was wroth, & swore, sayinge: * there shall not one of these men and of this forward generation see good lande whiche I swore to geue vnto your fathers, saue Caleb the sonne of Iephune, he shall see it * and to hym will I geue the lande that he hath trodden vpon, and to his chyldre, because he hath followed the Lord.

¶ Upon againe the people, sayinge that: * the Lord was angrie wth me & wth you for your fautes, sayinge: Pallas shall not go in thither. But Joshua the sonne of Nun which standeth before the, he shall go in thither. Elden hym therefore, for he that cause Israel to inherit the lande. * & therefore your chyldre, which ye saye shall be a praye, and your sounes which in that daye had no knowledge betwene good and euill, they shall go in thither, and vnto them will I geue it, and they shall enioy it.

¶ But as for you, turne your face, and take your iourneie into the wilderness: euen by the waye of the readee. Then ye answered & sayde vnto me: * We haue sinned agaynst the Lord: we will go vp and fighte, accordinge to all that the Lord our God commaunded vs. And when ye had gyde on euery man his wepōs of warre, beholde, ye were ready to goo vp into the hill. And the Lord sayde vnto me: saye vnto the, that they go not vp, and that they fighte not, for I am not among you: lest ye fall before your enemyes. I tolde you therefore, and ye wolde not heare, but disobeyed the mouth of the Lord: & went presumptuously vp into the hill.

¶ And the Amosites which dwelt in that hill, came out agaynst you, and chafed you (as beere bit to do) & smote you in the side, vnto hozima. And ye came agayne, & wepte before the Lord: but the Lord wolde not heare your voyce, nor geue you audience. ¶ And so ye abode in Cades a longe season, accordinge vnto the tyme that ye remained in other places.

¶ The .ii. Chapter.

¶ Then we turned ouer face, & toke our iourneie into the wilderness euen by the waye of the readee as the Lord spake vnto me. And we compassed mount Seir a longe tyme. And the Lord spake vnto me, sayinge: Ye haue compassed this mountayne longe tyme, toward the northward. And warne thou the people sayinge: Ye shall go thowoe the coast of your brethren the chyldren of Esau whiche dwell in Seir, & they shall be afraide of you: & alle ye good hede vnto your felices therefore. Ye shall not prouoke them, for I will not geue you of their lande, no not so muche as a fote bredth * because I haue geuen mount Seir vnto Esau to possesse: & I shall by myne of the for money to eate, and ye shall procure water of them for money to drinke. For the Lord thy God hath blessed the small the waters of thy hande. He knewe thy entreynyng in to this greate wilderness: this .x. yeres, and the Lord thy God hath bene wth y, so that thou hast lacked nothinge.

¶ And when we were departed from our brethren the chyldren of Esau whiche dwell in Seir, the playne waye from Elath & from Ezion Gaber, we turned & went by the waye of the wilderness of Moab. And the Lord sayde vnto me: * Thou shalt not fighte agaynst the Moabites, neither prouoke the to battell, for I will not geue the of their lande to possesse: because I haue geue it vnto the chyldren of Lot to possesse. The terrible people the * Emims dwell therein in tymes past, a people great, many tall, as the Enakims: whiche also were taken for giants as the Enakims: wth the Moabites call Emims. ¶ The Hozims dwell in Seir before tyme, whose possession the chyldren of Esau occupied, and destroyed the before them, & dwell in their stead: as Israel dyd vnto the lade of his possession, which the Lord gaue the. ¶ Nowe saye vnto the: get you oute the eyer daye: & we will ouer the eyer daye. The space in which we came from Cades barne vntill we were come ouer the eyer daye, was .xviii. yeres: vntill all the generation of men of warre were wasted out from amonge the host, as the Lord swore vnto the. ¶ For in dede the hande of the Lord was agaynst them, to destroye them from amonge the host, till they were consumed.

¶ And so it came to passe, that all the me of warre were consumed and dedd from amonge the people. And the Lord spake vnto me, sayinge: Thou shalt go thowoe the coast of Moab this daye: and when thou comest nye vnto the chyldren of Ammon, thou shalt not laye siege vnto them, nor moue warre agaynst the. For I will not geue the of the lade of the chyldren of Ammon a possession, but I haue geuen it vnto the chyldren of Lot to possesse. ¶ That also is take for a land of giants, and giants dwell therein in olde tyme, whom the Ammonites call zizzims. ¶ A people that was great, many, & tall, as the Enakims.

Enauims. But the Lord destroyed them before them, & they succeeded the in the inheritance & dwell in thep: beade: as he dyd for the children of * Enau, which dwell in Seir: whan be destroyed the hoymys before them they conquered thep: posselion, and dwell in thep: beade vnto this dape. And * Aims which dwell in haram euen vnto * Aia, the Capthoymys which came out of Capthoz destroyed them, and dwell in thep: beade.

Ryle ye vpon therefore, and take poure souerney ouer the ryuer Arnon. Beholde, * I haue geuen into thy hande Schon the Amoitte kyng of Ieridon, and his lande. So to thefoure and conquere, and pzoouke hym to battell. * This dape wyl I begynne to sende thefear and drede of the, vpon all nacions that are vnder all the heauen: so that they wyph heare speake of the, shall tremble and quake before the.

And I sent messengers out of the wilderness of Ardomoth vnto Schon kyng of Ieridon, with wordes of peace, sayinge: * I wyl go alonge by the hye wape: I wyl neither turne vnto thy ryghte hande nor to the left. * Thou shalt sell me meate: for money: for to rate, and geue me drinke for money: for to drinke. Wchly graunt me, that I may go thorow on myfote: (as the chyldren of Enau which dwell in Seir, & the Moabites whych dwell in Ar, dyd vnto me) vntyll I be come ouer Jordan, into the lande which the Lord oure God geueth vs.

But Schon the kyng of Ieridon wolde not let vs passe by him, for the Lord thy God hardened his spere, & made his herte tough, because he wolde deliuer him into thy hande, as it is come to passe this dape.

And the Lord sayde vnto me: beholde, I haue begonne to set Schon and his lande before the: go to and conquere, and posselle his lande. * Then both Schon & all his people came out agaynst vs to fight at Iaza. And the Lord fet him before vs, & we smote him and his comers and all his people.

And we toke all his cyties & same reason, and slue the men, women and chyldren of all the cyties, and let norhyng remayne, save the cattell onely we caughte vnto oure selues, and the spoyle of the cyties which we toke, from Aroer which is by the synke of the ryuer of Arno, & sed the cyrie that is in the ryuer, vnto Gilead: there was not one cyrie to ströge for vs. The Lord oure God deliuered all vnto vs: onely vnto the lande of the chyldren of Ammon thou comest not, nor vnto every place of the ryuer Jabock, nor vnto the cyries in the moûtaynes, nor vnto whatsoever the Lord oure God sayde vs.

The. lii. Cha. pter.
* Wherof that chautes from the victorie of the two kynges Schon and Og vnto the Antisteyn of Josue in Moses beade.

When we turned & wot by the wape to Balan. * And Og the kyng of Balan came out agaynst vs: he and all his people to battell at Edrai. And the Lord sayde vnto me: feare him not, for I wyl deliuer hym, & all his people and his lande into thy hande, and thou shalt do vnto him, as thou dydest vnto Schon the kyng of the Amoitres, which dwell at Ieridon. And to the Lord oure God deliuered into oure handes, & Og also the kyng of Balan and all his folke. And we smote him, vntill none was left hym alyue.

And we toke all his cyties the same reason (neither was there a cyrie which we toke not from them) eue thefoure cyties thorow out all the regis of Argob, the kyngdome of Og in Balan. All these cyties also were made stronge with hye walled, gates and barres, besyde unwalled towines a greate manepe. And we detrely destroyed them, as we dyd vnto Schon kyng of Ieridon, bringyng to nought all the cyties, with men, women and chyldren. But all the cattell and the spoyle of the cyries, we caughte for oure selues.

And thus we toke the same reason, out of the hande of two kynges of the Amoitres, the lande that was on the other syde Jordan, from the ryuer of Arnon vnto mount Hermon (whych hermon the Sydonis call Syron, and the Amoitres call it Seny) all the cyties that laye in the playne, and all Gilead and all Balan vnto Shierba and Edrai, cyties of the kyngdome of Og in Balan. For ouer the kyngdome of Balan remayned of the remnant of the gpauntres, whose bed was a bed of pyon. And is it not pet at Rabab amonge the chyldren of Ammon: (r. cubytes doth the length thereof contere, and foure cubytes the breadth of it, as the cubite of a man. And so we conquered this lande the same tyme, from Aroer whych is by the ryuer of Arnon, vnto halfe mount Gilead, & the ciers thereof gaue I vnto the Rubenites and Gadites. And the rest of Gilead and all Balan of the kyngdome of Og, gaue I vnto the halfe tribes of Manasse: euen all the rygon of Argob with all Balan, which is called the lande of gpauntres. In the sonne of Manasse toke all the region of Argob vnto the costes of Gessuri and Manachati, and called the after his owne name: Balan Bashath. Inir vnto this dape. And I gaue Gilead vnto Machir. And vnto the Rubenites and Gadites, I gaue halfe Gilead vnto the ryuer of Arnon, halfe the valep & beyonde, euen vnto the ryuer Jabock, which is the boier of the chyldren of Ammon: the playne also: (of the tribenites) and Jozabā and the coast thereof, sed Ceneroth euen vnto the see whych is in the playne, euen the fait see vnder the springes of the hyl, eastward.

And I commaunded you the same tyme sayinge: the Lord your God hath geuen you this lande to enioie it: ye shall go possessed before your brethren the children of Israel, all that are mete for the warre. Your wives onely, your children, and your cattle: for I wote that ye haue muche cattle. I shall abyde in your cities which I haue geuen you, vntill the Lord haue geue rest vnto your brethren as well as vnto you, and vntill they also haue conquered the lande, whiche the Lord your God hath geue them beyonde Jordan: and then shall ye returne againe, euery man vnto his possession which I haue geuen you.

And I warned Joshua the same tyme sayinge: thine eyes haue seene all that the Lord your God hath done vnto these two kinges: eue so shall he do vnto all kingdomes whither thou goest. Ye shall not feare them, for the Lord your God, he shall fight for you.

And I besought the Lord the same tyme sayinge: O Lord God, thou hast begunne to shewe thy seruante thy greatnesse and thy myghty hande, for els where is there a God in heauē or in erth, that can do after thy workes and after thy power: let me go ouer and sit the good lande that is beyonde Jordan, that goodly mountayne, and Libanon.

But the Lord was angrie with me for your sakes, and wolde not heare me. And the Lord saped vnto me: be content, I spirite no more vnto me of this matter. Get the vp into the tope of the hill, and lyfte vp thine eyes westwarde, northwarde, southwarde, and eastwarde, and beholde it with thine eyes, for thou shalt not go ouer this Jordan.

But charge Joshua: and courage him, & bolde him. For he shall go before this people, and he shall deuyde vnto them the lande whiche thou shalt see. And so we abode in the valley ouer against the house of Deor.

¶ The. liii. Chapter.

An exhortacion to geue diligent heede vnto the lawe. Images maye not be made to worshippe. The chere of rebelle.

Know herof O Israel vnto the ordinances and lawes which I teache you, for to do the, that so ye maye lyeue & go in and chere the lande, which the Lord your God of your fathers geueth you. Ye shall put nothinge vnto the worde which I commaunde you, neither do ought thereof, that ye maye keepe the commandementes of the Lord your God which I commaunde you. Your eyes haue seene what the Lord dyd vnto Baal Deor: for all the men that followed Baal Deor, the Lord your God hath destroyed from amonge you. But ye that cleue vnto the Lord your God, are aloue euery one of you this daye. Behold I haue taught you ordinances and lawes, such as the Lord my God commaunded me, that ye shoulde do euen so in the lande, whether ye go to possesse it.

Kepe them therefore and do them, for that is your wisdom & vnderstandinge in the sighte of the nacpions: that they maye heare all these ordinances, and saye: Surely it is a wise and vnderstandinge people: it is a greute nacpon. For what other nacpon is so greute, that Goddes come to spe vnto: as the Lord our God is nye vnto vs, in all thynges: as oft as we call vnto him: Ye, & what nacpon is so greute, that hath ordinances & lawes so righteous, as all this lawe whiche I sette before you this daye.

Take heede to thy selfe therefore, and kepe thy soule diligently, that thou forget not the thynges which thine eyes haue seene, & that they departe not out of thine harte, & all the dayes of thy lyfe: but I teache them thy sonnes & thy sonnes sonnes: Specially the daye that thou stobest before the Lord thy God in Moab, when the Lord saped vnto me: gather me the people together, and I will make the heare my wordes, & they maye lerne to feare me: all the dayes that they shall lyue vpon the erth: & and that they maye teach their children: ye came & stode also vnder the hill, and the hill burnt with fyre: euen vnto the myddes of heauen, & there was darknesse, cloudes & mist. And the Lord spake vnto you out of the myddes of the fyre, & ye heard the voyce of the wordes: but sawe no forme, save herbe a voyce onely.

And he declared vnto you his conuenaunt which he commaunded you to do, euen & verbes, which he wrote vpon two tables of stone. And the Lord commaunded me that I should saye, that I shoulde teach you ordinances and lawes, which ye ought to do in the lande whether ye go to possesse it.

Take therefore good heede vnto your selues as pertaininge vnto your soules, for ye sawe no manner of ymage in the daye that the Lord spake vnto you in Moab out of the myddes of the fyre: lest ye make your selues and make you a grasse ymage and picture of any manner of figure: the lykenesse of man or woman, the lykenesse of any manner of beast that is on the erth, or the lykenesse of any manner feathered foule that flyeth in the ayre, or the lykenesse of any manner womne that creepeth on the erth, or the lykenesse of any manner fyre that is in the waters beneath the erth.

Ye and like thou lyfte vp thine eyes vnto heuen and when thou seest the foune, the moone and the starres with all the host of heauen, shouldest be desceaued, and shouldest worshippe and serue the thynges, which the Lord thy God hath made to serue all nacpions vnder the whole heauen.

But the Lord hath taken you, & brought you out

And Moses called all Israel, & layed vnto the. Heare O Israel the ordinaunces & lawes which I speake in your eares this daye, that ye maye leue them, and fulfill them in dede. ¶ The Lord said with you face to face in the mount, out of the myddes of the fyre. And I stode betwene the Lord and you the same tyme, and shewed you the wordes of the Lord. For ye were aspredd at the fyght of the fyre, and went not by into the mount, as he sayd. * I am the Lord thy God, which broughte the oute of the lande of Egypt fro the house of bondage. Thou shalt haue none other goddes in my presence.

¶ Thou shalt make the no greuen ymage of any maner of lykenesse y is in heau above and that is in erth beneath, and that is in the waters beneath the erth. Thou shalt nether bowe thy selfe vnto them, nor serue the, for I the Lord thy God, am a gelouise God, visityng the wickednesse of the fathers vpon the chyldren, euen in the thyrde & fourth generation, amonge the that hate me: & he we mercye vpon thousandes, amonge them that loue me, and kepe my commandmentes.

¶ Thou shalt not take the name of y Lord thy God in vayne: for the Lord wyll not holde him guiltlesse, y taketh his name in vayne. Kepe the Sabbath daye, that thou sanctifye it, as the Lord thy God hath commaunded the. * Syre sayes thou shalt labour and do all that thou hast to do, but the seventh daye is the Sabbath of the Lord thy God: thou shalt not do any worke, thou and thy sonne, thy daughter, thy seruante and thy mayde, thyne oxe and thyne asse, and all thy cattell, and the stranger that is within thy gates, that thy seruante & thy mayde maye rest as well as thou. Remember, that thou wast a seruante in the lande of Egypt, and howe that the Lord thy God brought the out thence thoroze * a myghtye hande and a stretched out arme. For whyche cause the Lord thy God commaunded the, to kepe the Sabbath daye.

¶ Honour thy father and thy mother, as the Lord thy God hath commaunded the: y thy dayes maye be prolonged, & that it maye go well with y in the lande, which the Lord thy God geueth the.

These wordes the Lord spake vnto all your multitude in the mount out of the myddes of the fyre, cloude and darkness, with a grente voyce, added nomoze thereto, and wrote them in two tables of stone, and deliuered them vnto me.

voyce out of the myddes of the darkness, ye sawe that the hill byd burne with fyre, y came vnto me with the captaynes of your tribbes and your elders: and ye sayde: beholde, the Lord oure God hath shewed vs his glorye and his grentnesse. * we haue herde his voyce out of the myddes of the fyre: we haue sene thys daye, that God doth talke with a man, and he yet lyueth. Howe therfore, why shulde we dye, that thys grente fyre shulde consume vs? I we heare the voyce of the Lord oure God any more, we shal dye. For what shal he saye bene, that euer beare the voyce of the lyuyng God speakinge out of the myddes of the fyre? as we haue done. * and yet byd lyue: So thou and here all that the Lord oure God sayeth, and tell thou vnto vs all that the Lord oure God sayeth vnto the: * and we wyll heare it and do it.

And the Lord heard the voyce of your wordes when ye spake vnto me, & the Lord sayde vnto me. I haue herde the voyce of the wordes of thys people, which they haue spoken vnto the, they haue well sayed all y they haue spoken. * Wh yther were such an heart in the y they wolde feare me, & kepe all my commandmentes alwaye, that it myghte go well with them, and with thes chyldren for euer. So and saye vnto them: gett you into your tentes agayne, but stande thou here by me, and I wyll tell the all the commandmentes, ordinaunces and lawes, which thou shalt teache them, that they maye do them in the lande which I geue them to possesse.

Take heede therfore, that ye do in dede as the Lord your God hath commaunded you, & * turne not asyde: ether to the righte hande or to y left: but walke in all y wayes which the Lord your God hath commaunded you, that ye maye lyue, and that it maye go well with you, and that ye maye prolonge your dayes, in the lande which ye shall possesse.

¶ The vi. Chapter.

The lawe of God maye not be forgotten.

These are the commandmentes, ordinaunces and lawes which the Lord your God commaunded me to teach you, that ye might do them in the lande wher ye go to possesse it: namely, y thou myghtest * feare the Lord thy God, and kepe all his ordinaunces and his commandmentes which I commaunde the: thou and thy sonne, and thy sonnes sonne all dayes of thy lyfe, that thy dayes maye be prolonged. Heare therfore. O Israel, and enche heede, that thou do thereafter, that it maye go well with the, and that ye maye encrease myghtely, eue as the Lord God of thy fathers hath promysed the a lande, that floweth with mylke and honny.

¶ The Lord sware vnto your fathers, to geue vnto them and to thep seed, a lande that floweth with mylke and honye. * For the land whether thou goest to possesse it, is not as the lande of Egypte y^e came out of, where thou sowdest thy seed and wateredst it with thy fete as a garden of herbes: but the land whither ye go ouer to possesse it, is a lande that hath hylls and vales, and dith keep water of the raine of heauē. Thys lande both the Lord thy God care for, & the eyes of the Lord thy God are alwayes vpon it, from the begynnyng of the yere, vnto the ende of the yere.

If you shall berken therfore vnto my commaundementes, whych I commaunde you thys daye, that ye loue the Lord your God & serue him with all your herte, & with all your soule * I also will geue raine vnto your lande in due season: the fruite raine and the later, that thou mayest gather in thy corne, thy wyne & thyne oyle. And I will sende graile in thy felces for thy cattell: that thou mayest care, and fill thy selfe. But beware that your herte decaue you not & ye turne asyde, and serue straunge Goddes, and worshipp them, and then the Lord beyng wroth agaynst you, * Thurt vnto the heauen, y^e there be no raine, and that your lande yelde not her frute, and lest ye perishe quickly from of the good lande, whych the Lord geueth you.

¶ Therfore shall ye put vnto these my wordes in * your herte and in your soule, & bynde the for a signe vpon your hande, that they maye be as a warning betwene your eyes, and ye shall * teach them your children that they maye talke of them, when thou lytest in thyne house, and when thou walkest by the waye: when thou lyest downe, & when thou rystest vp: ye and thou shalt wypte the vnde the doze postes of thyne house, and vpon thy gates, that your dayes maye be multiplied, & the dayes of your childre, in y^e land whych the Lord sware vnto your fathers to geue them, as long as the dayes of heauen last vpon the erth. * For * ye kepe all these commaundmentes, whych I commaunde you so that ye do them: Namely, that ye loue the Lord your God, & walke in all his wayes, and cleaue vnto him. Then will the Lord cast out all the nacions before you, and ye shall be the heyres of great nacions and of the that are myghtier then your selues. * All the places where on the soles of your fete shall treade, shall be your, euen fro the wilderness and from Libanus, & fro the ryuer Euphrates, vnto the uttermost fe, shall your coaste be. * There shall no man be able to stand before you: for the Lord your God shall cast the feare & drede of you vpon all the lande that ye shall treade vpon, as he hath sayde vnto you. **¶

¶ Beholde, I set before you this daye, a blessing & a curse: a blessing: ye obeye the commaundmentes of the Lord your God whych I commaunde you thys daye. And a curse: ye will not obeye the commaundmentes of the Lord your God: but turne out of the waye, whych I commaunde you thys daye, to go after strange goddes, whych ye haue not knowen.

When the Lord thy God therfore hath brought the in to the lande, whether ye goest to possesse it, thou shalt put the * blessing vpon mount Garizim, & the curse vnto mount Ebal, whych (maintaynes) are on the other syde Iordoun on the backe syde of the waye towards the gorynge doune of the sonne, in y^e lande of the Cananites whych dwell in the playne ouer agaynst Gilgal besyde the gorynge of Iordoun. whych the Lorde your God hath geuen you to inheret, and whan he hath geuen you rest fro all your enemyes toide aboute, so that ye dwell in safetye, then vnto y place whych the Lorde your God hath chosen, to put his name there, ye shall bringe all that I commaunde you: Rampe, your burnt-offerings, your offerings, your tythes, the best-offerings of your hande, & all your speciall bowes, which ye voue vnto the Lord. And ye shall reioyce before the Lorde your God, ye and your sonnes, & your daughters, your seruantes and your mapdes, and the Leuite that is wythin your gates: for as much as he hath no parte nor inheritance wyth you.

Take heede that thou offer not thy burnt-offerings in euery place y thou seest: but in the place whych the Lorde shall haue chosen in one of thy tribes, there thou shalt offer thy burnt-offerings, and there thou shalt do all that I commaunde the. For wythstandinge thou mayest kyl and eate fleish in all thy cities, what soeuer thy soule lusteth after, accordyng to the blessinge of the Lorde thy God, which he hath geuen the: both the vncleane and the cleane may eat thereof, eue as the roo, or the herd: only ye shall not eate the bloud, but poure it vpon the erth as water. Thou mayest not eate wythin thy gates the tye of thy coone, of thy wyne and of thy oyle, and the fyrr gendered of thine oten, and of thy shepe, neither any of thy bowes whych thou wilt, nor thy best-offerings or best-offeryngs of thine hande: but thou must eate them before the Lorde thy God, in the place whych the Lorde thy God hath chosen: thou, and thy sonne, and thy daughter, thy seruante and thy mapde, & the Leuite that is wythin thy gates: and thou shalt reioyce in all that thou puttest thynne habito. * Beware, that thou forsake not the Leuite, as longe as thou luyest vpon the erth.

If when the Lorde thy God hath enlarged thy border as he hath promised y, thou saye: I will eate fleshe, because thy soule longeth to eate fleshe, y mayest eate fleshe what soeuer thy soule lusteth. If the place whych the Lorde thy God hath chosen to put his name there, be so farr from the, the thou shalt kyl of thy oxen & of thy shepe which y Lord hath geuen the, as I haue commaunded the, & thou shalt eate in thine owne cite, what soeuer thy soule lusteth. * And as the roo & the herd is eaten, eue to thou shalt eate the: both the cleane and the vncleane shall eate of them. But be stryde: that thou eate not the bloude: for the bloude, that is the lyfe, and thou mayest not eate the lyfe wyth the fleshe: thou shalt not eate it, but poure it vpon the erth as water. And thou eate it not, that is maye go well wyth the, and wyth thy chylde after the: But thou shalt do that, which I saye in the syghte of the Lorde.

But thy holpe thynges which thou hast, and thy bowes & thou shalt take, & come vnto the place whych the Lorde hath chosen, and thou shalt offer thy best-offerings, both fleshe and bloude vpon the alter of the Lorde thy God, and the bloude of thynne offerings shall be poured out vpon the alter of the Lord thy God, & thou shalt eate the fleshe. Take heede, & heare all these wordes whych I commaunde the, that it maye go well wyth the, and wyth thy chylde after the for euer, y thou doest that which is good and ryght in the syghte of the Lorde thy God.

When the Lorde thy God hath destroyed the nacpous before the, whether thou goest to conquire them, & thou succeedest in theyr inheritance, and dwellest in theyr lande: Beware, that thou be not taken in a snare after them, after that they be destroyed before the, and that thou alke not after theyr Goddes, sayng: howe dyd these nacpous serue their Goddes? I will do so lyke wyse. * Nay, thou shalt not do so vnto the Lorde thy God: for all abhominacions, & y whych the Lord hateth, the same haue they done vnto theyr Goddes. For they burne both theyr sonnes and theyr daughters wyth fyre before theyr Goddes. Therefore what soeuer I commaunde you, that take heede ye do: neither do as the Lorde and y put thou nought there to, nor take ought thereof.

And let all crespyn foules be vncleane vnto you, and not be eaten of: but of all cleane foules ye maye eate. Ye shall eat of nothyng that dyeth alone: But thou shalt geue it vnto y^e stranger that is in thy cytie, that he eate it, or thou mayst sel it vnto an Aliant. y^e thou art an holy people vnto the Lorde thy God. ¶ Thou shalt not sette a hye in hye mothers implexe.

In the seventh yeare thou shalt make a freedome. * And this is y manner of the freedome: whosoever le- doth ought wyth hys hande unto his neyghboure, maye not like agayne (that wyth he hath lent) of hys neyghboure. or of his brother: because it is called the Lorde's fre yeare: yet of a stranger (and of an aleuim) thou mayst call it home agayne. But * he that is thy brother, him shalt thyne hande remyter, & wherby he shall be no bigger among you. For the Lorde shall bless the in the lande, whych the Lorde thy God greeeth the, an inheritance to possesse it: so that thou breken unto the voyce of the Lorde thy God, to ob- serve and don't thys commaundmentes, which I commaunde the this daye. for the Lorde thy God hath blessed the as he hath promy- sed the, and * thou shalt lende unto many na- tions, but thou thy selfe shalt not borrowe: And thou shalt rapgne once many nations, and they shall not rapgne once the.

* Of one of thys * brethren amonge you be poore wythin any of thy gates in thy lande which the Lorde thy God greeeth the, y shalt not harden thine heart, nor thou to thine hande fro thy poore brother: But open thyne hande unto him, & lende him sufficte for his neede, which he hath. Beware, that there be not a wyched popyte in thine heart, that thou woldest saye: The seventh yeare, the yeare of freedome is at hande, and therefore it greeeth the to loke on thy poore brother, and geue him naught & he then crye unto the Lorde against the, and it be synne unto the: But geue him, and let it not geuee thine heart to geue unto him. Because that for thys thyng, the Lorde thy God shall bless the in all thy workes, & in all that y putteth thine hande to. * & the lande shall neuer be about poore: And there- fore I commaunde the sayinge: Thou shalt open thyne hande unto thy brother that is neade and poore in thy lande.

* If thy brother an hebrue sell hym selfe to the, or an hebrue, & serue the fixe yeare, in the seventh yeare thou shalt let hym go fre from the. And when thou sendest him out fre from the, thou shalt not let hym go a waye emptye: but shalt geue hym of thy shepe, of thy coine, and of thy wyne, and geue hym of that, wher in the Lorde thy God hath blessed the. And remember, that thou wast a ser- nante in the lande of Egypte, and therefore the Lorde thy God hath com- manded the thys thyng to daye.

And yf he saye unto the * I will not go a waye from the, because he loveth the & thyne house, and is well at ease wyth the: Then shalt thou take an aule, and naye his eare to the dooze therewith, & let hym be thy serua- nte: for ever. And unto thy maybe serua- nte thou shalt do lyke wylle. And let it not geuee thine eye, wha thou tereest him go out fre fro the, for he hath bene worth a double hy- red seruaute to the in hys seruite tye yeres. And the Lorde thy God shall bless the in all that thou doest.

* All the first gebird that come of thine oren, and of thy shepe that are males, thou shalt halowe unto the Lorde thy God. Thou shalt do no worke with the first gebird of thine oren, nee there the first gebird of thy shepe: Thou shalt eate it before the Lorde thy God yeare by yeare, in the place whych the Lorde hath chosen, both thou and thyne house. If there be any defowmte therein, as yf it be lame, or blinde, or haue any other euell fauor duell, thou shalt not offer it un- to the Lorde thy God: But shalt eate it with- in thine a wne. * gates, the vncleane and the cleane indifferently, as the roo & the hee. Only eate not the bloude therof, but poure it vpon the grounde as water.

Of Easter, indifferently, and the feast of reber- naces. What offerings ought to be offered.

Inserue the * moneth of newe come, that thou mayest offer * passeouer unto the Lorde thy God. For in the moneth whan coine begetteth to ryse, the Lorde thy God brought the out of Egypte by nyght. Thou shalt therfore offer passeouer unto the Lorde thy God (and shepe and oxe) in the place whych the Lorde shall chole to put his name there. Thou shalt eate no leue- ned bread with it: but seven dayes shalt thou eate vncleuned bred therewith: eue the bred of trybulacion (for thou canst not one of the lande of Egypte in balle) that thou mayst remembre the daye, wha thou canst out of the lande of Egypte, all dayes of thy lyfe. And there shall be no leuened bread in all thy coastes seven dayes longe, neyther shall there remayne any thyng of the fesse which thou offerst the first daye at euen, un- till the morngynge.

And thou shalt seeke and care it, in the place which the Lorde thy God hath chosen, and departe on the morowe, & gett the vnto thy rite. Seue dayes thou shalt eat iweete bread, and the seuen th dayes is a gatheringe together befoze the Lorde thy God: thou shalt do no worke therein. * Seuen weekes shalt thou uoize vnto the, and begynne to nombe the seuen weekes, when thou begynnest to put the sheell to the corne. * & kepe the feast of weekes vnto the Lorde thy God, wyth a frewplowyring of thyne hande: which thou shalt geue vnto the Lorde thy God, accordyng as the Lorde thy God hath blessed thee. And remembre, that thou wast a seruante in Egypte: and thou shalt obserue & do these ordynances.

Thou shalt also obserue the feast of tabernacles seuen dayes, after that thou hast gathered in thy corne and thy wyne. And thou shalt reioyce in that thy feast, thou and thy sonne, thy daughter, thy seruante, and thy mayde, the Lewite, the stranger, and the fatherlesse & the widowe, that are wythin thy gates. * Seuen dayes shalt thou kepe holy daye vnto the Lorde thy God, in the place whych the Lorde shall choyse: for the Lorde thy God shall blesse the in all thy frutes, and in all the workes of thyne hādes, therfore shalt thou be glad. * The tymes in the yere shall all thy males appare befoze the Lorde thy God, in the place which he shall choyse: In the feast of weekes bread, in the feast of weekes, & in the feast of tabernacles. And they shall not appare befoze the Lorde emptye but euery man accordyng to the gyfte of his hāde, & accordyng to the blessinge of the Lorde thy God whych he hath geuen the.

Judges and officers shalt thou make the in all thy cyties, whych the Lorde thy God geueth thee: to see that thou kepe the lawes and they shall iudge the people righteously. * Wycht not thou the lawe, nor knowe any persone, nether take any rewarde: for gyffes blynde the wyse, & peruerse the wordes of the righteous. That whych is iust and right, shalt thou folowe, that thou mapst lye, and enioye the lande, which the Lorde thy God geueth the.

Thou shalt plante no groue of whatsoeuer trees it be, nye vnto palace of the Lorde thy God, whych thou shalt make þ. Thou shalt set the vp no pylar, which the Lorde thy God hateth.

Chapter.

Of the punishment for idolatrye. The punishment of a rebell. The Anticipation of a wyge.

1 Thou shalt offer vnto the Lorde thy God no oxe nor shepe * where in is a blemish or any defomity: for that is an abhominacion vnto the Lorde thy God.

If there be founde amonge you wyth in any of thy gates, whych the Lorde thy God geueth thee, man, or woman þ hath wrought wykednesse in the syghte of the Lorde thy God, so that they haue gone beynde hyr appointment, and gone and serued strange goddes, and worshypped them: the sonne of moone or any of the host of heauē, which I haue not commaunded, & it is tolde the, and thou hast heard of it: then shalt thou enquire diligently. And yf it be true, & the thyng of a iuretye, so be abhominacion is wrought in Israel, then shalt thou byngne soch þ mā or that womā (whych haue committed that wyked thing) vnto the gates, and shalt take the in wyth stones, tyll they dye. * At the mouth of two or thre witnesses shall be that is worthy of death, dyer: and at the mouth of 15 our witnesses let no man dye. The handes of the witnesses shall be first vpon hym, to kyll hym, and afterwarde the handes of the people, & thou shalt put the wyked awaye from the.

If there cyle a matter to harde for the iudgement betwene blond and blond, betwene pce and pce, betwene plage and plage, and the matters come to strepe wythin thy gates. Then shalt thou ayle, & gett the vp vnto the place which the Lorde thy God hath chosen, and come vnto the prestes the Lewites, and vnto the iudge that shalbe in those dayes, and aske * and they shall thewe the sentence of iudgement. And thou must do accordyng to that, whych they of that place (whych the Lorde had chosen) thewe the: and thou shalt obserue to do, accordyng to all that they entourne the. Accordyng to the sentence of the lawe which they teache the, & accordyng to the iudgement which they tell the, shalt thou do, and * bowe not from that which they thewe the, nether to þ right hāde nor to the left.

And that mā that will do presumption: ly, and wyl not heken vnto the prent (that standeth there befoze the Lorde thy God to mynstre) or vnto the iudge, that man shall dye: and thou shalt put awaye euell from Israel. And all the people shall heare and feare, and shall do no more presumption. When

When thou art come into flande whych the Lorde thy God geureth the, and enioyet it, and dwellest therein: & yf thou shalt saye. I will let a kynge ouer me lyke as all the nacions that are aboute me: The Lorde thy God shall chole: & none from amonge thy brethren shall thou make kynge ouer the, and thou shalt not let a stranger ouer the, whych is not of thy brethren. But he shall not multiplye hoyses to him selfe, ner byynge the people againe to Egypte thowge the multitude of hoyses, as for moche as yf Lorde hath sayde vnto you: ye shall hence forth go no more againe y waye. Also he shal oughte not to multiplye wyues to hym selfe, lest his brete turne awaye, neither shall he gerber him selfe and golde to moch.

And when he is set vpon the seate of hys kyngehome, he shall wyte hym out a coppe of this lawe in a boke, before yf Dyrastes the Levites. And it shall be wyth him, & he oughte to reade therein * all dayes of hys lyfe, that he maye lerne to feare the Lorde hys God, & to kepe all y wordes of this lawe and the cōdōnnūces, for to do them: and that hys hert acple not aboute hys brethren, & that he turne not from the commaundement: to the ryght hande or to the left, but that he maye prolonge hys dayes in hys kyngehome: he, and hys chyldeyn in Israel.

The Levites had no possession. The whole people must be holy. The prophet must be a signe, & how he may be known.

The Dyrastes the Levites, and all the tribe of Levy * must haue no parte nor inheritaunce wyth Israel: but shall eate the offerings of the Lorde, and hys inheritaunce: & therfore shall they haue no inheritaunce amonge their brethren: But the Lorde, he is their inheritaunce, as he hath sayde vnto the. And this is the Dyrastes dutie of the people, and of them that offer, whether it be ore or shepe: They must geue vnto the Dyraste, the shoulder, and the two chekes, and the mawe the first frutes also of thy come, wyne and oyle, and the first of y wool of thy shepe shalt thou geue hym: * For the Lorde thy God hath chole hym out of all thy tribes, to stande and to minstre in the name of the Lorde: he and hys sonnes for euer. If a Levite come out of any of thy cyties of all Israel, where he is a sojourner, and come wythall the lust of hys herte vnto the place wher the Lorde hath chole: he shall mynstre in the name of the Lorde hys God, as hys other brethren the Levites do, whych remaine there before the Lorde. And they shall haue the poeponys to eate, bryde that which cometh to hym of the patrimonye of hys elders.

* When thou art come into flande whych the Lorde thy God geureth the, it shal thou lerne not to do after y abhominacions of those nacions. Let ther not be founde amonge you any one, that maketh hys sonne or daughter to go thowge the fyre, or that wyth wythcraft, or a choise out of dayes * or that regardeth the svenge of foules, or a soicerre, or a cham-mar, or that counceleth wyth spyes, or a sothyayer, or that asketh the truth at the that be dead, for all that do such thynges, are abhominacyon vnto the Lorde: and because of these abhominacions the Lorde thy God doeth cast the out before the. Thou shalt be perfecte therfore * without blame in the sygne of true Lorde thy God, for these nacions whych thou shalt conquer, herken vnto choisers out of dayes, and vnto soicerres: But the Lorde thy God hath not suffered the to do.

The Lorde thy God wyll * styll wyte vnto the a prophete amonge you: cyen of thy brethren, lyke vnto me * vnto hym ye shall tarye, accordinge to all that thou dyest of the Lorde thy God in word, in the daye of the gatheringe together, when thou shalt be: * Let me heare the voyce of my Lorde God no more, nor se this greute fyre any more, that y be not. And the Lorde sayde vnto me: they haue well spoken: y will raise them vp a prophete from amonge their brethren lyke vnto the, and will put my wordes in hys mouth, and he shall speake vnto them all that y shall commaunde hym. And whosoener will not hearken vnto the, which he shall speake in my name, y will requyre of hym.

* But the prophete which shall presume to speake a worde in my name, which y haue not commaunded hym to speake, or that speaketh in the name of strange goddes, the same prophete shall dye. And yf thou saye in thine hert: howe shall we knowe the worde whych the Lorde hath spoken * & thou shalt knowe that thou art. And whē a prophete speaketh in the name of the Lorde, & yf thynges folowe not nor come to passe, that is the chynge which y Lorde hath not spoken. But the prophete hath spoken it presumptuously: Thou shalt not therfore be afrayed of him.

heſe are the wordes of the * appoyntment, which the Loide commaunded Moſes, to make wth the chyldren of Iſrael in the lãde of Moab, beſide ſ appoyntment which he made wth them in horeb, and Moſes called all Iſrael, and ſayde vnto them: Ye haue ſene all that the Loide dyd beſore poure eyes in the lãde of Egypt, vnto Pharaon and vnto all hyſ ſeruauntes, and vnto all hyſ lãde, the grente temptacions whych thye eyes haue ſene, thoſe grente myracles and wonders: and yet the Loide hath not geue you an herte to perceyue, and eyes to ſe, and eares to heare vnto thys daye.

Ye ſtãde thys daye euery one of you beſore the Loide poure God: poure captaynes, poure trybes, poure elders, poure officers, and all the men of Iſrael: poure chyldren alſo, poure wyues & the ſtranger that is in thye hoſe * ſe the beuer of thy wodd, vnto the bynne of the water: that thou ſhoudeſt go into the appoyntment of the Loide thy God, & into his othe: whych the Loide thy God maiketh wth ſ this daye. I make not thys bonde a chyſe othe wth you onely: but both wth hym ſe at ſtanber here wth vs this daye beſore the Loide oure God, and alſo wth hym that is not here wth vs this daye. And ye gaue ſene theſe abhominacions and theſe ydolles: (wood & ſtone, ſylue and golde) whych were amonge them.

And me shall I saye: because they leste the testament of the Lorde God of theyr fathers, whyche he made with them, when he brought them out of the lade of Egypt. For they went, and serued strange goddes, & worshipped them: Godden whyche they knewe not, and whyche had geuen them nought. And the wrath of the Lorde waxed whote agaynst this lande, to brynge vpon it all the curses that are writte in this boke. And the Lorde cast them out of theyr lade in angre, wrath, and greate indignacon, and cast them into a strange lande, as this daye beareth witness. The secrettes of the Lorde our God * are opened vnto vs, and to our chyliden for euer, & we maye do all the wordes of this lawe.

¶ The wordes of God is at hande.

And when all these wordes are come vpon the, the blessing and the curse which I haue set before the, thou shalt turne vnto thine herte, amonge all the nacions whether the Lorde thy God hath chosen the, and come agayne vnto the Lorde thy God, and herken vnto his voyce in all these thynges that I commaunde the this daye: thou & thy chyliden wyshall thynke herte and all thy soule: And the Lorde thy God wyll turne thy captiuite, and haue compassyon vpon the, & wyll turne, and set the agayne fre all the nacions, amonge whyche the Lorde thy God shall haue scattered the. Though thou walt cast vnto the extreine partes of heauen: euen from thence wyll the Lorde thy God gether the, & fre thence wyll he sett the, & the Lorde thy God wyll brynge the into the lande whyche thy fathers possessed, & thou shalt entre it. And he wyll renewe the hyndnesse, and multiplye the nombre thy fathers. * And the Lorde thy God wyll circumsyde thynke herte, and the hert of thy seed, that thou mayest loue the Lorde thy God wyshall thynke herte, and all thy soule, & thou mayest lye. And the Lorde thy God wyll put all these curses vpon thynke enemies, and on them & hate the, & & persecute the. But thou shalt turne, and herke vnto the voyce of the Lorde, and do all his commandementes, which I commaunde the this daye. And the Lorde thy God wyll make the plentiful in all the wordes of thynke hands, in the fruite of thy bodye, and in the fruite of thy cattell, and in the fruite of thy lande for thy welch. * For the Lorde wyll turne agayne and restore ouer the to do the good, as he restored ouer thy fathers: If thou herke onely vnto the voyce of the Lorde thy God, to kepe his commandementes and his ordinaunces which are written in the boke of this lawe, and & thou turne vnto the Lorde thy God wyshall thynke herte and all thy soule.

* For the commaundement which I commaunde the this daye, is not separated from the, neither farre of. It is not in heauen, that thou nearest to: (completinge) I saye: who shall go by for vs to beuile, and set it vs, that we maye heare it, and do it: Fether it is bepe the see: that thou shouldest saye: who shall go ouer the see for vs, and set it vs, & we maye heare it, and do it: But the word is very nyr vnto the: en in thy mouth and in thynke herte, that thou do it.

* Schole I haue set before the this daye lye and good, death and euill: For wher as I commaunde the this daye, to loue the Lorde thy God, to walke in his wayes, and to kepe his commandementes, his ordinaunces, and his lawes (yf thou so do) & shall lye and multiplye, and the Lorde thy God shall blesse the in & lande, whether thou goest to possesse it.

But and yf thynke herte turne awaye, so that & wyll not heare: but shalt goo astraye, and worshippinge strange goddes, and serue them, I pronounce vnto you also this daye, that ye shall surely perishe, and that ye shall not prolonge youre dayes vpon the lande whether thou passest ouer Iordan, to go and possesse it.

* I call heauens erth to recorde this daye agaynst you, that I haue set before you lye and death, blessinge & cursynge: Therefore chose lye, that both thou and thy seed maye lye, that thou mayest loue the Lorde thy God, and be obedient to his voyce, & cleaue vnto him: For he is thy lye, and the length of thy dayes, that thou mayest dwell vpon the erth whyche the Lorde sware vnto thy fathers: Abraham, Ishaac and Jacob, to geue them.

And to Aser he sayde: Aser shall be blessed with chyldren: he shall be acceptable vnto his bretheren, & shall dryppe his foete in oyle: Thy dwellinge be yron and brass, and thyne age be as thy yowthe.

There is none lyke vnto y^e God of Israel: which though he sit vpon the heaues as vpon a houle, yet is he thy helper, whose glory is in the celestiaall places. And of euer they were a slepe, the came vnto them vpon þ rooſſe, & ſayde vnto the men: I knowe þ the Lord haþe geuen vpon vs, & the inhabiteurs of the land ſaynt at the preſence of you. For we haue heard, how þ Lord * diued vnto þ water of the redds ſee beſore you when you came out of Egipt, & what you dyd vnto þ two kynges of the Amoitres, that were on the other ſide Jordan * Schon, & Og, whom ye utterly deſtroyed. And as ſone as we had heard theſe thynges * we were ſore aſcared, & oure he-tes dyd faile. And thereremayned no more courage in any man at the preſence of you. For the Lord poure God, he is þ God in heauen aboue, & on the erth beneath.

Now therfore, I pray you: ſweare vnto me * by the Lord, þas I haue ſhewed you mercie, ye ſhall allo theſe mercie vnto my that ye ſhall ſaue alþur, bothe my father, & my mother, my brethren, & my ſiſters, and all that they haue. And that ye ſhall helþ:

And the men answered her: oure liues for you to dye, þ þe offer not this oure liues.
And when þ Lord haþe geuen vs the arde * thowas a window: for her houſe was by the robine wall. And ſhe dwelt by gett you into the mountayne, leſt the purſuers mete you, & hyde poure ſelues there theſe dayes, vntill the purſuers be returned and then ſhall ye goo poure awne waye.

And the men ſayde vnto her: we will be blameleſſe of riſtþy othe, which thou haſt made vs ſweare. Scholde, when we come into þ lãde, þ ſhalt hynde this purple coar-de in the widow, which þ laſteth vs downe bye. And thou ſhalt bring thy father, & thy mother, thy brethren, and all thy fathers houſhold, euen into thy houſe. And then whoſoeuer doth go out at the doores of thy houſe, into the ſtreet, & his bloude ſhall be vpon his awne head, & we wilbe guileleſſe.
And whoſoeuer ſhall be with the i the hou-mannes hãde touche him: And þf thou utter theſe oure wordes, we wilbe quyte of thy othe, which thou haſt made vs ſweare.

And ſhe ſayde: accordyge vnto poure word-es, ſo be it: and ſhe ſent them awaye to departe. And the bounde the purple coarde in the widow.

And they departed, and came into þ moutaine, and there abode theſe dayes, vntill the purſuers were returned. And the purſuers ſought them thowoe out all þ waye but founde them not. And the two men returned, & deſcended from the mountayne, and paſſed ouer, and came to Josua the ſonne of Nun, and tolde hym all that had chaun-ced them. And they ſayd vnto Josua: the Lord truly haþe deliuered into oure han-des all þ lãde, and all the inhabiteurs of the contrey ſaynte at the preſence of vs.

¶ The. iiii. Chapter.

^{act. vii. l.} And it fortuned, that when the people were all gone ouer Jordān, the Lorde spake vnto Josua, sayinge: Take you twelue men out of the people, out of euery tribe a man. And commaunde you them, sayinge: take you hence out of the myddes of Jordān (euen out of the place where the preastes stood in a reedynes) twelue ^{act. vii. l.} stones, which ye shall take awaye with you, and leaue them in p^r place, where you shall lodge this night. And Josua called the twelue men, which he had prepared of the children of Israel, out of euery tribe a man, and Josua sayde vnto them: gett you before the arche of the Lorde poure God, euen thowzow the myddes of Jordā. And take vp euery man of you a stone vpon his shulder, according vnto the nombre of the tribes of the children of Israel, that this may be a signe among you. That whē poure childre aske thier fathers in tyme to come, sayinge: what meane these stones with you? Ye maye answer: them how that p^r waters of Jordā deuyned at the presence of the arche of the appoyntment of the Lorde. For when it went ouer Jordān, p^r waters of Jordā deuyned: And these stones are become a memoriall vnto the children of Israel for euer.

where the fete of the preastes which bare the arche of the testamēt, stood. And there haue they continued vnto this dape. For the preastes which bare p^r arche stood in the myddes of Jordā, vntill all was finished that the Lorde commaunded Josua to saue vnto the people, according to all that Moses charged Josua. And p^r people halted, and wet ouer. It fortuned also, that whā all the people were cleane ouer, p^r arche of p^r Lorde went ouer also, & p^r preastes before the people. ^{act. vii. l.} And the childre of Manasse, & the childre of Gad, & halfe the tribe of Manasse went before the childre of Israel armed, as Moses charged the. Eue forty thousande prepared for warre, wet before the Lorde vnto battell, thowzow the playne of Jericho. ^{act. vii. l.} That dape the Lorde magnified Josua in the sight of all Israel, and they feared him, as they feared Moses all dayes of his lyfe.

And the Lorde spake vnto Josua, sayinge: commaunde the preastes that beare the arche of witnesse, to come vp out of Jordā. Josua therfore commaunded p^r preastes, sayinge: Come ye vp out of Jordā. And when the preastes bare the arche of the appoyntment of the Lorde were come vp out of the myddes of Jordā, and as sone as the soles of the preastes fete were set on the drye lād, p^r waters of Jordā returned agayne vnto thier place, & went ouer all thier bankes, as they dyd before. And the people came vp out of Jordā the truth dape of the fressh moneth, and pitched in Gilgal, euen in the east border of the epte Jericho.

And the twelue stones which they toke out of Jordā, did Josua pitche in Gilgal. And he spake vnto the children of Israel, sayinge: ^{act. vii. l.} Ye poure childre aske theie fathers in tyme to come, & saye: what meane these stones? ¶ The Canaanites are asayed.

^{act. vii. l.} And it fortuned, p^r whē all p^r kinges of p^r Amorites which are beyond Jordān wet ward, & all p^r kinges of the Canaanites which were by the see, heard, how the Lorde had dyed by the waters of Jordā before the childre of Israel, vntill they were gone ouer: they heretofore faunted for feare. And ther was no sperte in them any moore, for the presence of the childre of Israel.

That same tyme þe Lorde sayde vnto Josua: * 43. the thare hynnes of stone: & god to agayne and circumsise the children of Israel þe seconde tyme. And Josua made him thare hynnes: of stone: & circumsise the children of Israel in the place called þe hills of þe foel hymes. And this is þe cause why Josua circumsise all the people þe came out of Egypte: Namely such as were males because þe all the men of warre, died in the wilderness þe first tyme, after they came out of Egypte. For all the people þe came out were circumsise. But all þe people that were boyn in the wilderness by the waie after they came out of Egypte, were not circumsise. For the children of Israel walked foure yeres in the wilderness, tyl all þe people of the men of warre þe came out of Egypte were consumed, because they harkened not vnto the voyce of the Lorde.

Wherefore the Lorde sware, that he wolde not lerne them the land: which the Lorde swore vnto they fathers, that he wolde geue vs, euen a land: that floweth with milk & honney. And their children who he set vp in this stead: the Josua circumsise: for they were uncircumsise, because they circumsise them not by the waie. And when they had circumsise all the people, they abode still together in the holte till they were whole. And the Lorde sayde vnto Josua: this daye I haue taken awaye þe name of Egypte fro you: wherefore the name of the same place is called Gilgal vnto this daye. And þe children of Israel abode in Gilgal: and helde the feast of passeouer the fourethe daye of þe moneth at ende in the plaine of Jerico. And they did eat of þe coze of þe land on the morowe after passeouer.

Swete cakes & parched coze in þe like same rowe, after they had begonne to eat of þe coze of the lande, necher had the children of Israel * Manna any moare, but they did eat of the coze of the lande of Canaan that yere.

And it fortuned that when Josua was nye to Jericho, he lyste vp his eyes & looked:
and behold, there stode a man against him, hauing a sword drawen in his hande. And Josua wet vnto hym, and sayde vnto him:
arte thou on oure syde or on oure aduer-saries. And he sayde, Naye, but as a captaine of the hoste of the lord am I now come. And Josua fell on his face to the erth, and dūd reuerence, & sayde vnto hym, what sayst my Lorde vnto hys seruant? And þe captayne of the Lorders holte sayde vnto Josua: * do the word of the Lorde, for the place wher thou standest, is holy. And Josua did so.

the Lorde sayd vnto Josua: beholde, I haue geuen into thyne hand Jericho and bee hyng and the strong men of warre.

And þe shall compass the cite, all þe that be men of warre, & go rounde aboute it once and so shall you do fyve dayes. And seven preestes shall beare before the Arke, seven trōpettes of rāmes hornes: & that shal be in the Arche. And the seuenih daye, þe shall compasse the cite seuen tymes, and the prea-sters shall blowe with the trōpettes. And when they make a longe blasle with the rammes horne, & þe heare the sounde of the horne, all the people shall shoute as a grete shoute. And the shall the wall of þe cite fall doune, and the people shall ascende vp, euery man straight before him. And Josua the sonne of Numi, called the preastes: and sayde vnto them: take vp the arche of the appoyntment, & lett seuen preastes beare seuen trōpettes of rāmes hornes before the arche of the Lorde, And þe sayde vnto the people, go and compass the cite: and lett him þe be harnessed, go before the arche of the Lorde. And when Josua had spoken vnto the people, the seuen preastes bare the seuen trōpettes of rāmes hornes, and went forth before the arche of the Lorde, & blewe with the trōpettes, and the arche of the conuainit of the Lorde folowed the.
And all the men of armes went before the preastes, that blewe with the trōpettes, and the common people came after the arche: and the preastes that went blewe with trōpettes. And Josua commaunded the people sayinge: Ye shall not shoute, ner make any noise w your voyce, necher shall any woyde procede out of your mouth, vntill þe daye I bid you shoute, then shall þe shoute. And so þe arche of the Lorde compassed the cite, and went aboute it once: and they retourned into the holte, and lodged there.
And Josua rose erly in the morning, and the preastes toke vp þe arche of the Lorde, and seuen preastes bare seuen trōpettes of rāmes hornes, & went before the arche of the Lorde, and blew with the trōpettes.
And all the men of armes went before them, but the common people came after the arche of the Lorde, which wet before with the blowing of the trōpettes. And the seconde daye they compassed the cite once, & retourned agayne into the holte, & so they dūd fyve dayes.

And when the seuenih daye came, they rose erly: euen with the dawninge of þe daye, and compassed the cite after the same maner seuen tymes: only that daye they com-passed the cite seuen tymes.

And at the fourth tyme, when þe prestes blew wth the trumpets, Joshua sayd vnto þe people: Nowe, for þe Lorde hath geuen you þe cytie. And the cytie shalbe dāned wth bothe it and all that are therein, vnto the Lorde: onþe Rahab the harlot shal lye, and all that are with her in the house, because the þe hidde the messengers that we sent. And in answere be ye wāce of the excommunicate thinges, lest ye make poure selues excommunicate, & take of the excommunicate thinges, and make þe holde of Israel excommunicate and trouble it. But all þe siluer, golde, vessels of brasse, & þe shalbe consecrate vnto the Lorde, & shal come to his treasure.

And the people shewed, and blew wth trumpets. And when the people heard þe soude of the troye, they shewed wth a great shoute: & the wall fell downe, so þe people wet vp into þe cytie, euery man streight before him, & toke þe cytie. And they vterly destroyed all þe was in the cytie, bothe man and woman, younge and olde, oxe, shepe & Asse, with the edge of the swerde.

Then Joshua sayde vnto the two mē that had spyed out þe contrey: go into þe harlot's house, and bringe out thence the woman, and all that she hath, as ye sware to her. And the younge men that were spyed, went in, and brought out Rahab, and her father and mother and her brethren, and all þe had. And they brought out all her kith, & put them without the holde of Israel.

And they burnt the cytie with fire, and all that was therein. Onþe the siluer and þe golde, the vessels of brasse and yron, they put vnto þe treasure of the house of þe Lord. And Joshua saued Rahab the harlot, & her fathers householde, and all that she had, & she dwelt in Israel, euen vnto this daye because she hidde the messengers, which Joshua sent to spye out Jericho.

And Joshua sware at that tyme, sayinge: cursed be the man before the Lorde, that riseth vp, & buildeth this citie Jericho: he shall laye the foundation * in his eldest sonne, and in his yongest sonne shal he sett vp the gates of it. And to the Lord was wth Joshua, and his fame was noyed thowode out all landes.

¶ The vii. Chapter.

¶ To be speken out. Acan to Moyses.

But yet þe children of Israel testified in the * excommunicate thinges: And * Acan the sonne of Carmi, the sonne of Zabdi, the sonne of Zache of the tribe of Iuda, toke of the excommunicate thinges.

And the wrath of the Lorde waxed whote agaynst the children of Israel.

And Joshua sent mē from Jericho to Hai, which is helpe Bethauen, on the east syde of Bethel, & spake vnto them, sayinge: gett you vp, & besee the countrey. And the men went vp, & spyed out Hai. And returned to Joshua, and sayde vnto him, Iet not all the people go vp, but let as it were a two or thre thousande men goo vp, and smyte Hai and make not all the people to labour therfor, for they are but fewe.

And so there went by thertier of þe people, aboute a thre thousande men, & they flied before the men of Hai. And the men of Hai smote of them vpo a thretye and sixe men: for they chased them fro before. & gate euen vnto Bethartim, & smote them in the goinge doune. Wherefore þe hertes of þe people * for feare melted a waye like water. And Joshua rent his clothes, and fell to the erth vpon his face before þe arke of the Lorde vntill the euen tyme, he and the elders of Israel, & put erth vpon their heddes.

And Joshua sayde * Alas, O Lorde God, wherefore hast þe brought thys people ouer Jordan, to deliuer vs into the hande of the Amozites, and to deliue vs: wold to God we had * bene content, & dwelt on the other syde Jordan. Oþe Lorde what shall I saye, when Israel turneth their backs before their enemyes: surely the Canaanites, and all þe inhabitants of þe lande shal beare of it, & shal conspire agaynst vs, & deliue the name of vs out of the worlde. And what wilt thou do vnto thy myghtie name?

And the Lorde sayde vnto Joshua, gett þe vp, wherfore I seest thou thus vpo the face? Israel hath synned, & they haue transgressed myne appointment, which I commaunded them: for they haue taken of the excommunicate thinges, and haue hidde, and dissembled, & put them vnto their owne stuffe. And therefore is it that þe children of Israel cannot stande before their enemyes, but shal turne their backs before their enemyes because they be excommunicate. Therefore will I be wth you any moare, except ye rote out þe excommunicate fro amonge you.

* Alþ therefore, a sanctifier * the people, and saye: sanctifie poure selues agaynst to Amozite: for to sayd þe Lord God of Israel

¶ There is a damned thinge amonge you (O Israel) & therfore ye cannot stande agaynst poure enemyes, vntill ye haue put þe damned thinge from amonge you. O Amozite moznig, therfore ye shal be brought accoring to poure tribes. And þe tribe which the Lord rethet, shal come accoring to þe kynreds therof. And þe kynred which the Lord shal fide gylet, shal come by householders. And þe householde which þe Lord shal fide faulte, shal come man by man. And he þe is foude in þe excommunication, shalbe burnt with fire, he and all that he hath, because he hath transgressed the couenaunt of the Lord and wrought folpe in Israel.

And so Josua rose vp erly in the mornynge and broughte Israel by their tribes: and þe tribe of Iuda was caught. And he broughte the hyndres of Iuda, and toke the þ knere of þ zarchites, and toke the þ knere of the zarchites, man, vp man, & zaddi was caught. And he broughte his household mā þu man, and Acan the sonne of Carny, the sonne of zaddi, the sonne of zarchi in the tribe of Iuda was caught.

D And Josua sayde vnto Acan: my sone, I beseeche the, geue gloste to þ Lord God of Israel, & geue hi prais, & thewe me what thou hast don, hyde it not from me. And Acan answered Josua, & sayde: of a truthe I haue spured agaynst the Lord God of Israel, & thus & thus haue I done. I sawe among the spore a goodly Babylonish garment, & two hundred sicles of siluer, & a tonge of golde of fyfte sicles weyghte, and I couered them, & toke them. And behold, theþe hydde in the crthe in my tent, and the siluer is the vnder.

And so Josua sent messengers: which whā they ranne vnto his tē, beholde, they were hid in his tent, and the spiner there vnder.

Therefor they toke the out of the myddell of his tent, and broughte them vnto Josua, and vnto all the chyldre of Israel, & laped them out before the Lord.

And Josua toke Acan the sonne of zarchi, and the siluer, & the garment, and the edge of golde, and his sonnes & his daughters, his oren, & his affres, his shepe, & his tent, & all that he had: and all Israel wyth hym broughte them vnto the valepe of Acoi.

And Josua sayde: In as moche as thou haste troubled vs, the Lord shall trouble þ this dape. And all Israel stoned him with stones, and burned the with fire, and ouerwhelmed them with stones. And they cast vps him a great heape of stones vnto this dape. And so the Lord turned from the wyathe of his indignacion. And the name of the place is called þ valepe of Acoi vnto this dape.

The .viii. Chapter.

¶ The fregre and wymping of Hai. The hyng thereof is bap, Josua secretly by an altar, he blasfemy the people, shall þe take vnto poure selus: And laye a watch vnto the towne, on the backsyde thereof.

And so Josua arose, and all the men of warre, to go vp agaynst hai. And Josua chose out theþe thousande stronge men of warre, & sent the awaye by nyght. And he commaunded them, sayinge: beholde, þe shall lye awaye vnto þ towne on the backsyde thereof. So not wey farr from þ cytie, but be all readye. And I and all þ people þare with me, will appoche vnto the cytie. And 25 when they come out agaynst vs, as they did at the first tyme the will the flee before the. For they will come oute after vs & we will bringe them out of the cytie. For they will saye: they flee before vs, as at þ first tyme: & we will flee before the. In the meane tyme shall þe lye vnto the valepe, & theþe shall cytie: For þ Lord poure God will deliuer it into poure hāde. And when þe haue taken þ cytie, þe shall set it on fire.

Accordinge to the commaundement of the Lord that þe do: beholde, I haue charged you. Josua therefore sent the forth, & they went to lye awaye, & abode betwene Bethel and Hai, on the west syde of the cte of hai. But Josua lodged that nyght amonge the people. And Josua rose vp erly in the mornynge, and nombed the people, & wēt vp, he & the elders of Israel before the people agaynst hai. And all the men of warre that were with him, wēt vp and dyne npe, and came agaynst the cytie, and ycted on the north syde of hai, & there was a valepe betwene them and hai. And he toke vps a fync thousande men, and put them to lye awaye, betwene Bethel & hai, on þ west syde of þ cytie. And they put þ people (euf all the polke that were on the northsyde) agaynst the cytie, and the lperz awaye on the west. And Josua walked þ same nyght in the myddes of the valepe.

And it fortuned, þ when the hyng of hai sawe it they halted and rose vp earlye, and the men of the cytie went oute agaynst Israel to battell, he & all his people, at a tyme apointed, euen before the playne, and wilt not that there were lperz awaye on the backsyde of the cytie.

And Josua & all Israel sapned them selus to be put to the worse before the, & fled towarde the wildernesse. And all þ people of þ towne were called together, to folowe after them. And they folowed after Josua & were dāwē a waye from the cytie: And there was not a man left in hai & in Bethel, þ wēt not out after Israel. And they left the cytie open, & folowed after Israel.

And the Lord sayde vnto Josua: stretch out þ spere þ is in thine hāde, towarde hai, for I will geue it into thy hāde. And Josua stretched stretched out the spere þ he had in his hãde, towardes the cite. And þ lyers awayte rose quicklye oute of their place, & ranne a lloone as Josua had stretched oute his hande, and they entered into the cite and toke it, & hãtred, & lett the cite on fire. And when þ men of hãiloked backe after them, they sawe þ smoke of the cite assende vp to heauẽ. And they had no leysure to see either thys waie or þ, & the people þ fledd to þ wylbernelle, turned backe agayne vpon the folowers.

¶ And when Josua & all Israel sawe that the lyers awayte had take the cite, & that the smoke of it ascended, they turned agayne and layed on the men of hãt. And the other yssued oute of the cite agaynst them. And so were they in þ middes of Israel: for these were on the one syde of them, & the este on the other syde. ¶ And they layed vpo them, so þ they lett none of the shape, nor remayne. And the kynge of hãt they toke alpine, & brought hym to Josua. And when Israel had made an ende of slaying all the inhabytars of hãt in the felde of the wylbernelle, where they chafed them, & when they were all fallen on the edge of the swerde, vntyll they were wasted, all the Israelites returned vnto hãt, & smote it in the edge of the swerde, And all that fell that daye, both of men & women, were threue thousande, euen all the men of hãt.

¶ Jos Josua plucked not hys hande backe agayne, which he stretched oute vpo þ spere, vntyll he had utterly destroyed all þ inhabitatours of hãt. ¶ Only the cattell and the spoye of þ cite, Israel toke vnto them selues, according vnto the woide of þ Loide, which he commaunded Josua. And Josua sett hãt on fyre, and made it an heape for euer, and a wylbernelle, euen vnto thys daye. ¶ And þ kynge of hãt he hãged on tre, vntyll euen. ¶ And a lloone as the sonne was goinge downe, Josua commaunded þ they shulde take the earthen dounce of the tre, and calke it on the enterisg of the gate of the cite, and ¶ laye thereon a great heape of stones, that remayneth vnto this daye.

¶ Then Josua ¶ yple an altare vnto the Loide God of Israel, in mount Ethall, as Moyses the seruant of the Loide commaunded the chyldre of Israel, and as it is written in the ¶ boke of the lawe of Moyses: an ¶ altare of whole stones, ¶ once which no man hath yple an cole of yron. And they sacrificed thereon burnt sacrifices vnto the Loide, and offered peace offrynges. And he wrote there vpo the stones, a rehearsall of the lawe of Moyses, and wrote it in the presence of the chyldren of Israel.

the þreastles, & were Leuites, which bare the arche of the apointment of the Loide: as well the straunger, as they þ were boine amonge the: halfe on them on þ foreronte of the mounte Garisim, and halfe of them on the foreronte of mount Ethall: as Moyses the seruant of the Loide had commaunded before, that they shulde blesse þ people Israel. Afterward he reb all the woide of the lawe, the blessings and cursings, according to all that is wyrt in the boke of the lawe: And there was not one woide of all that Moyses commaunded, which Josua read not before all the egergarpon of Israel: The women and chyldre, (and the straungers that were come) lodyng amonge them.

The ix. Chapter.

The Gibeonites obteyne grace of Josua.

¶ And it occurred that wde all the kyn- Ages that dwell on thys syde Jordan in the hilles and valeys, and alonge by all the coastes of the great see, our agaynst Libanon (Ramel the berithes, þ Amourites, the Cananites, the Perethites, the Heuites, and the Jebusites) herd the rof, they gathered them selues together, to fyghe agaynst Josua and agaynst Israel with one accord.

¶ And the inhabitours of Gibeon heard what Josua had done vnto Jericho, and to hãt: And they did woike wyrt, & went, and made them selues ambassadors, and tokes: thre bitaples, and albe sackes vpo their Asses, and wyne botelles olde, and red and whie, and olde clouted shos vpo their feete, and their raymet was olde, and all their piouson of bread was dyed by, and ho- red. And they came vnto Josua vnto the ho- ste, to Gilgal, and sayde vnto him and vnto all the men of Israel: We be come from a farre countrey, and now make þ agreement with vs. And the men of Israel sayde vnto the heuite: paradyenture thou dwellest amonge vs, and then howe can I make peace with the?

¶ And they sayde vnto Josua: we are thy seruantes. And Josua sayde vnto them a- gayne: what are þe: and whence come þe? They answered him: We s a verie farre countrey thy seruantes are come, for the name of the Loide thy God: for we haue heard þ fame: of the power of him, and all that he did in Egypte, and all that he dyd to the two ¶ kynges of the Amourites þ were beyond Jordan, Sehon kynge of Hesbon, and Mo- kynge of Basan, which was at Jheroth. Wherefore oure elders and all the inhabytours of oure countrey spake to vs, sayng: take bitaples vpon to come by þ waie, & go mete them, and saye vnto them: we are your seruantes. ¶ And the men toke of their vitayles, and collected not with the mouth of the Lord. And Iolua made peace wth them, and * made a conuention with the, that they shoulde be iudged to Iue: & the Lordes of the congregacion were vnto them. And it fortyned, p^{er} the dayes after they had made peace wth the, they hearde that they were their neybourcs, & p^{er} they dwelte amonge them. And the chyld of Israel toke their Iouner, and came vnto their cities the rhyde daye: and their cities were Gibeon, & Caphira, Beeroth and karai Iarim. And the chyld of Israel slewe them not, because p^{er} Lordes of p^{er} congregacion had sworn vnto them by the Lord God of Iaracel. And all the multitude murmured against p^{er} Lordes. But all the Lordes sayde vnto all the congregacion: we haue sware vnto the by ther didas the Lordes sayde vnto them.

And Iolua sent for them, & talked wth them, And sayde: wherefore haue ye beggled vs, sayenig: We dwell farre from you, whā ye dwell amonge vs: and now are you cursed, & there shall not cease to be of you, bond men and druggers of wood & druggers of water for the house of my God.

And they answered Josua and sayde: It was tolde the seruantes, how that y^e Lord th^y God had commaunded his seruant Josu-

And it fortuned that whē I Dou-redlye Ioye of Ierusalem had heard how Iosua had taken hail, & had destroyed it, and how that as he had done to Iericho and her kyng, unto so he had done to hail and her kyng, and how the Iuda bitours of Sibeon had made peace with Iſraell, and were amonge them, they feared euerthyng, for Sibeon was a great citty, as any citty of the byngdom, & was greater then hail, and all the meether of were veruyngare.

¶ Therefore Adonizdec kyng of Ierusalem sent vnto hopham kyng of hebron, and vnto bircan kyng of Ierimuth, & vnto Iaphia kyng of Lachis, and vnto Debte kyng of Eglon, saying: Come ye vnto me, & weale me, y^e we may smyte Gibcon: for they haue made peace with Iosiah and with y^e childre of Isracel. Therefore y^e v. l. kynages of y^e Abron, the kyng of Ierimuth, the kyng of Lachis, y^e kyng of Eglon gathered the felous together, they withall their hostes, & bele

And the men of Gilbeon sent vnto Iosua & to pholte to Gilgal, sayinge: withdrowe not thy hande frō thy seruantes. come vp to vs, to laue vs, & to helpe vs: for al the kinges of y Amorit which dwell i y mon-

And to Iolua ascended from Gilgall, be all and all the people of waerre with him, & all the men of myghte, and the Lord saide vnto Iolua, feare them not, for I haue ouercom red them into thine hande. Forther that nyg came vnto them tobedye, and went vnto Gilgall all nyght. And the Lord troublid them before Isracell, and dede them with a great slaughter at Gibeon, and casted them a longe the waye that gothe vnto Betho ron, and houre them to Chisla & Wakeda.

And it requered, y as they did for Isracell, e were in the going doune to Bethodon, the Lord call downe great stones from heaue vnto them, vntill Chisla. And there were nue dead with hable stones, then they were,
whom the chyldren of Isracell dede wyth the sword.

Then spake Iohua before the Lorde, in the daye when þe Lorde deliuered the Kino rikes before the chylidren of Israhel, and he saide in the pght of Israhel. * Some haue thou kill vpon Ebron, and thou addest in Aidon. And the sonne abode, and the mone stode still, vntill the people aduiged them selues vpo their enemies. As not this time felge vñ þe boke of y pghtes. ¶ The sonne (A lare) abode in the myddes of heauē and halted

hasted not to goo doune by þ space of a whole daye. And ther was no daye lyke that, before it, or after it, that the Lorde heard þ voyce of a man. For the Lorde fought for Israell.

¶ And Iosua returned and all Israell with hym, vnto the hoste to Gilgall: but the spue kynges fledde, and were yd in a caue at Makeda. And it was tolde Iosua of one saying, the spue kynges are founde hidin a caue which is at Makeda. And Iosua sayd rowle great stones vpon the mouthe of the caue, and let men by it, for to kepe them. And stande ye not offe, but folowe after poure enemyes, ad smyte all the hindmost, And soffre them not to entre into the cyties, for the Lorde poure God hath deliuered them into poure hāde. And it fortuned, when Iosua and the chyldre of Israell had made an ende of slaying them with an exceedinge great slaughter tyll they were wasted, the rest that remayned of them, entered into walled cyties.

And all the people returned to the hoste, to Iosua at Makeda in peace, neither dyd any man moue hym tonge agaynst the chyldren of Israell. Then sayde Iosua: open the mouth of the caue, and bringe oute yfse. v. kynges vnto me oute of the caue. And they dyd so, and brought those spue kynges vnto hym, oute of the caue, euen the kyng of Ierusalem, the kyng of Hebron, the kyng of Iarmuth, the kyng of Lachis, and the kyng of Eglon.

¶ And it fortuned, that when they brought oute those kynges vnto Iosua: Iosua called for all the men of Israell, and sayde vnto the chiefe of the me of warre, which were with hym: come hene, & put poure fete vpon the neckes of these kynges. And they came nene: and put their fete vpon the neckes of them. And Iosua sayde vnto the: Ye shall not feare, nee be saynt harted. But be strong and plucke vp poure berres, for thus shall the Lorde do to all poure enemyes agaynst whom ye feight.

And then Iosua smote them, and felled them, & hanged the on spue trees. And they hanged still vpon þ trees, vntill the euenyng. And at þ goyng doune of þ sonne it fortuned that Iosua gaue commaundement, and they toke the doune of þ * trees, ad cast the into þ caue, (where in they had bene dyd), & layd great stones on þ caues mouthe, which remayne vnto this daye.

And that same daye Iosua toke Makeda, and smote it with þ edge of the swerde, and the kyng thereof also * destroyed he utterly, with all the soules that were therein, and let nought remayne. And he dyd to the kyng of Makeda * as he dyd to the kyng of Iericho.

Then Iosua went from Makeda, and all Israell with hym vnto Libna, & fought agaynst Libna. And the Lorde deliuered it and the kyng thereof into the hand of Israell, and he smote it with the edge of the swerde, ad all the soules that were therein. He let nought remayne in it, but dyd vnto the kyng thereof as he dyd vnto the kyng of Iericho.

And Iosua departed from Libna, and all Israell with hym, vnto Lachis, ad besieged it, and assaulted it. And the Lord deliuered Lachis into the hands of Israell, which toke it the secōde daye, and smote it with the edge of the swerde, & all the soules that were therin, doinge agaynst it, all, as he had done to the cite of Libna.

Then hozam kyng of Gese came vp to helpe Lachis: And Iosua smote hym & his people, vntill naught remayned of hym.

And from Lachis Iosua departed, vnto Eglon, and all Israell with hym, and they besieged it, and assaulted it, and toke it the same daye, ad smote it with the edge of the swerde, and all the soules that were therein he utterly destroyed the same daye, according to all that he had done to Lachis.

And Iosua departed vp from Eglon, and all Israell with hym, vnto Hebron. And they fought agaynst it, and when they had takē it, they smote it with the edge of þ swerde, and þ kyng thereof, and all the towne that pertayned to it, ad all the soules that were therein, and he lette nought remayning: but did accordig to all, as he had done to Eglon, and destroyed it utterly, ad all the soules that were therein.

And Iosua returned, and all Israell with hym to Dabir, and fought agaynst it. And when he had taken it, and the kyng thereof, and all the towne that pertayned thereto, they smote them with the edge of þ swerde, ad utterly destroyed all the soules þ were therein, neither let he ought remayne. Euen as he dyd to Hebron, so he dyd to Dabir and þ kyng thereof, as he had done also to Libna and her kyng.

Iosua therefore smote all the hill contrees, and the southe contrees, and the valleys, and the hill spyes, & all their kynges, & lett nought remayne of the, but utterly destroyed all that * breathed, as the Lorde God of Israell commaunded. And Iosua smote them from Cades barne vnto Gishon, and all the contrey of Solon, eue vnto Gibeon. All those kynges and their lande dyd Iosua take at one tyme: because the Lorde God of Israell fought for Israell. And Iosua and all Israell returned, vnto the poult that was in Gilgall.

The kynges whom Josua destroyed.

Ad it fortuned, that when Jabin kyng of hazor had heard of those thynges: he sent to Tobab kyng of Hadda, & to the kyng of Shinar, and to the kyng of Aschapp, and unto the kynges that are by north in yndia paynes, & playnes toward the southe syde of Emecro. And in the lowe countreys, & in y borders of woz westward and unto the Cananytes borke by Gaste & bestre, & unto the Amozites, hechites, dhe resites, and Jebusites in the moitaynes: & unto the heuites that were vnder hermon in the lande of Chyssa. And they came out ad all their hostes with them, a myltitude of folke, euen as the sande that is on the se shore in a greete nyght with boyses & charrettes exceeding many. And all these kynges met together, and came, and pyched together at the waters of Herom, for to fight agaynst Israell.

And the Lord sayde vnto Josua: be not afrayde at the presence of them: for tomorrow about this tyme will I deliuer them all in thyne hande. And Josua sayde: thou shalt hough their hostes, & burne their charrettes with fire. And so Josua came and all the men of warre with hym agaynst them by the waters of Herom, & sodenly fell vpon them. And the Lord deliuered them into y hande of Israell: and they smote them, and chased them vnto great Sidon, & vnto the whorfe waters. And vnto y valeys of Chyssa which is Eastward: and smote them vntill they had none remainyng of them. And Josua dyd vnto them, as the Lord bad hym: he houghed their hostes, and burnt their charrettes with fyre.

And Josua at that tyme turned backe, & toke hazor, & smote the kyng thereof with the swerde. And hazor before tyme was y head of all those kyngdomes. And they smote all the countres y were ther with the edge of the swerde, vntill they destroyed all: & no thyng that breathed, was left remaine. And he burnt hazor wth fyre. And all y cyties of those kynges, and all the kynges of them, dyd Josua take, and smote them with the edge of the swerde, and vnterly destroyed them: as Moyses the seruaunt of the Lord commaunded.

And so Josua toke all the lande, the hylls and all the southe contrey, and all the lande of Golan, and the lowe contrey, and y playne, and the mountaynes of Israell, & the lowe countrey of the same, euen from the mounte of parrey, y gothe vp to Seir vnto the playne of Gid in the valeys of Libanon, vnder mounte hermon. And all the kynges of the same he toke, & smote them, and slewe them.

Josua made warre longe tyme wth those kynges: nether was there anye ctye y made pence with y chyldren of Israell, save those hechites that inhabited Gileon, and therefore all other they toke wth battell, for so came of the Lord, wch dyd harden thep hostes, that they shoulde come agaynst Israell in battell: & that they shoulde destroye them vnterly, and slewe them no mercy, but to byng them to naught. As the Lord commaunded Moyses.

And that same season came Josua, and destroyed the Enakites out of the mountaynes: Maniely, out of Hebron, & Abab, and out of all the moitaynes of Juda, and out of all the mountaynes of Israell. And Josua destroyed them vnterly with their cities. There was not one Enakite leafe in the lande of the chyldre of Israell, only in Ash-Geth, and Adod, the re remainyng of them.

And Josua toke y whole lande, according to all that the Lord sayd vnto Moyses, and Josua gaue it for a possesyon vnto Israell: according to their pntes and trybes: & the lande rested from warre.

Certain are sent to deuote the land to the other tribes. The notice of the children of Benjamin.

And the whole congregation of the children of Israel came together at Silo, and set up the tabernacle of witness there, and the land was in subjection before them. And there remained among the children of Israel seven tribes, which had not yet receaued their inheritance. And Iosua sayd vnto the children of Israel: how long are ye so slacke to come, and possesse the land which the Lord God of your fathers hath giuen you? Get ye out from among you for euery tribe the men, that I maye sende the. And that they maye cyle, and walke throughe the land, and distribute it according to the inheritance thereof, and come agayne to me.

And let them deuise it vnto them in to seven partes. And Iuda shal abyde in their coaste on the south, and the house of Ioseph shal stande in their coastes on the north. Describe ye the land therefore into seven partes, and bying the description hether to me, and I shal cast lottes for you here before the Lord our God. But the Levites haue no parte among you, for the priesthode of the lorde is their inheritance. And God, and Ruben, and half the tribe of Manasse haue receaued their inheritance beyonde Jordan eastward, which wholkes the seruauit of the Lorde gaue them.

And the men arose, & went their waye. And Iosua charged the that wote to describe the land, saying: departe, & go throughe the land, and describe it, & come agayne to me, & I maye here cast lottes for you before the Lord in Silo. And the men departed,

C & walked throughe the land, & described it by cyries into seven partes, in a booke, and returned to Iosua into the holste at Silo. And the lotte of the tribe of the children of Benjamin came by accordig to their kynredes. And the coaste of their lotte came out betwene the children of Iuda and the childre of Ioseph. And their north coaste was from Jordan, and went vp to the syde of Iericho on the north syde, & went by throughe the mountaynes westward, & they ended at the wilderness of Bethaue: and went from thence to the south syde of Lug: the same is Bethel, & descended agayne to Atrotaphar, vnto the pyle that is upon the south syde of the north Bethhor. And the coaste turneth thence, & compasseth the corner of the southward, euen from the hill to the syde before Bethhoron southward, & goeth out at kiriatbaal which is kiriatthorim, a cyrie of the childre of Iuda: this is the west quarter: & the south coaste goeth from the edge of kiriatthorim, and goeth out westward, and thence it turneth to the waterwell of Bethboah, & cometh downe agayne to the syde of the hill, the syde before the vale of the sonne of hemmon, euen in the vale of the Gaiantes northward, and descendeth into the vale of hemmon by the Jebus southward, and goeth downe to the well of Rogell, and compasseth the north, and goeth forth to the well of the sonne, and departed from thence to the places of Geliath, which are toward the going vp vnto Adomim: & goeth downe to the sonne of Ioban the sonne of Ruben: & then goeth alonge towarde the syde of the playne, northward: and goeth downe into the felde: and goeth alonge to the syde of Bethphagiah northward, & endeth at the pointe of the salt see north thereof, euen at the south end of Jordan. This is the south coaste.

And Jordan kept in this coast on the east syde, and this is the inheritance of the childre of Benjamin by their coastes rounde about throughe out their kynredes. These were the cyries of the tribes of the childre of Benjamin throughe out their kynredes: Iericho, Bethphagiah, & the playne of kazy: Betharabah, zamarim, & Bethel: Aium, Pharah, and Ophrah: Ephraim, Ammonia, Wyphni, & Sabai, twelue cyries with their villages. And * I brought you into the lande of the Amorites, which dwelt on the other syde Jordan. And they fought with you: and I gaue them into your hand, that ye myght conquer their countre. And I destroyed the from out of your syght.

1 Sam. 17. 52.

* Then Balak the sonne of Bephor, king of Moab arose, a warred agaynst Israel, a sent a called Balaam the sonne of Beor, for to curse you. But I wolde not herchen vnto Balaam, a therfore he rather blessed you: And so I deliuered you out of his hande. And ye wet ouer Jordan, and came vnto Jericho, and the men of Jericho fought agaynst you: the Amorites, Iherites, Canaanites, Hethites, Gergisites, Huitites, a Jebusites, and I deliuered them in to your hande.

1 Sam. 17. 52.

And I sent * hornettes before you, whiche cast them out of your sight: euen the two kinges of the Amorites: but not with your owne sward, or with your owne bowe. And I haue giuen you a lande, in which ye do no labour, and cyties which you bilt not, and which ye dwell in: vineyardes also, and olive trees which ye planted not, and wherof ye do eate.

1 Sam. 17. 52.

* Now therfore feare the Lorde, a serue him in perfectuelle and truthe: And put a waie the goddes, whiche your fathers serued on the other syde of the floud, and in Egypte, and serue ye the Lorde. And yf I seme euill vnto you to serue the Lorde, the chose you this daye whom you will serue: whether the goddes which your fathers serued (that were on the other syde of the floud) yether the Goddes of the Amorites, in whose land ye dwell. As for me and my house, we will serue the Lorde.

1 Sam. 17. 52.

The people answered and saide: God for: bpd, that we shulde forsake the Lorde, and serue serue straunge goddes. For the Lorde oure God, he it is that brought vs and oure fathers out of the lande of Egypte, and from the house of bondage, and which dyd those great miracles in oure syght, & preserued vs in all the waye that we went, & amonge all the nations which we came thow. And the Lorde dyd cast out before vs all the nations, specially the Amozites, which dwelt in the lande. And therefore will we also serue the Lorde, for he is oure God.

C And Josua sayd vnto the people, Ye can not serue the Lorde: for he is an holie God, and a gelous God, and cannot beare youre iniquite and synne. If ye forsake the Lorde and serue straunge goddes, * he will turne and do you euell, and consume you, after that he hath done you good. And the people sayde vnto Josua: naye, but we will serue the Lorde.

And Josua sayde vnto the people: ye are witnesses youre selues, that ye haue chosen you the Lorde, to serue him: and they sayd: we are witnesses. Then put alwaye (sayde he) the straunge ^{or} goddes which are amonge you, and bowe youre kettes vnto ^{the} Lorde God of Israel. The people sayde vnto Josua: the Lorde oure God will we serue, and his voyce will we obeye. And so Josua

I * made a couenant with the people the same daye, and set an ^{or} ordinance and lawe before them in Sichem.

And Josua wrote these wordes in the booke of the lawe of God, and * toke a great stone, and pitched it on euide in ^{the} sayde place, euen vnder an oke that was in the sanctuary of the Lorde. And Josua sayde vnto to all ^{the} people: beholde, * this stone that he a witness vnto vs, for it hath hearde all ^{the} wordes of the Lorde which he spake vnto vs. It shall therefore a witness vnto you, lest ye denye * (and remember with youre God. And so Josua let the people departe, euery man vnto his inheritaunce.

And after these thinges it came to passe, that Josua the sonne of Nun, the seruant of the Lorde died, beyng an hundred and ten yeres olde. And they buried hym in the cōtre of hye inheritaunce, euen in Thānath Sereth, which is in mount Ephraim, on the northsyde of the hill of Gaas.

And Israel serued the Lord * all ^{the} dayes of Josua, & all the dayes of the eldres that ouerhynd Josua, and whych had knowen all ^{the} wordes of the Lorde that he had done for Israel. And the * bones of Joseph, which the chyldre of Israel brought out of Egypte, buried they in Sichem ⁱⁿ a parcel of ground, whych Jacob bought of ^{the} sonnes of hemor the father of Sichem, for an hundred pices of syluer, and it became the inheritaunce of the chyldren of Joseph. And Eleazar the sonne of Aaron dyed, whom they buried in a hill that pertayned to Ephraim: his sonne, whych hill was geuen him in mount Ephraim.

* In like manner Ephraim expelled not the Canaanites that dwelt in Gazer, but the Canaanites dwelt still in Gazer among them.

Neither did Zabulon expelle the inhabitants of Beeton, neither the inhabitants of Bethlul: But the Canaanites dwelt among them, and became tributaries.

Neither did Aser call out the inhabitants of Acho, neither the inhabitants of Zidon, of Bethlul, Aczib, of Halbah, Aphel, nor of Robob, but the Aserites dwelt among the Canaanites the inhabitants of the land, for they might not drive them out.

Neither did Ephraim drive out the inhabitants of Bethlames, nor the inhabitants of Bethanath, but dwelt amongst the Canaanites the inhabitants of the land. Nevertheless the inhabitants of Bethlames & of Bethanath became tributaries unto them.

And the Amorites troubled the children of Man in the mountayne, and suffered them not to come downe to the valeys. And the Amorites were content to dwell in mount Heres (which is by interpretation a wilderness) in Hailon and in Salabim. And the hand of Joseph weakened, so that they became tributaries: & the coaste of the Amorites was from the going up to Acrabim, and from the rocke upwarde.

Chapter. ii.

¶ The Angel rebuketh the people, because they had not made peace with the Canaanites. Judges. ii. c. p. 1.

And the angel of the Lord came up to Gilgal to the 300th. & sayde: I made you to come out of Egypt, and have brought you unto the land which I swore unto your fathers. * And I sayd: I will not breake myne appointment: I made with you. And ye also shall make no covenant with the inhabitants of this land, but shall breake downe their altaires: Nevertheless they have not hearkened unto my voice, why have ye this done? Therefore, I have likewise determined, I will not cast thee out before you: but they shall be thornes unto you, and their goddes shall be a snare unto you. And when the angel of the Lord spake these wordes unto all the children of Israel, the people cryed out and wepte: And called the name of the layde place. * 300th. and offered sacrifices unto the Lord.

And when Joshua had sent the people away, the children of Israel went euery man into his inheritance to possess the land. * And the people served the Lord all the dayes of Joshua, and all the dayes of the elders that out liued Joshua, and had sene all the great wordes of the Lord that he dyd for Israel: and Joshua the sonne of Nun the seruant of the Lord dyed, when he was an hundred & ten yeres olde: whom they buried in the coses of his inheritance: euen in Chamath bare in mount Ephraim. And on the northside of the hill Gass. And euen so all that generation were put unto their fathers, and there arose another generation after them whych neither knewe the Lord, nor yet the wordes whych he had done for Israel.

And then the children of Israel dyd wyllye in the syght of the lord, and serued Baalim, and forsoke the Lord God of their fathers, whych brought them out of the land of Egypt, and folowed strange goddes, euen of the goddes of the nacions that were round aboute them, and bowed them selues vnto them and angered the lord. They forsoke the lord, and serued Baal and Ashtaroth, and the wrath of the lord waxed hote agaynst Israel, and he deliuered them into the handes of trauners, that spoiled the, and solde them into the handes of their enemies rounde aboute them, so that they had no power any longer to stand before their enemies. But whether sooner they went out, the hand of the lord was agaynst them with euill lucke, euen as the lord promysed them, as he swore vnto them. And he punished them sore.

Nevertheless the lord rased vp Judges, which deliuered them out of the handes of their oppresors, and yet for all that they wold not harken vnto their Judges: But rather went a whoring after strange goddes, and bowed them selues vnto them, and turned quickly out of the waye, which their fathers walked in, obeying the commandmentes of the Lord: But they dyd not so.

And when the lord rased them vp Judges, he was with the Judge, and deliuered them out of the handes of their enemies all the dayes of the Judge: for the Lord had compassion ouer their sore wynges, wherby they had, by the reason of them oppressed them & vexed them: yet for all that as long as the iudge was dead, they turned and dyd wyllye their fathers, in followinge strange goddes, and in seruing them, and raised not from their owne inuencions, nor from their malaprouse waye.

And the wrath of the Lord was moued agaynst Israel, as he sayde: because this people hath transgressed myne appointment which I commaunded their fathers, & haue not hearkened vnto my voyce, I will hence forth not cast out before me one man of the nacions, which Israel leaft when he dyed, I throught them I maye * wyllye Israel, wher they wyllye kepe the waye of the Lord, & walke therein, as their fathers dyd: or not

And so the Lord least those nations, & hroue them not out pynnedypatye, nether deluyered them into the hande of Iosua.

¶ Chonell befeyndeth Arah. Ahud bylyeth Deng

I these are þe nacþos which þe lord left, that he myght pouce Israel by the: as manye of Israel as had not knownen all the warres of Canaan: Onlye for þe lernynge of þe generacyon of the chyldre of Israel: þe he also myght teach them warre, in as much as they þe were before them, & knew nothing therof. Of those whos he left, there were fyue lordes of the Philistines, & all the Cananites, & the Sodonites, and the heuites that dwelt in mount Libanon: euen from mount Zabal hermon vnto hemath. Those remayned to pouce Israel by, and to wete, whether they wold berken vnto the commaundmentes of the lord, which he commaunded their fathers by the hand of Moses.

¶ And the chyldre of Israel dwelt amonge the Cananites, herhetes, Amozites, Phereites, heuites, and Jebusites. * & toke the daughters of them to be their wyues, & gaue their owne daughters to their sonnes, & serued their Goddes. And the chyldre of Israel did wickedlye in the syght of the lord, & forgaue the lord their God, and serued Baalim & Aseroth. Therefoze the lord was angrie with Israel. * & deluyered the into þe handes of Chusan Rishathaim kyng of Elyopopotamia, and the chyldren of Israel serued Chusan Rishathaim. viii. yeres.

¶ And when the chyldre of Israel cryed vnto the lord, the lord stered vp a sauer, to þe chyldre of Israel. * & saued the one Othoniell the sonne of kenes. Calbes pounger byzother. And the sperte of the lord came vpon him. And he iudged Israel, and wet out to warre. And þe lord deluyered Chusan Rishathaim kyng of Elyopopotamia into his hande, & his hande preuailed agaynst Chusan Rishathaim. And þe lande had * rest fourtye yeres, and Chonell þe sonne of kenes bled.

¶ And the chyldren of Israel wet to agayne, & comitted wickednesse in the syght of þe lord. And the Lord strenghted Eglon the kyng of the Moabites, agaynst the chyldre of Israel, because they had comitted wickednesse before þe lord. And this (Eglon) gathered vnto hym the chyldren of Ammon, and the Amalekites, and went and smote Israel, & conquered the cite of Beaulme trees. And so the chyldre of Israel serued Eglon the kyng of Moab. xviii. yeres. But whē they cryed vnto the lord, the lord stered the vp a sauer. And the sonne of Gera the sonne of Jemini a man that coulde do nothing handsome wylh his ryght hande.

¶ And by him the chyldren of Israel sent a present vnto Eglon the kyng of Moab: but Ahud made him a dagger with two edges, of a cubyte length, & he byd gyde yt vnto his rayment vpon his right thigh, and carryed the present vnto Eglon the kyng of Moab: And Eglon was a very fatte man. And it fortuneth that whē he had presented the present, he sent the people that bare it awaye, but he him selfe turned agayne fro þe place of graue ymagis, that was by Silgal: & sayde: I haue a secret errand vnto the, O kyng. Whiche sayde: kepe silence. And all that stood before hym, went out from hym.

¶ And Ahud came vnto hym, and in a former parler, which he had, lat he be selfe alone. And Ahud sayde: * I haue a message vnto þe fro God. And he arose out of his seate. And Ahud put forth his left hande, & toke the dagger fro his right thigh, & thrust it into his belye, and the holt went in after the blade. And the fatter, closed the holt, so þe he myght not drawe the dagger out of his belye, but the dyte came out. Ahud gat him out at a posterne doze, and shut the dozes of the parler about him, and locked them.

¶ When he was gone out, his seruantes came, and when they sawe that the dozes of the parler were locked, they sayde: peraduenture he couereth his selfe in hym some chabber. And they eared till they were aduanced, and beholde: seynge he opened not the dozes of the parler: they toke a keye, & opened them. And beholde, ther the lord was fallen downe dead on the cete. And Ahud escaped: whyle they tarped, and was gone beyonde, to the place of the graue ymagis, and escaped into Seirath.

¶ And whē he was come * he bled a troupe in mount Ephraim. And the chyldre of Israel wet downe wylh hym from the hyll and he went before them. And he sayde vnto them, folowe me: for the Lord hath deluyered your enemies, the Moabites into your hande. And they descended after him, and toke the pailages of Jordan, towarde Moab, and suffered not a mā to passe out. And they slew of the Moabites þe same tyme vpon a ten thousande men, which were all fette a men of warre, & there shapen not a mā. * so Moab was subdued that daye, & was vnder the hande of Israel: and the land had rest. lxxx. yeres.

¶ And the

And the children of Israel beganne agayne to do wickedly in the eyght of the Lord, whē Iud was dead. And the Lord sold them into the hāde of Iabin kyng of Canaan, & ragged in Hazor, whose captayne of warre was called Sisera, which dwelt in haroeth of gētilles. And the children of Israel cryed vnto the Lord: for he had tynne hundred charrettes of yron, & thūste peres he troubled the children of Israel vnder soze.

And Deboia a Prophetyffe, the wyfe of Lapidoth Iudged Israel the same tyme, & same Deboia dwelt vnder a pauline tree betwene Ramath and Bethell, in mounte Ephraim.

And the children of Israel came vnto her for iudgement. And she sent & called Barak sonne of Abinoā, out of hebes Septholim, and sayde vnto him. Hath not the Lord God of Israel commaunded the, to leade w faire wordes men to mouite Chabor, and take with the ten thousande me, of the chyldre of Septholim & of chyldren of zabalon? And I will byng vnto the the wyer kpfon, Sisera, & Captayne of warre vnto Iabin, w his charrettes, & his people, and will deliuer him into thynne hādes. And Barak sayde vnto her: yf thou wilt go w me, I will go: But yf thou wilt not come with me, I will not goo: She sayde: I will suretye go with y, but this iourney y thou takest, shall not be for thynne honoure, for the Lord shall sell Sisera into the hāde of a woman. Deboia went with Barak to hebes. And Barak called zabal & Septholim to hebes, & led after hym ten thousande men: and Deboia went w with him.

But habet the kente (which was of the chyldren of y hohab the father in lawe of Moyses) remoued from the other kentyes, & pyched byr fete vntyll the playne of zinaim, whych is by hebes.

And they cweled Sisera, & Barak the sonne of Abinoam was gone vnto mount Chabor. And Sisera gathered together all his charrettes, cuf. ix. hundred charrettes of yron, & all the people y were w him from haroeth of the gentyles, vnto the wyer of kpfon. And Deboia sayde vnto Barak: vp, for this is the dape in which the Lord hath deliuered Sisera into thynne hāde: Is not the Lord gone out before the? And lo Barak went downe from mount Chabor, & ten thousande men after him.

But the Lord destroyed Sisera and all his charrettes, & all his hoste with the edge of the swerde, before Barak: so y Sisera yghred downe of his charrett, & fled awaye on hys fete. But Barak folowed after the charrettes and after the hoste, cuf vnto haroeth of the gentyles. And all the hoste of Sisera fell vnto the edge of the swerde, and there was not a mā lefte. Now be it Sisera fled awaye on hys fete to the tent of Jael the wyfe of habet the kente: for there was peace betwene Jabin the kyng of Hazor, & the householde of habet the kente.

And Jael went out to meete Sisera, and sayde vnto him: turne in my lord, turne in to me, feare not. And whā he had turned in vnto her into her fet, she couered hym with a mātell. And he sayd vnto her, geue me a lytel water to drynk, for I am thyrstye. And she opened a bottell of mylke, & gaue hym drynk, & couered him. And agayne he sayde vnto her: stāde in the doze of the fete, and whā any man doth come and enquire of the, whether there be any man here, thou shalt saye: nape.

Then Jael habets wyfe toke a nape of the tente, & an hamme in her hand, & went softye vnto hym, and smote the nape into the temples of his head, and fastened it into the ground, for he slombered soze, and was weep: And so he dyed.

And Beholde, as Barak folowed after Sisera, Jael came out to meete hy, & sayde vnto him: come, & I will shew the the mā, whom y seekst. And when he came into her fete: Beholde, Sisera laye dead, & y nape was in his temples. And so God brought Iabin the kyng of Canā into subiection that dape before the chyldre of Israel. And the hande of the children of Israel prospered, & prevailed agaynst Iabin the kyng of Canā, vntill they had brought hi to nauight.

The vi. Chapter.

Israel is oppressed of the Midianites: Gideon is sent of God to be their briguer.

And the chyldre of Israel * committed wyckednes in the sight of the Lord.

And p Lord deliuered them into the hades of Hadad leueni peres. And the han-de of Hadadian preuapled agaynst Israel, & had lowe, the Hadadianes, p Amalekites & they of p east contreye came by together agaynst them: & ptyched their ttees agaynst them, & destroyed the encrease of the erthe, euen till p come vnto Arah: & left no suste-gly impouertised in p sight of p Hadadian-the Hadadianites, p Lord sent vnto them a

But you haue not obeyed my voyce. And nites: & the angell of the Lord appeared un to hym. & sayde: The Lord is wth the, thou mightest mak of waere. And Gedeon answer ed him: Wh my Lord, yf the Lord be wth vs, whys all this come vpon vs? & whe re be all hys myracles which oure fathers tolde vs of, and sayde: Wd not p lord bring vs out of Egypte? But now p Lord hath forsaken vs, & deliuered vs into the handes of the Chadianites. And p Lord looked vpo him, & sayd: Godeke in this thy might, and thou shalt deliuer Israel out of p handes of the Chadianites: haue not I sent the? And he answered him: Wh lord, wherewith shall I saue Israel? Beholde, my hired is pooze in Chanaan, and I am lytle in my fathers house. The Lord sayde vnto him: I will be with the, and thou shalt smyte the Chada nites, as they were but one ma. And he an swered him: Wh: yf I haue soude grace i thy syght, thet he be me a sypne, that it is thou that talkest to me. Depart not hence, vn till I come agayne vnto the, and till I bry nyne offering, & haue sette it before the.

And he sayde: I wyl carpe vntyll thou come agayne. And Gedeon went in, & made redye a kpyd, and swete hakes of an Ephra im flower, & put it in the fleshe in a basket, & put p bozth in a potte, & brought it out vnto hym vnder the she, & presented it. And the angell of God sayd vnto him: take the flesh & p swete hakes, & lape the vpo this rocke, & potwe out the bozth. And he dpyd so. The angell of the Lord put forth the ende of the staffe p he helde in his hande, & touch ed the fleshe & the swete hakes. And there arose vp fyre out of p rocke, & consumed the fleshe & the swete hakes. But p angell of the Lord vanished out of his syght. And when Gedeon perceaued that it was an angell of the Lord, he sayd: Alas, O Lord God, & ha ne I therfore sene an angell of the lord face to face, & I lynde dpe? And the Lord sayde vnto him: peace be vnto the, feare not, thou shalt not dye. The Lord made an aultare there vnto the Lord, & called it: The Lo ze of peace. And vnto this dape it is yet in Ephraim, & pertaneth vnto the father of the Ephraim. And it fortuned that p same nyght the Lord sayde vnto hym: take a pyg bullock out of thy fathers house, & another of. bti. pccs olde, & destroye the aultare of Baal p thy father hath, & cutte downe the groue p is by it, & make an aultare vnto p Lord thy God vpo p toppie of this rocke in a conuenient place. And take the secōde bul lock, & offer burnt sacrifice vpon p woodd of p groue, which p hast cut downe. The Ge ded toke ten me of his seruantes, & dpyd as p Lord bad him. But because he durst not do it by dape for feare of his fathers household & of the me of the cytie, he dpyd by nyght.

And when the me of the cytie were vpry se in the morning: Beholde, the aultare of Baal was broken, & the groue cut downe: & p was by it, & the secōde bullock offered vpon the aultare that was made. And they sayde one to another: who hath done this thing? & whā they enquired & asked, they sayde: Ge deon p sonne of Joas hath done this thing.
 Then the me of the cytie sayde vnto Joas: bringe out thy sonne, that he maye dpe: be cause he hath destroyed p aultare of Baal, & cut downe p groue p was by it. And Joas sayde vnto all p fode by him: will ye leade Baals cause? or will ye be his defēders? he p hath nobled agaynst hi, let him dpe: & the moynge. If he be a God, let he be a uenged of him, that cast downe hys aultare.
 And from p dape was Gedeon called: Jero baal, because his father had sayde: Let Baal be aunged of hym, that hath broken downe his aultare.

All the Chadianites therefore, & the Ama lekites & they of the east, were gathered to geather, & wnt, & pitched in p vale of Jese rael: but p spere of the Lord came vpo Ge ded. & And he wrote a roppete, & called: A lizer to folow hi, & sent messengers thorow out all Chanaan, & called them, which all dpyd folowe him. And he sent messengers vn to Aler, & buld & Acpphalim, and they came to mete hym.

And Gedeon sayd vnto God: wilt p saue Israel in my hāde, as p hast sayde: Behol de, I wyl put a fleece of wolfe in the ryual lyping place. And yf p dewe come on p fleece onely, & it be dpye vpon all the erth besyde, then shall I be sure, p wilt saue Israel by my hāde, as p saydest. And it came to to pas se. For he rose vp erlye in the moynge, and thant the fleece together, and wronge the dewe therout, & fylled a bowle of water: & Gedeon sayd agayne vnto God: be not an gerye to me, p. I speake once moare. For I wyl proue once agayne by the fleece. Let it be dpye onely vpon the fleece, and dewe vpo all the grounde. And God did to that same nyght: For it was dpye vpon the fleece on ly, & there was dew on all the grounde.

And of whom I saye vnto the, they shall go with the, the same shall go with yf. And of who foruer I saye vnto yf, this shall not go with the, the same shall not go. So he brought downe the people vnto the water, and yf Lord sayde vnto Gedeon: as many as lappe the water with theyr tonges, as a dogge doth, them put by them selues, & so do them yf knie downe vpon their knees to dyncke. And the noyse of them that put there handes to their mouthes and lapped, were iii. hundred men. But all yf remnant of yf people knied downe vpon their knees to bypnycke water. And the Lord sayde vnto Gedeon: By these thye hūdzēd men that lapped water, wyl I saue pou: and deliuer the Whadianites into thynne hande. And let all the other people go euery man vnto his place.

¶ They therfore of the people toke vi. tailed with them, & their trompettes. And he sent all yf rest of Israel, euery mā vnto his tent, and comforted those thye hūdzēd with him. But yf thou feare to go downe, then go yf & Pharah thy ladde downe to the hoste, & thou shalt see what they saye, & so shall thynne hande be strong, to go downe vnto the hoste.

¶ Then went he downe and Pharah his ladde, euery hard vnto yf men of armes that were in the hoste. And the Whadianites, the Amalechites, and all they of the East, lay a longe in yf valeye, lyke a multitude of greeshoppers, and their rammelles were without number, euery as the sande by the see lyde in multitude. And when Gedeon was come:

And his felowe answered and sayde: this is nothing elles saue the swerde of Gedeon the sonne of Joas a man of Israel: for into his hāde hath God deliuered Whadian, and all the hoste.

¶ When Gedeon hearde the tellenge of the dreame, and the interpretation of the dreame, he washypped, and returned vnto the hoste of Israel: and sayde: by, for the Lord hath deliuered into your hande the hoste of Whadia. ¶ And so Gedeon & the three hundred men yf were with him, came vnto the syde of the host in yf begynnynge of the myddell watche, & reyled by yf watche men. And they blew with their troppettes, & brake the pytchers yf were in theyr hādes. And all yf the companies blew w trompettes & brake the pytchers, & helde the lampes in their left handes, and the trompettes in their right, to blowe wpyhall. And they cryed: the swerde of the Lord and of Gedeon. And they stode still, euery man in his place rounde about the hoste. And they wpyth the hoste, rāne, & cryed & fled. And the three hundred blew with trompettes, & the Lord set yf euery mānes swerde vpon his neyghboure, thorow out all the hoste. And the host fled to Bethleah, to zererah, & to the edge of the playne of Epholah vnto Tabath. And the men of Israel beyng gathered together out of yf trybe of Ephraim, of Aser, & of all Manasse followed after the Whadianites. And Gedeon sent messengers vnto all mouit Ephraim, sayig: come downe agayst yf Whadianites, & take before they yf waters vnto Bethbarath & to Jorā. ¶ The viii. Chapter.

¶ Gedeon maketh succours agaynst Gedeon, but in four parties.

¶ And the men of Ephraim sayde vnto hym: why hast yf ferued vs thus, that thou calledst vs not, when thou wilst to fight with yf Whadianites? And they chode with hym a good. And he answered them in violence. And he sayde vnto them: What dede haue I done lyke vnto youres? not a not a cluster of Ephraim better, then the princet of Abiezer: God hath deliuered into your hands the Lordes of Ma-dian, Oreb and Zeb. And what was I able to do lyke as you haue done: And the their spirites abated of him, whē he had sayde

p. And Gedeon came to Iozabā to passe ouer, he & the thye hundred men that were with hym, verie saynte, and yet folowed the chace. And he sayde vnto the mē of Socoth: geue I praye you harkes of beed vnto the people that folowe me: for they be sayn-tic, that I maye folowe after zebath, and zalmōna kynges of Madian. And the Lo-des of Socoth sayde: are the handes of zebath & zalmōna now in thynne hādes, that we shuld geue beed vnto thynne acmpe?
Gedeon sayde, therefore whē the Lord hath deliuered zebath and zalmōna into myne hande, I will teare the skirte of you with the thornes of the wilderness and w briers.
And he went vnto the Iohannuel, & spak-ke vnto them lphawse. And the men of Iohannuel answered hym, as byd the men of Socoth. And he sayde also vnto the men of Iohannuel: when I come agayne in peace, I will breake downe this towre. zebath and zalmōna were in Carhar, and their hostes with them, vpon a. x. thousand mē, which were all that were left of all the hostes of them of the East: for there were sayne a hundred and twenety thousand men, that were the wordes.

And Gedeon went thorothe them that dwelt in Tabernacles on the easie syde of Robah and Icbahab, and smote the holte:
for the holte did cast no perrelles. And whā zebath and zalmōna sledd, he folowed after them, and toke the two kynges of Madian, zebath and zalmōna, and discomforted all the holte.

And Gedeon the sonne of Joas returned from battell, asofte the sonne was downe, and caught a ladde of the men of Socoth, & enquired of hym. And he wote hym of p lodes & Elders of Socoth. lxxvii. mē.
And he came vnto the men of Socoth, and sayde: Wholde, here I haue zebath and zal-mōna, w which ye did cast me in the tethe, saynre: are the handes of zebath and zal-mōna allready in thynne hāde, that we shuld geue beed vnto thy fainre mē. And he to-ke the elders of the cite, & thornes of p wilderneffe & briers, & made the mē of Socoth to fele the. And he brake downe the towre of p Iohannuel, & slewe the men of the cite.

And the sayd he vnto zebath & zalmōna, what maner of mē were they whom ye slewe at Ephrahob: and they answered: the lykenesse of the and them is all one, en after the fallon of the chyliden of a kyng. And he sayde: they were up betwen, euen my mothers chyliden. As trulpe as the Lord syneth, yf ye had saued thre lyues, I wolde not slepe you. And he sayde vnto Jether his eldest sonne: vp and slepe them: But the lad dye not hys swerde, for he feared. because he was yet pong. Then zebath & zalmō-na sayde: Kyle thou, & falle vpon vs: for as the man is, so is his strength. And Gedeon arose and slewe zebath and zalmōna, & toke a waye the ornaments, that were on their camels neckes.

Then the men of Israel sayde vnto Gedeon: Raigne thou ouer vs, bothe thou, thy sonne & thy sonnes sonne, for thou hast de-liuered vs out of the hand of Madian. And Gedeon sayd vnto them: I will not raigne ouer you, neither shall my childe raigne ouer you, but the Lord shall raigne ouer you.

And agayne Gedeon sayde vnto them: I wolde desyre a certayne request of you, eue if you wolde geue me euery man p carpiges of his praye. For they had golde carpiges, because they were Imaelites: & they answered: We will geue them. And they spred a mantell, & byd cast there in euery man p carpyges of hys praye: & the waight of the golden carpyges p he requyred, was a thousand & seuen hundred lyes of golde, besyde cheynes, yowmaunders and purple rayment: that was on the kynges of Mahym in the audience of the men of Sichem all these wordes, and their hertes were mo-he is our brother. And they gaue him. lxx.

And Gaal þ sone of Abed wet out, & stode in þ entering of þ gate of the ctyte. And Abimelech role vp, & þ folcke þ were w him, fro lapyng a wayte. And when Gaal saw þ people, he lapd to zebul: beholde, there come people downe fro þ top of þ mountaynes. And zebul lapd vnto him: þ spadoys of þ hylls seme me vnto þ.

¶ And Gaal answered agayne, & lapd: se, there come folcke downe by þ myddell of þ lād, & another copanys come a lōg by þ playne of þ charmaras. Then lapd zebul vnto hi: where is now thy mouth þ lapd: what felow is Abimelech, that we shuld seme hi? Is not this þ people þ þ halt despyer? Godd out now & fyght wth th.

¶ And Gaal went out before the ctytes of Sichem, & fought w Abimelech. And Abimelech chased him, þ he fledd before him, & he droue him in to the ctyte. Many were ouerthrowen & wounded, eue vnto þ entering of þ gate. And Abimelech dwelt at Arumah. And zebul thurst out Gaal & his bretheren, þ they shuld not dwell in Sichem.

And whē all þ me of þ towre of Sichem heard þ, they entered into a strong holde of the house of thelr God Baal Berith.

¶ And it was tolde Abimelech, that all the me of the towre of Sichem were gathered together, & Abimelech gat him to mount zelman, bothe he & all the people þ were w him, & toke axes w him and cut downe bowes of trees, & toke them & bare them on his shulder, & lapde vnto the folcke þ were wth hym.

¶ Then wet Abimelech to Thebez, and beseged it, and toke it. But there was a strōg towre wth in the ctyte, and thither ranne all the men and women, and all the chefe þ were in the ctyte, and shut it to them, and got them by the topp of the towre. And Abimelech came vnto þ towre, and fought agaynst it, and wet hard vnto the doze of the towre, to set it on fier. And a certayne woman cast a peece of a myllstone vpon hys head, and all to brake hys brygne panne.

¶ Then Abimelech called haselepe vnto the young man that bare hys harnesse, & lapd vnto him: * dyath thy weebe and llee me, þ me lape not of me: a womā fletw him. And hys ladd thurst him thorow, and he dyed.

¶ Thola and Aia are Judges of Israel.

¶ After Abimelech there arose, to defende Israel, one Thola (the sone of Phuah) his * vnclen sone, a mā of Ithakar, which dwelt in Samir in mount Ephraim. And he iudged Israel. xxiij. yere and dyed, and was buried in Samir. And after him arose Jair a Gileadite, and iudged Israel. xxiij. yere. And he had thyrtye sonnes that * rode on thyrtye Asse coltes, & they had thyrtye ctytes, which are called þ towres of Jair vnto this daye, and are in the lande of Gilead. And Jair dyed & was buried in hamon.

¶ And þ children of Israel brought wyckednesse yet agayne. I þ syght of the Lord, & serued Baalim and Astaroth, & þ goddess of Siria, & goddess of Sidon, and the goddess of Moab, the goddess of the childre of Ammon, and the goddess of the Philistines, and forsoke the Lord þ serued not him. And ouer þ childre of Ammon wet ouer Jordan to fight agaynst Juda, Benjamin, and the house of Ephraim: so þ Israel was sore cōbēd. And the childre of Israel cryed vnto the Lord, sayng: we haue synned agaynst the: for we haue forlaken oure adue God, and haue serued Baalim. And the Lord lapde vnto the to þ child of Israel: dyd not þ Egyptians, the Amorites, þ child of Ammō, þ Philistines, þ Sidonites, þ Amalechites, & the Canaanites, oppresse you? And ye cryed to me & I deliuered you out of their handes. And for all that ye haue forsaken me, and serued strange goddes, wherfore I will helpe you no more. So & crye vnto the goddes which ye haue chosen, and I lett them saue you in the tyme of youre tribulation.

þ 100. 111. 112

And the children of Israel sayde vnto the Loide: We haue sined: do þ vnto vs what-soeuer please þ. deliuer vs onely this daye. And thei put away the strange goddes fro them, and serued the Loide. And hys soule had pte in the miserie of Israel.

Then the child of Ammō gathered to gether, & pitched in Gilead. And þ child of Israel gathered them together, & pitched i Mizpa. And þ Lords of Gilead sayde to othre: whosoeuer will begine þ batell agaynst the child of Ammō, the same shalbe ded ouer all þ inhabiteurs of Gilead.

¶ The. c. Chapter.

¶ Jephthah deliuered Israel from the Ammonites.

As there was one Jephthah Gileadite, a strong man, þ sonne of an harlot: and Gilead begat Jephthah.

And Gileads wyfe bare him sonnes, which when thei were come to age, thrust out Jephthah, and sayd vnto him: þ shalt not inherite in oure fathers house, for þ art the sonne of a straunge woman. Then Jephthah fledd fro his brethren, & dwelt in the lād of Tob. And there gathered vnto him (the) men to Jephthah, and went out w him. And it chaunced in processe of tyme, þ the child of Ammon made warre agaynst Israel.

And whan the children of Ammon fought thus agaynst Israel, the elders of Gilead went to tete Jephthah out of the lād of Tob

(to helpe them) and sayd vnto him: come & be oure captayne, þ we maye fyghe w the children of Ammō. Jephthah answered þ elders of Gilead: did not ye hate me & expell me out of my fathers house: howe happily it shal, þ you come vnto me now i tyme

23 of poure tribulation: And the elders of Gilead sayde vnto Jephthah: Therefore we turre agayne to the now, þ þ mayest go w vs, & fyghe agaynst the children of Ammon and be oure heed ouer all the inhabiteurs of Gilead. And Jephthah sayde vnto þ elders of Gilead: If ye bring me home agayn, to fight with the children of Ammon, then of the Loide deliuer them before me. Shall I be your heed? And þ elders of Gilead sayde to Jephthah: þ Loide be witness betwene vs þ we do not accord to thy wordes. The Jephthah went with the elders of Gilead. And the people made hym heed and ruler ouer thei. And Jephthah repeared all hys wordes before the Loide in Mizpa.

And Jephthah let messengers vnto þ king of the child of Ammō, saying: What halt thou to do w me, þ þ art come agaynst me, to fight in my lād? The king of þ child of Ammon answered vnto the messengers of Jephthah: Because Israel toke away my lād, whē they came out of Egypt: eue from Arnon vnto Iabok, and vnto Iordā. Now therefore restore those lādes agayne w fatte meanes.

And Jephthah let messengers agayn vnto the child of Ammon, and sayd vnto him: thus sayth Jephthah: þ Israel toke not away the lād of Moab, nor þ lād of þ child of Ammō. But whē Israel came out of Egypt, & walked thowt þ wilderness, eue vnto þ redd see, they came to Cadēs: & sent messengers vnto the king of Edō, sayig: lett me I praye þ go thowt thy lād. But the big of Edō wolde not agre thereto. And in lyke maner they set vnto þ king of Moab, but he wolde not cōfēt. And so Israel abode still i Cadēs. And thei they went aldyg thowt the wilderness, & chaped þ lād of Edō, & the lād of Moab, & came a long by the east syde of þ lād of Moab, & pitched on the other syde of Arnō, & wolde not come with in the cōste of Moab: * for Arnō was þ utmost border of Moab. And the Israel * let messengers vnto Sehon, king of the Amozites, þ a king of heslon, & sayd vnto him: Lett vs passe thowt thy lād vnto oure awne cōtreie. But Sehon cōfēt not to Israel, þ he wolde go thowt hys coast: but gathered all his people together, & pitched i Iazab, & fought w Israel. And þ Loide God of Israel deliuered Seho & all his folke to þ hādes of Israel. And so Israel smote the & cōquered all þ lād of the Amozites, the inhabiteurs of the sayde cōtreie. And they conquered all the coastes of the Amozites, fro Arnō vnto Iabok, & fro the wilderness vnto Iordā. So now, seying the Loide God of Israel bath cast out the Amozites before hys people Israel, quidest thou possesse the land? Saye, but what people. Camos the God dwyneth out, that land possesse þ. Eue so whatsoeuer nation the Loide oure God repelleth, that lande ought we to cōquere.

* And art thou better then Balack the sōne of zephō, king of Moab dyd he strue w Israel o? fyght agaynst thei, all the while Israel dwelt in heslon and her towne, in Aror & her towne, & in all the crytes þ be a lōge by the coastes of Arnon, thei budged yeres: why dydest thou not recouer them in all that space? Wherefore I haue not lpynd agaynst the. But thou dost me wrong, to warre agaynst me. The Loide therefore which is a Judge be Judge thys daye betwene the children of Israel, and the children of Ammon. And they answered hym: put forth thy ryddle, that we may heare it. And he sayd vnto them: Out of the eater came meate: and out of the stronge came sweetness. And they coude not i. iij. dayes expounde the ryddle. And when the seuenth daye was come, they sayde vnto Samsons wyfe: Hater thyne husband, ^{and perforce hym} that he maye declare vs the ryddle, lest we burne the thy fathers house with fyre. Whye ye called vs hyther, to make vs beggers? And Samsons wyfe wepte before hym ^{in com- plaine}. And Samsons wyfe wepte before hym .viij. dayes, whyle the feast lasted. And y. viij. dayes he tolde her, because she laye so sore vpon him. And she tolde it the chyldren of her folke. They answered hym, layenge: No, but we wyll bynde the, and deliuer y vnto their handes: But we wyll not kyle the. And they bounde him with two new cordes, & brought hym from the rocke. And the spyete of the Lorde came vpon hym, and the cordes that were vpon his armies, became as flaxe that was burnt wth fyre, for the bandes lowded from of his bandes. And he founde a rotten Jawe bone of an ass, and put forth his hande, and caught it, and slue a thousande men therewith.

And Samson sayde: with the Jawe of an ass, haue I made heapes of thym: with the Jawe of an ass haue I slaine a thousand men. And when he had left speaking, he cast awaye the Jawe bone out of his hand, and called the place: Ramath Lehi. ^{by interpretyng the lxxij. vnto of the Jawe bone} And he was sore a thyrst, and called on f Lorde, & sayde: Thou hast giuen this great victorie, in the bande of the ftrawst. And now I must dye for thyself, and fall into the handes of the vncircumcised. But God brake a great toth that was in the Jawe, and ther came water therout. And when he had dröcke, his sperte came agayne, and was refreshed, wherfoze the name therof was called, unto this daie, the well of the caller on, which came of the Jawe. And he dwelged Israel in the dayes of the Philistines, twenty years.

¶ The xij. Chapter.

¶ Samson lieth vpon the gates of Gaza. He was decreaued by Dalila: He pulst downe the house vpon the Philistines, and dyed with them.

Athen wente Samson to Zath, *and
* Dalila was called Gaza.
he sawe ther an harlot, and went in vito her. And it was tolde the Zathites, saying: Samson is come hither. And they went aboute, & layde awake for him there, all nyght in the gate of egypt, and were still all the nyght, saying: in the moorning when it is daye, we shall kyll him. And Samson toke his rest till mydnyght, & arose at mydnyght, and toke the doores of the gate of the egypt, and the two fyre postes, and rent them of, with the bare and all, and put them vpo his shoulders, and carreyd them vpto the top of an hyll, that is before hebzon.

And after this, it fortuned, that by the rmyer of Soth, he loured a woman, called Dalila: unto whom came the Lordes of the Philistines, and sayde vnto her: perswade him, and se when his great strenght lieth, and by what meane we maye overcome him that we maye bynde him, to byying him under, and euery one of vs shal geue the thence hundred syluer pnyces.

And Dalila sayde to Samson: Oh, tell me where thy great strenght lieth, and how thou myghtest be bounde, and brought under. Samson answered vnto her: If they bynde me with seven grene withes y were neuer dyed. I shal be wake as other men.
And then y lordes of the Philistines brought her seven withes that were yet grene and neuer dyed, and he bounde hym therwith.
Not withstandinge he had men lyinge in wayte with her in the chaburc. And she sayd vnto hym: the Philistines be vpo the Samson. And immediately he brake the cordes as a streynge of towne. ¶ (that is to sayne) he breaketh, when it fealeth fier. And so his strenght was not knowne.

And Dalila sayde vnto Samson: He, y thou hast mocked me & tolde me lyes. How ther-foze tel me, wherwith y mightest be bounde.
He answered her: yf they bynde me with new ropes that neuer were occupped, I shal be wake, and as another man. Dalila ther-foze toke new ropes, and bounde hym ther-with, and sayde vnto hym: the Philistines be vpon the Samson. And there were lyes of wayte in the chamber, & he brake them from of hys arynes, as they had bene but a threde.

And Dalila sayde vnto Samson: byther to thou hast begyled me, and tolde me lyes: yet tell me, how thou myghtest be bounde.
He sayde vnto her: If thou plattest the wylokes of my head with an heare lace. And she fastened them with a naye, and layde vnto hym: the Philistines be vpo the Sathon. And he awoke out of his slepe, & plucked awake the naye, that was in the platting with the heare lace. And she sayde vnto hym agayne: how canst thou saye that thou lovest me, when thynne herte is not with me: beholde, y hast mocked me thus thre tymes, & hast not tolde me, wherin thy great strenght lyeth.
And as she laye vpon him with her woordes continually derying of hym, hys soule was encombyred euen vnto the death. And so he tolde her all his herte, & sayd vnto her: * there neuer came raler vpon myne hebd, for I haue bene an abstayner. ¶ (that is to saye) conuocate. Vnto to God, euen from my mothers wobe: therfore when I am Chaunc, my strenght wyll go from me, and I shall waite wake, and be lyke all other men. And when Dalila sawe that he had tolde her all his herte, she sent and called for the lordes of the Philistines, saying: come vpet this once, for he hath shewed me all hys herte.

¶ Then the lordes of the Philistines came vnto her, & brought y money in their hands. And she made him slepe vpon her knees ¶ (to saye) he layde downe in her lappe. ¶ He leut for a man, & he dyd Chaunc of the seven lordes of his hebd, & begane to vcke him, & his strenght was gone fro him. And she sayde: the Philistines be vpon the Samson. And he awoke out of his slepe, & sayd: I wil go out now as at other tymes before, & shake my selfe, & he wist not y the Lorde was departed fro him.
¶ But the Philistines toke hym, and put out his eyes, & brought hym downe to * Zath, and bounde hym with two fetters of brasse.
¶ And he dyd grynde in the prison house, howbeit the heare of hys head beganne to growe agayne after that he was shauen.

¶ Then the lordes of the Philistines gathered them together, for to offer a solempne offryng vnto zagon theyr God, and to re-ioyse: for they sayde, oure God hath deliue-red Samson oure enemy into oure handes.
¶ And when the people sawe hym, they prayefed thez God: for they sayde: oure God hath deliuered into oure handes oure enemy, and destroyer of oure countreie, whyche thus ma-nye of vs. And when theyr detes were merye, it fortuned, that they sayde: sende for Samson, that he maye make vs laugh.
¶ And they sette Samson oute of the prison house, and he played before them, and they set hym betwene the pyllicks. And Samson sayde

sayd vnto the ladd that leed him by the hād: lett me that I maye touche the pylers, that the house stande vpon, and that I maye leaue to them. And the house was full of men & women. And there were all the lordes of the philistines. And there were vpon the ronse a thye thousande men and women, that beheide whyle Samson played.

And Samson called vnto the Lord, and sayde: O Lord God, thyneke vpon me, and strengthen me, at thys tyme onely, O God, that I maye be aduenged of the philistines for my two eyes. And Samson caughte the two middel pylers on which the house stode, and on which it was bozne vp, the one f hys ryghte hande, and the other in hys left, and sayde: my quail shall bye with the philistines, and bowe them with all hys myghte.
And the house fell vpon the lordes and vpon all the people that were therein. And so the deed which he slewe at hys deeth, were inoo then they whiche he slewe in hys lyfe. And then hys brythen and all the house of hys father came downe, & toke him vp, & broughte hym, and buryed hym betwixte zarah and Esthal, in the buryinge place of Amanoah hys father. And he iudged Israel twente years.

The xviij. Chapter.

And Micah whose mother made hym an idoll of silver.

I here was a man in mount Ephrai-named Micah, and he sayde vnto hys mother: the leuen hundred syluerlinges that were taken fro the, aboute which thou cursedst, & spakest it in myne eares. Behold, the syluer is with me, I toke it a waye. And hys mother sayde: blessed be y my sonne, in y Lord.
And when he had resozed the leuen hundred syluerlinges to his mother agayne, his mother sayde: I bowed the syluer vnto y Lord of myne hande for the my sonne: that y Phil-dist make a grauen ymage and an ymage of metall. Now therfore, I will geue it the a-gayne. And when he resozed the monney a-gayne vnto his mother, his mother toke two hundred syluerlinges, and gaue them to a goldsmith, which made therof a graue image, and a ymage of metall, and it was in the house of Micah. And the man Micah had a temple of goddes, and made an Ephod and Teraphim, * (What is to saye, a garment for the prie, and Idols), and spyled the hande of one of hys sonnes which became hys priefte. * In those dayes there was no kyng i Israel, but euery man dyd that which was good in hys awne eyes.

And there was a ponge mā out of Bethlehem Juda, of the kyndred of Juda: which ponge man was a Leuite, & sojourned ther.
And the man departed oure of the cytie of Bethleh Juda, to go dwel where he coulde fynde a couenient place. And he came to mount Ephraim, to the house of Micah as he iourneyed. And Micah sayde vnto hym, whence comest thou? The leuite answered hym, I am of Bethleh Juda, & go to dwell where I maye fynde a place: * (and wher I maye fynde it to be for my profit.) And Micah sayd agayne vnto him: dwell with me, and be vnto me a father and a priefte. And I will geue the ten syluerlinges by yere, two garments, and thys meate and dryncke.

And the Leuite was content to dwell w the man, and was vnto hym as one of hys a wne sonnes. And Micah colerated y hād of the leuite, and the ponge man became hys priefte, and was the house of Micah. Then sayde Micah: now I am sure, that the Lord will be good vnto me, for I haue a leuite to my priefte.

The xxiij. Chapter.

Of the captiue of Samson take the goates and the priefte of Micah agayne. They outdore Laie, & after byle it agayne.

In those dayes * there was no kyng in Israel. And in those dayes the tribe of Dan sought then an en-tertaunce to dwell in * for vnto y tymes * there fel none enterstai-ce vnto them amonge the trybe of Israel.
And the children of Dan sent of their kinred four artyn men in feares of warre oute of theyr countres, euen out of zarah and Es-thal, to weue the lande and seache it out, and sayde vnto the: go, and seache out the labe: whiche whan they came to mount Ephraim, euen to the house of Micah, they lodged there.
And whē they were in the house of Micah, they knewe the voyce of y ponge mā the leuite: and when they turned in theyther, they sayde vnto hym: who broughte the hys ther? what makest thou in thys place: and what hast thou here? And he answered them: thus and thus dealed Micah with me, and hath hired me, and I am become hys priefte. And they sayde vnto hym agayne: * A lye con-cell now of God, y we maye knowe, whether the waye whych we go, shall be prosperous, or no. And the priefte sayde vnto them: go in peace, for the Lord gydeth your waye whych ye go.

Then the fyue mā departed, and came to Laie, and sawe the people that were therein, how they dwelt careles, after the manner of y shodons, tyll, and without castyng of parells: and that no man made any trouble in the land, or whurped any domynio, but were farre from the Sidons, and had no busyness with other men. And they came vnto theyr brythen, to zarah & Esthal. And their bry-then sayd vnto them: what haue ye done?

And they answered: Tryle, that we maye C liij go by

¶ Num. xxi. a go vp agaynst them, * for we haue sene the lande: it is a very good one. And do ye sett stil: be not flourishing to departe. But come to * conquer the lande: (it shall be no labour.) Ye ye will go, ye shall come vnto a people that can: stretch no parallels, * it is a very large countrey: which God hath geuen into your handes. It is also a place, which both lacke nothinge & is in the world.

And thence departed thence of the kynred of the Danites, euen out of zarahab and Est-haal, syxe hundred men appoynted with instruments of warre. And they went vp, and pitched in karlaeth Jarim which is in Iuda. D Wherefore they called the place, the hoost of Dan, vnto this daye: and it is on the backe syde of karlaeth Jarim. And they went thence vnto mount Ephraim, & came to the house of Micah. Then answered the syxe men that went to spye out the countrey of Laish, & sayde vnto their brethren: wot ye not y there is in these houses an Ephod, & Theraphim, a grauen ymage, & an ymage of metall. Now therefore consyde what ye haue to do.

And they turned thitherwarde and came to the house of y young man the Leuyte, euen vnto the house of Micah, and saluted hym pleasantly. And the syxe hundred men gyrded with weapons of warre, which were of the chyldren of Dan, stode by y entering of the gate. And the fyve men that were to spye out the lande, went in thither and toke the heruud ymage, and the Ephod, Theraphim, ad the ymage of metall. And the priest stode in the entering of the gate with the syxe hundred men y were armed vnto batayl, whyle the other wente into Micahs house, and set the heruud ymage, the Ephod, Theraphim, and the ymage of metall. Then sayd y priest vnto the: what do ye? They answered hym: holde thy peace, & laye thyne hande vpon thy mouth, and come with vs, to be our father & priest. Is it better for the to be a priest vnto the house of one man, then to be a priest vnto a tribe of a kynred in Irael: And the priest was glad and toke the Ephod, and Theraphim, and the grauen ymage, & went with the people. And they turned and departed, and put the chyldren, the cattell and there other substance before them.

¶ And when they were a good waye from the house of Micah, the men that were in y houses, and in Micahs house, made an oute crye, and followed after the chyldren of Dan, and called vnto them. And they turned their faces, & sayde vnto Micah: what apleth the, y thou makest an out crye: And he sayd: ye haue taken awaye my goddes whych I made, and also the priest, ad go your wayes with the. And what haue I more / how then saye ye vnto me, what apleth the: And the chyldren of Dan sayde vnto hym: let not thy voyce be hearde amonge vs, lest angere followe vs vpon the, and thou looke thy lyfe with the lyues of all thyne householde. And to the chyldren of Dan wente they: waynes. And when Micah sawe that they were to strouge for hym, he turned and went backe vnto hys house agayne.

And they toke the thynges which Micah had made, & the priest which he had, & came vnto Laish, euen vnto a people that were not craft & without mistrust, & smote them with the edge of the sword, & burnt the cyrie with fyre. And there was no man to helpe, because Laish was farr from Sidon, & they had no medelyng with any other man. And the cyrie stode in the valley that lyeth by Bethrub. And they built the there a cyrie, & dwelt therein. * And called it Dan, after y name of Dan: * for the their father which was borne vnto Irael. Howbeit, in very dede the name of the cyrie was Laish at the begynninge.

And the chyldren of Dan set them by the grauen ymage. And Jonathan the sonne of Gerson, the sonne of Manassah & hys sonnes toere the priestes in y tribe of Dan: vntill they were carryed awaye out of the land captiue. And they sett them vpon the heruud ymage which Micah made, all the whyle y the house of God was in Silo.

Chapter.

¶ Of the Leuyte, whose wyfe was bylawfullye lyled in Silo.

The thannerd in those dayes, when there was no kyng in Irael, that a certayn leuyte soger came vnto the syde of mount Ephraim, to see to wyfe a concubynne out of Bethlechem in Iuda: and hys concubynne played the whoore by hym, and went awaye from hym, vnto her fathers house to Bethlechem Iuda, and there continued foure monethes. And her husbande arose, and went after her, to speake frendly vnto her, and to bring her home agayne, buyng hys ladd with hym, and a couple of asses. And she brought him vnto her fathers house, and when the father of the damosell sawe hym, he reioyced of hys comyng. And his father in lawe the damosells father kept hym, and the Leuyte abode with hym thes dayes, and so they dyd eate and dryncke, and lobe ed there.

The fourth daye when they arose early in the mornynge, the man stode vp, to departe. And the damoselles father sayd vnto his sone in lawe: comfort thyne heart with a mozell * of beere, ad then go your waye. And they sate downe, and hys eat and dryncke both of them togather. And the damoselles father sayd vnto the man: Be content, I praye the, & carpe all nyght, and let thyne hearte be merry. And when the man stode vp to departe, hys father in lawe compelled him to turne againe: and to and to carie all nyght there. And herole vp erlye the fyfth daye to departe, and the damoelles father sayde, comforte thine herte: & they taried vntyll after middaye. And they dyd eate bothe of them to geather.

C And when the man arofe to departe with his concubine and his ladd, his father in law the damoelles father sayde vnto hym: be-holde, the daye gothe fast awaye & dwerth towarde euen, tary all night: at þ least waye tarye this daye here, that thine hert maye be merce. And to inioyne get you erlye vpon your waye, that thou mayest get the to thy ent. After that elater the man wolde not tary, but arofe and departed, and came as ferre as Jebus, (which is Jerusalem) and his two asses laden, and his concubine and his ladd with him. And when they were fast by Jebus the daye was fore spent. and the pounge man sayd vnto his master: come I praye the and let vs turne in, into this cytie of the Jebusites and lodge all night there. his master answered him: we will not turne ito a strainge cytie that are not of the chyldre of Israel:

D we will go forth to Gibeā. And he sayd vnto hys ladd, go forwarde, and we shall come to one of these places to lodge all night ether in Gibeā or in Ramā. And they went forwarde vpon theyr waye, and the sonne wet downe vpon them, when they were fast by Gibeā which belongeth to them of Ben Jamin. And they turned thither warde to go in, and lodge all nyght in Gibeā. And when he came, he fast him downe in a streate of the cytie, for there was no man that toke them to lodginge. And behold, there came an olde man from his wycke, out of the felde at cut, which was also of mount Ephraim, & dwelt as a stranger in Gibeā. But the men of the place were the chyldren of Jemim. And whē he had lyfte vp his eyes, he sawe a wayefaring man in the streate of the cytie. And the olde man sayde: whether goest thou? And whence comest thou? He answered him: we come from Bethlechem Juda towarde the syde of mount Ephraim: from thence am I, and I wet to Bethlechem Juda, and go now to the house of the Lord. And there is no mā that receueth me to house. We haue strawe and prauender for our asses, and bread ad wyne for me and thy handmayde, and for the ladd that is with thy seruauit, and we lache nothyng.

E The olde man sayd: peace be with the, all that thou lackest shall thou fynde with me: thine abyde not in the streate all nyght, and to be brought him into his house, and gaue fodder vnto his asses. And they washed their feet, and dyd eate and dync. And as they were makinge their berettes merce, beholde, the men of the cytie which were wicked, set the house rounde aboute, and thurst at the doze, and spake to the man of the house, the olde man, sayinge: bringe forth the man that came into thyne house, that we maye knowe hym.

And * the man of the house, the olde man * Gen. xiv. 18 went out, and spake vnto the, Oh, naue my bethers, do not so wickedlye, saying that this man is come into myne house: do not so vnnice a thing. Beholde, here is my daughter a mayden, and this mannes concubine, then I will bringe out now vnto you, and hūle them, and do with them what seemeth you good: but vnto this man, do not so abhominable a thinge. But the men wolde not breken to him. And the man toke his concubine, and brought her out vnto the, which knewe her, and abused her, all the nyght, euen vnto the moorninge. And when the daye beganne to lūpyng, they let her go.

And then came the woman in the dawnyng of the daye, ad fell downe at the doore of the mannes house, where her lorde was, tyll it was daye. And her lorde arofe vp in the moorning, and opene d the dozes of þ house, and went out to go bys waye. And beholde, the woman, euen his concubine laye a longe before the doze of the house, & her handes stretched out vpon the threshold. And he: * thinking her to haue bene alpe: sayde vnto her: vp and let vs be gofthe. But she answered not. Then the man: * (perceiuing that she was deade) toke her vp vpon an asse, and rode vp, and gat him vnto his a house home. And when he was come vnto his house, he toke a kniffe, & caught hys concubine, and deuised her with the bones into twelue peeces, and sent her in to all quarters of Israel. And all that sawe it, sayde: there was no soche deed done: for we fence the chyldre of Israel out of Egypt vnto this daye, & consider the matter, take ad aduise ment, and laye poure myndes.

¶ The .xx. Chapter

The battell of the Israelites agayn the repre of Ben Jamin for the Leuites wyfe which was killed.

Then all the chyldre of Israel went out: and the congregacyon was gathered togeather as it had bene but one man, euen from Dan to Berseba and vnto the lande of Gilcad, vnto the Lorde. ¶ in Asyria, and there stode folke out of all quarters and of all the tribes of Israel, in the congregacyon of the people of God, foure hundred thousande forte men that byr we swerde. And when the chyldren of Ben Jamin hearde that the chyldren of Israel were gone vp to Asyria, and had sayde. O ye chyldren of Israel, tell vs how this wickednesse happened. And the Leuite, the womans husbāde that was slayne, answered and sayde, I came into Gibeā that is in Ben Jamin with my concubyne to lodge lodged all nyght. And the men of Gibeon rose agaynst me, and set the house rounde aboute vpon me by nyght, and thought to haue slayne me: and my concubynne haue they so forced, that she is deed. And I toke my concubynne, and cutt her in peeces, and sent her thorow out all the landes of the euerypauer of Israell. For they haue comyned abhominacyon and folly in Israell. Beholde, ye are all chyldren of Israell. Donde theyd matter, and geue youre aduys in the case.

And all the people arose, as it had ben one man, saying, there shall not a man of vs go to his tent, nerther turne into his house. But this shalbe it that we will do to Gibeon: We will go vp by lotte agaynst it. And we will take ten men of the hundred thowse out all the trybes of Israell, and an hundred of the thousande, and a thousande out of ten thousande, to sett vnto the people to make that they maye go agaynst Gibeon. Ben Jamin, because of all the abhominacyon, that they haue wrought in Israell. And so all the men of Israell gathered to geather agaynst the cytie, kynge to geather, as it had ben but one man. And the trybes of Israell sent men thowse all the trybe of Ben Jamin sayinge * what wyckednesse is this that is happened amonge you: Now therfore deliuer vs the men, those chyldren of Belial which are in Gibeon, that we maye slay them, and put awaye cuell from Israell.

* Iosua. xxiij. 8

After that later the chyldren of Ben Jamin wolde not herke vnto the voyce of their brethren the chyldren of Israell: but gathered them selues to geather out of the cyties vnto Gibeon, to come out and fight agaynst the chyldren of Israell. And the chyldre of Ben Jamin were nombred at that tyme, out of y cyties. xxvij. thousand men that drew sweordes, besyde the inhabitants of Gibeon, which were nombred seven hundred chosen men. And amonge all these folke were seven hundred best hadb men, which euery one coulde slay. Comes at an heare brendeth, and not mylke. And the chyldren of Israell besyde Ben Jamin, were nombred foure hundred thousand men that drew sweordes, ad were all men of warre.

And the chyldren of Israell arose, & went vnto Bethel, & asked counsell of God, who shoulde begynne the battell agaynst the chyldren of Ben Jamin: And the Lord sayd. Iuda shall begynne. And the chyldren of Israell rode bytrelle and beseged Gibeon. And the men of Israell went out to battell agaynst Ben Jamin, and the men of Israell put them selues in aray to fpyght agaynst the, besyde Gibeon. And the chyldren of Ben Jamin came out of Gibeon, and destroyed of the Israelites that daye. xxij. thousande men, and brought them to the erth.

And the folke of the chyldren of Israell plucked vp their hertes, and wet to agayne, ad made battell in the same place where they dyd the fyrst daye. And the chyldren of Israell went vp, and wept before the Lord vnto euen, and asked of the Lord, saying, Shall we go agayne to battell agaynst the chyldre of Ben Jamin oure brethren: And the Lord sayd. go vp agaynst the. And the chyldre of Israell came out agaynst the chyldren of Ben Jamin the seconde daye. And the chyldren of Ben Jamin went agaynst them out of Gibeon, the seconde daye, and destroyed to the erth of the chyldren of Israell oure agayne: xxvij. thousande men that drew sweordes euery man of them.

Then the chyldren of Israell and all the people went vp and came vnto Bethel, and wept and sat there before the Lord, and fasted the sathie daye vnto eue, & offered burnt-offrynges and peace-offrynges before the Lord. And the chyldren of Israell asked the Lord: for there was the arcke of the apoyntment of God, in those dayes. And he whithers the sonne of Eleazar, the sonne of Aaron waytynge vpon it at that tyme, sayde. Shall I get me vp to go out any more to battell agaynst the chyldren of Ben Jamin my brethren, of all Israell: The Lord sayde. go, for to morowe I will deliuer the into youre hades. And Israell set layes awaye rounde about Gibeon. And the chyldre of Israell wet vp agaynst the chyldren of Ben Jamin the thyrde tyme, and put them selues in aray agaynst Gibeon, as twayne before. And the chyldren of Ben Jamin came out agaynst y people, and were drawen awaye from the cytie: And they beganne to smyte of the people deed (as twayne before, by two hye wayes of which one gothe vp to Bethel ad y ocher to Gibeon thowse the selbe) vpon a thyrtye men of Israell. And the chyldren of Ben Jamin sayde. They are fallen before vs, as at the fyrst. But the chyldren of Israell sayde: let vs flye and plucke them awaye from the cytie, vnto the hye wayes.

And all the men of Israell rose by out of their place, and put them selues in aray at Baal & Hamar. And lyke wyse the layes in waye of Israell came forth out of their places, euen out of the meadowes y were aboute Gibeon, & came agaynst Gibeon: ten thousande chosen men out of all Israell, and there was a sore battell. But the other wold not that to gentenill was to vpe them. And the Lord plagued Ben Jamin before Israell, & the chyldren of Israell destroyed of the Beniamites the same daye. xxvj. thousande and a hundred men, that drew sweordes euery one of them. And when the chyldre of Ben Jamin sawe that they were put to the worst, the men of Israel gaue rowme to the Beniamites, because they trusted vnto the layers in wayte which they had layde besyde Giben. And the layers in wayte halsted, and ranne vpon Giben, and went and smote all the cpyte with the edge of the swerde. And an apoyntment had the men of Israel from the layers in wayte that they shulde make a greate smoke cyle vp out of the cpyte. And whan the men of Israel sledd in the battell Ben Jamin began to smyte deede of the chyldren of Israel, aboute a chysse parsonnes, and sayde: the other are put to the worzle before vs, as in the fyrst battell. But whan there began to aspe out of the cpyte a pyller of smoke, the Beniamites lobed backe: and beholde, the wyntinge of the hole cpyte began to ascende vnto heauen.

Israell

When the men of Israel also turned agayne, the men of Ben Jamin were abashed: for they saw that enel approached them. And therfore they turned their backs before the men of Israel vnto the waye that lea-

And thus they compassed the Beniamites aboute, and chased them to Ghenuba, and ouerranue them to Giben on the east syde: and there were slayne of Ben Jamin. viij. thousande, which were all men of warre. And they turned and sledd to the wyldernesse warde, and vnto the rocke of Kyymon. And the other slue by the waye of the rest of them, xij. thousande men, and specked vnto them, vntyll they cam to Gidcom and slue two thousande men of them. So that all that were slayne that same daye of Ben Jamin were. xxv. thousande men that dyue swordes, which were all men of warre: onely. vj. hundred men turned and sledd to the wyldernesse, vnto the Roche of Kyymon, and abode there. iij. monethes. And the men of Israel turned backe agayne vnto the chyldren of Ben Jamin, & smote them with the edge of the swerde in the cpytes, bothe man and beast and all that came to hande, and set on fyer all the cpytes that they coulde come by.

¶ The .xxj. Chapter.

¶ The inhabitants of Gilead were utterly destroyed.

7  And every man of Israel sware in Ghyza, sayinge: there shall none of vs geue hys daughter vnto any of Ben Jamin to wyfe. And the people came to Bethel: & abode there tyll euen before God, & spake vnto the wyues and wept for, and sayde. O Lord God of Israel, why is this chaunced in Israel, that there shulde be this daye one trybelackynge in Israel? And on the morow the people rose vp by tyme, and made there an altare, and offered burnt offerings and peace offerings.

And the chyldren of Israel asked, who are they amonge all the tribes of Israel, that came not vp with the congregacion vnto the Lord: for they had made a greate other concerning him that came not vp to the Lord to Ghyza, sayinge: he shall suerie bye. And the chyldren of Israel had pytie on Ben Jamin their brethren, and sayde: there is one trybe cut of from Israel this daye: what shall we do vnto the remnant of them, that they maye haue wyues: we haue twome by the Lord, that we will not geue the of our daughters to wyues. And they sayde: Is there any of the trybes of Israel, that came not vp to Ghyza to the Lord? And beholde, ther came none of the inhabitants of Jabes Gilead vnto the host and congregacion. For the people were bewed and beholde, there were none of the inhabitants of Jabes Gilead there. And they sent thither a multitude. euen. xij. thousande men of the strongest of them, and commanded them, sayinge: go and smyte the inhabitants of Jabes Gilead with the edge of the swerde, both women and chyldren. * And this is it that ye shall do: utterlye destroye all the males and all the women that haue lyen by men.
¶ See xxxvi.

And the hole congregacion sent and spake with the chyldren of Ben Jamin that were in the Roche of Kyymon, and called peccablye vnto them: and Ben Jamin came agayne at that tyme, and they gaue them wyues, which they had saued aloue of the women of Jabes Gilead. But they suffred them not. And the people had compassion on Ben Jamin, because that God had made a gapp in the trybes of Israel. And then the elders of the congregacion, sayde: what shall we do to the remnant of them, to get them wyues, seinge all the wyues of Ben Jamin are destroyed? And they sayde: there must be an inheritaunce for them that be cleaved of Ben Jamin, that a trybe be not destroyed out of Israel: howbeit, we maye not geue them wyues of our daughters. For the chyldren of Israel had sware, sayinge: curst be he, that geuth a wyffe to Ben Jamin.

Then they sayde: beholde, there is a feast of the Lord yearly in Sylo, which is on the northsyde of Bethel, and on the east syde of the waye the waye that goeth from Bethel to Sichem and south from Libanon. Therfore they remaigned the chylde of Ben Jamin, saying: go and lye in waie in the byneparces. And when ye see that the daughters of Shilo come out to baunce in a rowe, then come ye out of the byneparces, and catch you euerye man a wyfe of the daughters of Ben Jamin. And when they fathers or bynparces come vnto vs to complaine, we will saye vnto them: haue pytie on vs for theyr sakes, because we refused not to eate man his wyfe in tyme of warre. * Neither haue ye geuen vnto the, that ye shoulde spume at this tyme.

And the chyldezen of Ben Jamin dyen euen so: and soke them wyues necessarye to the nombre of them that daunced, whom they caught. And they went, and returned vnto theyr inheritaunce, and repared the cyties, and dwelt in them.

And the chylde of Israell departed thence at that tyme, and wote euery man to hystrye, be, and to hys kynde, and went out from thence euery man to hys inheritaunce. * In those dayes there, was no kyng in Israell: but euerye man dyd þy which semed ryght in his awne eyes.

¶ The fyrst Chapter.

¶ Elimelech goeth with hys wyfe and chyldezen into the lande of Moab.

In fortunyd, that wth in the dayes of a certayne tyme: wth the Iudges indged, there fell a darth in the lande, and a certen mā of Bethleheim Juda went for to sojourne in the countrey of Moab: he and hys wyfe, and hys two sonnes. The name of the man was Elimelech, and the name of hys wyfe, Naomi: and the names of hys two sonnes were, Mahlon and Chilion, and they were Ephraimites, out of Bethleheim Juda. And wth they came into the land of Moab, they continued there. And Elimelech Naomis husband dyed, and she remayned with her two sonnes, which toke them wyues of the nacion of the Moabites: the ones name was Orpha, and the other Ruth. And they dwelled there about a ten yere. And Mahlon and Chilion dyed also euen both of them, and the woman was lefte desolate of her two sonnes and of her husband. Then stode she vp with her daughters in lawe, and returned from the countrey of Moab: for she had hearde saye in the countrey of Moab, how that the Lorde had visyted hys people, and geuen them bred. Wherfore she departed out of the place where she was, and her two daughters with her. And they went on theyr waye to returne vnto the lande of Juda. And Naomi sayde vnto her two daughters in lawe: go and returne eche of you vnto your mothers house: and the Lorde beale as kynnyde with you, as ye haue dealt with the bred, and with me. And the Lorde geue you, that you maye fynde rest, ether of you in the house of her husband. And when she kyssed them, they lyst by theyr wyce, ad wepte, and sayde vnto her: we wil go with the vnto thy folke. And Naomi sayde: turne agayne my daughters: for what cause will you go with me? Are ther any mo chyldezen in my wombe, to be your husbands? I mene agayne my daughters, and go: for I am to olde to haue an husbande. And yf I sayde, I haue hope, yf I toke a man also this daye: yet and though I had all readye borne sonnes, wolde ye tarye after them, tyll they were of age: or wolde ye for the to long refrayne from takinge of husbandes? For so my daughters: for it greueth me much for your sakes, that the bande of the Lorde is gone out agaynst me.

And they lyst by theiyr wyces, ad wepte agayne, & Orpha kyssed her mother in lawe, but Ruth abonde spyl by her. And Naomi sayde: se, thy speler in lawe is gone backe agayne vnto her people and vnto her goddes: returne thou after her. And Ruth answered: entreate me not to leaue the, and to returne fro after the: for whether thou goest, I will go also, & where thou dwellest, there I will dwell: thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God. Where thou dyest, there will I dye, and there will I be buried. The Lorde do so to me, yf ought but death onelye departe the and me for a nyght.

¶ When she sawe þe she was stedfastly mynde to go with her, she lefte speakyng vnto her. And so they went both, untill they came to Bethleheim. And when they were come to Bethleheim, it was noyded of the thowrow all the cytie, and the women sayd: is not this Naomi? And she answered the: call me not Naomi, (that is to saye, bewepfully) but call me Orpha, (that is to saye, bytter). for þe Almyghty hath made me byrre bytter. I went out full: and þe Lorde hath brought me home agayne emptye. Why then call ye me Naomi: I seinge the Lorde hath habiled me, and the almyghty hath brought me vnto aduersyte? And so Naomi Raomi with Ruth the Moabitess her daughter in law returned out of the countrey of Moab, and came to Bethlehem, in the beginning of barley harvest.

Chap. ij.

Ruth gathered come in the feble of Booz.

Ruth Boomis husband had a kinsman of strength, and might, which was of the kynred of Elimelech, named Booz. And Ruth the Moabitess layd vnto Raomi: let me go to the felde, ad geather eares of corne. Raomi as the eares leane: after any man in whose spght, I fynde grace. And she sayde vnto her: go my daughter. And she went, and came to the felde, and geathered after the reapers, and her chaunce was, that the same felde pertayned vnto Booz, which was of the kynred of Elimelech. And behold, Booz came from Bethlehem, and sayd vnto the reapers: the Lorde be with you. And they answered him: the Lorde blisse the. The sayd Booz vnto his younge man that stode by the reapers. Whose damosell is this? And the younge man that stode by the reapers, answered, and sayde: it is the Moabitess the damosell, that came with Raomi out of the countrey of Moab, and she sayde vnto vs: Oh, let me lease a geather after the reapers, the eares that remaine: and so she came, and hath continued euill from the morning vnto now, sine that she taried a litle in y house.

Then sayde Booz vnto Ruth: hearest y my daughter: go to no nother felde to geather, nether go from hence: but abyde here by my maydens. Let thine eyes be on the felde that they reape, and go thou after the maydens. haue I not charged the younge men, that they shal do y no hurt? Wozone when thou art a thyss, go vnto the vessels, and drinck of that which the ladden haue drayn.

Then she fell on her face and bowed herselfe to y ground, and sayd vnto him: how is it that I haue founde grace in thine eyes, ad that thou quidest knowe me, being I am an aliaunt?

And Booz answered and sayde vnto her: all is to be ad shewd me, that thou hast done vnto thy mother in law, since y death of thine husband, how thou hast leste thy father and thy mother, and flande where thou wast borne, ad art come vnto a naci which thou knewest not in tyme past. The Lorde quyte thy woche, and a full rewarde be geuen the of the Lorde God of Isracell, vnder whose wynges thou art come to abyde. The sayde: let me fynde fauoure in thy spght my Lorde, thou that hast comforted me, and spoken hartely vnto thy mayde, which yet am not like vnto one of thy maydens. Booz sayde vnto her agayne: in tyme of refection come thou hither, and eate of the byed, and bypp thy suppe in the vineger. And the late downe by y reapers, & he reached her a par: ched corne: of the which she byd eate, ad was suffled, and lecte parte. And when he was risen by to gather, Booz commaunded bys younge mē, saying: let her gather euē amonge the heapes, and forbydde her not. And leaue her some of the sheues for the nonce, and let it lye, y she may geather it by. Ruth without fauour, and rebuke her not. And so she geathered in the felde, vntyll euen, and theslied that she had geathered, and it was in measure vpon an Ephah. Ruth as the buttyll of barley. And she toke it by, and went into the city: and when her mother in law had sene what she had geathered, she plucked out aln, & gaue to her that she had reserved, whē she had eaten ynough. And her mother in law sayd vnto her: where hast thou geathered to daye? and where wroughtest thou? blessed be he, that knewe y. And she shewd her mother in law how she had wrought with him, and sayde: the mannes name with whom I wrought to daye is Booz. And Raomi sayd vnto her daughter in law: blessed be he of the Lorde, for he ceaseth not to do good to the lyuing and to the dead. And Raomi sayde agayne vnto her: the man is nye vnto vs, ad of oure next kynne. And Ruth the Moabitess sayde: he sayde vnto me also. Thou shalt be to my younge men, vntyll they haue ended all my haruelt. And Raomi answered vnto Ruth her daughter in law: it is best my daughter that thou go out with bys maydens, that they fall not vpon the in any other felde. And so she kept her by the maydens of Booz, to gather, vnto the ende of barley haruelt, and of whete heruelt also: and dwelt with her mother in law.

Chap. iij.

Ruth is sayd at Boozs feet, and is drunken bys husbandman.

When Raomi her mother in law sayd vnto her: my daughter, shal I not like reast for the, that thou mayst prosper? And is not Booz our kynsmān, with whose maydens thou wast? Acholde, he wene with barleye to nyght in the thryngynge floure: wahe thy selfe therfore, and anoynt the, and put thy rayment vpon the, and gett the downe to the barme. But let not a man knowe of the, vntyll he haue reast eatynge and bynckynge. And when he goeth to slepe, marke the place where he layeth hym downe, and then go and lyte by the clothes, that are on his feet, and laye the downe there, and so shall he tell the what thou shalt do. And she answered her: all that thou byddyst me, I will do. And so she went downe vnto the barme, and byd accorde to all that her mother in law bad her. And when Booz had eaten & dronken, and made made him merce, and was gone in, to lye downe by the heape of coine, she came soft-lye, and liſte vnder the cloſes of his ſete, and layde her downe. And at mydnight the man was aſtrape and groyed. And beholde: a woman laye at his ſete. And he ſayde: what art thou: ſhe answered: I am Ruth thyne ſiſter mayde, ſayde ſhe wpinge ouer thine hand mayde, for thou art the nect of the kynne.

¶ He ſayde: bleſſed be y in the Lorde my daughter, for thou haſt the wed more goodneſſe in the later ende, then at the beginninge, in as moche as thou folowedeſt not yonge men, whether they were pooze or riſhe. And now my daughter feare not, I will do to the all y thou requireſt, for all the crye of my people doth knowe, that thou art a woman of vertue. And it is true that I am of thy nect kynne: howe it, there is one nyer then I. Tary this night. And when morninge is come, yf he will marrie the, it is good, ſo let him do. But and yf he will not haue the, as I ſure as the Lorde liueth I will haue the: lye ſtill vntill y morninge. And ſo the lye at his ſete vntill the morninge. And ſhe aroſe vnder before one coulde knowe another. And he ſayde: let no man knowe, that there came any woman into the barn. And he ſayde agayne: bringe thy maſſell that thou haſt vpon the, and holde it vpon. And when ſhe helde it vpon, he merite in ſixe meatures of barleye. And layde it on her. And the gatt her into the cytie: and wha the came into her mother in lawe, ſhe ſayde: how is it with y my daughter: And ſhe tolde her all that the man had done to her. And ſayde alſo: theſe ſixe meatures of barleye gaue he me, and ſayde: thou ſhalt not come empty vnto thy mother in lawe. Then ſayde ſhe, my daughter, lye ſtill, vntill y knowe howe the matter will chaunce. For the man will not be in reaſt, vntill he haue ſprunged the thinge this ſame daye.

¶ The liij. Chapter.

¶ Booz ſaith vnto Ruth, of whom he begat Ruth.

And when went Booz vnto the gate And ſate him downe there: ad beholde, the kynſind of which Booz ſpake, came by. Vnto whom, he ſayde: come and lyece downe here, and cal- led him by his name. And he turned in, and ſate downe. And he toke ten me of the elders of the citie, and ſayde: lyece downe here. And they ſat downe. And he ſayde vnto the kynſman: Naomi that is come agayne out of the ſcotepe of Moab: will ſell a parcell of lande, which was oure brother Elimelech. And I thought to do the to mete, and bid the lyece before the enhabitours and elders of my people. Yf thou be diſpoſed to redeme it, do: but and yf thou wilt not pourechaſe it, then tell me, y I maye knowe. For there is none to calenge it, ſaue thou, and I merite the. And the other answered: I will pourechaſe it.

¶ Then ſayde Booz, what daye thou bleſt is the ſelde of the hand of Naomi, thou muſt take alſo Ruth the Moabite the: y wyfe of the bed, to ſtce vnder the name of the bed vnder his inheritaunce. The kynſind answered: I cannot pourechaſe it, for marriage of inyne is none inheritaunce: take thou my right to the, for I cannot pourechaſe it. Now, this was the manner of olde tyme in Iſraell concerninge purchaſe and chaunging, for to ſtabliſhe all thinge: that a man muſt pluche of his ſhowe, and geue it his neyghboure, and this was a ſure witneſſe in Iſraell.

¶ Therfore the kynſman ſaide to Booz: Spee it thou: and ſo geue of his ſhowe. And Booz ſayde vnto the elders and vnto all the people: ye are witneſſes this daye, that I haue bought all that was Elimelechs, and all that was Chilion and Mahlons, of the hand of Naomi. And moreover, Ruth the Moabite the wyfe of Mahlon, haue I purchaſed to be my wyfe, to ſtce vnder the name of the bed vpon his inheritaunce, and that his name be not put out from amonge his brethren, and from the gate of his place: ye are witneſſes this daye.

¶ And all the people that were in the gate, and the elders ſayde: we are wyneſſes: the Lord make the woman that is come into thynne houſe, lye: Rachel ad Lea, which twayne byd builde the houſe of Iſraell: do thou alſo valeauntly in Ephraim, and be famous in Bethlehern. Thy houſe ſhall be like y houſe of Pharez: whos Hamar bare vnto Iuda, euen of the ſede which the Lord geue the of this yonge woman.

¶ And ſo Booz toke Ruth, and ſhe was his wyfe. And wha he was in vnto her, the Lord gaue, that ſhe conceiued, and bare a ſonne. And the women ſayde vnto Naomi: bleſſed be the Lord, the which hath not left y without a kynſman, to haue a name in Iſraell, ad that ſhall bringe thy life agayne, and cheriſhe thine olde age. For thy daughter in lawe which loueth the, hath borne vnto him: and the is better to the then ſeven ſonnes. And Naomi toke the child, ad layde it in her lappe, and became nouſe vnto it. And her neyghbours gaue it a name, ſaying: there is a child borne to Naomi, and called it, Obed. The ſame is the father of Iſai, the father of Dauid. Theſe are the generations of Pharez: Pharez begat Hezron: Hezron begat Ram, Ram begat Aminadab, Aminadab begat Naſhon, Naſhon begat Salmon, Salmon begat Booz. Booz begat Obed, Obed begat Iſai, Iſai begat Dauid.

 soeuer any man offered any offeringe, the prelates ladd came, while the flethe was in seething, & a fleschoke wth thye terte in his hand, and thrust it into the pane: kelle, caldrien, or potte. And all that the fleshe boke brought vp, that the prelate toke awayne.
 And so they did vnto all þe Israelites, that came thither to Silo. See & therto, before they burnt þe fette, the prelates ladd came and sayd to the man that offered: geue fletch that I maye dedde it for the prelate, for he wyll not haue lode fletche of the, but rawe.
 And if any man sayde vnto hym: let them burne the fette accordyng to the dape, & then take as moche as thine herre desireth. The ladd wold answer him, yee, þe shalt geue it me now: and yf thou wylt not, I wyll take it with violence. And the synne of þe young-men was very great before the Lozde. For men abhorred the offeringe of the Lozde.

But the childe Samuel ministered before the Lozde, girded about wth a linnen Ephod. Moreover, hyr mother made him a linnen coat, & brought it to him from pere to pere, wher the came up with her husbande to offer the offeringe in the solempne feastes: and Eli blessed Elhana & his wyfe, and sayde: the Lozde geue the fructe of thy woma, for the petytyon that she asked of the lozde. And they went vnto their atome home. And the lozde visited Hanna, so that she conceived & bare thre sonnes & two daughters. And the childe Samuel grewe before the lozde.

Eli was very olde, & herde all that his sonnes vpd vnto all Israel, and how they lape with the women þe waped at the doze of the Tabernacle of wyntesse, & he sayde vnto them: wyd do ye soche thynges? For of all these people I heare euell reportes of you. Wh, naye my sonnes: for it is no good reporte that I heare, how that ye make the lozdes people to trespasse. If one ma synne agaynst another, & daplemen maye be iudges: but yf a man synne agaynst the lozde who will be his dapleman? For wythstand-yng, they perkened not vnto the voyce of their father, because the lozde wolde slape them. The childe Samuel propheted: and grew, and was in fauoure both with þe loz-de, and also with men.

And there came a man of God vnto Eli, & he sayd vnto him: thus saith the lozde: vpd not. I appeare vnto the house of thy father, wher they were in Egypte subiect vnto pha-raos house: And I chose thy father out of all þe trybes of Israel to be my prelate, for to offer vpon myne altare, & to burne incense, & and to weare an Ephod before me.
 And I gaue vnto þe house of thy father all the burnt offeringes of the chyldren of Israel. Wherefore treade ye downe my sacrifice and myne offeringe, which I commaunded to be made in the Tabernacle, & I honoreth thy chyldren aboute me, to make pouer selues: fette of the first frutes of all the offerynges of Israel my people: Wherefore the lozde God of Israel sayeth: I sayde, that thy house and the house of thy father shuld walke before me for euer. But now the loz-de sayeth: that be farr from me: for they that woorthipe me, I will woorthipe, & they þe despyse me, shall come to shame. When-soe, the dayes come, & I will cut of thyne arme, & the arme of thy fathers house, & there shal not be an elder i thine house. And thou shalt be thyne enemye in the tabernacle of lozde, & in all that welthe which God shal giue Israel: & there shal not be an elder in thyne house for euer. Reuerencelesse, I will not destroye all the males that come of the fro myne altare. But to make thyne eyes bare, & to make thyne heart melt. And all they

they ſh be multiplied in thyne houſe, * ſhall dye, yf they be men.

And this ſhall be a ſigne vnto the, that ſhall come vpon thy two ſonnes * hophny & Phineches: euen in one daye they ſhall dye both.
And I will ſceer me vpon faithfull peſte, y ſhall do accordyng to my ſceer and mynde:
And I will buyde him a fure houſe. And he ſhall walke before myne anoynted for euer.
And they ſe are left in thyne houſe, ſhall come, and crouch to him for a litle peece of ſpiner & a cake of bread, & ſhall ſaye: put me I praye the in one office or other amonge the prieſtes, that I maye eate a morſell of bread.

¶ The Lozde callith Samuel the yonge.
¶ Ad the chyld Samuel mynſtred vnto the Lozde before Eli: & y woorde of the Lozde was precious in thoſe dayes, neither was there any open viſion. And it chaſed at y tyme, that Eli laye in his place, and hys * eyes be-ganne to waxe dymme that he coulde not ſe.
And per the ſape of God went out, Samuel layde hym downe to ſleepe in the temple of the Lozde, where the arcke of God was. And the Lozde called Samuel, & he ſayde, here am I.
And he ran vnto Eli, & ſayd: here am I, for y calledſt me. And he ſayd: I called the not: go agayne, & ſleepe. And he went, and layde hym downe to ſleepe. And the Lozde called ouer a-gayne: Samuel, & Samuel aroſe & went to Eli, & ſayd, I am here, for thou dydeſt call me. And he answered: I called y not, my ſon-ne. Go agayne, and take thy riſt. ¶ Samuell knewe not yet the Lozde, neither was y woorde of y Lozde yet opened vnto hym. And the Lozde went to, & called Samuel y thyrd tyme. And he aroſe, & went to Eli, & ſayde: I am here, for y haſt called me. And Eli perceiued y the Lozde had called the chyld. Therefore, Eli ſayde vnto Samuel: go, & lye dowe-ne: & yf he call the agayne, then ſaye, ſpeake on Lozde, for thy ſeruaunt heareth. So Samuell went, & layde hym downe in hys place.
And the Lozde came, & ſtoode, & called as before, Samuel Samuel. Samuel answered: ſpeake on: for thy ſeruaunt heareth. And the Lozde ſayde to Samuel: beholde, I will do a thinge in Iſrael, yf both the eares of as many as heareth it, ſhall ringe. In y daye I will ruple vpon agaynſt Eli, all thynges whiche I haue ſpoken concernyng his houſe: from the begynnyng to the endyng. I haue tolde him, * that I will iudge hys houſe for euer, for y wickednes which he knoweth. * For whe the people curſed hys ſonnes for y ſame wikednes, he hath not corrected the. And therefore, I haue ſworne vnto the houſe of Eli, y the wycke dennes of Elies houſe, ſhall not be purged w ſacrifice nor offering for euer. Samuell laye tyll the mornyng, and opened the dores of the houſe of the Lozde.

And Samuel feared to ſcewe Eli the viſion. Then Eli called Samuel, & ſayde: Samuell my ſonue. And he answered: here I am.
He ſayde: what is that the Lozde hath ſayde vnto the? I praye the, ſe thou ſpide it not fro me. * God do ſo, & ſo to the, yf thou ſpide any thyng from me, of all that he ſayde vnto the.
And Samuel tolde hym euery whyle, and hydd nothyng from hym. And he ſayd: it is the Lozde, let him do what ſemeth hym beſt.

And Samuel grewe, & the Lozde was wyth him, & left none of hys woordes unper-formed. And all Iſrael from Dan to Berſabe weſt that faithfull Samuel was made the Lozdes prophete. And the Lozde appered agayne in Silo: for the Lozde opened hym ſcite to Samuel in Silo, thow the woordes

And ther was an exceeding great slaughter for there were ouerthrowe of Israel .xxx. th. foremen. And the arche of God was taken, & the two sonnes of Eli, * Hopni, & Phinehas were deyd. And ther cam a mā of Ben Jamin out of the arape, and came to Shilo the same daye with his clothes rent & earth vpon hys heyd. And when he came, Eli satte vpon a stole, and looked toward the waape: for his heart feared for the arche of God. And when the mā came in to the cytie, and tolde it, all the cytie cryed.

* 1. Reg. ii. 5

And when Eli herde the noyse of the cryg he sayd: What meaneth this noyse of the rumor? And þu mā came in hastily, & tolde Eli. Eli was .xxviij. yere olde, and * hys sygher sapied him þe could not ic. And the mā sayd vnto Eli: I am he þe came out of the arape, & fled this daye out of the host. And he sayde: What thing is fortuneth my sonne? The messenger answered & sayd: Israel is fled before the Philistines, & there is a greute slaughter chaunced amonge the people, & the two sonnes, Hopni, & Phinehas are deyd, & the arche of God is taken. And it fortuneth that whan he made mencō of the arche of God, Eli fell from of hys stole backward vpon the thyrholde of the gate, and bys necke brake, and he dyed: for he was an olde man and heuye, and iudged Israel fouertye yeres.

And whē she hearde the pbynges of the arche of God was taken, & þer father in lawe, & her husbande were deyd, she bowed her self, and traueled, for her paynes came vpon her. And about þe yere of her deeth, the women þe rode aboute her, sayd vnto her: feare not, for þe hast borne a sonne: but she answered not, nor regarded it. And he named the childe * Ichabod, sayinge: The glozye is departed fro Israel. Because the arche of God was taken, & because of her father in lawe and her husbande. And she sayde agayne: The glozye is gone fro Israel, for the arche of God is taken.

* The glozye is gone.

* The. b. Chapter.

¶ Dagon the God of the Philistines is cast ffor before the arche.

AND the Philistynes toke the arche of God, and carped it from the helpe stone vnto Ashdod, agayne the Philistynes toke the arche of God, & brought it into the house of Dagon, and sett it by Dagon. And when they of Ashdod were by in the nexte daye in the mornynge, beholde, Dagon laye vpon the erth before the arche of the Lorde. And they toke Dagon, & set him in hys place agayne. And when they were by eely in the nexte mornynge, beholde, Dagon laye vpon the grounde before the arche of the Lorde, and his heyd, & his two handes cut of vpon the thepholde, for only the waape of a syll was left on hym. And therefore sayt, the prestes of Dagon (neither any mā that cometh into Dagon's house) treade not on the thyrholde of Dagon in Ashdod, vnto this daye. But the hāde of the Lorde was dryp vpon the of Ashdod, & he destroyed the, & smote the emerodes, bothe Ashdod & in all þe coastes thereof.

¶ The prestes also a thecten in the mydes of the rod: the were full, & there came by inces, & there was a confusion of great deeth in the cytie. And when the men of Ashdod sawe þe it was so, they sayde the arche of the God of Israel shall not abyde here with vs, for hys hāde is loye vpon vs & vpon Dagon oure God. They sent therefore & gathered all the lordes of the Philistines vnto the, & sayde: What shall we do wth the arche of the God of Israel? They answered: let þe arche of þe God of Israel be carped aboute vnto Gath. And they carped the arche of the God of Israel about. And it fortuneth, that whē they had carped it about, there was by the hande of the Lorde a myghtye greute noyse in the cytie, & he smote the men of the cytie both small and greute: & they had secret diseases. ¶ And the prestes toke counsell, & made them seuer ppyse (saies of synnes). Therefore they sent the arche of God to Asharon. And aslone as the arche of God came to Asharon, the Asharonites crept out saying: they haue brought the arche of þe God of Israel to vs, to sle vs and oure people.

And to they sent, and gathered together all the lordes of the Philistines & sayde: send nwaape the arche of the God of Israel, to go agayne to his awne place, that it sle vs not and oure people. For there was greute lamē racyon ouer the deade thowout all the cytie, & the hāde of God was exceeding loze there. And the mē that dyed not, were impotent wth the Emerodes: and the crepe of the cytie went by to heauē.

* The. vi. Chapter.

¶ The ppyse done the arche wth the wntores.

The arche of the Lorde was in the cōstrec of the Philistines seuen monethes: and the Philistynes called for the prestes & þe soth sayers, sayinge: What shall we do wth the arche of the Lorde? tell vs, where with we shall sende it home agayne? They sayde: þe you sende the arche of the God of Israel home agayne, sende it not emptye. But rewarde it w a trespasse offeringe: and then ye shalbe whole, and it shalbe knowento you, whp hys hāde departed not from you.

¶ Then sayde they: And what shalbe the trespasse offeringe, whp we shal rewarde hym? They answered: fyne golden ardes and

and. v. golden myce, according to the nombre of the lordes of the Philistines. for it is one manner of plague on you all, & on your lordes. Wherfore ye shal make ymages like to your orisles, and ymages lyke to your myce: & corrupt the lande, and ye shall geue glory vnto the God of Israel: that he maye take his habd from of you, and fro of your goddess, and fro of your lande.

25 Wherfore do ye harden your hertes as y Egypcians and Pharaon hardened their hertes: which when he toke an agaynst the, dyd they not let the people go, & they departed: Now therfore, make a newe carre, and take two melche kyne: on whose necke there hath come no yoke. And tye the kyne to the carre, and bying the calves home fro them. And take the arke of the Lord, and laye it vpon the carre, and put the iewels of golde: which ye rewarde him with for a synoffering: in a cosse by the side thereof: and send it a waye, & it maye go. And yf ye fele ye go vp by y waye of his awne cosse to Bethlames: then it is he y dyd vs this great cruyl. Yf no, we shall knowe then, that it is not his hande y smote vs: but it was a chance that happened vs. And the me yd euen so: and toke two kyne. That gaue mylke, and tyed them to the carre, and hept the calves at home, and they layde the arke of the Lorde vpon the carre and the cosse wth the myce of gold, and wth the ymages of their orisles. And the kyne toke y streyght waye to Bethlames, & went on y streyght waye: & as they wet, lowed, & turned nether to the right hāde ner to the left. And the lordes of the Philistines went after them, vntill the borders of Bethlames.

And they of Bethlames were reappynge their wheate herust in the vally. And they lift vp their eyes, and spied the arke. And re-ported whē they sawe it. And the carre came into the felde of one Jecholia a Bethlamine, and stode still there. There was also a great stone. And they claue the wood of the carre & offered the kyne a burnt offering vnto y Lord. And the Leuites toke downe the arke of the Lorde & the cosse that was with it, wherū the iewels of golde were: and put them on the great stone. And the men of Bethlames sacrificed burnt sacrifice, and offered offeringes y same daye vnto the Lorde. And when the Epue lordes of the Philistines had sene it, they returned to Akard the same daye. And therē are the golden asses which the Philistines gaue to amēdors for a trespassoffering, to the Lorde: for Akad one: for Gath one: for Ashdod one: for Ekron one: and for Bethlame one. And golden myce, according to the nombre of all the cittyes of the Philistines, euen according to the Epue lordes, both of walled towncs and of towncs unwallid: euen vnto the greates tōne of lamentacon, wherō they set downe the arke of the Lord: which stode remaineth vnto this daye in the felde of Jecholia the Bethlamine. And he plagued the men of Bethlames, because they had sene the arke of the Lorde. And he slue amonge the people fiftye thousand and thye score and ten men. And the other people lamented, because the Lorde had slayne the people with so great a slaughter. Wherfore the men of Bethlames sayde: who is able to stande before the Lord to holp a God: and to whom shall he go from vs? And they sent messengers to the enbassadors of Akaratharim, saying: The Philistines haue brought agayne the arke of the Lorde: come ye downe therfore, and set it vp to you.

The vij. Chapter.
The arcke is brought to Akaratharim.

AD to the men of Akaratharim came, and set vp the arke of the Lord: and y brought it into the house of Ammadabai Sibon, & lanced yd Ekazar his sonne, to hepe the arke of the Lorde: and while the arke abode in Akaratharim, the dayes multiplied, and ther passed ouer .xx. yeres, and the house of Israel lamented after the Lorde. And Samuel spake vnto all y house of Israel, saying: yf ye be come agayne vnto the Lorde with all your hertes, then x put a waye the straunge goddesses & Akaroth from amonge you: and prepare your hertes vnto the Lorde, and serue hym: ony: for he shall ryd you out of the hande of the Philistines. Then the chyldren of Israel dyd put awaie Baalim and Akaroth, and serued the Lorde onely. And Samuel sayde: gather all Israel to Mizpa, & I will praye for you vnto the Lorde. And they gathered together to Mizpa, and dreyed water: and powred it out before the Lorde, & fasted the same daye and sayde there: we haue synned against the Lorde. And Samuel warged the chyldren of Israel in Mizpa. Whē the Philistines heard y the chyldren of Israel were gathered together to Mizpa, y lordes of y Philistines wet vp agaynst Israel. And when the chyldren of Israel heard y they were assayed of y Philistines, & the chyldren of Israel saide to Samuel: craile not to crye vnto the Lorde oure God for vs, that he maye saue vs out of the hād of the Philistines. * And Samuel toke a sucking lambe, and offered it all together for a burnt offering vnto the Lorde: & cryed vnto the Lorde for Israel, & the Lord heard him. And as Samuel offered y burnt offering, the Philistines came to fyght agaynst Israel. But the Lorde thundered a great thōndre y same daye amonge the Philistines, and scattered them, y they fell before Israel. And y men of Israel went out of Mizpa, and pursued the Philistines, & folowed vpon them.

untill the place that is vnder Bethleem:

D And then Samuel * toke a stone, and pitched it betwene Ephraim & the mark of the rock, and called the name thereof, p. stone of hepten, saying: hitherto hath the Lord helped vs. And so the Philistines were brought vnder, & they came no more into the coastes of Israel: the hand of the Lord was agaynst p. Philistines all p. dayes of Samuel. Therefore, the cities which the p. Philistines had taken fro Israel, were restored agayne to Israel, euen fro Azoron to Gath, w^{ch} the coastes of the same, & Israel plucked them out of the handes of the Philistines. And there was peace betwene Israel & the Amorites. Samuel iudged Israel all the dayes of his lyfe, and wet about yere by yere to Bethel, Gilgal, and Ephraim, & iudged Israel in all those places, & came agayne to Ramma: for there was his house, & ther he iudged Israel also, & there he dwelt an aunter vnto the Lord.

The viij. Chapter.

The people requyre a kynge.

When Samuel was olde, he made his sonnes iudges ouer Israel. The name of his eldest sone was Joel, and p. name of p. second Abia: & they were iudges in Beerseba. And his sonnes walked not in his wayes: but turned ashyde after lucre, and so toke reuerence, and peruertered the righte. Then all the elders of Israel gathered thes together, and came to Samuel vnto Ramma, & sayd vnto him: behold, thou art olde, and the sonnes walke not in thy wayes. Now therefore * make vs a kynge to iudge vs, as all other nations haue.

But p. theyng displeased Samuel, wh^{ch} they sayde: geue vs a king to iudge vs. And Samuel prayed vnto the Lord. And the Lord sayde vnto Samuel: heare the voyce of the people in all that they saye vnto p. For they haue not cast p. awaye, but me: that I shulde not raygne ouer the. And as they haue enedone: I sence I broughte them out of Egypte vnto this daye, and haue forsaken me, and serued other goddes: euen so do they vnto the. Nowe therefore hearken vnto their voyce: howbeit, yet tell thyng vnto the and shewe the * the auctorite of p. king that shall raygne ouer the. And Samuel told all the wordes of the Lord vnto the people, that asked a kynge of him, and he sayde: thus shalbe the auctorite of the kynge that shal raygne ouer you: * he will take your sonnes and put the to hye charrettes, and make hye boilemen of the, to ronne before his charre: and will make him of them, captaynes ouer thousandes and ouer fiftyes, and will set them to care his greiffe, and to gather in his heruest, and to make instrumentes of warre, and apparrell for his charrettes. And he will take your daughters, & make the apoticaries, cookes and bakers. And he shall take p. best of your feldes, & * and of your vineyardes, and of your olyue trees, and geue them to hye seruantes. And he shall take the tenth of your seed, and of your vyneyardes, and geue it to hye chamberlaynes, and to hye seruantes. And he shall take the best of your muleruantes and mayds seruantes and pong men, and of your asses, and put the to his woghe. And he shall take the tenth of your shepe, and ye shalbe his seruantes. And ye shall crye out at that tyme vpon your kynge, which ye shall haue chosen you, & the Lord will not heare you at that daye.

After this, the people wolde not heare the voyce of Samuel, but dyd say: naye, not so. But there shalbe a king ouer vs, that we maye be lyke other nacions, and that ouer kynge maye iudge vs, and go out before vs, and fyghe our battayles. * Therefore, when Samuel hearde all the wordes of p. people, he rehearsed them in the eares of the Lord. And the Lord sayde to Samuel: hearken vnto thei voyce, and make the a king: And Samuel sayde vnto the men of Israel: go eueri man vnto his cite.

The ix. Chapter.

Of the sonne of Cislo chertem kynge.

Ther was a man of Issachar named Cislo the sonne of Abiel, the sonne of Zeror, the sone of Bechothath, the sonne of Ephraim, p. sonne of a man that was a Geminite, a man of strenght and might: and the same had a sonne called Saul, a goodly yong man and a fayne: so that amongst the chyldren of Israel there was none goodlier then he. For from the shouldeys vywarde, he was hyer then all p. other people. And the asses of thyng Cislo Sauls father were lost: and Cislo sayde to Saul his sonne: take one of the laddes to the and go vp & seke the asses. And he went thorow mount Ephraim, & thorow p. lade of Saliba: but they founde them not. Then they went thorow the lade of Salim, and there they were not. Wher they wet also thorow the lade of Gemin, they foide the not. At the last, when they were come to the land of Zuph, Saul saide to his lad p. was with him: come, let vs retorne, lest my father leaue crying for the asses, & take thought for vs. He sayd vnto him: behold, there is in this cite a ma of God, & he is a worshipfull ma: all p. the sayth, cometh hitherly to passe. Nowe then let vs go thither: peraduenture he shal shewe vs what waye we maye go. Then sayd Saul to his lad: p. we will go, what shall we bryng the ma? For our bread is all spet out of oure vessels, & there is no nother present to bryng the man of God: what haue we? And the lad answered Saul agayne, and sayde: I haue founde about me the fourth parte of a shele, that that will I geue the man of God, to tell vs oure waie.

Before tyme in Israel when a man wold to seeke an answer of God, thus wold he speake, come, and let vs go to the g fear. For he that is now called a prophet, was in the olde tyme called a seer. Then sayde Saul to his lab: well sayde of the: come, let vs go. And so they went vnto the cytie where the man of God was. And as they were goinge vp into the cytie, they mett wyth danioffiles y came out to bryue water, and sayd vnto them: is there here a sear? And the maydens answered the, yee, u (here is one) beholde, he is before you. Make haste now, for he cam thys daie to the cytie: there is an offeringe of the people this daie in the hill. When he be come into the cytie, ye shall fynde hym kraggbe waie, per he be go vp to the hill to cate: for the people wold not cate vntill he come, because he doth blest the offering. And then cate they y be bydden to the feast. Now therfore gett you vp, for this daie shall ye fynde hym.

And they went vp into the cytie. And when they were come into the myddes of the cite: beholde, Samuel came out agaynst the, for to go vp to the hill. But y Lord had tolde Samuel in his care (a daie before Saul came) sayenge: to morowe thys tyme I will sende the a man out of the lande of Ben Jamin, hym shalt thou anoynte to be captayne ouer my people Israel, that he maye saue my people out of the hande of the Philistines: for I haue looked vpon my people, and they crye is come vnto me. Wold Samuel therfore saw Saul, the Lord answered hym: se, this is the ma, who I shalke to the of. Thys same shall raygne ouer my people.

Then went Saul to Samuel in the myddle of the gate, & sayde: tell me I praye the, where the sears house is. Samuel answered Saul, and sayde: I am the sear, go vp before me vnto the hill, for ye shall cate wch me to daie. And to morowe I will let the go, and wll tell the all that is in thyne hart. And as for thyne asses y were lost thre dayes ago, care not for them, for they are founde. And moreover, whos shall the bewtiful thinges of Israel be: belonge they not to the, and vnto all the fathers house? But Saul answered and sayde: am not I the sonne of a Jeminite of the smallest trybe of Israel? and my kypure is the least of all the kynredes of the trybe of Ben Jamin. Wherefore then speakest thou to me?

And Samuel toke Saul and his lab, and brought them into the paxler, and made the sett in the cheffest place amonge them y were bydden: which were vpon a thyrte persone. And Samuel sayde vnto the cooke: brynge forth the porcion wch I gaue the, and of which I sayd vnto the: kepe it with the. And

And Samuel sayd: beholde, y which is left: put it before the eate, for hitherto hath it bene kept for the, of purpose, when I called the people. And so Saul byd ent wch Samuel y daie. And when they were come downe from the hill into the cytie, Samuel comuned wch Saul: upon the toppes of the house: and when they arose crye about the fyryng of the daie, Samuel called Saul vpon y toppes of the house, sayenge: vp, y I maye sende the nwyte. And Saul arose. And they wold out at the doores both, he & Samuel. And when they were come almost out of the towne, Samuel sayd to Saul: vnto the lad go before vs (and he wold before): but stande thou still a while, that I maye shewe the what God sayeth.

Ch. x. Chapter.

¶ Saul is anoynted kyng, and propheseth.

And the Samuel toke a vessell of oyle, & powred it vpon hys head, & kysed him, & sayde: hath not the Lord anoynted the, to be captayne ouer hys enemies? And thou shalt bryng out the people out of the handes of thy enemies, which are rounde about the. And thou shalt know that the Lord hath anoynted the to be kyng. And there shall me the thye me goinge vp, & to God to Bethel: one carpinge thre kiddes: & another carpeg the loues of berde: & another carpeg a borell of wyne. And they wll salute y, & geue the two loues of berde: which thou shalt receaue of theyr hades. After y shalt thou come to the hill of God, where y Philistines kepe their watche. And when thou art come thither to the cytie, y shalt meete a companye of prophetes cominge downe fro the hill, w a pialter, & timbrell, & ppye, & a harpe before the, & thou shalt prophete. Saul ſayd vnto you? Saul answered his vncle: he tolde vs plainly, that the aſſes were founde. But of the kyngdome wherof Saul ſpake, tolde he hym not. And Samuel called the people together vnto ſ of Iſrael: thus ſayeth the Lorde God of Iſrael:

I brought Iſrael out of Egypt, and deliuered you out of the hande of the Egyptians, &

And whē they ſought hym, he coulde not be ¶ Saul is commaunded to slaye Amalek. He is disobedient to the voyce of God. Samuel mour: eth for Saul.

* 1. 1. 17. 18. c.

Saul sayde vnto Saul: * The Lord sent me to anoynt vs, to be kynges ouer his people Israel. Nowe therfore hearken thou vnto the voyce of the Lorde. Thus sayth the Lorde of hostes: I remember vs whych Amalek dyd to Israel

* 1. 1. 17. 18. c.

And Saul gathered the people together. * & nombred them in Telaim, two hundred thousand foote men, and ten thousande mt of Iuda. And Saul came vnto a crye of Amalek, & set watche in vs valeye. And Saul sayde vnto the kernes: go, & departe, & gett you downe from amonge the Amalechites, lett I destroye you with them: for pe thewed mercy to all the chyldren of Israel, wher they came out of Egypt. And so the kernes departed from amonge the Amalechites.

And Saul smote the Amalechites from heula, as thou comest to Sur, that isyth befoze Egypt, and toke Agag kyng of the Amalechites alpye, & vnterly destroyed all the people with the edge of the sword. * But Saul and the people spared Agag, and the better shepe, & the latter oxen, & the lambs, and all that was good, & wolde not destroye them. But all vs was soule & naught worth, that they destroyed vnterly. Then came the voyce of the Lorde vnto Samuel, sayinge: it * repenter me, vs I haue made Saul kyng. * For he is turned from me, and hath not performed my commaundement. And Samuel was euell apayed, and cried vnto the Lorde all nyght. And whan Samuel rose elpye, to mete Saul in vs moynpye, it was tolde Samuel, that Saul was come to Carmel, & beholde, he * hath made him there a place, & is turned, and departed, and gone bowne to Gilgail.

And Samuel came to Saul, & (Saul offered burnt sacrifice vnto the Lorde of the pyll of vs spoyles, whych he had brought fro Amalek. And whan Samuel was come vnto Saul,) Saul sayde vnto him: Blessed be thou in the Lorde. I haue fulfilled the commaundemt of the Lorde. Samuel sayde: what meaneth then the beating of the shepe in myne eares, and the noyse of the oren which I heare? Saul answered: they haue broughe them from the Amalechites. For the people spared the best of the shepe and of the oren, to sacrifice them vnto the Lorde thy God. And vs remnant haue we destroyed vnterly.

Samuel sayde to Saul: lett me tell the what the Lorde hath sayde to me this nyght. And he sayde vnto hym: saye on. Samuel sayde * when vs wast elpye in thyne awne syght, wast vs not made the head of the crys of Israel? And the Lorde anoynted the kyng ouer Israel. And the Lorde sent the ou a tourneye, & sayde: Go, & vnterly destroye those synners the Amalechites, and syght agaynst them, vntill thou vnterly destroye them. And wherfoze hast thou not hearkened vnto the voyce of the Lorde, but hast turned to vs pryae, and hast done vs whych is wyched in the syght of the Lorde.

And Saul sayde vnto Samuel: yee, I haue hearkened vnto the voyce of the Lorde, & haue gone the waie which the Lorde sent me vnto, and haue broughe Agag the kyng of Amalek, and haue vnterly destroyed the Amalechites. But vs people toke of vs spoyles shepe, oren, and the chiefe of the spynges whych shulde haue bene destroyed, to offere vnto the Lorde thy God in Gilgail. And Samuel muell sayde: hath the Lorde as great pleasure in burnt sacrifices & offerings, as when the voice of p Lorde is obeyed: Behold, to obeye is better then sacrifice, & to hearken, is better then the fatt of ruminnes. For rebellpon is as the synne of p withcraft, and stubbornesse is as the wickednesse of Idolatrie. Because thou hast cast away p worde of the Lorde, therefore hath the Lorde cast awaye the also, from beynge kynge.

And Saul sayde vnto Samuel: I haue ffeared, for I haue gone farther then the sayinge of the Lorde and thy wordes, because I feared p people, & obeyed their voice. Howe therefore take awaye my synne, and turne agayne with me, p I maye worshipp the Lord. And Samuel sayde vnto Saul: I will not retorne with the: for thou hast cast awaye p worde of the Lorde, and the Lorde hath cast awaye the, that thou shalt not be kynge ouer Israel. And as Samuel turned hym selfe to go awaye, he caught the lappe of hys coate, & it rent. And Samuel sayde vnto hym: the Lorde hath rent the kyngdome of Israel fro the this daye, & hath geue it to a neyghbour of thynne, that is better then thou. The strength of Israel will not begyle nor repēt: for he is not a man, that can repent.

He sayde: I haue sinned. But nowe honour me before the elders of my people, and before Israel, & turne agayne with me, that I maye worshipp p Lorde thy God. And to Samuel turned agayne, and folowed Saul. And Saul worshipped p Lorde. Then sayde Samuel: Bynge ye blythe to me, Agag the kynge of the Amalekites. And Agag came vnto hym: & belapely. And Agag sayde: truly the bytter deeth cometh on. And Samuel sayde: As thy swerde hath made wome chyldlesse, so shall thy mother be chyldlesse aboue other women. And Samuel bewed Agag in peccet before the Lorde in Gilgal. And then p Samuel departed to Rama. And Saul went home to his house to Giben Saul. And Samuel came nomore to se Saul vntill the daye of his deeth. Nevertheless Samuel mourned for Saul, & the Lord repented, that he had made Saul kynge ouer Israel.

The xviij. Chapter.

Saul is anoynted kynge, an euill sperte cometh vpon Saul.

The Lorde sayde vnto Samuel: howe longe wylt thou mourne for Saul, seynge I haue cast hym awaye from rayngynge ouer Israel: Will thynne borne with dymme, and come, that I maye sende the to Jai the Bethlehemite, for I haue psondred me a kynge amonge hys sonnes. And Samuel sayd: howe can I goe? for p Saul heare it, he wyl kyl me. The Lorde answered: Take an heifer wth the, and saye: I am come to offer to the Lorde. And call Jai to the offeringe, and I wyl shewe the, what p shall do: And thou shalt anoynt hym whome I name vnto the. And so Samuel byd as the Lorde bad him, and came to Bethlehem, and the elders of the towne were assonued at his comynge, and sayde: p Comest thou peaceably? he answered: Yee, I am come to offer vnto the Lorde. p Shew the poure felues, & come with me to the offeringe. And he sanctified Jai & hys sonnes, & bad the to the offeringe. And whē they were come, he lokd on Eliab, & sayde: Surely the Lorde hath anoynted is before hym. But the Lorde sayde vnto Samuel: loke not on his fallowen, or on flegght of hys stature, because I haue refused hym: for God seyth not as man seyth. For man loketh on the outwarde apperance vnto God beholdeth the harte. Then Jai called Abinadab, and made him come before Samuel. And he sayde: neither hath the Lorde chosen thys. Then Jai made Samuim come, and he sayde: neither yet hath the Lorde chosen him. Agayne, Jai made seue of his sones to come before Samuel. And Samuel sayde vnto Jai: the Lorde hath chosen none of these.

And Samuel sayde vnto Jai: are here all thy chyldren: he sayde: there is yet a litle one behynde, that kepeth the shepe. And Samuel sayd vnto Jai: sende and fette him, for we will not spere downe, tyl he be come lyther. And he sent, & brought hym in. And he was browne, and of an excellent bewtyce, & well fauored in sight. And the Lorde sayde: Mye, and anoynt him, for this is he. Therefore Samuel toke the home wyche of oymment, & anoynted him in the myddes of hys brethren. And the sperte of the Lorde came vpon Dauid, from that daye forward. And Samuel rose vp, and went to Rama.

But the sperte of the Lorde departed fro Saul, and an euill sperte sent of the Lorde vexed him. And Sauls seruantes sayde vnto him: Beholde, an euill sperte sent of God vexed the, lett oure Lord therefore commaunde his seruantes: (that are before the) to seke a man, p is a connyng player wth an harpe: that when the euill sperte sent of God cometh vpon the, he maye playe with hys harpe and thou shalt be eased. Saul sayde vnto his seruantes: psonde me a man that can playe well, and bringe him to me. Then answered one of his seruantes and sayde: Beholde, I haue sent a sonne of Jai the Bethlehemite, that can playe vpon instrumēttes, and is an active felow, and a man of warre and proude in bowynge of feates, & well liked and the Lorde is wth hym. Wherfore Saul sent messengers vnto Jai, and sayde: sende me Dauid thy sonne, which is wth p shepe. And Jai solde an asse laden with byrd, and a flacke

¶ David ouercometh great Goliath.

The Philistines gathered their hoste to battell, and came together to Socoth which is in Iuda, and pit then betwene Socoth & Aschah, in y coast of Iammin. And Saul and the me of Israel came together, and pi-ched in the Oke valley, and put them selues in araye, to fyght agaynst the Philistines.
And the Philistines stode on an hyll on the one syde, and Israel stode on an hyll on the other syde: and there was a valye betwene them: And there came a man betwene them both, out of the tentes of the Philistines, named Goliath: of Geth syre cubytes and an handbryeth lōge, and had an helmet of brasse vpon hys heed, and a conte of myle about hym. And the weyght of hys conte of myle was fyue thousand sykes of brasse. And he had bootes of brasse vpon his legges, and a shylde of brasse vpon his shoulders. And the haire of his spere was like a weuers beanie.
And his spere heed weyed vij. hundred shiles of yron. And one dayeinge a shylde went before hym.

And he stode and cryed agaynst the hoste of Israel, & sayde vnto the: Why are ye come out in araye to battell/ am not I a Philistine and you seruantes of Saul: chole you a mā from amonge you, & lett him come downe to me. And yf he be able to fyght with me, & to beate me, then will we be youre seruantes.
But yf I can ouercome him and beate him, then shall ye be ouer seruantes, & serue vs.
And the Philistine sayde: I besee the host of Israel this daye, geue me a man, yf we maye fight together. When Saul and all Israel hearde those wordes of the Philistine, they were discouraged, & greatly afrayed. David was the sonne of an Ephraimite: (of whome men is made a story) of Bethlehem Iuda, named Iai, whych had eight sonnes. And was an olde man in the dayes of Saul, and came to age amonge men. And the three eldest sonnes of Iai went, and folowed Saul to the battell. And the names of hys three sonnes that went to battell, were: Eliab the eldest, & the next, Abinadab, and the thyrde Shama, and David was y least. And the three eldest went after Saul. David also went and departed fro Saul, to see his fatheres shepe at Bethlehem. And the Philistine came forth in the mornynge and eueninge, and continued fourtye dayes.

And Iai sayde vnto David his sonne take for thy bryethen an Ephra of this parched corne and these ten loaves, and bryng it vnto the hoste to thy bryeth. And carpe thes ten the cheser vnto y captayne, & loke howe thy bryethen fare, and sett out theire pledge.
And Saul and they, and all the me of Israel were in the oke valye, fightinge with y Philistines. And David roke vp eise in the moynge, and lette y shyrp with a kepe, & toke and went as Iai had commaunded him, and came with in y compasse of the host. And the hoste went out in araye, and shewed in the battell: for Israel & the Philistines had put thē selues in araye, the one agaynst y other.
And David roke downe the gene from him, and put them vnder the handes of the kepe of the vessels, & ranne into y hoste, and came, and saluted his bryethen. And as he saluted them, Beholde: there stode a mā in the myd-des: Goliath y Philistine by name of Gath out of the araye of the Philistines, & spake of the maner aboute ryhered, that David heneked it. And all the men of Israel, when they sawe the man, ranne awaye from hym, and were soze afrayed. And euery man of Israel sayde: Shall we this man come forth: tuen

And David spake to the men that stode by, and sayde: What shal be done to the man that beatech this Philistine, & taketh awaye the name of Israel: And what is this vn-circumcised Philistine, that he quile reupe the hoste of the lyuinge God: And the people answered him (after this maner), sayinge: so shall it be done to the mā, that beatech hym.
And Eliab his eldest brother hearde he spake vnto the men, and Eliab was angre w David, and sayde: Why comest thou hither: and with whom hast thou lefte those few shepe in y wilderness: I knowe thy pryde, and the malice of thine herte, y thou art come downe to se y battell. And David sayd:

And what haue I now done? is there not a worde? And he departed from hym into the presence of another, and spake of y^e same manner, and the people answered hym agayne, as before.

And they that hearde the wordes which Dauid spake, reherled them before Saul, which caused him to be fette. And Dauid sayd to Saul: Let no manure here fayle hym because of him. & by seruant will go, & fyght with yonder Philistine. And Saul sayde to Dauid agayne: I part not able to go agaynst ponder Philistine, to fyght wth him. For thou art but a chyld, but he is a maⁿ of warre cū frō his yowth. Dauid answered vnto Saul.

Jo. xxi. b
Jo. xxi. c.

The seruant kept his fathers shepe, & there came a Lyon and bycrose a Beare, & toke a shepe out of the flocke. And I went out after him, and smote hym, and toke it out of his mouth. And when he arose agaynst me, I caught him by the bearde, and smote hym, & slue hym. And so the seruant slue the Lyon & y^e beare: (also) hath the seruant slayne. And thus the Philistine shall be as one of the shepe, & I will smite him, as I have smitten the residue of the people. For what is this vnicuersall Philistine? seynge he hath rayled on the holte of y^e lyving God. And Dauid spake moresoour: the Lorde that deliuered me out of the hande of y^e Lyon & out of the hande of y^e beare, he shall deliuer me also out of the hande of this Philistine.

And Saul sayde vnto Dauid: go, and the Lorde shall be with the. And Saul put hys raiment vpon Dauid, and put an helmet of brass vpon hys hebd, & put a coate of marle vpon him, and girded Dauid with hys owne swerde vpon hys raiment. And he allayed to go. And because he neuer proued it, Dauid sayde vnto Saul: I cannot go with these, for I haue not vsed my selfe thereto: and Dauid put them of hym, and tooke hys staffe in hys hande, and chose him fyue smoth stones oute of a bryke, and put the in a sheperdes bagge which he had, & in a syngre voke: & his syngre was in his shode, & he went to the Philistine.

And the Philistine came and dyue nere agaynst Dauid, and the man y^e bare the shilde went before hym. And when the Philistine looked aboute, and sawe Dauid, he dysdayned him, for he was but y^ede, and well colourd, and goodly to loke vpon. And the Philistine said vnto Dauid: am I a dogge, that thou comest to me with a staffe? and the Philistine cursed Dauid in the name of his goddes. And the Philistine sayde to Dauid: come to me, & I will geue thy fleshe vnto the fowles of the ayre, & to the beastes of the felde. Then sayde Dauid to the Philistine: thou comest to me with a swerde, a spere and a chyld: But I come to the in the name of the Lorde of hostes, the God of the holte of Israel, whom thou hast rayled vpon. This daye shall the Lorde deliuer the into my hande, and I shall smyte the, & take thine hebd from the, and will geue y^e carcasses of the holte of the Philistines thys daye vnto the fowles of the ayre, and to the beastes of the erth, that all they which be in the worlde, maye knowe, that there is a God in Israel. And all thys congregacion shall knowe, that the Lorde sweeth not with swerde and spere. For y^e staffe is the Lodes, and he shall geue you into oure hande.

And whē the Philistine aroose to come and brawe me vnto Dauid, Dauid basted, & rāne into the battayll euen agaynst the Philistine. And Dauid put his hande in hys bagge, and toke out a stone, and slange it, & smote the Philistine in his forehead, y^e stone sounche into his forehead & he felte grouelinge to the erth. And so Dauid ouercame the Philistine with a syngre and a stone, and smote the Philistine, and slue hym, euen whan Dauid had no swerde in hys hande. But Dauid rāne, and stode vpon the Philistine, & toke hys swerde, and dyue it out of hys sheath, and slue hym, & cutte of hys hebd therewith. And when the Philistines sawe, that they shamponed was deed & they fled. And the men of Israel and of Iuda aroose, and shouted, & folowed after the Philistines, untill they came to the balepe, and vnto the gates of Acharon. And the Philistines fell downe wounded by the waye to Saaraaim, euen vnto Gath & Acharon. And the chyldren of Israel returned fro chalyngge after the Philistines, and spoyled theyr tentes. And Dauid toke the hebd of the Philistine, and brought it to Ierusalem: But he put his armour in hys tente.

When Saul sawe Dauid go forth agaynst the Philistine, he sayde vnto a Abner y^e cap- taine of his holte: Abner, whose sonne is this young man? Abner answered: as truly as thy soule lyueth (O kyng) I cannot tell. And the kyng sayde: Enquere thou, whose sonne the younglinge is. And when Dauid was returned from the slaughter of the Philistine, Abner toke hym, and brought hym before Saul, with the hebd of the Philistine in hys hande. And Saul sayde to hym: whose sonne art thou, thou young man? Dauid answered: I am the sonne of the seruant that the wchilemite.

Of the xviii. Chapter.

Of the bonde betwene Dauid and Jonathan, Saul goeth aboute to slay Dauid.

And when he had made an ende of speaking vnto Saul, the sonne of Jonathan was hynge with the sonne of Dauid, and Jonathan laud hym as hys owne soule. And Saul toke him that daye, and wolde let him go no more home to hys fathers house. And Jonathan made a couenaunt with Dauid, because he

And Dauid went oure whether soeuer Saul sent hym, and behaued him selfe wysely. And Saul sett hym ouer hys men of warre, and he was accepted in the lyghe of all the people, and in the syght of Sauls seruantes.

25 And it happened as they went, when Dauid was returned from the slaughter of the Philistines, y women came out of all cyties of Israel spynnyng & dauncyng, agaynst hyng Saul, and with tymbrells, with toye, and with instrumentes of musick. Wherefore Saul looked on yde of Dauid from that daye forwarde. And it happened on the morowe, that the euill spere sent of God came vnto Saul, and he prophesied in the myddes of y house. And Dauid played with hys hande lyke as at other tymes, and there was a taulnyng in Sauls hande. And Saul toke the iauelyng, & sayde: I will nople Dauid to the wall with it. And Dauid auoyded out of hys presence two tymes. And Saul was afeare of Dauid, because y Lord was with hym, & was departed fro Saul. Therefore Saul put him from hym, and made him a cattapane ouer a thousand, and he went out & in before y people. And Dauid behaued him selfe wysely in all his wayes, & the Lord was with him. Wherefore when Saul saw y he was so excedyng wysely, he was afeard of him. But all Israel and Iuda loved Dauid, because he went out and in before them. And Saul sayde to Dauid. And they thewed Saul: & the thyng displeased him not. And Saul sayde: I will geue hym her y she maye be a snare to hym, & that the hande of the Philistines maye be agaynst him. Wherefore Saul sayde to Dauid: thou shalt this daye be my sonne in lawe in the other daughter. And Saul commaunded hys seruantes, to come with Dauid secretlye & to slaye: Scholde the kyng hath a fauoure to the, and all his seruantes loke the, be nowe therfore the kynges sonne in lawe.

And Sauls seruantes spake those wordes in the eares of Dauid. And Dauid sayde: I semeth it to you a lyght thyng to be a kynges sonne in lawe: I am a poore man and of small reputaciō. And the seruantes brought Saul worde agayne, saynges: of this maner spake Dauid. And Saul sayd: this wyse shall ye saye to Dauid: the kynges careth for no other dowrye, but for an hidged foreskyngnes of the Philistines, to be aduanced of the kynges enemyes. But Saul thought to make Dauid fall into the hādes of the Philistines. And when hys seruantes tolde Dauid these wordes, it pleased Dauid well to be the kynges sonne in lawe. And he of y dayes were crypyed, Dauid arose with his men, and wēt & slue of the Philistines, two hundred men, and Dauid brought thetyr foreskyngnes, and satisfied the kynges therof, so that hys sonne in lawe. * Wherefore Saul gaue hym Michol hys daughter to wyfe. And the warre began agayne, and Dauid went out and fought wth the Philistines, and slue them with a great slaughter, & they fledde fro him. And the euill sperte sent of the Lorde was vpon Saul, as he sat in his house hauinge a Angelling in his bade, and Dauid played wth his harpe. And Saul entended to naye Dauid to the walle with the Iane-lyng. But he cryd hym self: out of Sauls perils, as he smote the speare. (with a bayne stroke) into y^e walle. And Dauid fledde & was saued the same nyght. Saul also sent messengers vnto Dauids house, to watch him, and to slepe him in y^e morninge. ¶ 2 Sam. 17. 16.

And one tolde Saul, sayinge: Beholde, Dauid is at Ramoth in Ramma. And Saul sent messengers to fetch Dauid. And when they saue a companye of prophetes prophesyinge, & Samuel standyng fast by the sperte of God fell vpon the messengers of Saul, and they prophelyed to. And when it was tolde Saul, he sent other messengers, & they prophelyed likewise. And Saul sent messengers yet agayne the thyrde tyme, and they prophelyed also. Then wnt he hym selfe to Ramma, & came to a great well that is in Serchu, & he asked and sayde: where are Samuel and Dauid? And one sayde: Beholde, they be at Ramoth in Ramma, & he went thither, cū to Ramoth in Ramma, and the sperte of God came vpon him also, & he went prophesyinge, vntill he came to Ramoth in Ramma. And he & a strepe of his clothes, & prophelyed before Samuel in lyke maner, and fell naked all that daye & all that nyght. * And therof it is, that they sape: is Saul & his. & also amonge the prophetes.

¶ The xx. Chapter.

¶ Dauid complayneth vnto Jonathas.

And Dauid fled from Ramoth Ramoth which is in Ramma, came, & sayde before Jonathas. What haue I done? wherein am I faultier? what is the synne that I haue committed before thy father, that he seeketh my lyfe? he sayde vnto him: God forgyd, y^e that not thy. Beholde, my father will do nothinge ether great or small, but that he will shewe it me. And howe shulde my father hyde thy thynge from me? he wyl not do it. And Dauid sware agayne, and sayde, thy father knoweth that I haue founde grace in thyne eyes, and therefore be sayed: Jonathas shall not lande it, lest he be slayne. And in depe dede, euen as truly as the Lorde byneth, and as truly as thy soule lyueth, there is but a strepe betwene me and death. Then sayde Jonathas vnto Dauid: whatsoeuer thy soule desireth that I will do vnto the. And Dauid sayde vnto Jonathas: Beholde to morowe is the bryggnyngge of y^e horn, & I shulde syt vnder the hyngre of meate. But let me go, that I maye hyde my selfe in the felde vnto the thyrde daye at euen. If thy father speake of me, then saie, Dauid asked leaue of me, that he myght go to Beth-lehem to his wyue eue, for there is holden a perely feast for all y^e hyndred. And yf he saye: it is well done, then thy seruant shall haue peace. But and yf he be agayne, then be sure that wychednesse is vnto thy concluded of hym. And then thou shalt shewe mercye vnto thy seruant: for thou hast made wth me thy seruant a bonde in the Lorde. y^e worth standyng, yf there be in me any trespass, then slepe me thy selfe, and bypynge me not to thy father.

And Jonathas answered, God kepe that from y^e (neither is it possyble to come to passe.) For as yf I knowe, that welste dennesse were concluded of my father, to come vpon the, then kyll thou that I shulde not tell it the. Then sayde Dauid, who shall tell me, yf thy father answereth cruelly? And Jonathas sayd vnto Dauid, come and lett vs go out into y^e felde. And they went out both of them into the felde.

And Jonathas sayde vnto Dauid: The Lorde God of Israel loke on it, when I haue groved my fathers mynde, one tyme or other within this thre dayes, yf it stande well wth Dauid. If I then sende not vnto the & shewe it the, the Lorde do so and so vnto Jonathas. But yf my father haue any pleasure to do y^e well, I will shewe the also, and sende the awaye that thou mayst go in peace. And the Lorde be wth the, as he hath bene wth my father.

rather. And thou shalt perforce vnto me the mercy of the Lord, not onely whyle I liue but euen wher I am dead, and plucke not thy mercy aways from me: my house for euer: so not when the Lord hath destroyed the enemies of Dauid, eueny one from the face of the earth.

And so Jonathas made a boude with the house of Dauid, desiringe y^e the Lord shulde seke it out by the handes of Dauides enemies (y^e it were lawfull). And wth other wordes byd Jonathas sweare vnto Dauid, because he loued him: for he loued hi^m, as his awne soule.

Then sayde Jonathas to Dauid: to morrow is the first daye of the mone. And thou shalt be missed, because the place where thou wast wont to sit, shall be emptye. Therefore this daye thye dayes come downe any wyse vnto the place where thou bydest hyde thy selfe, & when the busynesse was in hande:

euen by y^e stone & ill. And I will thote the arrowes by the one syde therof, as though I thote thet at a marke, & will sende a lad, and byd hym go seke the arrowes. And y^e I saye vnto the lad: se, the arrowes are on this syde the. hyngge them: then come y^e for it is peace, & no hurt, as sure as the Lord lyueth. But and y^e I saye vnto the lad, behold, the arrowes are by y^e side, then go: & (in peace) for y^e Lord hath sent y^e a wyse. And as touchyng this which thou and I haue spoken: beholde the Lord be verie true to me for euer. And so Dauid byd hym selfe in the feld. And when the nyght was come, the kynge sat him downe to cate meate. And the kynge sat him downe after the olde maner, in hyd seate by the wall. And Jonathas arose and Abner late by Sauls syde, & Dauides place was emptye. After theselle, Saul sayde nothinge at all that daye. For he thought: some thinge hath chaunced him: y^e he is not cleane.

But on the morowe which was the seconde daye of y^e newe mone, it happened that Dauides place was emptye agayne. And Saul sayde vnto Jonathas his sone. Wherefore comest thou not y^e sonne of Ithai to meate, nethe yesterdaye nor to daye? And Jonathas answered vnto Saul. Dauid asked lycce of me, to go to Bethlehē, for he sayde: let me go I praye the for our kyned bothe holde an offeringe in the cite, and my brother hath sent for me. And therfore y^e I haue soue fauoure in thyne eyes, let me go, and be my brethren. This is the cause, that he cometh not vnto the kynges table. Then was Saul angere with Jonathas, & sayde vnto him: I don wycked rebell, do not I knowe, y^e thou hast chosen the sonne of Ithai vnto thyne awne rebulle, & vnto the rebulle a thyme of thy mother? For as longe as the sonne of Ithai lyueth vpon the earth, thou shalt not be stablished, nor yet thy kingdome, wherfore now sende and fete him vnto me, * for he is the chyld of deeth.

And Jonathas and wrecd vnto Saul his father, and sayde to him. Wherefore shulde he saye: what hath he done? And Saul lyfte vp a speare to hyt him, wherby Jonathas wylt well, y^e it was detelye determined of his father, to slepe Dauid. And so Jonathas arose fro the table in a greates anger, & byd eate no meate the ferdre daye of y^e moneth, for he was soyr for Dauid, because bys father had done him thame. On y^e next morow, Jonathas wrot out into the felde, at the tyme appointed with Dauid, & a lytle lad with him. And he sayde vnto his boye: runne & seke out myne arrowes whych I thote. And as the boye ran he wrot an arrowe by y^e side him. And when y^e lad was come to y^e place whether Jonathas had thot the arrowe, Jonathas cryed after y^e lad, and sayde: Is not the arrowe beyonde the? And Jonathas cryed after y^e lad agayne: make speche, and stande not still. And Jonathas lad gathered by the arrowes, & came to his master. But the lad wist nothinge of the matter. Quely Jonathas and Dauid wist it.

And Jonathas gaue his weapons vnto y^e lad that was with him, & sayde vnto him: go carrye them to the towe. And as sone as the lad was gone, Dauid arose out of a place y^e was towarde the south, and fell on bys face to the ground, and worshipped the tymys. And they kiled ether other, & wept together to lōge, tyll Dauid creadd in weping. And Jonathas sayde to Dauid: go in peace. And y^e thynges which we haue twome both of vs in the name of the Lord, sayinge: y^e Lord be betwene y^e & me, & betwene thy fere & myne, let the fonde for euer. And he arose, & departed. And Jonathas went into the towne.

¶ Dauid steele into Rob to Achimelech the priest, and getteth of him the brede bynde to satisfye his hunger. After warde he steele to keuge Achis, and there caryeth hym selfe to be man.

¶ Then came Dauid to Rob to Achimelech the priest: And Achimelech was astonied at the sodayne cominge of Dauid, & sayd vnto him: Why art thou alone, & no man with y^e? And Dauid sayde to Achimelech y^e priest: the kynge hath commaunded me to do a certeyn thinge, and hath sayde vnto me, let no man knowe where aboute I sende the, and what I haue commaunded the to do. And I haue appoynted my seruantes, to seke and seke places. Nowe therefore y^e y^e hast ought vnder thyne hande * geue me thyne loaves of breade, or what cometh to hande.

And the priest answered Dauid, and sayde: there is no comen bread vnder myne hande, but here is halowed bread, y^e the yongmen haue kepte them selues from vncleane thynges especiallye women. Dauid answered the priest, and sayde vnto hym: As of a of a truth, men hath bene locked vp from vs about a thre dayes. when I came out, & the vessels of the poing men were holp. Now be it this: swape is vniure, and how much more shal there be holynes in the vessel. * And so the yercall gane hi halowed bed, for there was no nother bzed there, saue the thewbeds, that were take from befoze the Lorde, to put frethe bzed there, the daye that it was taken awaye.

And ther was there the same daye a certē man of the seruantes of Saul abydng befoze the Lorde, named Doeg an Edomite, the cheefe of Sauls hearde men.

And Dauid sayd vnto Thimelech: is not here vnder thyne hāde other speare or swerde for? I haue nether brought ny swerde nor ny barneill with me, because the kynge busines required haste. And the yercall sayd: the swerde of Goliath the Philistine whome thou sleest in y Deche valley, behold, it is here swape in a cloth beynd the Ephod. If thou wilt take that, take it, for there is no nother laue that here. And Dauid sayd: there is none to thet, genc it me.

And Dauid arose and fled the same daye from the presence of Saul, & wet to Achis the kyng of Geth. And the seruantes of Achis sayd of him: is not this Dauid the kyng of the lande? sayd they not syng vnto him, in daunces aping? * Saul hath slayne his thousand, & Dauid his ten thousand. And Dauid put thole wordes into his heart, & was sore afrayed of Achis the kyng of Geth. And he chaunged his speche befoze them, & sayned him self madd in theyr handes, & scablen on the doers of the gate, and let his spytel fall downe vpon his bearde. Then sayde Achis vnto his seruante: Loo, se le y this man is besyde hym selfe, wherfore then haue ye brought hym to me? haue I ned of madd me that ye haue brought this felow to playe the mad mā in my presence? Shall he come into my howse.

¶ The xxii. Chapter.

¶ Doeg betrayeth Dauid. Thimelech is accused of treason and slayne. Achis, picares me with him because they rescued Dauid. * Aob is despoiled of Saul, whither fleeth to Dauid.

¶ And therfore departed thence, and escaped, and came vnto the caue Dablam. When his brethren also did all his fathers house heard it, they went downe thither to hym. And there gathered vnto him all men that were in countaunce, and in dett, and troubled in their mindes, & he became a captayne ouer them. And there were with hym vpon a foure hundred men. And Dauid went thence to Achis in the lande of Moab, and sayde vnto the kyng of Moab: Let my father & my mother (I praye the) come forth vnto you, till I knowe what God will do for me. And he brought them befoze the kyng of Moab. And they dwelt w hit all the while that Dauid kepte him selfe i gold. And the prophet Gad sayde vnto Dauid: abide not in holde, but departe and go into the lād of Iuda. Then Dauid departed and came into the forest Hareth. And Saul heard y Dauid was come a bode, and also the mē that were with hym. And Saul satt in Gibea vnder a tree in Rama, haupng hys speare in his hand, & all his men rode about hym. And Saul sayde vnto his seruantes that rode about hi. heare I praye you: if you sonnes of Iemini: will the sonne of Isai geue euery one of you feldes and vineyardes, & make you all captaynes ouer thousandes & ouer hundredes: that ye haue alle captured agaynst me, and there is none that sellect it me in myne eare. * And where as my sonne hath made a bode w the sonne of Isai, ther is none of you that mouneth for me, or theweeth it in myne eare: behold, my sonne hath fered vp my seruante to lye a waye agaynst me this same daye.

¶ Then answered Doeg the Edomite which also rode by the seruantes of Saul, and sayde: I saw the sonne of Isai, whē he came to Moab, to Thimelech the sonne of Ahitob, which asked counsell of the Lorde for hym, & gane hym vineyardes, & the swerde of Goliath the Philistine also. Then the kyng sent & calld for Thimelech y yercall y sonne of Ahitob, & all his fathers house: that is to saye, the yercall that were in Moab. And they came all to the kyng. And Saul sayde: heare now y sonne of Ahitob. He answered: here I am, my Lorde. And Saul sayde vnto hym: why haue ye conspired a gaynst me, y the sonne of Isai, in y thou hast geuen him vitale, & a swerde, and hast asked counsell of God for hi, that he shuld aryse agaynst me, & lye a waye for me this daye? Thimelech answered the kyng & sayd: who is to faithfull among all thy seruantes as Dauid, & therto the kynges sōne in law, & goeth at thy byddng, & is had in honour in thyne house: haue I this daye begone first to ake counsell of God for hi. That be farre fro me: yf I had knowen it, lett not y kyng put such a thyng vnto his seruante in all y house of my father. For thy seruante knew nothyng of all this, ether lesse or more. ¶ The kyng sayde: thou shalt surely lye Thimelech, thou and all thy fathers house. And the kyng sayde vnto the sote men that rode about him: turne, & slep the yercall of the Lorde, both because they had is with Dauid, & because they knewe when Dauid fled, & theweeth it not to me. But y seruantes of tes of the kyng wolde not moue their handes. to fall vpon the preastes of the Lorde. And the kyng sayde to Dorg: turne thou, and fall vpon the preastes. And Dorg the Edomite turned, and ranne vpon the preastes. and thus that same daye foure thowsēd & fyue perloners. y dyd weare a hymne Ephod. And Iob the cytic of the preastes smote he wth the edge of the swerde, both men & women, children and suckynges, oren and asses and shepe.

And one of the sonnes of Thimclech the sonne of Abitob (named Abiathar) escaped & fled to Dauid. And Abiathar shewed Dauid, how that Saul had slayne the lordes preastes. And Dauid sayde vnto Abiathar: I wist it the same daye. when Dorg the Edomite was there. that he wolde tell Saul. And I am cause of the death of all y soulles of thy fathers house. Abide thou w me, and feare not: for yf anye mā seke my soule, he shall seke thyn also, w me thou shalt be in safegard.

¶ C. xxii. Chapter.

¶ Dauid fleeth into the wilderness of ziph.

When they told Dauid sayig: Behold the Philistines fight agaynst keilah, and people the barnes.

Therfore Dauid asked the Lorde aduys. saying: Shall I goo and smyte these Philistines: And the Lorde answered vnto Dauid: go and smyte the Philistines, and saue keilah. And Dauidos men y were with him, sayd vnto him: se, we be afraped here in Iuda: how much more then yf we come to keilah agaynst the host of the Philistines: When Dauid asked y Lorde agayne. Then the Lord answered him and sayde: As yse, a go downe to keilah. for I will deliuer the Philistines in to thyn hande.

And so Dauid and his men went to keilah, and fought with the Philistines, & dzoue awope thre cattel, and smote them with a great slaughter. And so Dauid saued the inhabitants of keilah. And it chaunced, when Abiathar the sonne of Thimclech fled to Dauid to keilah, that he brought an Ephod with him in his hande.

And it was tolde Saul, that Dauid was come to keilah. And Saul sayde: God hath deliuered hi into myne hād. For he is thur in now y he is come into a towne that hath gates & barres. And Saul called all y people together to warre, for to go downe to keilah. and to besige Dauid & his men. And Dauid hauig knowlege that Saul imagined myschef agaynst him, sayd, to Abiathar y preast: * Wying the Ephod. Then sayde Dauid: O Lord God of Israel, the seruait hath heard, y Saul is about to come agaynst keilah to besigge y cytic for my sake: Wylt the men of keilah deliuer me into hys hande: And will Saul come downe, ag the seruait hath heard saye: O Lord God of Israel, tell they seruait. And the Lorde sayde: he will come downe. Then sayd Dauid: Will the men of keilah deliuer me and y men that are with me into the hand of Saul & the Lorde sayde: they will betraue you.

Then dauid & his men which were vpon a fyre hidied, arose & departed out of keilah & wēt whether they could. And it was tolde Saul, that Dauid was fled from keilah, & he let the tourney alone. Dauid abode i the wilderness in strōg holdes, & remayned in a moūtayne in the wilderness of ziph. And Saul sought hi euery daye, but God deliuered him not in to his hād. And Dauid sayd y Saul was come out, to seke his life. And Dauid was in the wilderness of ziph in a thicket. And Jonathas Sauls sone arose, & went to Dauid in to the thicket, & comforted his hand in God, & sayde vnto hym: feare not, for the hand of Saul my father shall not fynd the, & thou shalt be hig ouer Israel, & I must be next vnto the. And that both Saul my father know. And they made abonde both of them together before the Lorde. And Dauid carped wyll in the thicket, and Jonathas went to his house.

Then came y ziphites to Saul, to Gibeā, saying: Doth not Dauid hyde hi selfe fast by vs in strōg holdes, in a thicket that is by y hyl of hachila, on the ryght fynde of y wilderness: Now therfore hyde y mayest come downe according to all the lust of thy soule: come downe, & oure parte shall be to deliuer hym into the kynges hande. And Saul sayde: Blessed are ye in the Lord: for ye haue copasson on me. So I praye you, & ordre the matter well, knowe & se his haunt, where hys sote hath bene, and who hath leue him there: for it is tolde me, that he is very sottel, & worketh craftely. Se therfore, & knowe all y lurking places, where he hideth him selfe, and come ye agayne to me with the certeynte, & I will go wth you. And yf he be in the lād, I will serche hi out thorow out all the thousandes of Iuda.

And they arose, and went to ziph before Saul. But Dauid and his men were in the wilderness of Ephron, in the playne y is, on the right the pyght hand of Iesimon. Saul also and his men wrote to Iesse: and they tolde Dauid. Wherefore he went unto a Roche, and abode in the wilderness of Iud. And when Saul heard that, he followed after Dauid in the wilderness of Iud. And Saul & his men went on the one syde of the mountayne: & Dauid & his men on the other syde. And Dauid took thought, how to get fro Saul. For Saul & his men chased Dauid & his men, rounde about, to take them. But there cam a messenger to Saul, saying: I have founde Dauid. And Saul & his men came to the wilderness of Iud. And Saul returned from persecuting Dauid, & went agaynste the Philistines. And therefore is it, & they called the place: The rock of separation. And Dauid went thence, & dwelt in strong holdes at Engati.

¶ The xxxiii. Chapter.

¶ Dauid fleeth into Engati and thence he goeth hym in a cave. Saul cometh in thither to do byrte.

When Saul was come agayne from following after the Philistines, it was founde, that there were, which tolde him saying: behold, Dauid is in the wilderness of Engati. Then Saul took three thousand chosen men out of all Israel, and went to seeke Dauid and his men in the height of the Rocks, where wilde gootes remayne.

¶ And he cam to the flockes of shepe in the waye. And Saul went in to a cave to cover his fete. And Dauid and his men crept in by the inward partes of the cave. And the men of Dauid sayd unto him: se, & here is the place, of which the Lord sayde unto the: Beholde: I will deliuer thine enemies into thine hand, & thou shalt doo to him as it shall seme good in thy sight. Then Dauid arose and cutt of a lapp of Sauls garment by the sword. And immediately Dauides heart smote hym because he had cutt of a lapp of Sauls garment. And he sayde unto his men: the Lord kepe me fro doing that thig unto my master & Lords anoynted, to lape mine hande vpon hym, leying he is the anoynted of the Lord.

¶ And Saul rose up out of the cave & went awaye. Dauid also arose and went out of the cave, and crept after Saul, saying: My Lord be kyng. And when Saul looked behynde hym, Dauid bowed to the erth, and bowed him self, & sayd to Saul: wherefore seekest thou an eare to remember wordes that I saye, Dauid seeth euell agaynste the: Beholde, this daye thine eyes haue seene.

how that the Lord had deliuered the thyngs daye into myne hand in the cave. And I have had me kill the, but I had compassion on the, and sayde: I will not lape my handes on my master, for he is the Lords anoynted. And moreover, my father, behold, & I set the lapp of thy garment in my hand: in as much as I kyled the not, when I cutt of thy lapp of thy garment. Understande therefore & se, & there is neither euell nor wickednesse in me, and that I haue not synned agaynste the. And yet thou hunted after my soule to take it. The Lord be iudge betwene the and me, and the Lord aduenge me of the. But myne hand be not vpon the. According as the olde prouerbe sayeth: Wickednesse shall procede from the wicked: But myne hande be not vpon the. After whom is the kyng of Israel come out? After whom dost thou moue persecuciō after a deere dogg, and after a flee. The Lord be iudge, and iudge betwene the and me, & I please my cause, and a beuge me of thine baner.

¶ When Dauid had made an ende of speaking these wordes to Saul, Saul sayde: is this thy voyce my sōne David? and Saul lyste vpon his voyce, and wept, and sayde to Dauid: thou art pyghte after then I, for thou hast rewarded me with good, where as I haue rewarded the with euell. And thou hast swetted thyngs daye, how that thou hast benit longynge with me, for as much as when the Lord had locked me in thine handes, & I kyledst me nor. For who shall finde his ceynpe, & lett him depart in to a good waye? Wherefore the Lord reward & wylte good, for that thou hast done vnto me this daye. And now beholde, I wote well that thou shalt be kyng, and that the kingdom of Israel shall be stablished in thine hande. Where now therefore wnto me by the Lord that thou shalt not be trope my leade after me, & that thou shalt not put my name out of my fathers house. And Dauides answer was vnto Saul, and Saul went home. But Dauid and his men gatt the byrte vnto an hold.

¶ The xxx. Chapter.

¶ Samuel dyed. Dauid fleeth into the wilderness of Iud.

Samuel dyed, and all the Israelites gathered together and lamented hym, and buried hym in his owne house at Rama.

¶ And Dauid arose, and gat hym to the wilderness of Iud. And there was a man in Iud whose possession was in Carmel, and the man was exceeding myghtie, and had three thousand shepe & a thousand gootes. And he was cheryng his shepe in Carmel. The name of the man was Abai, and the name of his wyfe was Abigail, and she was a woman of a singuler wisdom and betwixtfull. But the man was churlish, and of these conditions, and was of the kindred of Abiel. And David heard in the wilderness, & Abigail said there his shepe. And David sent out ten young men, and said unto them: get you up to Carmel, and go to Abigail, and greet him in my name. And thus shall ye say: peace be to thee, peace be to thyne house, & peace be unto all that thou hast. Behold, I have heard saye, & I have feared. Now, thy sheperdes were with us ^{in the wilderness}, and we did the no synne, neither was there ought ^{of the flocke} mysynge unto them, all the while they were in Carmel, aske thy laddes, & they will shewe thee. Wherefore let these young men fynde fauour in thine eyes: for we come in a good reason; and I praye the whatsoeuer cometh to thine hand, unto thy seruantes, and to the house David.

And when Dauid's young men came, they tolde Abigail all those wordes in þe name of Dauid, & the helde they peace. And Abigail answered Dauid's seruantes, & sayde: what is Dauid's? what is the sone of Iair: there is plenty of seruantes now a dayes, that brake awaye curp man from his master. Shal I the take my dyed, my water & my flethe, & I have kyled for my sheeres, & geue it unto me who I wote not where they be? And so Dauid's seruantes turned their waye, and went agayne, and came and told him all those saynges. And Dauid sayd unto his men: gyde curp man his swerde aboute him. And they gyded curp mā his swerde aboute him, & Dauid was gyded with his swerde. And there folowed Dauid upon a foure hundred men, and two hundred abode by the sheffe. But one of the laddes tolde Abigail Abails wyfe, saying: Beholde, Dauid sent messengers unto oure master out of the wilderness to salute him & he rayled on the. And yet the men are very good vnto vs, & dyd vs no displeasure, neither miste we any thing, as long as we were conseruant with the, when we were in the feldest. They were a wall of defence vnto vs both by nyght & daye, all the while we were with the keeping shepe. Now therefore, take hede, and so what þe halt to do, for there is an occasion of euill geuen agaynste oure master and all his householde, saying: he is as a sonne of beliall vngenerous to speake to. Then Abigail made halfe, & toke two hundred loaves, & two bottles of wyne, and fyue shepe readye dyelled, and fyue measures of parched corne, and an hundred fygles of reasynge, and two hundred topnetes of fygges, and laded the on asses, & sayde vnto her young men: go ye before me. Beholde, I come after you. But she tolde her husband Abail nothing thereof. And as he rode on her asse she came prencely doorne þe syde of the hyll, & beholde, Dauid and his men came doorne agaynst her, & she met the.

And Dauid sayde: in vayne haue I kept all that this felow hath in þe wilderness: so that nought was my selfe of all þe preyntend vnto hym. And he hath quire me euill for good. So and so do God vnto the enemies of dauid, of I traue of all that pertaine to him, by the dawninge of the daye, any thing that pisseth agaynst the walle.

And when Abigail saw Dauid, she bowed & lyghted of her asse, and fell before Dauid on her face, and bowed her selfe to þe ground and fell at his fete, and sayde: Let this unhappie deinde be counted myne, my Lorde, & let thine hand mayde speake in thine audience, and heare the wordes of thy handmayde. Let not my Lorde regard this vnrhythtfull mā Abail: for as his name is, so is he: & Abail is his name, & folle is he. But I thine handmayde saw not þe young men of my Lorde who þe sendest.

Now therefore my Lorde, as sure as I lovd I pucth, & as thy soule I pucth, & I lovd hath withholde the fro coming to thes bloud, & withdraw þe thine hand fro bloud shedde. Now, I praye God, þe thine enemies & they þe entende to do my Lorde euill, may be as Abail. And now this is the blessing which thine had mayde hath brought vnto my Lorde: & lett it be geuen vnto þe young men, that folow my Lorde. Forgeue the trespass of thine handmayde, for the Lord will make my Lorde a sure house, because my Lorde fyghteth þe batayles of þe Lorde, and there coulde none euill be founde in the in all thy dayes. And yf any man wylde to persecute the, & to seke thy soule, þe soule of my Lorde shall be bound as a stone in þe beddell of þe lyuing & þe Lorde thy God. And þe soules of thy enemies shall God cast out, euen as out of the myde of a syng. And when þe Lord shall haue done to my Lorde all the good þe hath promysed þe, I shall haue made the ruler ouer Israel: then shall it be no decaye vnto the, nee discouraunge of herte vnto my Lorde, þe thou hast not shedd bloud causelesse, nee aduenged thy selfe.

But when the Lord shall haue dealt well with my Lorde, the thynke on thine handmayde. And Dauid sayd to Abigail: blessed be the Lorde God of Israel, which sent the this daye to mete me. Blessed is thy sayge, & blessed art thou, which hast kept me from decaye from coming to thes bloud, and from aduenging my selfe with myne owne hand. Now in very deade, as sure as þe Lorde God of Israel pucth, which hath kept me backe from hurtyng the, excepte thou haddest backed and met me, thinkst þe, there had bene left vnto Abail by the dawninge of the daye, a dape, a pisse agaynst the wall. And so David receaued of her had, that which she had brought him & sayd to her: go by in peace to thynne house. Wholde, I haue herde thy voyce, and haue accepted thy person.

And Abigail came to Abail: and behold, he held a feast in his house, lyke the feast of a kynge, & Abails herte was mery within hi, for he was very donche. Wherfore he tolde him nothing, neether lytle nor moare, untill y mozoow dape. But in y moynynge, wher the wine was gone out of Abail, his wife tolde him these wordes, and his herte dyed within him, and he became as a stone & vpon a ten dayes after, the Lorde smote Abail, y he dyed. And when David heard that Abail was ded, he sayde: Blessed be the Lorde that hath iudged the cause of my rebuke of the had of Abail, and hath kept his seruauit from euell, and hath recouered the wickednesse of Abail vpo his awne heed. And David sent to comen w Abigail: to thynke to take her to his wife. And when the seruantes of David were come to Abigail to Carmel, they spake vnto her saying: David sent vs vnto the, to take y to his wife. And she arose, & bowed her self on her face to the erth, and sayde: Wholde: let thy hand mayde be a seruauit, to washe the fete of the seruantes of my Lord. And Abigail halsted, and arose, and gat her vpon an Asse, w fyne damocilles of hers y went at her fete, and she went after y meylengers of David, and became hys wife. David also toke Abinoam of Jezrahel, & they were both his wyues. But Saul gaue

¶ The xxxvi. Chapter.
¶ Saul flepyeth in his tent: and David taketh awaye his speare and a creule of water, that hee doth hit with.

The sybittes came vnto Saul to Gibea, saying: Doth not David hyde hym self in the hill of Hachila which is before Ierusalem? Saul arose, and went dūne to the wyldernesse of syph, haunynge thye thousande chosen me of Israel with hym, for to seke David in the wyldernesse of syph. And Saul pitched in the hyll of Hachila which lyeth before Ierusalem, by y waye side. But David dwelt in y wyldernesse. And he saw that Saul cam after hym into the wyldernesse. David therefore sent out spyes, & vnderstode, that Saul was come: very dede. And David arose and came to the place, where Saul had pitched, & David beheld the place, where Saul laye, and thence the sone of Acher which was his chiefe captayne Saul laye within, & the people & the hooles rounde about him. Then answered David and spake to Achemelch the hethite, & to Abisai the sonne of Neria and brother to Joab, saying: Who will go dūne with me to Saul to the hoste? And Abisai saide: I will go dūne with the.

And so David and Abisai came dūne to y people by nyght. And behold, Saul laye sleeping within the hoste, & his speare stakke in the ground at his heed. But thence the people laye round about hym. Then sayde Abisai to David: God hath deliuered thyne enemye into thynne hande this dape. Now therefore, lett me smyte hym: once with my speare to the erth, & I will not smyte hym the secōde tyme. And David sayde to Abisai: destroye him not. For who can laye his hande on the Lordes anointed, & be guiltlesse? And David sayde furthermoare: as sure as the Lorde lyueth, the Lorde shall smyte hi: or his dape shall come to dpe, or he shall descende into battell, & there perishe. The Lord kepe me from laying myne hande vpo the Lordes anointed: But take thou now the speare that is at his heed, & the crewle of water, & let vs go. And so David toke y speare & the crewle of water from Dauid heed, and they gat them awaye, and no man saw it or marked yt or awakēd. For they were all a slepe, because the Lorde had sent a deade sleape vpon the. Then David went ouer to the other syde, and toode on the toppes of an hyll a faret off a great space betwene them: and David cryed to the people, and to thence the sone of Acher, saying: hearest thou not Abner? Abner answered, and sayde: What art thou that creepst to the hig? and David sayd to Abner: art not thou a man: and who his lyke the in Israel? Wherfore the hast thou not kept thy Lord the kyng? For there cr me one of the folke in, to destroy the kyng thy lord. It is not good that y hast done. As truly as the Lorde lyueth, y are worthy to dpe, because ye haue not kept your master, the Lordes anointed. And now is where the kynges speare is and the crewle of water, that was at his heed.

And Saul knewe Dauids voyce, & sayde: * Is this thy voyce my sone Dauid? & David sayd: it is my voyce, my Lord. Wherfore And he sayde: wherfore doth my lord thus persecute his seruauit? for what haue I done: or what euell is in myne hand? Now therefore let my Lord the kyng heare y wordes of his seruauit. If y Lorde haue stered y agaynst me, let hi smell the sauoure of a sacrifice. But y pf they be y children of men, cursed are they before y Lord: for they haue cast me out this dape fro a biding y i mberitance of the Lord, saying: hee, y go serue other gods. Now therefore lett not my bloud fall to the erth before the face of the Lorde. For the kyng of Israel is come out to dūe

a flee, as whom our doth hunt a parridge in the moorlaynes. Then sayde Saul: I haue synned, come agayn my sone Dauid, for I will do þe no moare harme, because my soule was perciouled in thyne eyes thys daye. Beholde, I haue played the foile, & haue erred exceedingly. And Dauid answered and sayd: Aske hold, þe kynges speere, lett one of þe young men come out, & sett it. The Lozde rewarde euery man accordyng to his ryghte workelle. & sayth: for þe Lozde deliuered the into my hand thys daye, but I wolde not laye myne hand vpon þe Lozdes anoynted. And behold, lyke as thys lyfe was moche set bye this daye in myne eyes: so be my lyfe set by in the eyes of the Lozde, that he deliuer me out of all tribulation. Then Saul sayd to Dauid: Blessed art thou my sone Dauid, for: thou shalt be a doer and pzenaple. And so Dauid went his waye, and Saul turned to his place agayne.

¶ Dauid fleth to Achis king of Geth.

¶ Ad Dauid sayde in his hert: I shall perishe one daye or other by the hand of Saul. Therfore is there nothing better for me, then to flee and saue my selfe in the land of the Philistines, and Saul shall cease to seke me nomore in all the coastes of Israel, & so shall I escape out of his hand. And Dauid arose, & he & þe fyve hyndred me þe were w him went vnto Achis, þe sonne of Achish, king of Geth. And Dauid dwelt w Achis at Geth, both he & his men, euery mā w his household, & Dauid w hys two wiues: Abinoā þe Iezraheliste, & Abigail Nabals wife of Carmel. And it was tolde 23 Saul, þe Dauid was fled to Geth, and he sought no moare for him. And Dauid sayd vnto Achis: If I haue now found grace in thine eyes, lett the geue me a place in some towne i þe feldes, þe I maye dwell there. For why shoulde thy seruaunt dwell i þe heed crite of þe kyngdome w þe? Then Achis gaue hym a silke of same daye, for which cause silke pertaith vnto the kynges of Iuda vnto thys daye. And þe tyme that Dauid dwelt i þe cotepe of the Philistines, was foure monethes, and certayne dayes. And Dauid & his men went vp, and ranne vpo the Geluities, the Gerytes & þe Amalchites: for those nations were bet the begynnynge the inhabytors of the lande, as men go to Shure, vnto the labe of Egypte. And Dauid smote the land, and left nether man ner woman alayne, and dyoue awaye the shepe, the oren, the asses, camelles, and clothes, and retourned, and came to Achis. And Achis sayue: where haue ye bene a roug this daye? And Dauid answered: Toward þe south of Iuda, & toward þe south of the Iezrahelites, & toward the south of the Iezrahelites. And Dauid saued nether mā nor woman alayne ner suffered them to come to Geth, for feare (sayeth he) lest they shuld telle on vs sayg to dyd Dauid & so wylde his name all the while he dwelleth in the cotepe of the Philistines. And Achis beleued Dauid sayng he abhorreth his people of Israel, & therfore he shalbe my seruaunt for euer.

¶ The .xxviii. Chapter.

¶ The Philistines moue warre agaynst Saul which seeketh after all cenchauter.

¶ And it chaunced in those dayes, that the Philistines gathered their hoost together to warre, to fyghe with Israel. And Achis sayde to Dauid: Be sure, thou shalt goo out with me to the battell, thou & the men þe art with the. And Dauid sayde to Achis: thou þe shalt know, what thy seruaunt can do. And Achis sayde agayne to Dauid: Then I will make þe keeper of my heed for euer. * Samuel was then deed, & all Israel had launfed hym, & buried him i Ramah his owne crite. * And Saul hat put þe womē that had spyetes of prophete, & þe sorthspers out of the labe. And the Philistines gathered together, & came, & pitched in Shimein. And Saul gathered all Israel together, & they pitched in Giboa: And whē Saul saw the hoost of the Philistines, he was afrayed, & his hert was sore astonied. And whan Saul asked counsell of the Lozde, the Lozde answered hi not, nether hy dreames, no: & by thim no: yet by prophetes. ¶ The sayd Saul vnto his seruauntes: seke me a woman that hath a spyete of prophete, þe I maye go to her & aske of her. And hys seruauntes sayde to him: Beholde, there is a woman that hath a spyete of prophete at Endor.

And Saul channged him self, and put on other rayment, & then went he & two men with hym, and they came to the woman by nyght. And he sayde: prophete vnto me by þe spyete, & byge me him by whō I shall raine vnto the. And the womā sayde vnto hym: Beholde thou knowest what Saul hath done, how he hath destroyed þe wemen that had prophesie spyetes, & the sozcerars out of the labe. Wherfore then sekest thou an occasion agaynst my soule, that he maye kyl me? And Saul toware to her by the Lozde sayg: As thou art, & þe Lozde lyueth, there shall no harme chaunce þe for this thyng. ¶ The sayd þe womā: whō shall I seche vnto the? he answered: Whig me vnto Samuel. Whē a woman saw Samuel, she cryed w a lowde voyce, and spake to Saul sayng: why hast thou dischaunced me? for þe art Saul. And þe kyng layd vnto her, be not afrayde: what seest thou? ¶ The womā layd vnto Saul: I se goddes alseid by vnto of

out of the cith. He sayde vnto her agayne: what fauour is he of? She answered: there cometh vp an olde man wth a mantell vpon hym. And Saul perceiued it was Samuel. & he stouped wth his face to the grounde, & bowed hym selfe. And Samuel sayd to Saul: why hast thou vniquieted me, to make me be brought vp? Saul answered: I am soze encombred. For the Philistynes make warre agaynst me, & God is departed from me and answereth me no more, neither by pphetes, neither by dreames. And therefore I haue called the, & thou mayest tell me, what I shall do. Then sayd Samuel: wherefore dost thou aske of me, whyle I Lorde is gone from the, & is become thine enemy? & sayd I Lorde hath done for hym before, euen as he spake by my hād. For the Lorde hath rent the kingdome out of thine hande, & geue it thy neybour Dauid. Because thou obeydest not the voyce of the Lord, nor executedst his sentence wthth the Amalechites, therefore hath the Lorde done this vnto the this daye. And moreover, the Lorde will deliuer Israel wth the, into the handes of the Philistines. & Tomorrow shalt thou and thy sonnes be with me, and the Lorde shall geue the hoste of Israel into the handes of the Philistines. Then Saul fell streight waye flatte on the cith a longe as he was, and was soze adreid because of the wordes of Samuel.

And there was no strength in hym, for he had eate no bread all the daye and the nyght before. And the woman cam vnto Saul, and saue that he was soze troubled, and sayde vnto hym: Se, thine hād mayd hath obeyed thy voyce. & haue put my soule in my hande, and haue hardened vnto thy wordes, which thou saydest vnto me. Ayme therefore harden thou also vnto the voyce of thine hād mayd, and let me lette a morsell of bread before the, that thou mayest eate and gett the strength, & then go on thy iourneie. He refused, and sayde: I will not eate. But hys seruantes & the woman togetheer cōspired him, and he hardened vnto thes voyce. And so he arose from the cith, and sat hin on a bedd. The woman had a fat calfe in the house, and she halsted & killed it, and toke flowre & kneaded it, and vndred baire twete cakes thereof, and brought the before Saul and before his seruantes. And whē they had eate, they sode vp, and went awaye the same nyght.

¶ Chapter. xlii.

¶ The Philistines were gathered togetheer wth all their armys vnto a pber. And the Israelites pitched in a tin, which is Ierachel. And the Lordes of the Philistines went forth wth the hādreds & thousandes. But Dauid & hys men came behide to Achis. Then sayde the Lordes of the Philistines, what art thou? Achis sayd vnto the Lordes of the Philistines: Is not this Dauid the seruant of Saul the kyng of Israel, whych hath bene wth me thes dayes of yeres? I haue founde no fault in hym, since he fled vnto me vnto this daye. And the Lordes of the Philistines were wroth wth hym and sayde vnto hym: Whiche this fellowe returne, that he maye go agayne to hys place whych thou hast appoynted hym: and let hym not go downe wth vs to battell, lest in the battell he be an aduersarye to vs. For wherewith coulde he better obtayne the fauour of hys master, then wth the fadres of these men? Is not this Dauid, to whō they singe in daunces? Saul & Que hys thousande, and Dauid hys ten thousande? Then Achis called Dauid, and sayde vnto hym: As sure as the Lorde lyueth, thou hast bene honest, and good in my syght, when thou wentest out wth me in the wood: neyther haue I founde euill wth the, since thou camest to me vnto this daye. Acuercheit the Lordes of the Philistines fauoure the not? Wherefore now returne, & go in peace, that thou bepleast not the Lordes of the Philistines. And Dauid sayde vnto Achis: And what haue I done? what hast thou founde in thy seruait, as lōg as I haue bene wth the vnto this daye, & I maye not go fyght against the enemyes of my Lorde the kynges?

Achis answered & sayd to Dauid: I know that thou art good, & art in my syght, as an Angell of God. Not wthstandinge the Lordes of the Philistines haue sayde: Let hym not go vp wth vs to battell. Wherefore nowe ryse vp earlye in the morninge, wth my masters seruantes that are come to the: and when ye be vp earlye (as some as ye haue sayde) departe. And so Dauid and hys men toke vp earlye to departe in the morninge, & to returne into the land of the Philistines. And the Philistines went vnto Ierachel.

¶ Chapter. xlii.

¶ Dauid returneth from kyng Achis to his house.

¶ At what Dauid & hys men were come to Ierachel the thirde daye, the Amalechites had rushed in vpon the south, and vpon a berge, & had smitten a berge, & burnt it wth fyre, & had taken the women (the were therein) prisoners, both (small & great) but slew not a mā, save caried them in the, & wēt they wayes. So Dauid and hys men came to the cite: & beholde, it was burnt wth fyre, & their wyues, thes sonnes and thes daughters were caried awaye. Then Dauid and the people that was wth hym, lyfte vp their voyces & wept, vntill they coulde wepe no more. And Dauid & two wyues were tak prisoners alto Abinoam the Jezrebelite, and abigail the wife of Nabal the Carmelite. And David was in a shyre with comfiance: for the people intended to stone hym, because the herfers of all the people were vexed for theys sonnes & theys daughters.

But David toke a good courage to hym in the Lorde hym God & sayde to Abiathar the pfeite Ahimelechs sonne: I pray þ, bring me the Ephyod. And Abiathar brought the Ephyod to David. And David asked counsell at the Lorde, sayinge: Shall I folowe after this companie: and shall I ouertake them? And he answered him: folow, for thou shalt ouertake them, and recover the praye.

So David and the fyve hundred men that were with hym, went & cam to the riuer Besor, where a part of them abode. But David and foure hundred men folowed: for two hundred abode behinde, brynging to werpe to go ouer the riuer Besor. And they foode an Egypcian in the felde, and brought hym to

David & gave hym bread to eat, & water to drynke, & gave hym a fewe fygges & two clousters of reafings. And when he had eaten, hym spete cam agayne to hym: for he had eaten, no bread nor dryncke no water in the dayes & the nyghtes. And David sayd vnto hym: to whom belongeth thou: & whence art thou? he sayd: I am a yonge ma of Egypt and seruant to an Amalekite: and my master left me behynde, because it is the dayes ngone, & I fell aske: we came a rounyng vpo the south of Egiptus, and agaynst Iuda, and towards the south of Calch. And we burne & kille with fyre. And David sayde to hym: canst thou bryng me to this companie? And he sayde: swere vnto me by God, that thou wilt neither kyll me, nor deliure me into the handes of my master, and I will bryng thee to the companie. And whē he had brought hym thither, beholde, they lape scattered abroad vpo the erth, eatyng & drynkyng, & dauncyng, because of the piteous & great pray, & he had caried awaye out of pland of the Philistines, & out of the lide of Iuda.

And David layd vpon the from the euen, & vntill the twilpyght on the morow: so þ there escape not a man of them, save foure hundred yowng men which rode awaye vpo camels, and fled. And David recovered all þ the Amalekites had caried awaye, & David rescued bys two wyues: so that they was no person of them lacking, small or great, sonne or daughter, or of the people of all that they had take awaye. David recovered them all agayne. And David toke all the thepe, & the oxen. And they dauce them before his catell, & sayd: this is Dauids praye. And David came to the two hundred me, & were to werpe for to folowe David, whom they had made all to abyde at the riuer Besor. And they cam to mete David, & þ people þ were with him. And whē David cam to þ people, he said: Inted the. Then answered all the wepled & the vnsuffices (of the men þ went with David) & sayde: because they went not with vs, therfore will we geue them none of þ praye, that we haue recovered. But let euery man take hym selfe and hym chyldren: & losse lett them carpe awaye, and be walpyng.

Then sayde David: y shall not do so (my brethren) & that which the Lord hath geuen vs, & hath preterued vs, & deliuered the com panie þ came agaynst vs, into oure handes, for who shuld berke vnto you in this matter? But as hym parte is þ gorth downe & fyggeth, so shall his parte be, that tarreth by the stiffe, & it maye be parted alpe. And so from þ dape forwarde: was that made a statute & lawe in Israel, vntill this dape. When David therfore cam to ziklag, he sent (as the) of the praye vnto the elders of Iuda, and to hym frenches sayng: If, there is a blessing for you, of the foyle of the encumbers of the Lorde. he sent to them of Bethel: to them of south Ramoth: to the of Zairi: to them of Aroer: to them of Sephanath: to them of Esthemon: to them of Rachel: to them of the cyties of Ierachiel: to them of the cyties of the herites: to them of Iozama: to them of Bofasan: to them of Aethach: to the that are in Hebe, and in all places, where David and hym men were wont to haunt.

Of Sauls death himselfe, and how he cometh to the battell.

He & Philistines fought agaynst Israel. And the men of Israel fledd awaye from the Philistines, & fell downe wounded in mount Gilboa. And the Philistines preyed soze vpon Sauls his sonnes, & slewe Jonathan, & Abinadab & Melchishua Sauls sonnes. And whā the battell went soze agaynst Saul, the archers with bowes founde hym, & he was soze afraied of the archers. Then layd Saul vnto his harnesser & sayd: thou thy swerde, & thrust me thozowe therwith, lest these vncircelised come, & thrust me thozowe and make a mockyng stocke of me. But hym harnesser wolde not, for, he was soze afraied. And Saul toke a swerde, and fell vpon it. And whē his harnesser sawe that Saul was ded, he fell by the wyse vpon his swerde, & dyed with hym. And lo Saul dyed, & his the sonnes, and his harnesser, and all hym men that same dape togethere.

And when the men of Israel that were on þ other syde of þ valeye, & they of þ other syde Jordan, heard, that the men of Israel were put to flight, and that Saul and hym sonnes were ded, they left the cyties, & rāne awaye and the Philistines cam, and dwell in them.

But the seruantes of Dauid had dayne of Beniamin, and of Abners men, the hūdes & the kioze men. And they toke vp Ashel, and buried hym in the sepulchre of his father i Bethlehem. ¶ Abner cometh to Dauid and bryngeth hym hys wyfe Michol. Iobn killeth Abner.

There was longe warre betwene the howse of Saul, and þ howse of Dauid. But Dauid warred stronger and stronger, & the house of Saul warred weaker and weaker. * And vnto Dauid were comen chylidren borne in hebron: his eldest sonne also was Amnon, of Ahinoam the Jezrehelite: the seconde Cheleab, of Abigail the wyfe of Nabal the Carmelite: the thyrde Absalon, the sonne of Maachab þ daughter of Gethaim, the kyng of Gethur: the fourth, Adonia, the sonne of Hagith: the fyfte, Sephathia the sonne of Abital. þ fyfte Jethra of Egla Dauid's wyfe. Ther were borne to Dauid in hebron. And it fortuned, that whyle there was warre betwene the house of Saul and the house of Dauid, Abner helpe vp the house of Saul. And Saul had a concubyn named Rizpa, the daughter of Aia. And Absoloth sayde to Abner:

¶ Wherefore hast thou gone into my fathers concubyn? Then was Abner very wroth for the wordes of Absoloth, & sayde: Am I not a dogges hebd, which agaynst Iuda do the mercie thys daye vnto the house of Saul thy father, & to his brethren and frendes, and haue not deliuered the into the hande of Dauid: and thou fyndest a fault in me this daye for this woman? So and so do God to Abner. For ag the Lorde hath thowne to Dauid, so wyl I be on hys spede, to bryng the kyngdom from the house of Saul, that the thron of Dauid maye be stablished ouer Israel, and ouer Iuda and from Dan to Bersebe. And he coulde geue Abner neuer a woorde to answer, because he feared hym.

¶ And Abner sent messengers to Dauid secretly, saying: Whose is þ lande? Make a boude with me, and beholde, my hande is wryth the, to bryng all Israel vnto the. he sayde: It is good, that I make a boude with the. But one thyng I requyre of the, that thou se not my face, except thou fynd bryng Michol Sauls daughter, when thou comest to se me.

And Dauid sent messengers to Absoloth

Sauls sonne, saying, * deliuer me my wyfe Michol, which I married with* an hundred foisthynnes of þ Philistines. And Absoloth sent, and toke her from her husband * Hathi the sonne of Laiz. And her husband went with her, ad cam weeping beynde her, till they cam to Bahurim. Then sayde Absoloth vnto hym, go and returne. And he returned. And Abner had comunicacion with the elders of Israel, saying: ye fought for Dauid in tymes past, that he might be your kyng. Now then do it: for the Lorde hath sayd of Dauid: * He þ had of my seruaut Dauid, I will saue my people Israel, out of þ handes of all their enepmes. And Abner spake in þ eares of Beniamin, and went to tell in the eares of Dauid in hebron, all that Israel was content wryth, and the whole house of Beniamin. And so Abner came to Dauid to hebron, brynging twentye men w hym, & Dauid made hym & the men that were with him a feast. And Abner sayde vnto Dauid: I wyl vp, and go geather all Israel vnto my Lorde the kyng, that they maye make an appoyntment wryth the, and that thou mayst commaunde all, as thyn hart desireth. And whan Dauid had let Abner departe, he went in peace.

¶ And beholde, the seruantes of Dauid, & Iobn came from chasyng the robbers, and brought a great praye with them. But Abner was not wryth Dauid in hebron: for he had sent him awaye to depart in peace. Whyle Iobn and all the host that was with hym, were come, men tolde Iobn saying: Abner the sonne of Ner came to the kyng, and he hath sent hym awaye, þ he is gone in peace. Then Iobn came to the kyng, and sayde: What hast thou done? Beholde, Abner cam vnto the: & why hast thou sent hym awaye, that he shulde swaie quyte? Thou knowest Abner þ sonne of Ner, for he came to disceane the, & to know the outgoing & ingoing, and to know all that thou doest. And whan Iobn was come out fro Dauid, he sent messengers after Abner, which brought him agayne from the well of Sira, unknowyng to Dauid. And when Abner was come agayne to hebron, Iobn toke hym a spede in þ gate * to speake with him secretly, & smote hym vnder þ most rybbes þ he dyed, & for the bloud of Ashel his brother. And when after ward it cam to Dauids eare, he sayd: I and my kyngdom are giltye before the Lorde for euere cōuerting the bloud of Abner þ sonne of Ner. Let the bloud remaine on þ heed of Iobn & on all his fathers house þ þ house of Iobn be neuer wrythour one of other that hath runnyng issues of leper, and cleanness on a skaf, and that both fall on the sword, & lacke th speed. Jonah and Abisai slue Abner was, & Abner had a slayne their brother Iabel at Gibeon in battell. And Dauid sayd to Jonah, and to all the people that were with hym. * Kente your clothes, and put on sacke cloth, and mouene before Abner. And hig Dauid him self folowed the cofe. And when they buried Abner in hebron, the kyng lifte up his voyce, & wepte before the sepulchre of Abner, and to byd all the people. And the kyng lamented ouer Abner, and sayde: ¶ died Abner as a foole dieth: thy handes were not bounde, ner thy feet brought into cheynes: but as a man falleth before wicked childen, so feldest thou. And all they that were of y people, wept yet moare ouer hym.

¶ And when all y people came to cate meate with Dauid, while it was yet dape, Dauid swate saying: Soe & do God to me, yf I tast heere of ought elles, tyll the sonne be downe. And the people wist it, and it pleased them. And what fouer the kyng byd, it pleased all the people. ¶ For all the people & all Isral vnderstode that day, how that it was not the kynges dede, & Abner the sonne of Ner was slayne. And the kyng sayde vnto his seruantes: know ye not, how that there is a lorde and a great man fallen this dape in Isral: And I am this dape tender, and anonpnted bing. And these men the sonnes of zacaria be to hard for me. The Lorde rewarde the doer of euil, accordyng to his wyrdnesse.

¶ Baanah and Rechab sley Ibsoloth the sonne of Saul.

¶ When Sauls sonne heard that Abner was dead in hebron, his handes were feble, & all the Israelites were afrayed: & Sauls sonne had two men y were captaynes ouer the loubiars, y one called Baanah, and the other Rechab, the sonnes of Rimmon a Berothite, of the chyldren of Benjamin: for Beroth was reckened to Benjamin. And these Berothites fled to Githaim, and sojourned there vntill the same tyme. * And Jonathan Sauls sonne had a sonne that was lame on hys feete. And he was thye pere olde, when the tydinges came of Saul & Jonathan out of Ierapell. And his mourt toke him vp, & fled awape. And as he made hark to flee, the childe fell, & begane to halt, and hys name was Giphtholoth. And the sonnes of Rimmon the Berothite, Rechab an Baanah wet, and came in the heat of y dape to the house of Ibsoloth, which slept on a bed at none. ¶ And the woman that was the wyfe of the boy, and stilled the wheate, was a Geph. And they came into the myddes of the house: as though they wold haue fetched wheate, and Rechab ad Baana hys brother sloute him vnder the host rybbed and fled. ¶ For when they came into the house, he slept on his bed in hys resting chamber, and they smote hym and slue him, ad beheaded hym, and toke hys heed, & gat them awape throtw y plaine all y night. And they brought the heed of Ibsoloth vnto Dauid, to hebrd, and sayde to the kyng: behold, there is the heed of Ibsoloth Sauls sonne, thine enemy which sought after thy lyfe. And the Lorde hath aduenged my lord the kyng this dape of Saul and of his seede.

And Dauid answered Rechab and Baana his brother, the sonnes of Rimmon the Berothite, and sayde vnto them: * as I live: ly as the lord lyueth, which hath deliuered my soule out of all aduersites: Willhan one * tolde me & sayd that Saul was dead, thin kyng to haue brought good tydinges. I caught hym, and slue hym in ziklag: wher thought that I wolde haue geuen hym a rewarde for hys tydinges bynyng. How moch more wha wycked men haue slayne a ryghtiouse person, in his awne house and vpo his bed: Shall I not requite his blood of your hnde, and take pon them the erth? And Dauid commaunded his young men, & they slue them, and cut of their handes and feete, & hanged them vp ouer the pole in hebron. But they toke the heed of Ibsoloth, and buried it in the sepulchre of Abner in hebron. * ii. Reg. iii.

¶ The. v. Chapter.

¶ Dauid to yet a gaper amonped Aegyn: and tokeht the Arche from Hion.

¶ Then came all the trybles of Isral * to Dauid, vnto hebrd and sayd, We holde, we are of thy bone, and of thy fleche. And in tyme past whē Saul was oure kyng, thou leddest Isral in and out. And the Lorde hath sayd to the: thou shalt fede my people Isral, and thou shalt be a capteyne ouer Isral. And so all the elders of Isral came to the * kyng to hebron. And hyng Dauid made a couenaunt woth them in hebron before the Lord. And they amonped Dauid hyng ouer Isral. Dauid was thirtye pere olde, when he began to raygne, and he raygned fourty pere. In hebron he raygned ouer Iuda leuen pere, and byre monethes: And in Ierusalem he raygned thirtye and thye perys ouer all Isral and Iuda.

The kyng also and his men went to Ierusalem, vnto the Jebulites, the enhauisers of y land. Which spake vnto Dauid sayng: ¶ except thou take awape the vlynor and the lame, thou shalt not come I hither. For they sayd: Thou art not able to come in thyther. ¶ Muerthelesse Dauid toke the strong holde of Zion. The same is the cite of Dauid. And Dauid sayd the same dape: Which forcut of the Lorde. they set it in his place, euen in the myddes of the tabernacle & David had pitched for it. And David offered burnt offerings & peace offerings before the lord. And as soon as David had made an ende of offering burnt offerings & peace offerings, he blessed the people in the name of the Lord of hostes, & gaue among all the folke, euen amonge the holt multitude of Israel, as well to the women as men, to euery one a Cake of bryed, & a peece of fleshe, & a basket of brycke. And so all the people departed euery one to his house.

¶ Then David returned to & blessed his household: ad Michol & daughter of Saul came out to meete Dauid, & sayde: What glorious was & big of Israel this daye, which was unconquered to daide, in & by & of many of his seruantes, as p̄t: Had bene a lycht byapnch felow unconquer? And Dauid sayd vnto Michol. I thought to daunce before the Lord, which chose me rather the thy father, & all his kynne, and commaundyd me to be iulce ouer all the people of & Lord eue ouer Israel. And therefore will I pape before the Lorde. And wilbe yet more vpic then so, & will be make in myne atone syght: & of the very same may be seruantes which thou hast spok of: that I be had in honoure Therefore Michol & daughter of Saul had no childe, vnto the dape of her deyth.

¶ The vii. Chapter.

¶ Dauid was duph & a house: but is for the born of God.

¶ Fortuned, that as the kyng satt in his house (after & the Lord had geuen hym rest) round about fro all his enemies he sayde vnto Nathan the prophet: behold, I dwell now in an house of Cedar trees, but & the Arcke of God dwelleth within the curtayne. And Nathan sayd vnto the kyng: go & do all that is in thine hert for the Lord is with the.

¶ And it fortuneth the same nyght that the woord of the lord came vnto Natha saye: go and tell my seruauit Dauid, thus sayth the Lorde: What thou byde me an house to dwelle in: For I haue not dwelt any house, sence the tyme I brought the chyldre of Israel out of Egypt, vnto this dape: but haue walked in a tent and tabernacle. In all the places where in I haue walked with all the chyldren of Israel, spake I one woord w any of the tribes of Israel: & I sene I commaunded the iudges to fede my people Israel sayng: why byde ye not me an house of Cedar trees? And therefore, so sape vnto my seruauit Dauid: thus sayth the Lorde of hostes. ¶ I take the from the shepe cote (as thou hast folowyn shepe) that thou myghtest be ruler ouer my people Israel.

* 4. Re. 1. c.

And I was with the in all that thou wentest to, & haue destroyed all thine enemies out of thy syght, and haue made the a great name, lyke vnto the name of the great men that are in the world. And therefore, I will appoynt a place for my people Israel, and will plant it, & they may dwell in a place of their atone, and moue no moare, neether shall wycked people trouble the any moare, as they did at the beginning: sence the tyme that I sett Iudges ouer my people Israel. And I will gene the rest from all thine enemies. And the Lord telleth the, that he will make the an howse.

¶ And when thy dayes be fulfilled, & shalt & they thy fathers, and I will set thy seed after the, which shall proceed out of thy body, & will stablysh his kyngdome. ¶ He shall byde an house for my name, & I will stablysh the seate of his kyngdome for euer. ¶ I will be his father, and he shall be my sonne: ¶ p̄t he sene, I will chasten hym & with loche a rodde as men be chastened w. & w some plagis as the chyldre of mē be plagid w. But my mercie shall not depart awaye fro hi, as I toke it fro Saul, whom I put downe before the. And thine house ad thy kyngdome shall endure w out ende after the, & thy seate shall be stablyshed for euer. According to all these woordes and accordyng to all thys visyon, dyd Natha speke vnto Dauid. Then went Dauid in, and set hym downe before the Lord, and sayde: what am I, O Lord God, and what is my house: that thou shouldest haue brought me this farre forth: And this was pet a small thing in thy sight, O Lord God, but I haue spok also of thy seruantes house for a great while to come: For & this is p̄t of mē, O Lord God. And what can Dauid sape moare vnto the: for thou Lord God knowest thy seruauit. ¶ Cut for thy woordes take & according to thine atone hert haue done all these greates thynges to make them knowen vnto thy seruauit.

¶ Wherefore thou art great, O Lord God: for there is none lyke the: neether is there any God saue thou, accordyng to all that we haue heard w oure eares. ¶ And what one people in the erth is lyke thy people Israel: whose God, went & deliuered them, that they myght be his people, & that he myght make hym a name, & to the great & terribel things in p̄t the, for thy people: which thou redeemedst to the out of Egypt, out the people with thine & goddes. For thou hast ordeyned thy people Israel, to be thy people for euer. And & Lorde art become the God. And now (Lord God) the woide that thou hast spoken concerning thy seruauit and his house: make it good for euer, and do as thou hast sayd. For so shall thy name be magnified magnified for ever, of men þ shall saye: the Loide of hostes is the God of Israel: and the house of thy seruaut shall be stablished before the. for þ, O Lord of hostes, God of Israel, hast tolde in the care of thy seruant, sayeng: * I will blyde the an house And therfore hath thy seruaut found in his hart, to praye this prayere vnto þ. * Therfore now Lord God, thou art God, and thy wordes must be true, thou that hast tolde this goodnewe vnto thy seruaut. And now go to, and blesse the house of thy seruaut, that it maye contynue for euer before the.

 for þ Lord God hast spolie it, and with thy blessing shall the house of thy seruaut be blessed for euer.

¶ The. viii. Chapter.

After this it fortuned þ David smote the Philistines, and subdued them, & roke the byddell of bondage out of the hande of the Philistines. * And he smote þ Moabites & * measured them with a lyne, & cast the downe to the grounde. ¶ Euen with two lynes measured he them whom he slue, and the length of one linc saued he a linc. And so became the Moabites Dauides seruantes, & payed trespase. Dauid smote also, hadarezer the sonne of Achob kyng re hadarezer kyng of zoba, Dauid slue of the Sirians two and twentye thousand men, and put souldyours in Siria Da-malcon. And þ Sirians became seruantes, to Dauid, payng tribute. And thus þ Lord saued Dauid, in all that he wēt vnto. And Dauid toke þ sheldes of gold that belonged to the seruantes of hadarezer, & broughe them to Ierusalem. And out of Beza & Berothay cities of hadarezer did Dauid bryg exceeding much brasle. * (wherof shalomon make all the baten beuies in the temple, & the basen dautoye, and the pilles, and the altare.)

* Whē Choi kyng of Amath heard howe Dauid had smitten all the hoste of hadarezzer, he sent Joiaz his sonne vnto kyng David, to salute hym with peace, & to blesse hym, because he had fought agaynst hadarezer, and beaten hym: for Choi had greate warre w hadarezer, which Joiaz broughe with hi, vessels of siluer, vessels of golde, and vessels of brasle: which brasle kyng Dauid byd dedicat vnto the Lord w the sylvner and golde that he had consecrated of all nacpions, whych he subdued: of Siria of the Moabites, & of the chyldien of Ammon, of the Philistines, & of hamalech, and of the spoule of hadarezer sonne of Achob kyng of zoba. And Dauid gat hym a name after that he returned & had smitten of the Siriens in the valepe of salt. xviij. thousand men. * And he put keepers in Edō, euen thozon out al Edō put he souldyours, & all they of Edom became Dauides seruantes, And the Loide kept Dauid what fouer he toke in hand. And Dauid raygned ouer all Israel, and executed ryghte, & iustice vnto all his people. And * Joab the sonne of zaruiah was ouer the host, and Jeholaphar þ sōne of Ahitub was recorder. And Shaboz the sonne of Ahitob, & Abimelech the sonne of Abiathar were the Preakers, and Saraia was the scribe. And * Banaiab þ sonne of Jehoiada was ouer the Cretures and the Phylethites: & Dauides son-nes were chiefe walars.

¶ The. ix. Chapter.

¶ David restoreth all the rebvers of Saul, to Achis: wherby the sonne of Jonathan.

Ad Dauid sayd: is there yet any mā left of þ house of Saul: for I will shew hym mercede for Jonathas sake. And there was of þ household of Saul a seruaut whose name was ziba: & whan they had called hym vnto Dauid, the kyng sayd vnto him:
 art thou ziba? he sayd: thy seruaut is he.
 And þ kyng sayde: remaineth ther yet any man of þ house of Saul, wdo I maye shew the mercede of God vnto? ziba answered the kyng: * Jonathan hath yet a sonne, which is lame on his fere. The big sayd vnto him where is he? ziba sayd vnto the kyng: behold, he is in the house of Achish þ sonne of Amiel of Lodber. Then kyng Dauid sent, a fere hym out of the house of Achish the sonne of Amiel, out of Lodber. Now whan Achishboeth the sonne of Jonathan, þ sonne of Saul, was come vnto Dauid, he fell on his face, and did reuerce. And the kyng sayde: Achishboeth: he answered: Behold thy seruaut. Dauid sayde vnto him: feare not, for I will surely shew the kindelesse for Jonathan thy fathers sake, & will restore þ all the felde of Saul thy father, & þu shalt eate bred on myne atvone table cōmūally. And he boted hym self, and sayde: What is thy seruānt, that thou shouldest vouchsafe to lōke vpon soche a deed dogg as I am?

Then the kyng called vnto ziba Sauls young man & sayd vnto him: I haue geuen vnto thy masters sonne, all that pertaineth to Saul and to all his house. Soe therefore þu thou, & thy sonnes and thy seruantes tūll the lande, and bying in, that * thy masters sonne maye haue fode to eate. But Whiphibolseth thy masters sonne that eate bred allwayne vpon myn table. For ziba had siffene sonnes and ewentye seruantes. Then sayd ziba vnto the kyng: According to all þu my lord the kyng hath commaunded his seruānt, so shall thy seruānt do. Well, sayd þu kyng Whiphibolseth shall eate vpon my table, as one of the kynges sonnes. Whiphibolseth had a sonne that was younge, named Micha, and all that dwelled in the house of ziba were seruantes vnto Whiphibolseth. And Whiphibolseth dwelt in Ierusalem, for he dyed euer at the kynges table, * and was laue on both his fere.

The .x. Chapter.

The meynes of David are beliauously entreated of the kyng of Moab.

IT happened after this, þe the kyng of the children of Ammon died, & hanon his sonne ragned in his steade. Then sayd Dauid: I will lye wpyndesse vnto hanon þe sonne of Na has, as thy father shewed kynndesse vnto me. And Dauid sent to comfort hym by the hand of his seruantes ouer the death of, hys father. And Dauids seruantes came into the lande of the chylde of Ammon, and the lordes of the chylde of Ammon sayd vnto hanon their lord: thynkest thou þe Dauid dothe honoure thy father, that he hath sent comfortours to the? hath not Dauid rather sent his seruantes vnto þe, to seache þe, & to spyte it out, and to ouertrowe it?

*11. 1. 1. 1. 1.

Wherfore, hanon toke Dauids seruantes, & shaued of the one halfe of euerye mannes berd and cut of their garmentes in the myddle, euen harde to the buttockes of the, & sent them awaye. When they tolde it vnto Dauid, he sent to mete the for they were men exceedingly shamed, & the kyng sayd: tarie at Jericho untill your beerdes be growen, and then returne. And when the chylde of Ammon saw that they stancke in þe sight of Dauid, they sent and hired the Syrians of the house of Rebo, & the Syrians of zoba. .xx. thousand fore men, and of kyng Maacha a thousand mē, & of Itob twelue thousand men. And when Dauid hearde of it, he sent Joab & all the host of strong men. And the chylde of Ammon came out, and waged battell at the entering in of þe gate, & the Syrians of zobah, of Rebo, Itob and Maacha were by them selues in the felde.

When Joab saw þe front of the battell was agaynst hym before and after, he chose of all the fresh young men of Israel, & put them in aray agaynst the Syrians. And the rest of the people he disparted into the had of Abisay hys brother, þe he myght put the in aray agaynst þe children of Ammon. And he sayd, þe the Syrians be stronger then I, thou shalt helpe me. But þe the chylde of Ammon be to strong for the, I will come ad succoure the. Therfore quyte the lyke a man, & let vs stonde still for oure people, & for the cities of oure God. And the lord do þu which is good in his owne eyes. And Joab proceedd forth, & þe people þu was with hym, to fight with the Syrians. But they fled before him. And when the chylde of Ammon saw that the Syrians were fled, they fled they also before Abisay, and entered into the city. And so Joab returned from þe chylde of Ammon, & came to Ierusalem. And when the Syrians saw that they were put to þe worse before Israel, they gathered them to gether. And Hadarezer sent, & brought out the Syrians þu were beyonde the river. And they came with their armye and Iobah the captayne of the host of Hadarezer went before them.

And when it was shewed Dauid, he gathered all Israel together, ad passed ouer Jordan, & cam to Helam: And the Syrians let them selues in aray agaynst Dauid, & fought with him: and the Syrians fled before Israel. And Dauid destroyed seven hundred charrettes of the Syrians, and fourty thousand horsemen, and smore Iobah the captayne of their host, which also dyed there. And when all the kinges (that were seruantes to Hadarezer) saw that they were put to the worse before Israel, they made peace with them, & serued them. And so the Syrians feared to helpe þe chylde of Ammon any moore.

The .xi. Chapter.

The aduocates of Dauid with Bethsabe the wyfe of Dauid.

Addit came to passe þ (after the praye was cryed) in the tyme when kynges rose to go forth to battell, Dauid sent Ioab and hys seruantes wryth hym, and all Israel, wherþ * destroyed the chyldren of Ammon, and besieged Rabba. But Dauid tarped styll at Ierusalem. And it chafed in an euynynge, that Dauid arose out of hys bed, and walked vpon the route of the kynges palace, and from the route he sawe a woman * wallynge her selfe: and the woma was very be wyfull to loke vpon. And he sent to enquire what woma it shuld be, sayenge: is it not Bethsabe the daughter of Eliam, and wyfe to Arias the Bethite? And Dauid sent messengers, and fet her. And he came in vnto hym * & he laye wryth her. And * (immediatly) she was * purtyfed from her vncleynesse, and returned vnto her house. And the woman conceaued, & sent and tolde Dauid, & sayd: I am wryth chyld. And Dauid sent to Ioab, (sayenge:) sende me Arias the Bethite. And Ioab sent Arias to Dauid. And whē Arias was come vnto hym, Dauid demanded of him: howe Ioab dyd, and howe the people fared, and howe the me of wyrrer prospered. And Dauid sayd to Arias: go downe to thyn house, and waſhe thy fete. And Arias departed out of the kynges palace, and there folowed hym a ser uice from the kynges table. But Arias slept at the doze of the kynges palace wrythall the seruantes of hys Lozde, and wet not downe to hys house.

Which whē they had tolde Dauid (sayenge: Arias wet not downe into hys house.) Dauid sayde vnto Arias: Camst thou not fro thy loiney: why dydest thou not go downe then vnto thyn house: Arias answered Dauid. The arcke & Israel and Iuda dwell in pauplyons: and my Lozde Ioab and the seruantes of my Lozde lye vpon the flate erthe: and shall I then go into myne house, to eate, and to dryncke, and lye wryth my wyfe: * & * þy lye and vpon the flate of the soule, I will not do thys thyng. And Dauid sayde vnto Arias: * tarpe here this daye also, and to morowe I will lette the depart. And so Arias abode in Ierusalem that daye, and the morowe. And whā Dauid had called hym, he byd eate and dryncke before hym, and he made hym droncke. And at ruse he went out to lye on hys couche wryth the seruantes of his Lozde, but went not downe to hys house. On þ morow Dauid wrote a letter to Ioab, and sent it by the bande of Arias. And he wrote thus in þ letter, sayeng: put Arias in the forefront of the spawes battell, and come þe backe from hym, that he maye be smyten and dye. So whā Ioab besieged the cite, he assigned Arias vnto a place, where he wyth that stroge men were,

And the me of the cite cam out, and foughe wryth Ioab. And there were certē ouerthowen of the people, and of the seruantes of Dauid, and Arias the Bethite dyed also.

Then Ioab sent, and tolde Dauid all the thynges concernynge the warre, and charged the messenger, sayenge: when thou shalt make an ende of tellynge the matters of the warre vnto the kyng, yf he begynne to summe, and saye vnto the: wherfore approached ye so nyre vnto the cite, whan ye dyd fyghe: wryth ye not that they wolde hurle and shot from the wall: who smote A himselfe sonne of Jeroboath: * dyd not a woman cast a peece of a mpyllone vpon hym from of the wall, and he dyed in thebes: wryth ye nyre the wall: then saye thou: thy seruauit Arias the Bethite is deed also.

So the messenger went, and came, and shewed Dauid all that Ioab had sent hym for, and the messaunger sayd vnto Dauid: þ me pccapled agaynst vs, and cam out vnto vs into the felde, & wro * (wryth violence) flacke vnto them, euen vnto the enterpyng of the gate. And the shoters shotte from the walles, vpon thy seruantes, and some of the kynges seruantes be deed. And thy seruauit Arias the Bethite is deed also. And Dauid sayde vnto the messenger: thus shalt þ saye vnto Ioab: let not that thyng trouble the. Ro. * (the chance of waere is tryuete, and, þ wrode denoureth one as well as another: make thy battell more stronge agaynst the cite to ouerthowen it, & se that thou courage Ioab. And when the wyfe of Arias heard that her husbaunde was deed, she mouried for hym. And whā the mourynge was past, Dauid sent and fet her to hys house, and she became hys wyfe, and bare hym a sonne. But this thyng that Dauid dyd, displeased the Lozde.

¶ The xij. Chapter.

Dauid is reioysed for the slaughter of Arias The chyld conceaued in abowynge dyeth. After it, is Salomons boine.

And the Lozde sent Nathan vn. to Dauid. And he came vnto þ and tolde hym: there were two men in one cite, the one ryche, and the other poore. The ryche man had ccedynge many shepe and oxen. But the poore had nothinge saue one lytle shepe, wherþ he had bought, and inoysseld vpon. And it greewe vpon wryth hym and wryth hys chyldren also, and dyd eate of hys awne meate, and dranche of hys awne cwycke, and slept in hys bosome, and was vnto hym as hys daughter. And there cam a stranger vnto the ryche mā. And he coude not fynde in hys heart to take of hys wyne shepe, and of hys awne oxen, to drasse for the stranger: that was come vnto hym. But toke the poore mānes shepe, and dressed it for þ man

That was come to him. And David was exceeding wroth wth the man, and layde to Nathan: as surely as the Lord liveth, the man that hath done this thing is wth the chyldre of death. He shall restore the lambe * & wyfe fourfold, because he dyd this thinge, and had no p^{er}se. And Nathan sayth to David: thou art the ma. And sayth the Lord God of Israel, * I anoynted the kynge ouer Israel, and gyfde the out of the hande of Saul.

I gave the thy masters house, and the thy masters wyves unto thy bosome, and gave the, the house of Israel and of Juda, & might (yf that had bene to lye) have geuen the so moche more. Wherefore then hast thou despised the commaundement of the Lord, to do wyckednesse in hys syght: thou hast kylde the ma the hertie wth the swerde, and hast take his wyfe to thy wyfe, & hast slayne hym wth the swerde of the chyldren of Ammon.

Nowe therefore, the swerde shall neuer depart from thyne house, because thou hast despised me, and taken the wyfe of Arias the hertie, to be thy wyfe. Wherefore thus sayth the Lord: beholde, I will bere v^{nto} euell agaynst the, euell out of thyne owne house, & will * take thy wyues before thyne eyes, and geue them vnto thy neyghbour, and he shall lye wth thy wyues. In the syght of the sonne, for thou dydest it secretly. But I will do this thinge before all Israel, and in the open sonne lye p^{er}dit.

And David layde vnto Nathan: I haue sinned agaynst the Lord. And Nathan layd vnto David: the Lord also hath put away thy synne, thou shalt not dye. Howbeit, because in doing thiss dare, thou hast geuen the enemies of the Lord a cause to raple, the chyldre that is borne vnto the, shall surely dye. And Nathan stroke the chyldre that Arias wyfe bare vnto David, and it sickened sore. David therfore besought God for the chyldre, and fasted and went in, and laye all nyght vpon the erthe. And the elders of hys house arose and went to hym, to take him by the p^{er}ch. But he wolde not, neither dyd he care meat wth them.

And it happened the seuenth daye, that the chyldre dyed. And the seruantes of David durst not tell him, that the chyldre was dead. For they sayd: beholde, while the chyld was yet alivie, we spake vnto hym, and he wolde not hearken vnto oure voyce. Nowe will he then bere hym selfe, yf we tell hym, that the chyld is dead: But David senege hys seruantes whyp^{er}perunge, perceaued, that the chyldre was dead. & David sayd vnto hys seruantes: is the chyldre dead? They sayde: yee. And David arose fr^{om} the erth, and washed and anoynted hym selfe, and chainged his apparell, & came into the house of the Lord, & woeshypped, & after ward cam to hys owne house and badd the chyldre lye: but be-fore hym, and be dyd eate. Then sayd his seruantes vnto hym: what thyng is this, if that thou hast done? Thou dydest faste and wepe for the chyldre, while it was a lyue, & as sone as it was dead, thou biddeste spee v^{nto}, and eate meate. He sayde: while the chyldre was yet a lyue, I fasted and wept. For this I thought: who can tell whether God will haue increp on me, that the chyldre maye lye. But now, senege it is dead, wherefore shall I fast? can I berynge him agayne any moare? I shall go to hym, rather the he shall come agayne to me. And David comforted Berthebe his wyfe, and went in vnto her, and laye wth her, and she bare a sonne, and called his name: Salomon, and the Lord loued hym. And he sent by the hande of Nathan the prophete, and called his name: Jedidiah, of the Lords behalfe.

Joab fought agaynst Aba the cyrie of the chyldren of Ammon, and toke the cyrie of the kyngdome. And Joab sent messengers to David, sayng: I haue made asswre to Aba, and haue taken the cyrie wth waters. Nowe therefore gather y^{er} self of the people together, and belege the cyrie, that thou mayest take it: lest I take it, and call it after my name. And David gathered all the people together, and went agaynst Aba, & beleged it, and gart it. And he toke the kyngs crowne from of hys hed, which wayed an hundred weight of golde, and in it were p^{er}ceus stones. And it was set on Abas hed. And he brought out the spoyle of the cyrie in exceeding great aboundance. And he carped out the people that was therein, and put them vpon sawes and vpon p^{er}on harrowes, and vnto axes of y^{er}re, & thrust them into the trespell. Thus dyd he wth all the cyries of the chyldren of Ammon. And to David and all the people returned vnto Ierusalem.

The xiiij. Chapter.

¶ Ammon Dauids sonne beset hys fadir the mar. Abalom therfore killeth Ammon.

After this it chaunced that Abalom the sonne of David had a fayre syster, named Thamar, whom Ammon the sonne of David lough. And he was so sore vexed, that he fell speke for the loue of hys syster Thamar: for the was a weayn, and he thought it hard for hym to haue hys purp^{er}se of her. But Ammon had a frende, called Jonadab, s^{on}ne of Simead Dauids brother: and a Jonadab was a very wyse ma. And he sayde vnto him: how cometh it, that thou beynge the kinges sonne, art thus consumed euery daye? Telle thou not tell me: Ammon answered hym: I loue Thamar ¶ Amnon my brother Absoloms sister. Jonadab sayde vnto him: laye þe downe on thy bedde, & make thee the sche. And when thy father is come to le the, laye vnto hym: Wh let my sister ¶ Ammar come, and geue me meate, & drinke it in my syght, that I maye le it and eate it of her hande.

25 And so Amnon laye downe, & made hym selfe syche. And whē the kyng was come to se him, Amnon sayde vnto him: Oh let ¶ Ammar my sister come, & make me a couple of fryters in my syght, that I maye eate of her hande. Then wauld sent home to ¶ Ammar, sayng: go now to thy brother Ammons house, and drinke him meate. So ¶ Ammar wente to her brother Ammons house, and he was layed downe. And he toke flour, and made paste, and dyed fryters in his syght, & dyd bake them, and toke a platter, & powred them out before him, but he wolde not eate. And Amnon sayde: haue out all men from me. And they went all out from hym. And Amnon sayde vnto ¶ Ammar: byngge the meate into the chambze, that I maye eate of thyne had. And ¶ Ammar toke the fryters, wher she had made, & brought them into the chambze to Amnon her brother. And whā she had set the before him, to eate, he toke her, and sayd vnto her: come lye w me my sister. And she answered hym: nay my brother, do not force me, for there hath no such thinge bene done in Israel: do not thou this abhominacion. For whither shall I be able to go w my shame? And thou shalt be as one of the foles in Israel. O speake vnto the kyng, and he shall not denye me vnto the.

¶ Jonadab the hope but toke her, & forced her, and laye w her. And the Amnon hated her exceedingly: so that þe hate wher wth he hated her, was greater then þe loue, w which he before loued her. And Amnon sayde vnto her: vp, & get þe. She answered hym: Thou hast no cause. ¶ His euell þe puttest me awaye is greater then þe other that þe dydest vnto me. Neuertheles he wolde not hate her, but called his boye that serued him, & sayd: put awaye this woman from me, & bote þe doze after her. And she had a kirtell of diuers colours vpon her: for so forche were þe kynges daughters (that were veygnes) appareled. The his seruante brought her ouer, & locked þe doze after her. And ¶ Ammar toke & putt a shew on her heed, & sent her gawe a kirtell þe was on her, & layed her hande on her heed, & so weft: as she weft, cryed. And Absalom her brother sayde vnto her: hath Amnon thy brother bene with the? How yet be still my sister: he is thy brother. Let not this thyng greue thine heart. And so ¶ Ammar remayned desolate in her brothers Absaloms house. But when kyng David heard of all these thynges, he was deuyd woth.

¶ (And he wolde not here the speche of Amnon bys counsell for he toke hym, because he was his synners.) And Absalom sayde vnto his brother Amnon nether good ner bad. Howbeit Absalom hated Amnon because he had forced his sister ¶ Ammar.

¶ And it happened after two yere, that Absalom had 300 besyde the trefe of Ephraim, & had all þe kynges sonnes, and cam to the kyng, & sayd: beholde, thy seruant hath these thynges, let the kyng w his seruantes come to the seruante. The kyng answered Absalom: naye my sonne. We will not go all, ner be chargen vnto the. And Absalom laye foze vpon hym: howbeit he wolde not go, but blessed hym. Then sayd Absalom: Psthou wilt not come, then let my brother Amnon go w vs. And the kyng answered hym: what nether it, that he go wth the? But Absalom made soche instace that he let Amnon, & all þe kynges chyldren go with hym.

¶ Nowe had Absalom comaunded his younge men, kynges: marke when Ammons heart is merry wth wyne, & when I byd you slepe Amnon, then kill hym: and feare not, haue not I bydden you: be bolde therfore, & slaye the men. And the younge men of Absalom dyd vnto Amnon euen as Absalom had comaunded. And all the kynges sonnes arose, & euey man gat hym vp, vpon his gyle, & fled. And it fortuned, that whyle they were yet in the waie, the kynges cam to wauld sayng: Absalom hath slayne all the kynges sonnes, & there is none left alpye. Then wauld arose, & take his garmetes, and laye along on the erth: & all his seruantes stode by with theyr clothes rent. And Jonadab the sonne of Shimeah wauld by brother, answered, and sayde: let not my Lozde suppoze þe they haue slayne all the younge men the kynges sonnes, saue Amnon only is deed. For that hath bene determined in Absaloms mynde, lette he forced his sister ¶ Ammar. Howe therfore, let not my Lozde the kyng take the thyng so greuouly, to thinke that all þe kynges sonnes are deed, saue Amnon only is deed.

¶ But Absalom fled. And the younge man that kept the watche, spfye vpon his eyes, and looked: And beholde, ther cam moche people by a waie, & along by the hynde passe on an hylles syde. And Jonadab sayde vnto the kyng: beholde, the kynges sonnes come: & þe thy seruante sayde, so it is. And as tene as he had leste speakyng: beholde, the kynges sonnes came, and spfye vpon theyr thynges, and wepte. The kyng also and all his seruantes wepte exceedingly. But Absalom escaped, and went to ¶ Achis the sonne of Gether kyng of Gether. And David mourned for his sonne euey daie. And so Absalom escaped and went to Gether, and was there thre yeares. And hyngc wouid desyred to go forth vnto Absalom: for wher as Ammon was deed, he was comforted ouer hym.

¶ The xliij. Chapter.

¶ For the wythome of the woman of Tekoa Absalom is called agayne.

Let the soune of zarua perceaue, that the kynges dect was towarde Absalo, & he sent to Tehkoa, and fete thence a wyle woman, and sayde vnto her: sayne thy selfe to be a mourner, and put on mournyng apparel. And anoynt not thy self with oyle. but be as a woman that had longe tyme mourned for some deed bodye. And come to the kyngc, and speake of this maner vnto hym. And so Joab taught her what she shuld saye.

And when the woman of Tekoa had fallen on her face to the grounde, and done obsequence, she sayde vnto the kyngc: helpe me O kyngc. The kyngc sayde vnto her: what apleth the? she answered: I ama wedowe, and myne husbande is deed. And thy handmayde had two sonnes, and they two fought together in the feilde, where was no man to go betwene them) but the one smote the othere and slewe hym. And behold, the whole kyndred is spen agaynst thy handmayde, and they sayde: * delyuer vs him that smote hys brother: that we maye kyll hym.

¶ Deu. 19. c. ¶ for I soule of his brother whome he slewe. We will destroye the beye also. And so they shal quenech my spakle whych is left, that he shall receyve to myn badde) neither name ne: ruse vnto I fete. And the kyngc sayde vnto the woman: go home to thyne house, I will geue a charge for the. And the woman of Tekoa sayde vnto the kyngc: O my Lorde O kyngc, thys trespase be on me and on my fathers house, and the kyngc and hys seate be gylelesse. And the kyngc sayde: yf any man saye ought vnto the, byng hym to me, and he shall paye the no moare. Then sayde she: & lett the kyngc remember hys Lorde

God, that the anuyers of the bloude geather not on heapes together to destroye, and that they shalpe not my sonne. And he answered: as hys is the Lorde kneth: there shall not one beere of thy sonne fall to the erthe.

¶ 1. re. 19. c. ¶ The woman sayde: let thyne handmayde speake one worde moare vnto my Lorde & kyngc. And he sayde: saye on. The woman sayde: wherefore the halt & determined such a thyng agaynst p people of God: for & kyngc both speake this thyng as one which is fayne, that he shulde not fete home agayne hys banell. For we must nedes dye, & verpys as water spylt on the grounde, which cannot be gathered vp agayne: & neither both God spare any soule. Let the kyngc therefore spende & meane, & hys banellsh be not vterly expelled fro hym. Howe therefore am I comt, to speake of this thing vnto the kyngc my Lorde: for they & be of the people, haue feared me. And thy handmayde sayde: Howe wyll I speake vnto & kyngc, paraunture the kyngc will perforce p force of his handmayde. And the kyngc shall heare his handmayde, to delyuer her out of the hande of the man that wolde haue destroyed me and also my sonne out of p inheritance of God. And thyne handmayde sayde: the worde of my Lorde the kyngc shall now be comfortable: for my Lorde the kyngc is as an Angel of God, in hearyng of good and badde: therefore the Lorde thy God be with the.

¶ Then the kyngc answered, & sayde vnto p woman: hys dect not from me (I praye the) the thyng that I shall aske the: And the woman sayde: let my Lorde the kyngc now saye on. And the kyngc sayde: Is not the habde of Joab with the in all this matter? The woman answered, and sayde: * as sure as thy soule lyueth my Lorde kyngc, there is elsio man on the erpght hande nor on the lefte) but as my Lorde the kyngc hath spoken, thy seruunt Joab he bad me, and he put all these wordes in the mouth of thyne handmayde. For to the intent that I shulde alter my communicacyn, hath thy seruunt Joab done this thyng. And my Lorde is wise, eue as an Angell of God, to vnderstand all thynges that are in the erthe. And the kyngc sayde vnto Joab beholde, I am comt to do this thyng. So, and fete home the chylde Absalo agayne. And Joab fell to the grounde on his face, and bowed hym selfe, & blessed the kyngc. And Joab sayde: now the seruunt knoweth, that I haue founde grace in thy syght (my Lorde O kyngc) in that the kyngc hath fulfilled the request of hys seruunt. And so Joab arose, and wet to Usur, and brought Absalom to Jerusalem. And the kyngc sayde: let him turne to hys awne house, and not se my face. And so Absalom returned to hys awne house, and in we not the kynges face.

¶ But in all Israel there was not to goodwill: as ma as Absalo, for he was verye be wilfull: so moche & fro I sole of his fete to p toppe of his heed, there was no blame in the kyngc. And wher he shawed hys deed: for in euery peares end he shawed it, because & dect was dect on hym.

hym and must nedes chaunge) the heere of his heed wayed two hundred cyces after the kynges weyght. And this Absalom had three sonnes borne him and one daughter, named Thamar, whiche was a fayre womā to loke vpon. So Absalom dwelt two yere in Ierusalem, & saue not the kynges face. Therefore Absalom sent for Joab, to haue sent hym to the kyng. But he wolde not come to him. And whan he sent agayne, he wolde not come. Therefore he sayde vnto his seruantes: beholde, Joab hath a parcell of lande fast by my place, and he hath barke therein. Go, and sett on fire. And Absaloms seruantes sett it on fyre. ¶ And Joabs seruantes came with theyr garments rent, and sayde: Absaloms seruantes haue burnt the pce of lande wth fyre.

¶ Then Jon barok & came to Absalom vnto his house, & sayde vnto him: wherfore haue thy seruantes burnt my side wth fyre. And Absalom answered Jon: beholde, I sent for the, bespyng the to come, because I wolde haue sent the to the kyng, for to saye: wherfore am I come from Geth. It had bene better for me, to haue bene there still. Nowe therefore, wolde I se the kynges face. And yf there be any trespase in me, kyl thou me. And so Joab came to the kyng, & tolde him: whych whan he had sent for Absalom, he came to the kyng, and sell to the grounde on his face before hym. And the kynge kylled Absalom.

¶ Absalom maketh a suretye agaynst his fa-

¶ After this it fortuned, that Absalom gatt by him charities and bowles, and byke men to runne before him. And he roole by celye in the moynings, and stode in the place of the entreing in of the gate. And euery man that had anye matter and came to the kyng for iudgement, him dyd Absalom call vnto hym, and sayde: of what cytic art thou? he answered: thy seruant is of one of the trybes of Israel. And Absalom sayde vnto hym: if, thy matter is good and ryghteous, but there is no man deputed of the kyng to heare the. And Absalomde moouer: wh, that I were made iudge in the lande, that euery man which hath anye pleye and matter in the lawe, myght come to me, and that I myght do him iustice: And whā any man came nye to hym, and dyd him obeytaunce, he put forth his hande and toke hym to hym, and hysed hym. And on this maner dyd Absalom to all Israel that came to the kyng for iudgement, and he stole the hertes of the men of Israel. And after fouretye yeres it fortuned that Absalom sayde vnto the kyng: let me go now, to Hebron, and paye my vowe which I haue vowed, vnto the Lorde: for thy seruist bowed a vowe: (when I was in Geth in the lāde of Shera) saye: yf the Lord shall bring me agayne to Ierusalem, I will serue y Lorde. And the kyng sayde vnto hym: go in peace. And so he arose, and went to Hebron.

¶ But Absalom sent spyes that were out all y tribes of Israel saye: as some are ye heare the voyce of the troper blowe, ye shall saye: Absalom raignteth kyng in Hebron. And wth Absalom went two hundred men out of Ierusalem, that were called. And they went to purchertes, not knowinge of any thynge. And Absalom sent also for Ahithophel the Gilonite Dauids counsellor, that he shoulde come out of his cytic Gilo, whyle be offered sacrifices. And there was wroughte stronge treason, for the people went and increased w Absalom in multitude. And there cam a messenger to Dauid & sayde: the hertes of the men of Israel are turned agayn to Absalom. And Dauid sayde vnto all his seruantes y were w him at Ierusalem: y, y we maye be gone, for we shall not else chape from Absalom. Make spede, to departe: lest he come to see, and catche vs, & bringe some myschefe vpon vs, and synke the cytic wth the edge of the sword. And y kynges seruantes sayde vnto him: beholde, thy seruantes are ready, to do whatsoeuer my Lord y kyng shall apoynte.

¶ And the kynges all his household departed a fote. And he left behinde hym: ten concubines, to kepe the house. And so y kyng & all the people went out a fote, & rayed in a place that was farr of. And all his seruantes wet about him. And all the Gethites & all the Shcherites and all y Gethites & all myghtie men of wares) euen by hundred men whych were come a fote from Geth) went before the kyng. ¶ Then sayde y kyng to: ¶ That the Gethite, wherfore comest thou wth vs? Returne and abide wth the kyng, for thou art a stranger, and art remoued fro thyne awne place. ¶ Thou canest but pester daye, and shouldest y conquer the to dape to go w vs: I will go whether I can. ¶ Therefore returne thou, & carpe agayne thy byerha. ¶ Thereye and truebe: ¶ And the kyng vnto the. ¶ And Jehai answered the kyng and sayd: as truebe as God lyueth & as my Lord the kyng lyueth, in what place my Lord the kyng shalbe, whether in Bethleem, or in Hebron, there also will thy seruist be. And Dauid y kyng sayde to Jehai: come then, and go forwarde. And Jehai the Gethite went forth, & all his men, & all the chyldren that were w hym. And all the countrey wepte wth a loude voyce, & so dyd all the people that wet forth. The kyng also hym selfe passed ouer the broke Hydron. wyth him, and bare the arche of the apoyntment of God. And there they set downe the Arche of God. And Abiathar went by, until the people were all come out, out of the ctyte. And þe kynge sayde vnto Sadock. Carpe the Arche of God agayne into the ctyte. If I shall fynde fauour in the eyes of þe Lorde, he will bringe me agayne, and he wille me boyste. & the tabernacle therof. But and yf the Lorde thus saye: I haue no lust vnto the, beholde, here am I. let him do wyth me, what seemeth good in his eyes.

¶ The kynge sayde also vnto Sadock the pyncesse: Let not þa * Schar / Returne into the cite in peace. And take poue two sonnes wyth you: Abimaaz the sonne, and Jonathan the sonne of Abiathar. Beholde, I will tarpe in the feldes of the wyldernesse, until there come some wordes from you to be tolde me. Sadock therfore and Abiathar carped the Arche of God agayne to Jerusalem, and they tarped thence. And Dauid went by on mount Olyuet, and wepte as he went, and had his heed couered, & went barefote. And all the people that was wyth hym, had euery man hys heed couered, and as they went by, they wepte also. And one tolde Dauid sayenge: Achiphophel is one of them that haue conspired wyth Abalom. And Dauid sayde. O Lorde, turne the counsell of Achiphophel into folythens.

¶ When Dauid was come to the toppes of the mount, he worshipped God: and beholde, hysai þe Trachite came agaynlt hym wyth hys scoote toge, and haupinge ceth vpo his heed. Vnto whome Dauid sayde: þe thou go wyth me, thou shalt be a burthen vnto me. But yf thou returne to the ctyte, & sape vnto Abalom: I wyll be thy seruauit. Whynge: (as I haue thus longe bene thy fathers seruauit, so am I now thy seruauit) thou mayst for my sake bestrope the counsell of * Achiphophel. And thou hast there wyth þe Sadock and Abiathar the pyncesses, vnto whom thou shalt shewe all that thou canst heare out of the kynghes house. And beholde, they haue there wyth the: two sonnes: Abimaaz Sadockes sonne, and Jonathan Abiathars sonne: by them also shall ye sende me all that ye can heare. And so * hysai Dauid sende gat hym to the ctyte. And Abalom also entered into Jerusalem.

¶ The xviij. Chapter.

¶ ziba hys myghty pyncesse to Dauid dothe fastre accute: Achiphophel. Semei curst Dauid, & howeith he is at hys. Abalom vnto the counsell of Achiphophel sayeth wyth his fathers conuincence.

¶ And when Dauid was a lytle past the toppes of the hyl: beholde ziba the seruauit of Achiphophel came to meete hym with a couple of Asses laden, and vpon them two hundred loaves and one hundred bouches of Refsynges, and an hundred fagles of dyed spyges, and a bottell of wyne. And the kynge sayd vnto ziba: what meanest thou wyth these? And ziba sayde. They be Asses for the kynghes household to ryde on, and becad and frute for the younge men to eate, and wyne: that such as be sapie in the wyldernesse, maye drynke. And the kynge sayde: where is thy masters sonne? ziba answered vnto þe kynge: beholde, he tarpyth still at Jerusalem. For he sayde: this daye shall the house of Israel restore me the kyngdome of my father. Then sayde the kynge to ziba, beholde, thyne are all that per-tayned vnto * Achiphophel. And ziba sayde: I do homage to the. I beseeche the that I maye fynde grace in thy syght, my Lorde, & kynge.

¶ And when kynge Dauid came to Babu-rim: beholde, thence cam out a man of the kynred of the house of Schar, named * Schar: mei the sonne of Sera, and he cam out cursyng. And he cast stones at Dauid, and at all the seruantes of kynge Dauid. And all y people also and all the men of warre were on hys ryght hande, and on hys lefte. And thus sayde * Semei whan he curst: come forth, come forth thou bloudestheeder, and thou man of Iselyall. The Lorde hath brought vpon the all þe bloude of þe house of Schar, in whose hande thou hast raygned, and the Lorde hath deliuered the kyngdome into the hande of Abalom thy sonne. And beholde þe art come to thy mischiffe, because þe art a bloudestheeder.

¶ Then sayde Abiathar the sonne of sarua vnto the kynge: why doth this deede dogg curse my Lorde the kynge: let me go now, and take of the heed of hym. And the kynge sayde: what haue I to do wyth you þe sonne of sarua: let hym curse: for the Lorde hath bydden hym curse Dauid. Who dare then sape: wherefore hast thou done for? And Dauid sayde to Abiathar, and to all his seruantes, beholde, my sonne wherþ cam of myne awne bodye, (seeth my lyfe. how moche more then maye this sonne of Schar do to) suffer him to curse: for the Lorde hath bydden him: haipre the Lorde wyll loke on my wepyng eyes & wretchednesse, & do me good for hys cursyng this daye. And as Dauid and his men went by the waye, Semei went alonge on the hylls syde ouer agaynlt hym, & curst as he went, and thence stones at him, and cast dust. And the kynge and all y were wyth him cam weyre, and refreshed the selfe: & there.

¶ And Abalom and all the people of the men of Israel came to Jerusalem, and Achiphophel was wyth him. And as sone as hysai the Trachite was come vnto Abalom, he sayde vnto hym: God saue the kynge, God saue þe kynge. And Abalom sayde agayne to hysai: is this þe kyndnesse thou owest to thy frende?

frende: why wentest thou not with hym: thou hast answered unto Absalom: naye not so, but whom the Lorde and this people and all the men of Israel chose, hys will I be, and with hym will I dwell. Whereouer, vnto whome shall I do seruaice, but euen to hys sonne: And as I was seruauit before w thy father, euen so shall I be with the. Then spake Absalom to Abithophel: geue counsell, what is best for vs to do. And Abithophel sayde vnto Absalom: get the in vnto thy fathers concubines, which he hath lefte to kepe the house. And all Israel shall heare, that thou art cast out of thy father: then shall the handes of all that are with the, be stronge. And so they pitched Absalom a tent vpon the toppes of the house. And he went in vnto hys fathers concubines in the syght of all Israel.

And the counsell of Abithophel which he counceiled in those dayes, was as a man had asked counsell of God: euen so was all the counsell of Abithophel, both with Dauid and with Absalom.

The xviij. Chapter.

Abithophel, kynges hys counsell of Absalom and of Israhel, hangeth hym: &c.

Abithophel * sayde vnto Absalom: let me chose out nowe twelue thousande men. And I will by, & folowe after Dauid thy father. And I will come vpon hym, whyle he is weepe and weake handed, and will feare hym: And all the people that are with hym, shall see. And so will I surprise the hyngs onelye, and will bying agayne all the people vnto the, as euen as easily as yf I wolde bying anye other thing. And when I haue slayne the man whom thou sekest, all the people shall haue rest. And y saying pleased Absalom well, and all the elders of Israel. Then spake Absalom: call also Husai the Archite, and let vs heare his counsell. Wher Husai was come to Absalom, Absalom spake vnto hym, sayinge: Abithophel hath geuen soche counsell: Shall we do after his sayinge, or no: tell thou.

Dauid answered vnto Absalom: the counsell that Abithophel hath geuen, is not good at this tyme: For (sayd Husai) I knowest thy father, & his men, howe that they be stronge. And they be charied in their myndes, and are euen as a * Beare robbed of her whelpes in the folde. Thy father is a man also practised in warre, & maketh no tarienge with y people. Wherefore be heareth now in some caue, or in some other stronge place. And though some of his men be overthrowen at the first byunt, yet they that beare it will laye: The people that foloweth Absalom, be put to the worse. And the best men thou hast whose bettes are as the bettes of Lyons, shall crynke the rent. For all Israel knoweth, that thy father is a myghty man, and they wyche be with him are all men of warre.

Wherefore my counsell is, that all Israel be gathered vnto the, from Dan to Beerseba, which are as y sande of the see in nombre: and that thou go to batayle in thyne awne person. For so shall we come vpon him in one place or other, where we shall fynde hym, & we will fall vpon him, euen as thicke as the dewe falleth on the grounde. And of all y men that are with hym, we shall not leaue hym one. Whereouer, yf he be gotten into a towne, then shall all the men of Israel bying ropes to that cite, and we will drawe it into the ryuer, vntyll there be not one stone founde there. And Absalom and all the men of Israel sayde: the counsell of Husai the Archite is better, then the counsell of Abithophel. * For it was euen the Lorders determination to destroye the good counsell of Abithophel: that the Lorde myght bying euill vpon Absalom. Then sayde * Husai vnto Sadock and Abiathar the Priests: of this and that maner byd Abithophel and the elders of Israel counsell Absalom. And thus and thus haue I counceiled. Nowe therefore send quickely, and thewe Dauid saying: tarpe not all nyght in the felde of the wylderneesse, but gette the ouer, lest the hyngs be deuoured and all the people that are with hym. Nowe Jonathan and Ahimaz abode by y well: Rogell: for they myght not be sene to come into the cite. And a wefe went and tolde them. And they went, & thewed kyng Dauid.

Where theleste a lad sawe them, and tolde it to Absalom. But they went both of them awaye quyetlye, and cam to a maies house in Bahurim, which had a well in his yarde, into the whych they went downe. And a woman toke and fyerde a couerlet ouer the wells mouth, and strawed spymerie come thereon. And the thynge was not syped. And when Absaloms seruantes came to the wyfe to y house, they sayde: Where is Ahimaz & Jonathan: The woman answered the: they be gone ouer the lytel broke of water. And when they had sought them and coude not fynde them, they returned to Ierusalem. And as sone as they were departed, y other came out of the well, and went and tolde hyng Dauid, and sayde vnto hym: vp, and get you quyetly ouer the water for soche counsell hath Abithophel geuen, agaynst you. Then Dauid arose, & all y people that were with hym, and they were come ouer Jordan be. * And it was daye: so y there lacked not one of the, y was not come ouer Jordan. And when Abithophel sawe, y his counsell was not followed, he balled his Asse, & arose, & gate hym home to hys awne house, and so byd awoke cytle, and put hys houſholde in order, and hanged him ſelfe, and dyed, and was buryed in the ſepulchre of hys father.

Then Dauid came to Bethleſem. And Abſalom paſſed ouer Iordain, he and all the men of Iſrael with him. And Abſalom made Amasa captayne of ſhoote in ſtede of Ioab, wherby Amasa was a mannes ſonne named Jerſhan an Iſrahelite, that went into Abigail the daughter of Nahas ſyſter to ſernia Ioabs brother. So Iſrael and Abſalom pitched in the lande of Gilead. And when Dauid was come to Bethleſem, ſoobi the ſonne of Nahas out of Rabba the cite of the children of Ammon, & Achitoe the ſonne of Amiel out of Lodeber, and Berzelai the Gileadite out of Roglim, brought beddes, baſens, earthen veſſels, wheat & barley, flour, and parched corne, beanes, rice, oſtmell, honey, butter, cheſe and cheſe of kyene, for Dauid and all the people that were with him, to cate. ſo for they ſayd: The people is hongre, we crye, and they ſtepe in the wyldeſſe.

¶ Abſalom is ouercome in battell. He hanged by the beere in an Oke. This ſpelle a put in a dreche. Dauid is ſo ſorryfull for the death of Abſalom that he weepeth.

And Dauid ſent forth y^e thirde parte of the people vnder the bande of Ioab, and another parte vnder the bande of Abiſai the ſonne of ſernia Ioabs brother, and the other thirde parte vnder the bande of Iſhai the Geſhite. And the kynge ſayde vnto the people: I will go with you alſo. And the people answered: Thou ſhalt not go forth: for yf we ſle, oure aduerſaries will not care for vs: neither ſhall they regard vs, though halfe vs were ſlayne: but part worth ten thouſande of vs. Wherefore it is better, y^e thou ſuccoure vs out of the cytle. And ſo the people wet out into the feide agaynſt Iſrael, and the battell was in the wooode of Ephraim: Where the people of Iſrael were put to the worſte. before the ſeruantes of Dauid, & there was a great ſlaughter that daye, euen of twentye thouſande men: For y^e feide was fought there in byerſe places, all aboarde vpon the erthe. And as his heere was caught of the Oke, and he was liſte by betwene heuen & erthe: & y^e ſoule that was vnder hym, wet his waye. Yf thou dydeſt ſe hym, why dydeſt thou not thou there ſmyte him to the ground, & I wold haue geuen the ten ſickles of ſilver, & a girdle.

The man ſayde vnto Ioab: though thou woldeſt laye a thouſande ſickles of ſilver in my hande, yet wolde I not ſtretch out myne hande agaynſt the kynges ſonne. For we hearde with oure eares what the kynge charged the, and Abiſai and Iſhai, ſaying: Beware, y^e none touch the yonge man Abſalom. Wherefore, yf I had done it, I ſhulde haue done agaynſt myne owne liſt: for there is no matter hyd from the kynge: y^e and thou thy ſelfe woldeſt haue bene agaynſt me. Then ſayde Ioab: I may not ſtande thus ſarpyng with the.

And he toke the ſwerde in his hande, & thruſt them thorow Abſalom, while he was yet a lyue on the bodye of the tree. And ten ſeruantes that bare Ioabs weapons, turned, and ſmote Abſalom and ſlew him. And when Ioab blew the trompet, the people returned from followinge Iſrael: for Ioab ſpared the people. And they toke Abſalom, and caſt hym into a great pytt in the wood, & layd a myghtie great ſhepe of ſtoncs vpon hym. And all Iſrael fled to their tentes. And thus Abſalom y^e in hys lyfe tyme & toke counſell & reared vpon a pylle, wherby he is in kynges dole. For he ſayd: I haue no ſonne. And therefore to kepe my name in remembrance do I it. And he called the pylle after hys awne name. And it is called vnto this daye Abſaloms pylle.

Then ſayde Abimaaz the ſonne of Nodoch: let me runne now, and heare the kyng rydyinge, how y^e the Roide hath iudged hym quyte of the hande of hys enemies. And Ioab ſayd vnto hym: ſpare no man to heare good rydyinges to daye: y^e ſhalt heare rydyinges another tyme: but to daye y^e ſhalt beare none, becauſe the kynges ſonne is dead. The ſayde Ioab to Ehuſi: go and tell the kynge, what thou haſt ſene: And Ehuſi bowed him ſelfe vnto Ioab, and ranne. Then ſayd Abimaaz the ſonne of Nodoch agayne to Ioab: come what come will, let me alſo rane after Ehuſi. And Ioab ſayd: Wherefore wilt thou runne my ſonne: ſeing that for the rydyinges thou ſhalt haue no rewarde: well, ſayde he come what will, let me runne. He ſayd vnto him: runne. The Abimaaz rane by y^e plaine waie, and came befoze Ehuſi.

And

And Dauid sat betwene the two gates. And the watchman went vp to the rouffe ouer the gate vnto the walle, a lyte vp hys eyes, and sawe: a beholde, there cam a man runnyng alone. And y watchman cryed, a tolde y hyng. And the hynge sayde: yf he be alone, there is good tydinges in his mouth. And he came, a dyd we nye. And y watchman sawe another man runnyng, and he called vnto the poster and sayde: beholde, there cometh another man runnyng alone. And the hynge sayde: he is also a tydinges byng. And the watchman sayde: me thynketh the runnyng of the foremost is lyke y runnyng of Ahimany the sonne of Adock. The hynge sayde: he is a good man, and cometh with good tydinges. And Ahimany called, a sayde vnto the hyng: good tydinges, and he fell downe flat to the erth vpon his face before the hyng, and sayde: blessed be the Lorde thy God, which hath shutt vp the men that lyft vp their handes agaynst my Lorde the Kyng. And the hyng sayde: is the younge mā Abisalom safe? Ahimany answered: Why Ionb sent: Chusi the kynges seruauit, and me thy seruauit, I sawe much a doo. But I whote not what it was. And y hyng sayde vnto him: turne, and stande here. And he turned, and stode still.

And beholde, Chusi came also, and sayde: Good tydinges my Lorde the kyng, for y Lorde hath quyeted the thys daye out of the hande of all them y rose agaynst the. And the hyng sayde vnto Chusi: Is the younge mā Abisalom safe? Chusi answered: The enemyes of my Lorde the kyng, and all that yst agaynst y, to do the hurt, be as that younge man is. And the hyng was moued, and went vp to a chambe ouer the gate, and wept. And as he went, thus he sayde: O my sonne Abisalom, my sonne, my sonne Abisalom, wolde God I had dyed for the: O Abisalom my sonne, my sonne.

¶ The xix. Chapter.

¶ Dauid is brought to his kingdome, and brought agayne to Hierusalem.

And it was tolde Ionb: beholde, y hyng wepeth and mourneth for Abisalom. And the victorie of that daye was turned into mournyng vnto all y people. For the people hearde saye that daye, howe the kynge sorowed for hys sonne. And the people shak a waye that daye from goyng into the cite, as people consoled stee a waye, when they are in battel. But the kynge had his face, and cryed with a loude voyce. O my sonne Abisalom, O Abisalom my sonne, my sonne.

And Ionb came into the houle to y hyng, and sayde: thou hast chaunced this daye the fa-ces of all thy seruantes, which this daye haue sined thy lyfe, and the lyues of thy sonnes and of thy daughters, a the lyues of thy wi-ues, and of thy concubynes, in that thou lo-uest thine enemyes, and hatest thy frendes. For thou hast declared thys daye, that thou regardest neither thy Lorde nor seruantes. And this daye I do perceane, that yf Abisalom had lyued, a all we had dyed this daye, that had pleased y well. Howe therefore y, and come out, and speake kyndely vnto thy seruantes: for I sweere by the Lorde, ex-cept thou come out, there will not tarye one man with the thys nyght. And that wilbe worse vnto the, then all the euell that fell on the from thy youth vnto thys houre. Then the kyng arose, and satt downe in the Gate. And they tolde vnto all the people, sayng: Beholde, the kyng doth lytt in y Gate. And all the people came before the king. But Is-rael fled, euery man to his tent.

And it fortuned y all the people were at strepte thow we out all the tribes of Israhel, sayng: the kyng saied vs out of the hāde of oure enemyes, he deliuered vs out of y hāde of y Philistines, and now he is fled out of the laude for Abisalom. But Abisalom whō we anoynted ouer vs, is ded in battell. There-fore, why are ye so still, that ye byng not y kyng agayne? And hyng Dauid sent to Sa- dock and Abiathar y priests, sayng: speake vnto the elders of Iuda a saye: why are ye behynde, to byng y kyng agayne to his houle. seynge that such tydinges is come fro all Israhel vnto the kyng euen to hys house:

¶ For the hyng had sayde: Thus shall ye saye vnto the people of Iuda. ¶ Ye are my brethren, my bones a my fleche: wherfore then are ye the last that byng the kyng home agayne. And saye ye to Amasa: art thou not of my bone a of my fleche? God do so and so to me, yf thou be not captayne of y host to me for euer in y roume of Ionb. And he bowed the brekes of all the men of Iuda, euen, as the hert of one man: so y they sent this worde to the kyng: Returne thou with all thy seruantes. So the hyng returned, a came to Iordā. And Iuda came to Gilgal, for to go downe to meete y hyng, a to conuey him ouer Iordā. And Sumi a y sonne of Gera, the sonne of Kemū, which was of Asburim, halted, and came with the men of Iuda to meete king Dauid, and there were a thousande men of Beniamin w him, a a ziba the seruauit of the houle of Saul and his. v. sonnes and twentye seruantes with him. And they went quickly ouer Ior- dan before the kyng. And they went ouer a boate that carped ouer y hynges householde and they dyd him pleasure.

Lozde the kyng departed out of Ierusalem) that the kyng shulde saue it to herre. For thy seruauit both knowe, howe I haue done amysse. And therefore beholde, I am the first this daye: of all the house of Ioseph, that am come to go downe, to mete my Lozde the kyng. But Ibsai sonne of Ierua answered, and sayde: shall not Semci dye for this, because he cursed the Loyds anoyner? And Dauid sayde: what matter is betwene you and me ye sonnes of Ierua? For this daye ye be aduerfaryes vnto me. Shall there any mā dye this daye i Israel: Do not I knowe, that I am this daye kyng ouer Israel: And therefore the kyng sayde vnto Semci: thou shalt not dye, & the kyng sware vnto him.

And Miphiboseeth the sonne of Saul came also to mete the kyng, & had nether washed his feet, ner shauen his beerde, ner washed his clothes from the tyme the kyng departed, but yll he came agayne in peace. And it fortuned that when he was come to Ierusalem, and met the kyng, the kyng sayde vnto him: wherfore wentest not thou wyth me Miphiboseeth? he answered: my Lozde, O kyng, my seruauit deceaued me. For thy seruauit sayde I wolde haue mine Aile sated to ryde thereon, for to go to the kyng, because thy seruauit is lame. And ziba hath falselye reported of thy seruauit vnto my Lozde the kyng. And my Lozde the kyng is as an angel of God: do therefore what semeth good in thine eyes. For all my fathers house were but dead in befor my Lozde the kyng: and yet dydest thou put thy seruauit amonge the ydow eate at thine a wue table. What ryght therefore haue I yet, to crye any more vnto y kyng. And the kyng sayde vnto him: why speakest thou yet in thine a wue cause? (He is determined, that) I haue sayde: thou and ziba deuide the landes betwene you. And Miphiboseeth sayde vnto y kyng: yee lett him take all: for to much as my Lozde the kyng is come agayne in peace vnto his a wue house.

And Berselai the Gileadite came downe from Roglim, and went ouer Jordan wyth the kyng, to conuaye him ouer Jordā: Berselai was a verry aged man, euen foure score yere olde, & prouyded y kyng of sustenance, whyle he laye at Mahanaim: for he was a man of verpe great substaunce. And y kyng sayde vnto Berselai: come thou wyth me, & I will fede the wyth me in Ierusalem. And Berselai sayde vnto the kyng: I am thus olde, and howe am I able to go vp wyth the kyng vnto Ierusalem? I am this daye foure score yere olde: and can I decerne betwene good and euill: hath thy seruauit any talt in that he catcheth or drinketh? Can he heare any more the voyce of spyngeing men & women: Wherfore then shulde thy seruauit be yet a burthen vnto my Lozde the kyng?

Thy seruauit will go a litle waye ouer Jordan wyth the kyng: and why wilt y kyng recompence it me wyth such a rewarde? Let thy seruauit turne backe agayne, that I maye dye in myne a wue cyte, and be buried in y graue of my father and of my mother. Beholde, here is thy seruauit: Chimeam: lett him go wyth my Lozde the kyng, and do to him, what shall please the:

And the kyng answered: Chimeam shall go wyth me. And I will do to him that thou shalt be content wyth. And whetfouere thou shalt requyre of me, that same will I do for the. And all the people went ouer Jordā: And whē the kyng was come ouer Jordā, he blessed Berselai, and blessed him, & he wet backe agayne vnto his a wue place. And then the kyng went to Gilgal, and Chimeam wet wyth him, & so dyd all the people of Iudā, and brought ouer the kyng, and there were but halfe the men of Israel.

And beholde, all the men of Israel came to the kyng, and sayde vnto him, why haue our brethren y me of Iuda stolen the awaye and haue brought the lyng & his household, and all handes men wyth him ouer Jordan? And all the men of Iuda answered the men of Israel: the kyng is nere of kypme to vs: wherfore be ye angrye for y matter? thynke ye that we care of y kynges colt, or that we take vs any gyftes? And the men of Israel answered y men of Iuda and sayde: we haue ten paces in the kyng, & haue thereto more ryght to Dauid then ye. Wlhy then dyd ye despyse vs, y our aduise shulde not be tpsell had in reschaunge oure kyng agayne? And y wordes of the me of Iuda were fiercer, then the wordes of the men of Israel.

Lorde answered: it is for Saul, and for house of bloude, because hee flue the * Sibaoimets. v. 17. 18. 19.
And the hynge called the Sibaoimets, * saye vnto them: Powethe Sibaoimets were, not of the * chyldren of Israel, but a remnant vnto the Ammonites, and the chyldren of Israel swaue vnto them. And Saul sought to slay them, for a yele that he had to the children of Israel and of Iuda. * Wherefor Da-uid sayde vnto the, what shall I do for you, and wherewith shall I make the attonement, that ye maye be bleste the enberstaunce of the Lorde: v. 20.

The Gibeonites answered him: we will haue no syluer nor gold, of Saul nor of his house: neither is it oure mynde, & thou wilt

W best kyll any man in Israel. he sayde: what saye ye then? I shall do for you? They answered the king: the man that consumed vs, & pynagred to hyunge vs to nought him will we destroye, that nought of him continue in any of the coastes of Israel. Let ten men of his sonnes be deliuered vnto vs, and we will hange them vp vnto the Lorde, in Gibeah of Saul, whom the Lorde dyd chose. And the kynge sayde: I will geue them you.

But the kynge had cōspayson on Michiboloth the sonne of Ionathas, the sonne of Saul, because of the Lorde; othe f was betweene them: euf betwene Dauid and Ionathas the sonne of Saul. But he toke the two sonnes of Kizpa the daughter of Nia (who the bare vnto Saul) euen Armoni and Michiboloth, & the fure sonnes of Michol (the daughter of Saul) whom the bare to Adiel the sonne of Barleai f Wholathite. And he deliuered them vnto the handes of the Gibonites, which hanged the in the hill before the Lorde. And they fell all seuen together, and were layne in the dapes of herust: euen in the fyfth dapes, and in the beginnyng of Barleis herust.

And Kizpa the daughter of Nia toke sackcloth and & hanged it vp for the vpon the Roche, euen from the beginninge of haruest vntill haruest droppedd vpon them out of heuen: and suffred neither the byrdes of the Ayre to fall on them by dape, nor beasts of the feilde by nyght. And it was tolde Dauid what Kizpa the daughter of Nia the concubine of Saul had done: and Dauid went, & toke the bones of Saul and of Ionathas his sonne, fro the men of Jabes in Gilead (which had stolen thym from the strete of Bethsan, where the Philistines had hanged them wth the Philistines had layne Saul in Gilboa.) And he brought thence the bones of Saul, and f bones of Ionathas his sonne, & they toke by the bones of them that were haged. And the bones of Saul and Ionathas hys sonne buried they in the contrey of Beniamin, in sela, in the sepulchre of Elis hys father. And when they had performed all that the kynge commaunded, God was then at one with the lande.

It fortuned, that the Philistines had yet warre agayne with Israel. And Dauid wte downe & his seruantes with hym, & fought agaynst the Philistines. And Dauid waxed faynte, and Islop of Aob one of the sonnes of the gyauntes (the yson of whose speare waped & thre hundred cycles, and he beynge wgyded with a newe werbe) thought to haue layne Dauid. But Abisai the sonne of Zaria succoured hym, and smote the Philistine, and killed him. Then the seruantes of Dauid wte vnto him, sayinge: Thou shalt go no moare out with vs to battell, that p quench not the lpyght of Israel. And yet after this, there was a battell with the Philistines at Aob, and then Sibbechai the husathite slew Shaph which was one of the sonnes of the gyauntes.

And there was yet another battell in Aob with the Philistines, where Elianah the sonne of Jaer & Agun, a Bethlemitte slue one Goliath a Gethier: the staffe of whose speare was as great as a weiners cloth beame.

And there was yet another battell i Geth where was a man of a great stature, & had on euery hand, vij. fyngers and on euery fote vij. toes. xxiij. in all. And was bozne also of the kyured of the gyauntes in Geth. And wth he defyed Israel, Ionathas the sonne of Simeon the brother of Dauid slew hym. These foure gyauntes were bozne in Geth, & fell into the hande of Dauid and into the handes of his seruantes.

¶ The xxij. Chapter.

¶ The Conge of Sauls for hys despayres from hys synnes.

AD Dauid spake the wordes of this songe vnto the Lorde, what tyme the Lorde had deliuered him out of the hande of all his enemyes, and out of the hande of Saul.

And he sayde the Lorde is my roche, and my castel, and my deliuerer. God is my strength, in hym will I trust: he is my thyld, and the hoine of my saluacion: my worship and my refuge: my saluour, thou shalt saue me from wronge.

* I will call on f Lorde which is my worship, and so shall I be saued from myne enemyes. For the corrupcyons of deeth closed me about: the floudes of Belial put me in skare. The sorowes of hell compassed me about: the snarres of deeth ouertoke me. In my tribulacion will I call vpon the Lorde, and crye to my God. And he shall heare my voyce out of his temple, and my crye shall enter into his eares. He crieth trembled and quaked: the foundacyons of benen moued and shoke, when he was angrie.

Smoke went vpin his wrath, and consuminge fyre out of hys mouth, coles were hended therof. And he bowed hene, and came downe, and there was darkefnes vnder his fete. And he satt vpon Cherub & dyd he was leue carped vpon the wynges of the wynde. He made darkefnes a tabernacle rounde about hym, with waters gathered to geather in thycke cloudes. He doawed the byghthelme of his pylence were the fyre coles hynbled.

God thundred from heuen, and he that is most hye, doth put out his voyce. He shotte arrowes, and shatred them: he hurled lpyghtenynge, tenynge, and ouerthrowe them. The flowinges of the see appeared, and the foundacyons of the worlde were sene, by the reason of the rebukinge of the Lorde, and thow we the blasfemye of the breeth of hys nofterles. he shall sende from heauen, and fetter me, he shall plucke me out of many waters.

he shall deliuer me from my myghtye aduersarie, and from myne enemyes, for they are to stodge for me. When they had quertaken me in the dape of my calamitye & Lorde slayed me vp. for he brought me out into rowmth: he deliuered me, because he had a loue vnto me.

1000. 9. 10.

* The Lord will rewarde me accordyng to my ryght wyshe: accordyng to the pure-nesse of my handes will he recompense me.
for I haue kept the wordes of the Lorde, & done no wickednesse agaynst my God. for all his lawes are in my myght, & his statutes will not I put away fro me. In his myght also haue I bene vnderpiled, & haue kepte me from myne awne iniquite.

And the Lorde dyd to me agayne, accor-dyng to my ryght desires, eue after my ynueness in his myght. With the godly thou shalt be godly, and with the man that is vncorrupt, thou shalt be vncorrupt. With the pure thou shalt be pure, & with the frowarde thou shalt be frowarde. And the poore people & are in aduersite, I shall helpe. And on & prouide that thou cast thine eyes. Thou art my light & Lorde shall lyght my darlemite.

for with thy helpe I will runne thow we an host of men, and in & my God will I sprynge ouer a walle. for God is vncorrupt in his waye: the worde of the Lorde is tryed in the fyre: he is the defender of all them that trust in him.

for who is a God, saue the Lorde: & who is myghty, saue our God: God strengther me with power, and & repdyth the waye in battell cleare before me. he maketh my fete lyke hartes feete, & setteth me fast vpon my hys holde.

1010. 10. 11.

* he reacheth my handes to myght, & eu
a bowe of stele is to weake for myne armes.
Thou hast geuen me the child of thy sal-uacyon, and with thy louinge mekenesse thou dost multiplye me. Thou shalt inake me space to walke in, and my legges shall not faile me. I will folowe vpon myne enemyes and destroie them, and turne not agayne vntill
I haue consumed them.

I will vndersthem and smyte them, that they shall not be able to aryse: yee, they shall fall vnder my fete.

Thou hast gyved me about with myght to battell, and them that rose agaynst me, dost thou subdued vnder me.

And thou madest myne enemyes (& them that hated me) to turne their backes to me, that I myght destroie them. They loke for helpe, but there is none to saue them: yee, euen vnto the Lorde do they crye, but he seareth them not.

I will venge them as small as the dust of the erth: I will stamp them as the dype of the strette, and will spreade them abroad.

Thou shalt helpe me from the dissen-cyon of my people: thou shalt kepe me from an herd ouer nacion: the people whych I knewe not, shall serue me.

Strange children dilemble with me: & the hearynge of the eare they obeye me.

Strange chyldre will chyncke awaye, and they shall be smytten with feare in their pryncy chamber. God is a lyue, and blessed be my maker: magnified be God, my most stronge saluacion. It is God that aduenceth me, and byngeth downe the people vnder
me. he deliuereth me from myne enemyes, & also shall lyfte me vpon hys from them that sleie agaynst me, thou shalt deliuer me from the wicked men.

And therfore I will praye & O Lorde amonge the nacion, and will syng vnto thy name. Wyth thy worth great saluacyon for his kynge, and dealeth mercifully with his anoynted: euen with David, and with his seide for euermore.

Of the xxiii. Chapter.

Of the last communicacion of Dauid, and the de-scripcion of the myghty men to hym belongyng.

These be the last saynges of Da-uid, Dauid the sonne of Isay sayde.
And the man which was made, the anoynted of the God of Iacob, and the noble psalmist of Irael sayde: & spake of the Lorde spake by me, & his worde was my tounge. The God of Irael spake of me, euen & most myghty of Irael, sayde: he shall beareth rule ouer me, ought to rule iustly in & feare of God. And as & my myghty lyght when the sonne is vp, a myghtyng in whych are no cloudes to lett the byghtnesse, and as the grasse of the erth is by the vertue of the rayne. & shall not my house be so w God
* for he hath made with me an euerylastyng coneuynant, perfecte and sure in all popntes:
this is truly all my healt: & all my desire & regret but not as grasse. But & vngodly man of Belial shall be as a thorne cleane pinche vp, which cannot be taken w bandes: But the man that shall touch them, must haue pion, or a longe helue. * & els must they be burnt with fyre in the same place.

These be the names of the myghty men whom Dauid had: & one & sat in & fear of wisdom, beuge cheft and ge the, pleasaunt was he and stronge: he was eue hundred at an tyme. After him was Eleazar the sonne of Nodbi the sonne of Abi, one of the thre worthies to Dauid, which despyed the Philistines that were there gathered together to battell: whā the men of Israel were gone vp. he arose & layed on the Philistines, & with hys hande was weyre, and claue vnto the sword. And the Lorde gaue grent victorie the same daye. And the people returned, and went after him to runne to the people. After him was Samma the sonne of Age the Baraitte: and the Philistines gathered together beyde a towne. (Where was a parcell of lande full of eyes) and the people fled from the Philistines. But he stood in the myddes of the grounde, and defended it, and slue the Philistines. And the Lorde gaue grent victorie.

1. Sam. xv. b.

* These thre (which were of the thirtie cheif captaynes) went downe to Dauid in yharuelt tyme vnto the caue Aullam, & the host of the Philistines abode in the vale of Gerinim. And Dauid was then in an holde. And the soundours of the Philistines were in Bethlehem. And Dauid longed and sayde. Why that I had of the water that is in the well by the gate of Bethlehem, for to drinke. And the thre myghtie beaſtes thow the host of the Philistines, & feet water out of the well of Bethlehem that was by the gate, and toke and brought it to Dauid. After theſe he wolde not drinke thereof, but offered it vnto the Lorde, and sayde: the Lorde forbyd that I shoulde do so. Is not this the bloude of the men that went in reard of the lyues: and therefore he wolde not drinke it. And these thinges vpon these thre myghtie men. * Abiah the brother of Joab, y sonne of Saruah, was cheif amonge the thre, and he spake vpon hys speere agaynst the hundred, & slue them, and had the name amonge the thre. For he was nobler man then the thre and was their captayne. Howbeit he attained not vnto the worthie.

2. Sam. xxi. b.

And Banaiahu the sonne of Jehonada (y sonne of a myghtie man) valiant in actes, of Iabzei. slue two stronge lyons, euen lyons of Joab. he went downe also, & slue a lion in a pyt in tyme of snowe. And he slue an Egyptian, a goodly byrge man, which had a speere in his hande. But he went downe to him with a staffe, and plucked the speere out of the Egyptians hande, and slue him with a wone speere. These thynges did Banaiahu the sone of Jehonada, & had the name amonge the thre worthies. he was honorable amonge thirtie, but he attained not to (first) thre. And Dauid made him of hys counsell. Abiah the brother of Joab also was one of the thirtie. When Eliaba the sonne of Hodo of Bethlehem: Samma the baraitte: Elia the Harobite: Helez the Gatite: Ira the sonne of Akes the Ghehoite: Abieser of Anathoth: & Jeonai the Iudathite: zelmon an Abobite:

Abaharai the Acrobatite: Helez the sonne of Banahab an Acrobatite: Itbai the sonne of Iabai out of an hill of the chylye of Benjamin: Banaiahu the Haraitte: Hebal, of the cyne of Sias: Abiahon the Ierabite: Amiaueha Barhumite: Eliahba a Gaalbonite: and the sonnes of Isai, Jonathas, Samma the Haraitte. Abiam the sonne of Sereat an Haraitte: Eliphelet the sonne of Aduai the sonne of a Gaacathite: Elam the sonne of Aithophel the Gilonite: Hezrai the Carmelite: Hoarai the Arbite: Igal the sonne of Nathan of zoba: Naui the Gathite: zelec an Amointe: Abaharai a Berothite, which was the harnesser of Joab y sonne of sarua. Ira the Ierabite: Gareb y Arthite: Elia the Hebrite, thirtie men in all.

C. The xxiii. Chapter.

¶ Dauid caused the people to be numbered, and therefore le Israel plagued with pestilence: so that in this chapter thre dyed. lxx. thousand.

Against the Lord was wrath agaynst Israel, and he moued Dauid agaynst the, in y he sayde: * go and nobie Israel and Iuda. For the kynge sayde to Joab the captayne of his host: go thou abroade now, & thow out all the trybes of Israel, euen from Dan to Zecr Seba, a nombre y the people, that I maye knowe the nomibre of them. And Joab sayde vnto the kynge: I beseech y Lorde thy God, to make y people as many moo as they be: y an hundred tymes so many moo, and that the eyes of my Lorde the kynge maye se them. And what is the cause y my Lorde the kynge hath a lust to this thinge? For wilt a bynge the kynges wode reapeled agaynst Joab and agaynst the captaynes of y hoste.

And Joab and the captaynes of the host went out from the presence of the kynge, to nombre the people of Israel. And they passed ouer Jordan, and pitched in Zecr on the ryght syde of the cyne that lyeth in the myddes of the vale of Gad, ouer agaynst Iazer. And then they came to Gilad, and to the nether lande, where was a newe habitecsh, & from thence they came to Dan Iaan about to sholon, & came to the stronge bolde of yre, and to all the cryes of the heuites and of the Cananites, & then went out to y south of Iuda, eue to Beersiba. And so, whē they had bene abroade thowowe out all the lande, they returned to Ierusal agayne, after the ende of nyne monethes and twente dayes. And Joab deliuered vpon the nobre and summe of the people vnto the kynge. And there were in Israel eyght hundred thousande men of myght y dre we swordes. And the men of Iuda were fye hundred thousande men.

And Dauid here smote hym, after that he had nobied the people. And Dauid sayde vnto the Lorde: I haue sinned exceedingly in that in that I haue done. And nowe Lorde take awaye the trespase of thy seruāt: for I haue done verie folpshely. And when Dauid was vp in a morninge, the worde of the Lord came vnto the prophet Gad Dauides sear, sayinge: go and saye vnto Dauid, thus sayeth the Lord: I offer the thre thynges, chole of which of them I will do vnto the.

So Gad came to Dauid, and shewed him, & sayde vnto him. Wilt thou haue I. I seuen yerres hunger to come in thy lande, or wilt thou haue iiij. yeres besyde thyne enemies, they folowinge the, or that there be thre dayes of silence in thy lande? Howe therfore answere the, & se, what answere I shall geue to him I sent me. And Dauid sayde vnto Gad: I am in extreme trouble. We will fall now into the hande of the Lord, for much is his mercye, and lett me not falle into the hande of man.

And so the Lord sent a pestilence in Israel. And the morninge vnto the tyme appoynted. And there dyed of the people from Dan to Beerleba seyntly thousande men. And when the Angell stretched out his hande vpon Ierusalem to destroye it, the Lord had compassion to do that euell, and sayde to the Angell that destroyed the people: it is nowe sufficient: holde thyne hande. And the Angell was by the thershyng place of Arefna the Iebulite. And Dauid spake vnto the Lord (when he sawe the angell that smote the people) and sayde: loo, it is I that haue sinned, and I have done wickedly. But these shepe, what haue they done? lett thyne hande (I praye the) be agaynst me and agaynst my fathers house.

And Gad came the same daye to Dauid, and sayde vnto him: go vp and reare an altare vnto the Lord in the thershyng howse of Arefna the Iebulite. And Dauid (accordinge to the sayinge of Gad) wote vp, as the Lord commaunded. And Arefna looked, and sawe the kyng and his seruantes cominge toward him. And Arefna wet out, and bowed him selfe before the kyng flat on his face vpon the grounde, and Arefna sayde: wherefore is my Lord the kyng come to his seruant? Dauid answered: to bye the thershyng howse of the, and to make an altare vnto the Lord, that the plage maye cease from the people.

And Arefna sayde vnto Dauid: let my Lord the kyng take and offer what semeth him good in his eyes: Scholde, here be oxen for burnt sacrifice, and deades and the other instrumentes of the oxen for wood. All these thynges byd Arefna geue vnto the kyng, & sayde moreover vnto the kyng: the Lord thy God accept the. And the kyng sayde vnto Arefna: not so, but I will bye it of thee at a payce, and will not offer sacrifice vnto the Lord my God of which doth cost me nothinge. And so Dauid bought the thershyng howse, & the oxen & for hytte speies of sacrifice. And Dauid burnt there an altare vnto the Lord, & offered burnt sacrifices and peace offerings. And so the Lord was intreated for the lade. And the plage ceased fro Israel.

The ende of the second boke of Samuel: other wyle called the seconde of the kynges.

The thirde boke of the kynges after the reboynge of the Larpistres: which thirde boke and the fourth also, is but one with the hebrues.

The first Chapter.

The younge virgin Abisag kept Dauid in his extreme age. Abisag occupieth the realm vnto the tyme to his father. Salomons is anointed kinge, and so Abisag getteth him awaye.

Dauid was olde & stricken in yeres: so that when they covered hym wth clothes, he caught no heat: wherefore his seruantes sayde vnto him: let there be sought for my Lord the kyng a younge mayden, to stonde before the kyng and to cherishe him. And let her lye in thy bosome, ym the kyng maye get hente. And so they sought for a yonge damosell thowout all the countres of Israel, & founde one Abisag a Shunamite, & brought her to the kyng. And the damosell was exceedingly fayre, & cherished the kyng, & ministered to him. But the kyng knewe her not.

And Abisag the sonne of Nether exalted him selfe, sayinge: I will be kyng. And he gatt him charrettes & horsmen, and hytte men to raine before him. And his father wolde not dysplease him at any tyme, nor sayd sonowch to him, why doest thou so? And he was a goodlye mā, & his mother bare him next after Abisalom. And he toke counsell at Ionathans sonne the sonne of Israhel, & at Abiathar p prest: And they helpe Adonia. But Shadoch the prest, Banaiah p sonne of Iehoiada, Athah the prophet, Semai and Iei, and all the B men of myght which were with Dauid, fauoured not Adonia. And Adonia sacrificed shepe and oxen, and fat cattell, by the stone of yobeleth, which is calld * by the well of R-gell, and called all his brethren the kynges sonnes, and the men of Iuda the kynges ser-uantes. But Athan the prophet and Baniah, and the other myghtie men, and Salomon his brother, he called not.

* 2 Sam. 17. 1

Wherefore, Athan spake vnto Bethsabe the mother of Salomon, sayinge: hast p not hearde howe that Adonia p sonne of hagith doth enyne, and Dauid our Lord knoweth it not: for we therefore come, & I will geue p counsel, howe to saue thyne a wile lyfe, & the lyfe of thy sonne Salomon. So and get the in vnto kyng Dauid, and saye vnto him: bidest not p (my Lord & kyng) were vnto thy hand mayde, sayunge: Salomō thy sonne shall raygne after me, & he shall syt vpon my seate: whys then Adonia kyng: Beholde, whyle thou yet talkest there with p kyng, I will come in after p, & confirme thy wordes.

And Bethsabe went in vnto the kyng into the chāber. And the kyng was very olde, and Abiath the Sunnmer minister vnto p king. And Bethsabe bowed, & made obe-saunce vnto the kyng. And p kyng sayde: what is thy matter: she answered him: My Lord, thou swarst by the Lord thy God vnto thyne hand mayde: Salomō thy sonne shall raygne after me, & he shall syt vpon my seate. And beholde, now is Adonia kyng, & my Lord the kyng wotterth not of it. And he hath offered oxen, fat cattell, & many shepe, and hath called all the sonnes of the kyng, & Abiathar the prest, and Joab the captayne of the hoste. But Salomon thy seruant hath be not byddē. And now my Lord (p kyng), the eyes of all Israel wapte on the,
p thou shuldest tell them, who ought to syte on the seate of my Lord the kyng after him.
For elles when my Lord the kyng shall scape with his father, I and my sonne Salomon shall be conspyners.

63 v

And whyle the yet talked with the kyng, Athah p prophet came also. And they tolde the kyng sayinge: beholde, here cometh A-than the prophete. And whē he was come in to the kyng, he made obeysaunce before the kyng vpon his face on the ground, & Athah sayde: My Lord (p kyng) hast thou sayd, Adonia shall raygne after me, & he shall syt vpon my seate: For he is gone downe this daye, & hath slayne many oxen, & fat shepe, and hath called all the kynges sonnes, & the captaynes of the host, & Abiathar the prest.
And beholde, they eat and dyncne before him, and sape: God saue kyng Adonia. But me thy seruante, and Shadoch the prest, and Banaiah the sonne of Iehoiada, & thy seruante Salomon hath he not called. Is there thyng done of my Lord the kyng, & p hast not shewed it vnto thy seruante, who shulde syte on p seate of my Lord p kyng after him?

Then kyng Dauid answered & sayde: call me Bethsabe. And she came into the kynges presence, and stode before him. And p kyng iware sayinge: Truly as the Lord spuech (p hatht ydd my soule out of all aduersite) even as I sware vnto the by the Lord God of Israel, sayinge: Salomon thy sonne shall raygne after me, & he shall syt vpon my seate for me, so will I do this daye. Then Bethsabe bowed on her face to the erth, & ydd respondence vnto the kyng, & sayde: I praye God p my Lord kyng Dauid (p maye lyue ever. & And kyng Dauid sayde: call me Shadoch the prest, & Athah the prophet, and Banaiah the sonne of Iehoiada. And they came before the kyng. & he kinge also sayde vnto them: take w you the seruantes of poure Lord, & set Salomon my sonne vpon myne a wile whele, & carpe him downe: & to Sihon. And let Shadoch the prest, & Athah the prophet anoynte him there, kyng over Israel. And blow ye w trumpets, & saye: God saue kyng Salomō. And then come ye after him, that he maye come and syte vpon my seate. For he shall be kyng in my steade. And I will cōmaunde him to be captayne ouer Israel and Iuda. And Banaiah the sonne of Iehoiada answered the kyng, & sayde: Amen. I praye God p the Lord God of my Lord p kyng saye so to. And as God hath bene with my Lord the kyng, eue so be he with Salomō also, & make his seate greater, then the seate of my Lord kyng Dauid hath bene.

And so Shadoch the prest, and Athan the prophet, & Banaiah the sonne of Ieho-iada, & the Ecclerikes and Shelerikes went downe, & set Salomon vpon kyng Dauides whele, and brought him to Sihon. And Shadoch the prest toke an home of oyle out of the tabernacle, and anoynted Salomō. And all they of the people blew trumpets, and sayde: God saue kyng Salomō. And all the people cam vpon after him, ppyng with pipes and reioysynge greatly, so p the erth range with the sounde of them.

And Adonia and all the gesses p he had called vnto him, hearde it, euen as they had made an ende of eatynge. And when Joab hearde the sounde of the trompet, he sayde:
howe happeneth it p there is soche a noyse in the cytye: And as he yet spake: beholde, Iona-thas p sonne of Abiathar p prest came. And Adonia sayde vnto him: come in, for p art a valiant man, and byrgest good thynges.
And Ionathas answered & sayde to Adonia: Curly

creely oure Lorde kyng Dauid hath made Salomon kyng. And the kyng hath sent vs him, Sadock the pnest, & Nathan the pphet, and Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada, and the Cretites, and the Shelethites, and they haue set him vpon þ kynges mule. And Sadock the pnest, and Nathan the pphet haue anoynted hym kyng in Sibo. And they came vpp agayne, and resoyled, that the cytie shold sounde agayne. And that is the noyse, that ye haue heerde. And Salomon spreketh on the seate of the kyngdome. And moze ouer the kynges seruantes came to blesse oure Lorde kyng Dauid, sayinge: thy God make the name of Salomon moze honozable then thy name, and make hys seate greater then thy seate. And the kyng bowed hym selfe vpon the bedd. And thus sayde the kyng: Blessed be the Lorde God of Israel: which hath made one to set on my seate thys daye, myne eye seynge it.

And all the gesses that were with Adonia were asfayed, and rose vp, and went euer myn bys waye. And Adonia fearyng the pcesence of Salomon, arose, and went. ^(in to the tabernacle of the Lorde) And caught holde on the hornes of the altare. And one tolde Salomon, sayinge: beholde, Adonia doth feare kyng Salomon: for he hath caught holoe on the hornes of the altare, sayinge: letting Salomon swere vnto me thys daye that he wyll not slep his seruait with the swerde. And Salomon sayde: yf he wyll be a chyld of vertue, there shall not an heere of hym fall to the earth. But and yf wickednes be foude in him, he shall dye. And so kyng Salomon sent, and they brought hym fro the altare. And he came, and vpd obepaisance vnto kyng Salomon. And Salomon sayde vnto hym: gett the to the thyne house.

C The. ij. Chapter.

¶ Dauid dyeth. Adonia reppeth to haue Absag to his concubene, and therefore Salomon com-mauneth to slaye hym. Absalath is put from his pphete. Jeremi and Joab are slayne.

In the dayes of Dauid dyewe nyf þ he shulde dye, and he charged Salomon hys sonne, sayinge. I go the waye of all the worlde, & be thou stronge therfore, and shewe thy selfe a man. Kepe thou the watch of the Lorde thy God, that thou walke in hys wayes, and kepe his statutes, and his preceptes, hys iudgements, and hys testymonyes, euen as it is wyrtten in the lawe of Moyses: that thou mayest prosper in all that thou doest, and in euery thyng that thou medest withall. That the Lorde also maye make good hys woordes which he spake vnto me, sayinge: yf thy chyldren take heede to thes wayes, that they walke before me in tructhe, with all their dettes, and with all their soules, & then halt thou not be without a man on the seat of Israel.

¶ Mozeouer, thou wottest howe Joab þ sonne of Zeruia serued me, and what he dyd to that two captaynes of the hostes of Israel: vnto Abner the sonne of Ner, and vnto Amala the sonne of Zether: whom he line and shed bloude in tyme of pece (euen as it had bene in warre) & put the bloude of warre vpon hys gyrdle that were about hys loynes, and in hys shoes that were on hys fete: Deale with hym therfore accordyng to thy wysdome, and byngne not hys houe. ²⁵ heed downe to the graue in pece. ¶ But shewe hyndnes vnto the sonnes of Zeruia the Gileadites, that they maye cate at thy table. For they came to me, when I fled from Absalon thy brother.

¶ And beholde, thou hast with the Semei the sonne of Gera, the sonne of Gemin, of Bahurim, which cursed me with an horrible curse, in the daye whā I went to Danaham. But he came to meete me at Jozaban, and I swore to hym by the Lorde, sayinge: I wyll not slep the with the swerde: But thou shalt not counte him as vngyfte. For thou art a man of wydome, and knowest what thou oughtest to do vnto hym. His houe heed shalt thou byngne to the graue with bloude.

And so Dauid slepe with hys fathers, and was buryed in the cytie of Dauid. And the dayes which Dauid reigned vpon Israel, were fourtye yeres: Euen yeres reigned he in hebron: and thyrtye and thre yeres reigned he in Ierusalem. ¶ Then sett Salomon vpon the seate of Dauid his father, & his kyngdome was stablished mightely.

And Adonia the sonne of Hagith came to Bethsabe the mother of Salomon. And she sayde: Commett thou peaceably. And he sayde: peaceably. He sayde mozeouer: I haue somwhat to saye vnto the. She sayde: saye on. And he sayde: thou knowest that the kyngdome was myne, and that all Israel set their faces on me, that I shulde reigne, howbeit, þ kyngdome is turned awaye, and geue to my brother: for it is appoynted him of the Lorde: and nowe I aske a peticion of the: denye me not. And she sayde vnto him: Saye on. And he sayde: speake, I praye the, vnto Salomon the kyng, for he wyll not saye the naye, that he geue me Absag the Summite to wyfe. And Bethsabe sayde: well, I will speake for the vnto the kyng.

Bethsabe therfore went vnto the kyng Salomon, to speake vnto him for Adon. And the kyng rose vp to meete her, and bowed him selfe vnto her, and sett hym downe on his seate. And there was a seate sett for the kynges mother, and she sat on his right syde. Then she sayde: I desyre a lytell peticion of the, I praye the, saye me not naye. And the kynge layde vnto her: Vtke on, my mother: for I will not saye the naye. She sayde: lett vsing the Sumamite be gotten to Adonia thy brother to wyfe. And kyng Salomon answered and sayde vnto his mother: why dost thou thus? vsing the Sumamite for Adonia: alse for him the kyngdome also: for he is myne elder brother, and hath for hym Abiathar the pcesse, and Joab the sonne of Zaria. Then kyng Salomon swore by the Lorde, sayinge: God do so, and so to me, yf Adonia haue not spoken this word agaynst his awne lyfe. Howe therefore, as trulpe as the Lorde lyureth, which hath ordeyned me, and set me on the seate of Dauid my father, and he made me an house, as he promised, Adonia shall dye this daye. And kyng Salomon sent by the hande of Banaiah the sonne of Jehoiada, and he smote hym, that he dyed.

And vnto Abiathar the pcesse, sayde the kyng: get the to Anathoth vnto thyne awne felde: for thou art worthy of death: but I will not at this tyme kill the, because thou barest the arche of the Lorde God before Dauid my father, and because thou hast suffered with my father in all his afflictions. And so Salomon put a waye Abiathar from being pcesse vnto the Lorde: that he myght fulfill the wordes of the Lorde which he spake out the house of Eli in Silo. Then tidpynges came also to Joab: for Joab had turned after Adonia: though he turned not after Abiathar. And Joab fled vnto the tabernacle of the Lorde, and caught holde on the hornes of the aultare. And it was tolde kyng Salomon, howe that Joab fled vnto the tabernacle of the Lorde, and stode by the aultare.

Then Salomon sent Banaiah the sonne of Jehoiada, sayinge: go and fall vpon him. And Banaiah came into the tabernacle of the Lorde, and layde vnto hym, Thus sayeth the kyng: come out. And he sayde: naye, but I will bye euyl here. And Banaiah brought the kyng wordes agayne, sayinge: thus sayd Joab, and thus he answered me.

And the kyng sayde. Do euyl as he hath sayde: smyte hym, and burpe hym, that thou maist take a waye the bloude, which Joab shed causelesse, from me, and from the house of my father. And the Lorde shall bypnyng his blood vpon his awne hebd, for he smote two men right wyse and better then he, and lue them with the swerde, my father Dauid not knowyng thereof: euyl vnto the sonne of Iser, captayne of the host of Israel, and Adonia the sonne of Iser captaine of ydool of Iuda. The bynde shall therefore retorne vpon the hebd of Joab, and on the hebd of his seed for euer. But vpon Dauid, and vpon his seed, and vpon his house, and vpon his seate shall there be peace for euer of the Lorde.

So Banaiah y some of Jehoiada wote by, and smote hym, and lue hym, and burped hym in his awne house in the wylderness. And the kyng put Banaiah the sonne of Jehoiada in his rowme ouer the host and put Saboth the pcesse in the rowme of Abiathar.

And the kyng sente and called Semel, and sayde vnto hym: buyde the an house in Jerusalem, and dwell there, and se that thou go not forth thence any whether. For be thou lue, that the daye that thou goest out, and passist ouer the ryuer of Cedron, thou shalt dye ydape, and thy bloude shall be vpon thyne awne heade. And Semel sayde vnto the kyng. This is a good thinge: as my Lorde the kyng hath sayde: so will I my seruante do. And Semel dwelt in Jerusalem many a daye. And it chanced after thre yeres, that two of the seruantes of Semel came away vnto Achis, sonne of Achish king of Geth. And they tolde Semel, sayinge: beholde, thy seruantes be in Geth. And Semel stode vp, & labed his alle, and gat hym to Geth to Achis, to selde his seruantes, and returned, and brought his seruantes agayne from Geth.

And it was tolde Salomon, howe that Semel hath gone from Jerusalem to geth, and was come agayne. And the kyng sent, and called Semel, and sayd vnto hym: whyd I not charge the by the Lorde with an othe, and restitied vnto the, sayinge: be lue, that whensoever thou goest out, and walkest a bynde any whether, thou shalt dye ydape? And thou saydest vnto me: it is good tidpynges that I haue hearde. Why then hast thou not kept the othe of the Lorde, and the commaundement that I charged the withall?

The kyng sayde moreover to Semel: thou remembrest all the wychednesse which thine heet knoweth, and that thou bydest to Dauid my father. The Lorde also shall bypnyng the wychednesse vpon thyne awne hebd: and kyng Salomon shall be blessed, and the seat of Dauid stablyshed before y Lorde for euer. So the kyng commaunded Banaiah the sonne of Jehoiada: which went out, and smote hym that he dyed. And the kyngdome was stablyshed in the hande of Salomon.

C The iiij. Chapter.

¶ Salomon toke the daughter to Iseph. The Lorde appeared to hym and greut hym wylde. The pcesse of the two daughters who guide one the kyngs chylde: and Salomons sentence therein.

Salomon made affinitie with Iphraim kyng of Egypt, & toke Iphraims daughter, and brought her in to the crite of Dauid, vntill he had made an ende of buydinge his awne his a true house, & the house of the Lord, and the wall of Ierusalem rounde about. Onely the people sacrificed in altares made on hylls, because there was no house buylde vnto the name of y^e Lord, vntill those dayes. And Salomon loued y^e Lord, and walked in the ordynances of Dauid hys father, saue one-ly that he sacrificed and offered incense vpon altares in hylls.

¶ 1st Para. f. a
v

* And the kyng went to Gibeon, to offer there: for y^e that was a speciall offering place. A thousand burnt offerings byd Salomon offer vpon that altare: and in Gibeon the Lord appeared to Salomon in a dreme by nyght. And God sayde: aske what thou wylt, that I maye geue it the. And Salomon sayde: thou hast aske vnto thy seruauit Dauid my father great mercie, when he walked before the in trueth, in ryght welnes, & in playnesse of heart with the. And thou hast kepte for hym this greates mercie, that y^e hast geuen hym a sonne, to sett on hys seate: as it is come to passe this daye. *

¶ 1st Para. l. b

¶ And now, O Lord my God, it is thou y^e hast made thy seruauit kyng in steade of Dauid my father, * And I am but yong, and wote not howe to go out and in. And thy seruauit is in the myddes of thy people, which thou hast chosen. And verely, the people are so manie, that they cannot be tolde nor noized for multitude. * Gue therefore vnto thy seruauit an vnderstandyng heart, to iudge thy people, y^e I maye decreene betwene good and bad. For who is able to iudge thyss, thy so myghty a people? *

¶ 1st Para. l. a

¶ And thus pleased the Lord well, y^e Salomon had despyed thyss thyng. And God sayde vnto him: because thou hast asked this thyng, and hast not asked longe lyfe, nethe-lyst thou hast asked ryche, nor y^e the soule of thyne enemyes, but hast asked vnderstandyng and discrecyon in iudgement.

¶ 1st Para. l. a

¶ Beholde, I haue done accordyng to thy prayson. For I haue geuen thee a wyle and an vnderstandyng heart, so that there was none like the before the, nethe after the that cup aryse lyke vnto the. And I haue also geuen thee, that which thou hast not asked, en-ryche and honoure, so that there shalbe no kyng lyke vnto the all thy dayes. And y^e wyle walk in my wayes, to kepe in y^e ordynances and my commandmentes, * as thy father Dauid byd walke, I will lengthen thy dayes. When Salomon awoke, behold, it was a dreme. * And he came to Ierusalem and stode before the arch of the testament of the Lord, and offered burnt offerings and peace offerings, and made a feaste to all his seruauits.

¶ 1st Para. l. b

* Then came there two women, that were harlottes, vnto the kyng, and stode before hym. And the one woman sayde: O y my Lord, I and thyss woman dwell in one house. And I was deliuered of a chyld with her in the house. And the thyrde daye after that I was deliuered, she was deliuered also: and we were together, and no straunger with vs in the house, saue we two. And thyss wyues chyld dyed in the nyght, for she smothered it. And she rose at mornynge, and toke my sonne from my spide, whyle thyne hand mayde slepte, and layde it in her bosome. And when I rose vnto geue my chyld suche: beholde, it was dead. But what I had looked vpon it in the mornynge, beholde, it was not my sonne, which I yd beate.

¶ The other woman sayde: it is not so: but my sonne lyueth, and thy sonne is dead. And she sayde agayne: No, but thy sonne is dead, and my sonne is alijue. And thus they pleated before the kyng. Then sayde the kyng: the one sayth, this that is alijue is my sonne: and the dead is thine. And the other sayth, naye: but thy sonne is the dead, & the lyuynge chyld is myne. And the kyng sayde: lyuynge me a swerde. And they brought out a swerde before the kyng. And the kyng sayde: Wende the lyuynge chyld in two, and geue the one halfe to the one, & the other to the other.

¶ Then spake the woman, whose the lyuynge chyld was, vnto the kyng, for her bowelles yerned vpon her sonne, and sayde: I beseeche the my Lord, geue her the lyuynge chyld, and in no wyse slepe it. But the other sayd: let it be nethe myne nor thine, but be-lyde it. Then the kyng answered and sayd: * geue her the lyuynge chyld, and slep it not: for she is the mother thereof. And all they of Israel heard of the iudgement, which the kyng hath iudged, and feared the kyng: for they sawe that the wysdome of God was in hym, to do iustice. *

¶ The iiij. Chapter:

Of King Hiram southen Cedar wyer to the buyldynge of the temple. The descreyppon of the wyches.

Ad Hiram kyng of Tyre sent his seruantes vnto Salomon, for he had heard, y they had anoynted hym kyng in the towne of hys father. * For Hiram was euer a loue of Dauid. * And Salomon sent to Hiram, sayng: thou knowest how that Dauid my father coude not builde an house vnto the name of the Lorde hys God, for the warres which were aboute hi on euery syde, vntill the Lorde put them vnder the soles of hys fete. But now the Lorde my God hath geue me rest on euery syde, so that there is neither aduersaier, nor mye euill plage. And behold, * I am determened to buyidan house vnto the name of the Lorde my God, as the Lorde spake vnto Dauid my father sayng: thy sonne whom I will set vnto thy seate for y, he shall buyidan house vnto my name. ¶ The. vi. Chapter.

¶ And when the temple was builded.

And when he came to passe y^e in the iij.
C. and lxx. yere (after the children of Israel were come out of the land of egipt) and * the iij. yere of the raigne of Salomon vpo Israel and in the moneth x. iij. which is the ij. moneth, * he beganne to build the house of the Lord. And the house which Salomon buylt for the Lorde, was lx. cubites longe, and xx. cubites broad, and xxx. cubits hie. And he made a porch befoie the body of the temple, which was lx. cubits longe after the bredth of the house, and l. cubits broad, euen in the forefrote of the house. And in the house he made wyndowes broad without, and narrow within.

And in the wall of the house, he made chabers round about, (euf in the wall of the house) round about the temple & the queen: and made sydes round about. The nether-inost chamber was fyfte cubytes broad, and the myddle was fyve cubytes boade, a the thyrd was fene cubytes broad. for without in the wall of y house he layde beames round about, that the begynnes of the chambers shuld not be fastned in y wallis of the house. And the house was buylt of stone, made perforce allycaby before it was brought thither, so that there was neither hāmer, ne a tre, eithr any tole of yron heard in the house, whyle it was in buyldinge.

The doze of the myddle chābre was in p rppge fyde of the house: and men went by w winding staires into the myddle chambe, and out of the myddle, into the thyrde. And so he buylte the houle and frumf herit, i and couffet it with beames of Cedar timber. And then he buylte chambers to all the temple, offp cubytes heyght, and they were loyned to the house with beames of Cedar.

And the worde of the Loide came to Salomon, saying: concerninge the house whiche thou arte in buildinge, yf thou wilt walke in myre ordinaunces, and execute my lawes, and heepe my commandmentes, to walke in the: then will I make good vnto the my psones, & whiche I promised vnto thy father. ¶ And J will be dwel amonge the children of Israel, and will not forsake my people Israel. Salomon therefore built the house, and finished it, and styled the wallis of the house within, w borders of Cedar tree: next to the pavement of the house vnto the conffessed he spile the wallis of it within, with Cedar tree: and bezeched the floure of the heuse w plaunces of fyre.

And he spyled xx. cubites: in the hydes of the quere of the temple, both floure: & wales with boordes of Cedar: & dyffers it within in the secrete place of the temple, euen in the moost holpe. And the first holpe, that is to saye, the body of the temple without, was fourtye cubites longe. And the Cedar of the house within, was harned with knoppes, & graued with floures, and all was Cedar timber, so that no stone was sene. And the quere that was within the temple, he prepared, to set there the archie of the appoyntement of the Lorde: And the quere before was twentye cubites lāge, and twenty cubites in breith, and twenty cubites in heighth. And he syled it with pure golde, and bozded it: the aulare with Cedar.

And Salomõ also fylde the house withun with pure golde. And he made golden barres runne alonge the queer, which he had co-uersed with golde. And the whole house, he ouerlayd with golde vntill he had ended it.
And the aukare þ was in the queer he ouerlayde with golde also.

cubites longe was a wyng of the one Cherub, and fyue cubites longe was a wyng of the other Cherub: so that fra the vtermoſt parte of one wyng vnto the vtermoſt part of the other, were ten cubites.

And the other Cherub was ten cubites high also, so þo both the Cherubes were of one measure & one syde. For the heigth of the one Cherub was ten cubites, and so was it of þe other. And he put the Cherubes within the pinner house. * And the Cherubes stretched out their wynges, so that the one wyng of þe one touched the one wall, and the one wyng of the other touched the other wall. And the other two wynges of them touched one another in the myddes of þe house. And he overlaid the Cherubs with golde.

And in all the walles of the house round about, he made fygyurs of carued & syled woike: as namelȝ, pictures of Cherubs and Palmertrees and grauen floures, both withyn in the queer, & without in the temple. And the floure of the house he couered with golde both withyn in þe queer and also without in the temple. And in the enterpyng of the queer he made two doores of Olivetree. And both the upper & two syde postes were .v. square. The two doores also were of Olive tree, and he graued them with grauyngs of Cherubs and Palmertrees, and grauen floures, & couered them with gold, and laped thynne plates of golde vpon the Cherubs and Palmertrees. And in like maner dyd he in the doore of the temple, sawyng that the postes were of Olivetree four square. & he two doores were of fyre tree: and epyer doze with two folde leaues, he graued therō Cherubs Palmertrees, and floures: and couered them with golde, which was laped thynne vpo the carued woike. And he buylt the pinner court wth thre rowes of hewed stone, and one rowe of Cedar wodde.

In the fourth pere was the foundation of the honie of the Lorde laped: euen in the moneth ziff. And in the eleuenth pere & in the moneth zull, which is the egypt moneth, was the house full fynyshed thowout all the parties therof, and accordyng to all the falschyon of it. And so he seuen pere in buyldyng it.

¶ The viij. Chapter.
¶ The vntygge of the house of Salomon. The house of Pharaos daughter. The forme of the pillars of brasse of the brasse tre.

¶ But Salomon was buyldyng his awne house thirtene pere, & fynyshed it all. And he buylt the house in the woodd of Libanon, an hundred cubites longe, and fyfte cubites broad, & xxx. cubites hie. And it stode vpon foure rowes of Cedar pylars, and Cedar beames were laped vpon the pylars. And þe rounke was Cedar aboue vpon the beames, that laye on the pylars: euen fyue and four-tye beames in fyftene rowes. And there were wyndowes in the rowes: and the wyndowes were one agaynst another the folde. And the dozes with the syde postes, and the vpperposte were four square, and had wyndowes one agaynst another the folde.

And he made a porch by the pylars, that bare vpe the house. I. cubites longe, and xxx. cubites broad: & that porch was before those of the other pylars. For there was a thicke tree set before them. Then he made a porche to syt a indge in, syled with Cedar & thowout all the paucementes. And hys awne house that he kept reſidene in: & that was in another court without þe porch was made of that same woike. And then Salomon made an house for Pharaos daughter: wds he had taken to wyfe, lyke vnto the fashion of that porche. And all theſe were of the best stones, hewed after a measure, and sawed wth saws within and without, from the foundation vnto the beames that laye aboue, after the measure, & euen so on the outsyde towardes the grent court. And the foundation was laped vpon xvj. stones & þe very great stones: wherof some were x. cubites, & some viij. cubites. And aboue were good stones squared after a certayn rule, & couered wth Cedar. And the grent court round about was wth thre rowes of hewed stone, & one rowe of Cedar plaches, after þe maner of the pinner court of the house of the Lorde, & of the porch of the temple. * And hyng Salomon sent and fette one Hiram out of Tyre, a wdozen sonne of the tribbe of Aſraphatim, his father bryng a man of Tyre. Which Hiram was a crafter man in brasse: full of wysdome. vnderſtandye and conyng: to woike all maner of woike in brasse. And he came to king Salomō, & wrought all his woike. For he cast & two pylars of brasse of xviij. cubites hie & a stringe of xij. cubites dyp compass ether them about. And he made xij. hed peeres of molten brasse (after the falschyon of a crowne) to set on the topes of the pylars. The heigth of the one hed pece containede .v. cubites, & the heigth of the other hed pece cōteyned .v. cubites also: he made also net woike & garlandes of chepe woike, vpo the hed peeres that were on the top of the pylars, euen seuen rowes vpo the one hed pece, and seue vpon the other. And so he made the pylars, and two rowes round about, in the one wynde woike, to couer the hed peeres y were vpon the poyngetanes. And thus dyd he also for the other hed pece. And the hed peeres that were on the topes of the pylars, couered he aboue with a curyous woike of gold: towardes the palace by the space of iiii. cubytes. Likewyle, vnder þe hed peeres in those ij. pylars beneath, ouergainst þe myddes & before þe net woike. And vpo the ſcāde hed pece were ther. iij. C. pomgranates in two rowes round about. And he set by the pillars in the porch of the temple. And whē he had set by the right pillar, he called y name therof: Joachi: & whē he had set by the left pillar, he called y name therof: Boas. And in the toppē of the pillars was a worke of roses, and so was y workmanthyp of the pillars synchēd.

And he made a molten lautoy, ten cubytes wyde frō bym to bym, round in compass, & v. cubytes hie. And a streyn of thirtie cubytes byd compass it about: and vnder the bym of it. there were knoppes round about. ten in one cubite: and they compassed the lautoy round about. And y knoppes were cast wth it, in two rowes, when it was caste. And it hode on twelue orē: of which thre lo- led toward the north. iij. toward the west. iij. toward the south, & iij. toward the east. And the lautoy hode vpo them, & all they vnder partes were inward. It was an hand brendeth thyele, & y bym wrought lyke the bym of a cup wth flowers of lylies. And it con- tyned two thousand & 800 bates.

And he made x. sockettes of brasē. iij. cu- bites longe, and iij. cubites broade a peece, & iij. cubites hie. And the worke of the sockettes was on this manner. They had lides, and the sydes were betwene the ledges. And on the sydes that were betwene the ledges, were lyons, orēn and cherubs. And lyke wyle, vpo the ledges that were about: and beneth the lyons and orēn were certayne additions made of thyme worke. And vnder eury socket, were four brasen wheles, and borders of brasē. And in the foure corners therof, were vnder setters vnder the lautoy, cast cōp- ouer agaynst hyr felowe.

And the skalle of the lautoy was in the myddle of it, & where it is to lene on the out syde one cubite hie, and a cubite and an halfe rounde: and in the height of it were granen worches, whose sydes were made four square, and not rounde. And vnder the sydes were iij. whe- les: and the agletres ioynd fast to the bot- tome. And the heygth of eury whele was a cubite and an halfe. And the workmanthyp of the wheles was lyke the worke of a char- et whele. And the axeltrees, the naucelles, spokes and shaftes were all molten: And there were foure vnder setters in the iij. cor- ners of one socket: and the vnder setters were of the very bottoome selfe. And in y heygth of the bottoome was there round compass of a cubite hie: and in that heygth of the botto- me, there proceeded both ledges & sydes out of the same. For in the borders of the ledges, and on the sydes, he had grauen pictures of cherubins, lyons and palm trees, one by an other round about. Thus made he the ten sockettes after this maner. And they had all one fastion of cast yng: one measure, and one size. Then made he x. launces of brasē, one la- uer conteyning xl. bates: and one lauer was 80 fouer cubytes, and vpon eury one of the ten sockettes, he put one lauer. And he put fyue of those sockettes on the right syde of the house and other fyue on the left. And he set the la- natoy on the ryght syde of the house cast- warde and toward the south.

And hiram made portes, shouels and ba- sens, and so synchēd all the worke y he made kypng Salomon for the house of the Lorde: y is to saye, two pillars, two roddes herd peccs, that were to be sett on the toppes of the two pillars. If net woikes to couer the two roddes herd peccs set vpo the toppes of the pillars, and iij. C. pomgranates for the two net wor- kes, and two rowes of pomgranates in ene net worke, to couer the two herd peccs that were to be sett on the toppes of the pillars. And the ten sockettes, and ten launces on the sockettes. The lautoy and xij. orēn vnder it: and portes, shouelles and balsus. And all these vessels which hira made to kypng Sa- lomon for the house of y Lorde, were of bright brasē. In the playne of Jordan did the king cast them: euen in the thyele claye betwene Mochoh and zarthan. And Salomon left all the vessels vnwaped, because they were lo- crendyng many, neyther founde they ouer the weygth of the brasē.

And so Salomō made all the vessels that pertayned vnto the house of the Lorde: the golden aulter and the golden table, wheron the brede was. And fyue candellty- cles, for the ryght syde, and fyue for the left be fore the quere of pure golde: with lynces, lampes, and snuffers of golde: & boules, flax peccs, balsams, spoones and maiours of pure golde: and hynoges made be of golde for the doores of the quere, the place moost holy, and for the doores of the temple also.

And so was ended all y worke that kypng Salomon made for the house of the Lorde. And Salomō brought in y thinges which David his father had dedicated: euen the sil- uer, golde, & vessels: and laped the vp amōge the treasures of the house of the Lorde.

hen Salomō gathered together the elders of Israel, all y Braden of the tribes, and them that were captaynes among the father of y child of Israel, vnto him in Je- rusalem, that they might byng vp the arch of the appointmēt of the Lorde: out of the cite of David, which is Shon. And all the men of Israel assembled vnto kypng Salo- mon for the festiue that fallth in the moneth of Ethanim, which is the sixth moneth. And all the elders of Israel were come and the prestes toke by the arch. They bare the arch of the Lord into the tabernacle of witness, and all the holy vessels that were in the tabernacle: those by the prestes and the Levites bare. And lying Salomon and all the congregation of Israel that were assembled unto him, and went with him before the arch, by offer thyse and oten, that coulde not be tolde nor nombred for multitude.

And so the prestes brought the arch of appointment of the Lord unto his place: and into the quere of the temple a place most holy, under the winges of the cherubs. For the cherubs stretched out their winges over the place of the arch, and covered both it and also the staues thereof as he upon it. And they drew out the staues, y^e the endes of the myght appeared out of the holy place within the quere:

but they were not seene about. And there they have bene unto this daye: and there was nothing in the arch, save the two tables of stone, which Moses put there at horeb, in the which tables the Lord made an appointment with the chyldren of Israel, when he brought them out of the lande of Egypt.

And it fortuned y^e when the prestes were come out of the holy place, the cloude fylled the house of the Lord, y^e the prestes coulde not stande and minister, because of the cloude: for the glory of the Lord had fylled the house of the Lord. Then spake Salomon: the Lord, I saye: y^e wolde dwell in the darke cloude. I saye: he built the an house to dwell in as a habytacoe for the, to abyde in for ever.

And the lyng turned his face, and blessed all the congregacion of Israel: and all the congregacion of Israel rode still. And he sayd: Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, which spake with my mouth unto David my father, and hath to his hande fulfilled it, saying: When the daye I brought my people Israel out of Egypt, I chose no cytye of all y^e trybes of Israel, to buyde an house, y^e my name myght be therein. But I have chosen David to be ruler over my people Israel.

And it was in the herte of David my father to buyde an house for y^e name of the Lord God of Israel. And the Lord sayd unto David my father: Where as it was thyne herte to buyde an house unto my name, thou diddest well, y^e thou wast to be rebuffed. Nevertheless I shall not buyde y^e house, but thy sonne that shall come out of thyne loynes, he shall buyde the house unto my name. And the Lord hath made good his worde y^e he spake. And I am ryen up in the crowne of David my father, and sit on the seate of Israel as the Lord promised and have buyde an house for the name of the Lord God of Israel. And I have prepared the place for the arche wherein is the covenant of the Lord, which he made with our fathers, when he brought them out of the lande of Egypt, Salomon stode before the altare of the Lord in the syght of all the congregacion of Israel, and stretched out his handes toward heauen, and sayde: * Lord God of Israel, there is no God like theu heauen above, or in the earth beneath, thou that kepest covenant and mercy for thy seruantes that walke before the with all their herte: thou that hast kept with thy seruante David my father, y^e thou promysedst him. Thou shalt also with thy mouth, and hast fulfilled it with thyne hande, as it is come to passe this daye. Therefore now Lord God of Israel kepe with thy seruante David my father y^e thou promysedst him, saying: * thou shalt not be without a man in my syght to syt in the seate of Israel: so that thy chyldre take hede to their wyse, that they walke before me as thou hast walked in my syght. And now, O God of Israel, let thy worde be verified, which thou spakest unto thy seruante David my father.

Will God in dede dwell on the earth? Beholde: the heauens, and heauens of all heuens are not able to cōteyne the. And howe canst thou this house do it, that I have builded: haue y^e therefore respect unto the prayer of thy seruante, and to his supplicacion. O Lord my God, to heare the voyce and prayer before the this daye: that thyne eyes maye be open toward this house, night and daye, euen toward this place, of which thou hast sayd: * thy name shall be there. That y^e mayest hearken unto y^e prayer which thy seruante prayeth in this place. And regard y^e supplicacion of thy seruante and of thy people Israel, whē they praye in this place. And heare thou in heauen thy dwelling place, when thou hearest, haue mercy. * I praye man trespass against his neyghboure, and there go an oth betweene them, and the one cōpellet the other, and come toswearing before thine altare in this house, then hearken thou in heauen, and worke and iudge thy seruantes, that y^e cōdemne the vngodly for bying wyse wyse upon his head, and iustifie the righteous to geue hym according to his righteousnesse. * Call the people of Israel be put to y^e worde before the enemye, because they haue sinned agaynst the: and afterwarde turne agayne to the, and knowledg vnto thy name, and praye and make intercessio vnto the in this house: then heare thou in heauen, to be mercifull vnto the synne of the people of Israel, & bying them agayne into the lande, which thou gauest vnto their fathers.

* If heauē be shut up, & there be no praye because they haue sinned agaynst the: yet y^e they praye in this place, a knowledg vnto thy name, & turne from their synne, thou wilt be mercifull to them: then heare thou in heauen, and be mercifull (unto the synners) of the thy seruantes and of thy people Israel, that thou shewe them a good waye to walke in, and geue rayne vpon thy lode that thou hast geuen vnto thy people to inheret.

If there be in the lande dearth, or pestilence, or drought, blakpynge, grethopper, or caterpillar, or yf they enemy besedge them in the lande of theyr cyties, or what soeuer plage or synecrisse chaunce: * then what prayers & supplicacyon shouldest thou make of any man of all thy people Israel, which shall knowe euery man the plage of his owne herte, and stretche forth his handes towarde thys house: heare thou them in heauen, euen in thy dwellinge place, and be mercifull, and wofull, and geue euery man accordyng to all his wayes: eue as thou that only knowest his herte, for thou onely knowest the hertes of all the chyldren of men: that they maye feare the as lode as they lye in the lode, which thou gauest vnto oure fathers. And lyke wyse, yf a straunger that is not of thy people Israel * come out of a farr countrey for thy names sake, for they shall heare of thy greute name, & of thy myghte habde and of thy stretched out arme: & shall come and praye in thys house. Therefore, heare thou in heauen thy dwellinge place, and do all that the stranger calleth to the for: that all nacions of the erth maye knowe thy name and feare the, as do thy people Israel: and that they maye knowe that thy name is called vpon in thys house whiche I haue buylt.

If thy people go out to batell agaynst their enemye, whether thou shalt sende the, and shal praye vnto the, O Lord: * towarde the waye of the cytie whiche thou hast chosen, and towarde the house that I haue buylt for thy name: heare thou in heauen theyr prayer and supplicatio, and iudge their cause.

If thy people go out to batell agaynst their enemye, whether thou shalt sende the, and shal praye vnto the, O Lord: * towarde the waye of the cytie whiche thou hast chosen, and towarde the house that I haue buylt for thy name: heare thou in heauen theyr prayer and supplicatio, and iudge their cause.

If they synne agaynst the * (for there is no man that synneth not) and thou be angrie with them, and deliuer them into the hande of theyr enemyes: so that they carie them awaye captiues vnto the lande of theyr enemyes, whether farre or neare, yet yf they turne agayne vnto theyr hertes in the lande (to the whiche they be caried awaye captiue,) and returne and praye vnto the in the lande of theyr enemyes, saying: we haue synned, we haue done wycke dyce, and haue committed vngodlynesse, and to turne agayne vnto the with all theyr herte, and all theyr soule in the lande of their enemyes, which led them awaye captiue, and praye vnto the toward the waye of theyr lande, whiche thou gauest vnto theyr fathers, and towarde the cytie, whiche thou hast chosen, & towarde the house whiche I haue buylt for thy name: then heare thou theyr * prayer and supplicacyon in heauen thy dwellinge place, & iudge theyr cause:

and be mercifull vnto thy people, that haue synned agaynst the, and vnto all theyr iniquityes, wherby they haue done wyckedly agaynst the, and get thou them the fauoure of those which led them awaye captiue, that they maye haue compassion on them. For if they be thy people, and thine inherytance, which thou broughtest out of Egypt, euen from the myddes of the fornace of yron. And let thine eyes be open vnto the prayer of thy seruant, and vnto the prayer of thy people Israel: * to hearken vnto the, in all that they call for vnto the, for thou thyself seest the, from amonge all the nacions of the erth, to be thine owne inherytance, as thou saydest by the hande of Moses thy seruant, when thou broughtest oure fathers * out of Egypt: O Lord God.

And when Salomon had made an ende of prayyng all thys prayer and supplicatio vnto the Lord, he arose from before the altare of the Lord, and from kynelyng on his knees, and from stretchyng of his handes vnto heauen, and stood and blessed all the congregation of Israel with a loude voyce, saying. Blessed be the Lord, that hath geuen rest vnto hys people Israel, accordyng to all that he promysed, * there hath not failed one word of all the good promysed, whiche he promysed by the hande of Moses hys seruant. The Lord oure God be with vs, as he was with oure fathers, and forsaue vs not, neither leaue vs: but that he maye bowe oure hertes vnto the, that we maye walke in all his wayes: and kepe hys commandmentes hys statutes and hys lawes, whiche he commaunded oure fathers. And these my wordes whiche I haue prayed before the Lord, be nye vnto the Lord oure God daye and nyght, that he defende the cause of his seruant, and the cause of hys people Israel: what thinge shouldest thou aske at any tyme: that all nacions of the erth maye knowe, that the Lord is God, and none but he. Let your herte therefore be perfecte with the Lord oure God, that ye walke in hys statutes, and kepe hys commandmentes, as thys daye.

And the kyng and all Israel with hym, offered offerynges before the Lord. * And Salomon offered in sacrifice of peace offerynges vnto the Lord, and he offered vnto the Lord, xxi. thousand oren and an hundred & twenty thousand shepes. And so the kyng & all the chyldren of Israel dedicated the house of the Lord. The same daye dyd the kyng halowe the myddel of the court, that was before the honir of the Lord: for there he offered burnt offerynges, meate offerynges, and the fat of y peace offerynges: because y blasphemous that was before y Lord, was to lytle to receaue y burnt offerynges, meate offerynges, and the fat of the peace offerynges.

The Lorde appereth the seconde tyme to Salomon. Salomon geueth Tolnes to Hyram. The Canaanites become tributaries. The Chereth Shry: res for gold. The buylders many cyties.

IN the daye when Salomon had & fynyshed the buyldynge of the house of the Lorde and the kynges palace, & all that he had in his mynde, and was apointed to make: the Lorde appered vnto hym agayne, as he appered to hym at Gibeon. And the Lorde sayde vnto hym: I haue hearde thy prayer and thy intercessyon, that thou hast made before me. for I haue halowed this house: (which thou hast buylte) to yue my name there for euer, and myne eyes and myne iudgement shall be there perpetuallye. And yf thou wilt walche before me: (as Dauid thy father walched) in purenesse of herte and in rightconnesse: to do all that I haue commaunded the, and wylt heye my statutes, & my lawes. then wyl I stablish the feare of thy kyngdome vpon Israel for euer, as I prompced to Dauid thy father sayynge. * ¶ ¶ Thou shalt not be without a man vpo the feare of Israel.

And thys house whych I haue halowed & for my name, wyl I cast oute of my syght. And Israel shall be a prouerbe and a fable amonge all nacpous. And thys house shall be taken awaye: so that eury one that passeth by it, shall be astonysed, and shall saye, and they shall saye: * why hath the Lorde done thus vnto thys lande and to thys house? made harpes and psalteres for ſyngers.

There came no moare ſuche Almuge trees, nor were anye moare ſene vnto this daye.
And kyng Salomon gaue vnto the queene

he had of chapmen and of marchauntes and kyng Salomon made two hundred bucl-thyſes of beate gold, the pounde of golde went to one thyſe, and the kyng put them put in his heart. And brought him euer y

Salomon gathered together charrettes and uities and heritages. Where as yet (concerning these nacions) the Lorde sayde vnto the chylidren of Israel: * (come not ye at them, nor let them come at you: elles will they turne poure heres after theyr goddes. Reuerchelede, Salomō claue vnto them in lout. * And he had seuen hundred Quenes, and three hundred concubines, and his wyues turned a waye his bett, for it came to passe, when Salomon was olde, his wyues turned his bette after other Gods: and his bette was not perfecte with the Lord his God, as was the bette of Dauid his father: for Salomon followed Astaroth the God of the zidonis, and Achimon, the abhominacion of the Ammonites. And Salomō wrought wychebushes in the sight of the Lorde, a folowed not the Lorde perfectly, as dyd Dauid his father. For than did Salomō buylde an hye place for Chemos the abhominacion of Moab, in the hyll that is befoze Jerusalem, & vnto Moloch the abhominacion of the chylidren of Ammon. And his wife dyd he for all his outlandish wyues, which burnt incense and offered vnto theyr gods. And the Lorde was angry with Salomon, because his bette was turned from the Lorde God of Israel: * which had appeared vnto him twyse, and gaue him a charge, concerning this thinge: that he shuld not folowe other gods. But he kepte not that, which the Lorde commaunded him, wherefoze the Lorde sayde vnto Salomon: for as much as this is done of the, and thou hast not kepte myne appoyntment, and my statutes (which I commaunded the) I will rent the kyngdome from the, and will geue it to thy seruante. For withstandinge in thy dayes I will not do it because of Dauid thy father but will take it fro the hāde of thy sonne. howbeit, I will not take awaye all thy kyngdome: but will geue one tribte to thy sonne, because of Dauid my seruante, and because of Ierusalem which I haue chosen.

And the Lorde stered by an aduersarye vnto Salomō: euen one Hadad an Edomite of the kynges seide, which was in Edo. For whē Dauid was in Edom, and Ioab the captayne of the hoste was gone vp to burie the that were slayne, he smote all the men chylidren in Edom. For hye monethes dyd Ioab remaine there and all Israel, tyll he had destroyed all the men chylidren in Edom. And then hadad fled and certen other Edomites of his fathers seruantes with him, to come into Egypte: Hadad being yet a lyte chylde. And they arose out of Chabian, and came to Parā, and toke mē with them out of Parā and came to Egypte vnto Pharaos kyng of Egypte, which gaue him an house, & appoynted him vnto theyr, and gaue him lande.

And Hadad cal greake fauoure in fleghte of Pharaos, so that he gaue hym to wyfe the lyster of his awne wyfe, euen the lyster of Tabipenes the quene. And y sister of Tabipenes bare him Gembarth his sonne, whome Tabipenes noughted Pharaos house. And Gembarth was of Pharaos householde amonge the sonnes of Pharaos. And when Hadad hearde in Egypte, that Dauid was layde to slepe with his fathers, and that Ioab the captayne of his host was deed also, he sayd to Pharaos: let me departe, that I maye go to myne awne contreye. Pharaos sayde vnto hym: what hast thou lacked here with me, y thou woldest thus go to thine awne contreye? he answered: Nothing, howbeit, let me go. And God stered him by an other aduersarye, one Rezon the sonne of Eliab, whyche fled from his Lorde Hadad beinge kyng of Ioba. And he gathered men vnto hym, and became captayne ouer the companye, when Dauid slewe them. And they went to Damasco, and dwelt there, and raigned in Damasco: Therefore was he an aduersarye to Israel all the dayes of Salomō. And this was myschefe, in that Hadad dyd abhoire Israel, and raygned ouer Syria.

And Ieroboam the sonne of Nebat an Ephraimite of Zareda (whose mother was called Zeruah, which was a wydowe, and he Salomons seruante) lyfte up his hande agaynst the kyng. But this was the cause, that he lyfte up his hande agaynst the kyng. Salomon buylte Achem, & mended the broke places of the cytie of Dauid his father. And this fellowe Ieroboam was a man of warre. And Salomon sawe the younge man, that he was able to do the worke, he made hym ruler ouer all the tribute of the house of Ioseph. And it chanced at that reason, that Ieroboam went out of Ierusalem, and the prophete Achab the Salomite mett him by the waye hauping a newe mantell on hym, and they two were alone in the felde. And Achab caught the newe mantell that was on hym and rent it in twelue peces, and sayde to Ieroboam: take the ten peces. For thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israel: behold, I will rent the kyngdome out of the handes of Salomon, and will geue ten tribes to the, & he shall haue one, for my seruante Dauides sake and for Ierusalem the cytie whyche I haue chosen out of all the tribes of Israel: because they haue forsaken me, and haue wylfullye vnto Astaroth the God of the zidonis, & Chemos the God of the Ammonites, and Achimon the God of the chylidren of Ammon, and haue not walked in my wayes (to fulfill my pleasure, my statutes and my lawes) as dyd Dauid his father.

I will not take the whole kyngdome out of his hāde: but will make hym chiefe all his lyfe longe, for Dauid my seruantes sake, whom I chose: because he kepte my commaundmentes de mentes and my statutes. * But I will take the kyngdome out of his sonnes hande, & will gene it vnto the, euen ten tribes of it: and vnto vsys some will I gene one tribie, y^e Dauid my seruauit maye haue a lyght all waye before me in Ierusalem, the cytie which I haue chosen me, to put my name there. And I will take the, & thou shalt ragyne accor- dyng to all that thy sonie desyrez, & shalt be kyng ouer Israel. And yf thou heark vnto all that I commaunde the, & wilt walke in my wayes & do that is ryght in my syght, that thou hege my statutes & ad my commaundementes (as Dauid my seruauit dyd) then will I be with the, & bypde the a sure house that shall continue, as I bypde for my seruauit Dauid, and will gene Israel vnto the. And I will for thy offence (which Salomon hath committed) be the seede of Dauid, but not for euer.

Salomon fought therfore to kyll Ieroboam, and Ieroboam arose, and fled vnto Egypte vnto Shishak kyng of Egypte, and continued there in Egypte vntill the deeth of Salomon. The rest of the wordes that concerne Salomon, and all that he dyd, and bys wysdome: are they not wyrtten in the booke of the wordes of Salomon: The tyme that Salomon ragyned in Ierusalem vpon all Israel, was fortye yere. And Salomon slepe and belayde him with bys fathers, and was buryed in the cytie of Dauid his father, and Ieroboam his sonne ragyned in bys steade.

¶ The xii. Chapter.

The kyngdome is deuided. Ieroboam ragyneth ouer ii. tribes, and Ieroboam ouer i. Dauid is nobled. Ieroboam maketh golden calves.

And * Rehoboam went to Sichem: for all Israel were come to Sichem, to make him kyng. And Ieroboam the sonne of Nabat (which was yet in Egypte) heard of it: & he fled to Egypte from the presence of kyng Salomon, & dwelt in Egypte. So they sent and called hym, and Ieroboam and all the congregacyon of Israel came, and spake vnto Rehoboam, sayenge thy father made oure greuouser seruice of thy father and bys foie poche which he put vpon vs, lyghtter, & we will serue the. And he sayde vnto them: departe yet for the space of thre dayes, and then come agayne to me. And the people departed.

And kyng Rehoboam toke counsell with the olde men that stode before Salomon bys father, while he yet lyued, and sayde: what counsell gene ye, that I maye haue matter to answer theys people? And they sayde vnto hym: If thou be a seruauit vnto thys people this daye, and folowe theys mynres and answer them, and speake lynde wordes to them: they will be thy seruauites for euer.

But he forsoke the counsell that the olde me had geuen him, and called vnto bys counsell yonge men, that were growen vp with him, and wayted on hym.

And he sayde vnto them: what counsell gene ye, that we maye answer theys people: for they haue commoned with me, sayenge: make the poche which thy father dyd put vpon vs, lyghtter: And the yonge men that were growen vp with hym, spake vnto hym sayenge: Thus shalt thou speake vnto thys people: that haue sayde vnto the: thy father made oure poche heuie, butt make thou it lyghtter: Euen thus shalt thou saie vnto them: * Thy lytle synger shall be wyghtner, the my father was in the loynes. And nowe where as my father did lade you & put a greuousse poche vpon you, I will make it heuier. Thy father also collected you to stronges, but I will chastyse you with scorpions. And so Ieroboam and all the people came to Rehoboam the thyrde daye, as the kyng had apointed, sayenge: come to me agayne the thyrde daye. And the kyng answered the people churlyshly, and left the olde mens counsell: that they gaue hym, & spake to them after the counsell of the younge me, sayenge. My father made your poche greuousse, and I will make it greuousser. My father also chastised you with whyppes, but I will chastise you with scorpions. And the kyng herkened not vnto the people: for it was the ordynance of God, that he myght performe bys sayenge, which y^e Lord spake by Iehia^h & Salom^e vnto Ieroboam the sonne of Nebat.

And so, when all Israel sawe, & the kyng regarded them not, the people answered the kyng with thes wordes, sayenge, * what portion haue we in Dauid: we haue no encrease in the sonne of Iai. * O youre tentes, O Israel, now be to thine awne house Dauid. And so Israel departed vnto thre tentes, howbeit, ouer the chyldren of Israel which dwelt in the cytie of Iuda, dyd Rehoboam ragyne still. Then kyng Rehoboam sent Ibur^a the receauer of the tribute. And all they of Israel stoned hym to deeth. But kyng Rehoboam made sped to gett hym vp to bys charer, and to fye to Ierusalem. And they of Israel rebelled against the house of Dauid, vnto thys daye. And when all Israel heard that Ieroboam was come agayne, they sent and called hym vnto the multitude, and made hym kyng ouer all Israel: and there was no tribie that folowed the house of Dauid, but Iuda onely. * And when Rehoboam was come to Ierusalem, he gathered all the house of Iuda, with the tribie of Ben Iamin an hundred & foure floze thousand of chosen me (which were good men: reynours) to fygte agaynst the house of Israel, rael, and to bynne the hyngdom agayne to Ichoboam the sonne of Salomon.

And the worde of God came unto Se-maia the man of God, sayenge: speake unto Ichoboam the sonne of Salomon kyng of Iuda, and unto all the house of Iuda & Beniamin, and to the remnant of the people, sayenge: Thus saith the Lorde. Ye shall not go vp, nor yet fyght agaynst poure brethren the chyldren of Israel, returne euery man to his house, for this thinge is my doinge. They hearkened therfore to the worde of the Lorde, and returned to departe, accordyng to the worde of the Lorde. Then Jeroboam buylt Sichem in mount Ephraim, & dwelt therein. And went from thence, * a buylt Deniel.

* Judi. vii. b

And Jeroboam thought in his heart: nowe shall the kyngdome returne to the house of Dauid. For yf this people go vp and do sacrificer in the house of the Lorde at Ierusalem, then shall yf here of this people turne agayne unto theyr Lorde Ichoboam kyng of Iuda: and so shall they kylle me, and go agayne to Ichoboam kyng of Iuda.

And when the kyng heard the sayenge of the ma of God (which had crept agaynst yf alter in Bethel) he stretched out his hande from the altare, sayenge: hold him. And his hande which he put forth agaynst him, dyed vpon yf he coule not pull it in agayne to hym: the alter also claued asunder, and the ashes fell out from the altare, accordyng to the token which the man of God had geuen by the worde of the Lorde. And the kyng answered, and sayde vnto the man of God. * Whi praye vnto the Lorde thy God, and make intercession for me, that my hande maye be restored me agayne. And the kyng sayde vnto the ma of God come home with me, that thou inapest dyne, and I will geue thee a reward. And the ma of God sayde vnto the kyng: yf thou woldest geue me halfe thyne house, I will not go in with yf, neither will I eate breade or drinke water in thyne place. For so was it charged me, that thou geue the worde of the Lorde, sayenge: eate no bread nor dryncke water, nor turne agayne by the same waye that thou camest. And so he went another waye, & returned not by the waye that he came to Bethel. And there dwelt an olde prophet in Bethel, & his sonne came, and tolde him all the wordes, that the man of God had done that daye in Bethel: and the wordes which he had spoken vnto the kyng & tolde theyr father also. And the yf father sayde vnto the: what waye went he? And his sonne shewed him what waye the ma of God went, which came from Iuda. And he sayde vnto his sonne: saddle me the Asse, which whither he had saddled, be gat hym by the sonne, and went after the man of God. & founde hym sittinge vnder a tre. He sayde vnto him: come home with me, and eate bread. He answered: I maye not returne with the, to go in with the neether will I eate bread or drinke water with yf in this place. For it was sayde to me in the worde of the Lorde: Thou shalt eate no bread, nor drinke water there, nor turne agayne to go by yf waye that thou camest. He sayde vnto him: I am a prophet also as well as thou, and an Angel spake vnto me in the worde of yf Lorde, sayenge: bynne him agayne with the into thyne house, that he maye eate bread and dryncke water. And he yed vnto hym. And so he went agayne with hym, and bynne eate bread ¶ Jeroboam doynge sacrificer vnto the calves, & re: scribed of the isrophet. Iere hande byrth vp, whiche he putteth it out agaynst the isrophet. The isrophet is helpe, and buried.

¶ Beholde, there came a man of God out of Iuda (by the worde of the Lorde) vnto Bethel, & Jeroboam rode by the altare to put incense. And he cried agaynst the altare in the worde of the Lorde sayde. O altare, altare, thus saith the Lorde: Beholde, a chyld shall be bozne vnto the house of Dauid, (Jolia by name) & vpon the shall he offer the priestes of the hillaulares that burne incense vpon the, & menies bred in hys house and droncke water,

And he forsaue, that as they late at the table, the wyde of the Loide came vnto the prophete, that brought him agayne. And he cryed vnto the man of God that came from Iuba, sayenge: thus sayth the Lord because thou hast disobeyed the mouth of the Loide, and hast not kept the commaundement which the Loide thy God commaunded the, but camest backe agayne, and hast eaten bread and droncke water, in the place concernynge the which the Loide byd saue vnto the: (Thou shalt enter no bread nor dryncke water) thy carkasse shall not come vnto the sepulchre of thy fathers.

And so it came to passe, that when he had eaten bread and droncke, the prophete which brought him agayne, sadde him an ass. And when he was gone, * a Lyon mett hym by the waye, and slue him, and his carkasse was cast in the waye, and the Ass stode therby, and the Lyon stode by the coarke also. And men that passed by, sawe the carkasse cast in the waye, and the Lyon standynge therby: * they came and tolde it in the towne where the olde prophete dwelt. And when the prophete that brought him backe agayne from the waye, heard thereof, he sayde: it is the ma of God: he was disobedient vnto the wyde of the Loide, and therefore the Loide hath de-lynered him vnto the Lyon, which hath rent him and slayne him, accordinge to the wyde of the Loide, which he spake vnto hym. And he spake to his sonnes, sayenge. I adoe me an Ass, and so they byd. And he went, and founde hys bodye cast in the waye, and the Ass and the Lyon stode by the coarke. And the Lyon had not eaten the carkasse, nor hurt the Ass. And the prophete toke vp the bodye of the man of God, and layed it vpon the Ass, and brought it agayne: and the olde prophete came to the cytie to lament, and to burye hym. And he layde hys bodye in his awne graue, and they lamented ouer him. (Alas my brother.) And when he had buried him, he spake to his sonnes, sayenge. whē I am deed, se that ye burye me in the sepulchre wherein the man of God is buried: laye my bones betwixt hys bones. * For the sayenge which he cryed at the wyde of the Lord agaynst the nultare in Bethel (and agaynst all the houses of hyl nultares which are in Egyptes of Samarie) shall come to passe.

Howbeit, for all that, Ieroboam converted not from hys wicked waye: but turned backe, and made of the lowest of the people preastes of the hyl nultares. And whoso pleased hym, he fylled hys hande, and he became preake of the hyl nultares. And this thyng turned to spynne vnto the house of Ieroboam even to destrye hym, and to byngne hym to naught from of the face the earth.

The xliii. Chapter.

¶ Ieroboams wyfe askech counsell of Ahiab the prophete. Ieroboam dyeth. Shalck kyng of Egypte robbeth the house of the Loide. Ieroboams dyeth, and Ahiab succedeth hyu.

¶ That tyme Ahiab the sonne of Ieroboam fell sycke. And Ieroboam sayde vnto hys wyfe: vp (I praye the) and disguise thy selfe, that thou be not knowen to be the wyfe of Ieroboam, and get the to Silo. Forther is Ahiab the Prophete which tolde me * that I shulde be kyngre ouer this people. And take with the ten lonies, and crencknelles, and a creuse of honye, and go to him: that he maye tell the what shall become of the childe. And Ieroboams wyfe byd so: and arose, and wet to Silo, and came to the house of Ahiab. But Ahiab coulde not se, for hys eyes were waxen deymne for age.

And the Loide sayde vnto Ahiab: beholde, the wyfe of Ieroboam cometh, to aske a thyng of the fox her sonne, for he is sycke. But thus thale thou saue vnto her. And when she came in, she feyned her selfe to be a nother woman. But when Ahiab herde the founde of her fete as she came in at the doore, he sayde: come in thou wyfe of Ieroboam, why feynest thou thy selfe so, to be a nother? I am sent to the to shewe the heuy thynges.

So, tell Ieroboam, thus sayth the Loide God of Israel. It repenteth me for as moche as * I exalted the from amonge the people, and made the pyppre ouer my people Israel. And all they of Israel shall mourne for him, and burie hym: for he onely of Jeroboam, shall come to the sepulchre, because in hym there is founde goodnesse towards the Lord God of Israel in the house of Jeroboam.

Whozoner, the Lord shall sere hym up a kynge ouer Israel, which shall deliue the house of Jeroboam in that dape. & But what is it now? For the Lord shall synke Israel, as when a rede is hake in the water and he shall wrede Israel out of thys good lande (which he gaue to theyr fathers,) and þe shall flatter them beyond the ryuer, because they haue made the Idoles groues, and angered the Lord. And he shall geue Israel vp, because of the synnes of Jeroboam, which dyd synne, and made Israel to synne.

And Jeroboams wyfe arose, and departed, and came to Tbirah, and when she came to the thecholdr of the doze, the chylde was deeb. And all Israel buried hym, and lamented him, accordyng to the worde of þe Lord which he spake by the hãde of hys seruunt Aha the Þsoaphet. (to put his name there.) his mothers name was Naama an Ammonite. And Juda wrought wickednesse in the syght of the Lord, and angered him in moo thynges then their fathers dyd, in their synnes, which they synned. ¶ Eliā is reioyced and ſet of houſes, and after to ſent to zarybath (coheremſe called Sarybba) to a woman, whote child he caried to yſe.

¶ Ad Eliā the Deſbitie whych I was of y entablers of Gilead ſayde vnto Ahab: as truly as the Loꝛd God of Isꝛael lyeth, befoꝛe whome I ſtande → there ſhal be neither dewe noꝛ raine theſe yeres, but accordyng to my woꝛde.

And the woꝛde of the Loꝛde came vnto hi, ſayng: gett the hence, & tūne the eſt warde, & hide thy ſelfe in y brooke Cherith, y is it that lyeth befoꝛe Jorda: & thou ſhalt depꝛyck of y ruer, & I haue comaunded the rauer to fede y there. And ſo he wet, & dyd accordyng vnto the woꝛde of y Loꝛde: ſo as he wet, & dwelt by y brooke Cherith, y is befoꝛe Jorda. And y rauer brought him bread & ſheue in the mornynge, & a lytle wiſe bread & ſlicke in y euenynge, & he dranke of the brooke. So he aroſe, & went to zarybath. And wbe he came to the gate of the cite, the wydoꝛe was there, gathering ſtickes. And he called to her, & ſayd: → ſet me I praye y, a lytle water in a deſſell, y I maye dꝛynke. And as he was goynge to ſett it, he crept after her, and ſayd: heynge me I praye the, a moſſell of bread alſo in thyne hande. She ſayd: As truly as the Loꝛd thy God lyeth, I haue no bread ready, but ene an handfull of meale in a barell, and a lytle ople in a cruſe. And behold, I am gathering two ſtickes foꝛ to go in, & deſſe it foꝛ me and my ſonne, that we maye eate it, and dye.

And Eliā ſayde vnto her: feare not, come and do

E does thou hast sayde: but make me therof a lyttle cake fyrt of all, & hyng it vnto me: and after wards make for the and thy sonne. For thus sayth the Lorde God of Israel: the meale in the barreil shall not be wasted neyther shall the oyle in the cresse be mynished, vntill the Lorde haue sent rapne vpon the erthe. And he went, and dyd as Elia sayde. And the & he & her house dyd eate a good space, and the meale wasted not out of the barreil, neyther was the oyle spent out of the cresse according to the woode of the Roide, which he spake: by the hande of Elia. R

And after these thynges, it happened, that the sonne of the wyfe of the house seil spcke. And his syckneesse was so fore, & there was no breache left in him. And he toke him out of her lappes, and caried him vp into a losse where he abode, & layde him vpon his awne bedde, & called vnto the Lorde, and sayde: O Lorde my God, hast thou punished also this we dowe (with whom I dwell as a stranger) & hast slayne her sonne? R And he stretched hym selfe vpon the chyldre three tymes, & called vnto the Lorde, and sayde: O Lorde my God, let this chyldres soule come into him agayne. And the Lorde hearde the voyce of Elia, and the soule of the chyldre came into hym agayne, & he reueryed. And Elia toke the boye, and brought hym downe out of the chambric into the house, & deliuered hym vnto hys mother, and Elia sayde: beholde, thy sonne lyueth. And the woman sayde vnto Elia: nowe I knowe, that thou art a man of God, and that the woide of the Lorde in thy mouth, is true. R

El. The. xviij. Chapter.

Elia is sent to Abab. Abadiah: other topes called Abadiah: prophesie on hundred prophets. Elia helieth all Abadiah prophets: afterwarde obdureth capt.

After proesse of many dayes & woide of the Lorde came to Elia in the thyrde yere, saynges: go theweth selfe vnto Abab, and & I will sende rapne vpon the erth. And Elia came to thewe hym selfe vnto Abab, & ther was a great fa-myment in Schomeon. And Abab called Obadiah, whych was the gouernier of hys house: & Obadiah feared God greatlye: for when Jezabell destroyed the prophetes of the Lorde, he toke an hundred prophetes and dyd the, hidde in one cave & spete in another, & prouided beere & water for the. And Abab sayde vnto Obadiah: Go into the labe, vnto all fountaynes of water, & vnto all brokes, yf ha prophete maye fynde graile, to saue the hoike ad the mulcs, & that we destroye not some of the beastes. And so they demped the labe betwene the, to walke thowow it. Abab went one waye by hym selfe, and Obadiah went another waye by hym selfe.

And it chaunced that as Obadiah was in the waye, Elia mett hi. And Obadiah knewe hym, & fell on hys face, & sayde: art not my Lord Elia? And he answered hym: I am he. So and tell thy Lorde: beholde, Elia is here. he sayde: what haue I saymed, that I woldest deliuer thy seruait into, yf had of Abab, to slep me? As truly as the Lorde thy God lyueth, there is no nacyon or kyngdome, whether my Lorde hath not sent, to seke the. And when they sayde: he is not there, he tooke an othe of the kyngdome & nacyon, whan he founde the not. And nowe thow sayest: goo: tell thy Lorde, that Elia is here. And as sone as I am gone from the, the spete of the Lorde shall carie the into some place that I do not knowe, and so when I come, and tell I hab, & he came not fonde the, he shall slep me. R But I thy seruait feare the Lorde from my yowth vp. Was it not tobe my Lorde, what I dyd, when Jezabell slue the prophetes of the Lorde howe I dydde an hundred men of the Lordes prophetes, spete in one cave and spete in another, and prouided the of beere and water: And nowe thou sayest, goo thou nowe and thewe thy Lorde. Beholde, Elia is here, that he maye slep me?

And Elia sayde: as truly as the Lorde of hostes lyueth, before whos I stande, I will thew my selfe vnto him this daie. So Obadiah went to mete Abab, and tolde hym. And Abab went to mete Elia. And it fortuned y whan Abab sawe Elia, he sayde vnto him: art thou he that troubleth Israel? he answered: it is not I that haue troubled Israel, but thou, and thy fathers house, in that ye haue forsaken the commaundementes of the Lorde, and thou hast folowed Baal. Nowe therfore sende and gather to me all Israel vnto mount Carmel, and the prophetes of Baal & foure hundred & spete, and the prophetes of the Idols groues foure hundred, which eate of Jezabells table. So Abab sent vnto all the chyldren of Israel, & gathered y prophetes together vnto mount Carmel.

And Elia came vnto all the people, and sayde: howe longe haite ye betwene two oppo-nions: If the Lord be God, followe hym: but yf Baal be he, then go after hym. And the people answered hym not one worde. Then layde Elia vnto the people agayne. I onely remaine a prophete of y Lord: but Baals prophetes are foure hundred and fyfte. Let them therefore geue vs two oxen, & let them chosse the one, & cut hym in peces, & laye hym on wodd, and put no fyre vnder: and I will dresse the other ox, & laye him on wodd, and will put no fyre vnder. And call ye on the name of youre God, & I will call on the name of the Lorde: and then the God that answereth by fyre, let him be God.

* I. reg. xvi. f. 1. E And all the people answered & sayde. yt is well spoken. And Elia sayd vnto the prophetes of Baal: chosse you an ox, and dresse hym fyre: for ye are many, and call on the name of your goddes, but put no fyre vnder.

* Mat. vi. 1. And they toke the one ox that he byd geue them, & they dyressed it: & called on the name of Baal from morninge to noone: sayng. O Baal heare vs. But there was no voyce nor one to answer. And they lepte vpon the auter that they had made. And at none it fortyned, that Elia mocked them, and sayde: crye lowde, for he is a God: peradventure he is talkinge or occupieng (in folowinge vpon his encynnyng) as he is in his iourneys, or happily he is slepyng, & must be awaked wth the pource crye. And they cryed lowde, and cut the felucers, as their maner was, wth knyves & knyfcs, tyll the bloude folowed on them. And it chaunced, y when myddaye was passed: & they prophesied vntill y tyme of y euenyng sacrifice. But there was neither voyce nor one to answer, nec any y regarded the.

* I. reg. xvi. f. 2. And Elia sayde vnto all the folke: come to me. And all y people came to hym. * And he repayed the auter of the Lord, that was broken. * And Elia toke xij. stones accordyng to the nombre of the xij. tribes of the sonnes of Jacob: vnto whō the worde of the Lorde came, sayng. * Israel shall be thy name. And wth the stones he made an auter in the name of the Lorde. And he made a dyche rounde about y auter. And he layde as two forowes of the corne felde. And he put the wodd in order, & he wode the ore in peces, & layd hym on the wodd, and sayde: fyll foure barels wth water, and powete it on the burnt sacrifice & on the wodd. And he sayd: do so agayne. And they byd to the thyrde tyme. And he sayde a gayne: do it the thyrde tyme. And they byd it the thyrde tyme. And the water ranne rounde about the auter, and he fylled the pitte wpth water also.

And it fortyned whē y tyme came (when y burnt sacrifice of y euenyng was vled to be offred) Elia the prophete came & sayd: Lord God of Abrahā, & Isaac & of Israel, it shall be knowen this daye, that thou art the God in Israel, & that I am thy seruant, & y I haue done all these thynges at thy commaundement: heare me! O Lorde! heare me, y this people maye knowe, that thou art y Lord God. & y hast turned they here agayne now at the last. * And the fyre of the Lord fell, & consumed the burnt sacrifice & y wodd, the stones & the dust, & lyched vnto the water y was in y pitte. And whē all y people sawe it, they fell on their faces, & sayd. The Lord, he is God, y Lord, he is God. And Elia sayde vnto the. Take the prophetes of Baal, & let not one of them escape. And they toke them, and Elia brought the vnto y brooke Risoun, & slue the thre. And Elia sayd vnto Ahab: gett y vp, eate and drinke, for ther is a foule of moche rayne. And so Ahab went vp to eate and to drinke, & Elia wet vp to y toppe of Carmel. And he layde y selfe flat vpon the erth, & put his face betwix his knees, & sayd to his seruant: go vp y praye y I looke towarde the waue of the see. And he wet vp & lohed, & sayde: there is nothyng. And he sayde: go agayne. vij. tymes. And it fortyned, ynt y tenth tyme he sayd: behold, ther ariseth a litle clowde of the see, lyke a mānes hande. he sayde: go, & saye vnto Ahab, Whā he fast thy charre, & gett the downe, y the rayne stoppe the not. And it came to passe, y in the meane while, y cheut was blacke wth clowdes & wide, & there was a great rayne. And Ahab gatt vps came to Jezreel. And the hād of y Lord was on Elia, & he gyrded vps yos loynes, & ranne before Ahab, tyll he came to Jezreel.

¶ The xix. Chapter.

¶ Elia being from Jezreel is nourished of the Angel of God, and is commoued to anointe Ahab, Jehu and Eliseus, whom the Hebrews call, Elissa.

And Ahab tolde Jezreel, all that Elia y had done, and howe he had slayne all the prophetes wth the sward. ¶ Then Jezreel sent a messenger vnto Elia, sayng: so & so let the goddes do to me, yf I make not thy soule lyke one of theys, by to morowe thys tyme. When he sawe that, he arose & went for his lyfe: and came to Beersaba in Iuda, & left his seruant there. But he hym selfe went a dayes iourney into the wilderness, and came and fast downe vnder a Juniper tree, and despyed for his soule: that he myght dye, and sayde, * it is nowe pough! O Lorde! take my soule, for I am not better then my fathers. * I. reg. xix. f. 3.

And as he laye and slepte vnder the Juniper tree: beholde, an Angell touched hym, and sayde vnto hym: vp, and eate. And whā he looked aboute hym: beholde, there was a bosome of broyled barde & a vessel of water at his heed. And he dyd eate and drinke, and layde him downe agayne to slepe. And the Angell of the Lorde came agayne the seconde tyme, and touched him, and sayd: vp, and eate, for thou hast yet a great iourneye. And

And he arose, and dyd ente and dyynke, and walked in the strengthe of that meate * foure dayes & foure nyghtes, euen vnto hore the mount of God. ¶ When he came thither into a cane, he lodged there in, all nyght.

And beholde, the wynde of the Lorde came to him & sayde vnto hym: what doest thou here Elia? And he answered, I haue bene gelous for the Lorde God of hostes sake. For the chyldre of Israel haue forsake thy counaunt, & broken downe thine autters, & slayne thy prophetes with the swerde, and I onlye am lefte, and theye seke my lyfe to take it awaye.

And he sayde: come out & stande vpon the mount, before the Lorde. And beholde * ¶ The Lorde went by, & a mygthie stronge wynde that rent the mountaynes & brake the rockes before the Lorde. But the Lorde was not in the wynde. And after the wynde came an eerty quake. But the Lorde was not in the eerty quake.

And after the eerty quake, came fire: but the Lorde was not in the fyre. And after the fyre, came a small spyll voyce. And when Elia hearde it, he covered his face with hys mantel, & went out & stode in the entreinge in of the caue.

And beholde, there came a voyce vnto him, & sayd: what doest thou here Elia? And he answered, I haue bene gelous for the Lorde God of hostes sake: because the chyldren of Israel haue forsaken thy counaunt, cast downe thine autters, & slayne thy prophetes with the swerde, & I onlye am lefte, & theye seke my lyfe to take it awaye.

And the Lorde sayde vnto him: go & turne thy waye to the wyldernesse vnto Samaria, that thou mayest annoynte * hazael, kyng ouer Siria.

And Elia the sonne of Amittai, shall thou annoynte kyng ouer Israel. And Elia the sonne of Shaphat of Abel Metholah shall annoynte to be prophete in thy royme. And it shall come to passe that whoso escapeyth the swerde of hazael, hym shall Iesu slaye: and yf any man scape the swerde of Iesu, hym shall Elia put to death. And therto * I haue lefte me senen thousande in Israel, of whych neuer man bowed his knies vnto Baal, nor kyssed him wyth hys mouth.

So he departed thence, & founde Elia the sonne of Shaphat plowying, & hauyng twelue yocke of oxen before him, & he w the twelue.

And Elia wet by him, & cast his mantell vpon him. And he lefte the oxen, & ranne after Elia & sayde: let me I praye the, kysse my father & my mother, & then I will folow. he sayd vnto him: go backe agayne, for what is it, & I haue done to thee? And wha he wet backe agayne sed him, he toke a couple of oxen, & slue them, and dyled the fleshe wyth the instrumentes of the oxen, & gaue vnto the people, and they dyd eate. And then he arose, & went after Elia, and mynistred vnto hym.

¶ The xx. Chapter.

¶ The xxiij. and xxxviij. time ¶ Samaria was besieged of Benhadad kyng of Siria.

And Benhadad the kyng of Siria gathered all his hostes together, hauyng .xxxij. kynges w hym, and hostes and chariottes: & went up and besieged Samaria, & warred agaynst it. And he sent messengers to Ahab kyng of Israel into the cytie, and sayde vnto him: thus sayeth Benhadad. Thy syluer and thy golde is myne, and the sayest of thy wyues, and of thy chyldren be myne. And the kyng of Israel answered and sayde: thy Lorde byng accordyng to thy sayeng, I am thine and all that I haue.

And when the messengers came agayne, they sayd: thus sayeth Benhadad. For as moche as I haue sent vnto the, sayng: thou shalt deliuer me thy syluer & thy golde, & thy wyues, & thy chyldren. I will therefore sende my seruantes vnto thee to meowen this tymes: & they shall seeche thine house, & the houses of thy seruantes. And what soeuer is preyed for in thine eyes, they shall take it in thine handes, and byng it awaye. ¶ Then the kyng of Israel sent for all the elders of the lande, & sayde: take hede I praye you, & se, howe theyr fellow goeth about my secheafe, for he set vs to me, for my wyues, for my chyldre, for my syluer & for my golde: & I deliued hym not. And all the elders & all the people sayde: herken not vnto hym, nor consent.

Wherefore he sayde vnto the messengers of Benhadad: tell my Lorde the kynges, all that thou dydest send for to the seruant at the first tymes, that I will do, but thus thing I maye not do. And the messengers departed, and brought answer agayne. And Benhadad sent vnto hym agayne, and sayd: and thus do the Gods vnto me, yf I dult of Samaria be ynough for all the people that folowe me, to take euery man an hundred. And the kyng of Israel answered, & sayde: tell hym: let not hym that putteth on his harness booke hym selfe, as he that putteth it of. And it fortuned, that wha Benhadad hearde that tydynges, as he was w hys myghte dyynkyng with in the pauplyons, he sayde vnto his seruantes, put on yd harness. And they set them selues in aray agaynst the cytie.

And beholde there came a Prophet vnto Ahab kyng of Israel, sayng: thus sayeth the Lorde. halt thou sene all this great multitude: behold, I will deliuer it into thine hande this daye, and thou shalt knowe, that I am the Lorde. And Ahab sayd: wshw he sayde: thus sayeth the Lorde: euen by the seruantes of yd gouernours of the chere. he sayde agayne: who shall orde the barapill? And he answered: thou. ¶ Then he nombred the seruantes of the gouernours of the chere: and they were two hundred and .xxxij.

¶ The iiij. And

And after them also, he nombred all the people, all the chyldre of Israhel, euen seven thousande. And they went out at none. But Benhadad dyd dryncke tyll he was dronchen in the panyllions both he and his knyghtes: euen xxiiij. knyghtes, that holpe hym. And the remainers of the gouernours of the tpyes went out first.

And Benhadad sent out, and they drew him, saying: there are not come out of Samaria. he said: Whether they be come out for peace, take them a lyne: or whether they be come out to fight, take them yet a lyne. And so those young men of the governors of the cities came out of the city, and the host after them, and they slew every one his enemy that came in his way. And the Syrians fled, and they of Israel followed after them. And Zebadad the king of Syria escaped on a horse, with his horsemen. And the king of Israel went out, and smote the horses chariottes, a with a great slaughter such be the Syrians.

And there came a Prophete forth hynge of Iſrael, and layde vnto hym: go forth and playe the man, be wyſe and ſaſie hebe what thou doſt-for: when the yere is gone aboute, the hynge of Siria will come vp againſt the,
and the ſeruauntes of the kynge of Si-ria layde vnto hym. The Gods of the hilles are there Gods, and therefore they had the better of vs: but let vs fight againſt them in the playne, and for what ye will, we thall haue the better of them. And this do take pſeyngd awaye every man out of his place, ſit þut bulkes in their rowmes. And do thou

And it fortuned, that after the price was gone about, Benhadad nombred the Syrians, and wēt by to Ahab to fight agaynst Israhell. And the chyldre of Israhel were nombred, & with theyr whole nombre went they agaynst them, and the chyldre of Israhel pitched before them, lyke two little flockes of hyddres: but the Syrians fylled the countreye. And there came a mik of God, and layde bynd to the kynge of Israhel: thus layth the Lorde: Because the Syrians have fauour'd the Lorde is not God of the hylls, and not God of the vales: therefore will I deliuer all this great multitude into thine hāde, & pe shall knowe, that I am the Lorde. And they pitched one ouer agaynll the other. viij. dayes, & it came to passe, & in the seuenth daye & daye was layned. And & chyldre of Israhel did of Syrians an hundred thousand fowr me i one daye. But the rest fled to Ahab into pgypt. And there fell a walle vpon, & xviij. thousand of men þ were leste. And Bēhadad fled, & came into the cytie, from chaubrie to chaubrie.

And his seruantes sayde vnto hym, Be-holde, we haue heere the lady, that is purchased of the house of Israel at mercerfull prices. We will therefore put this clothe aboute diopnes and robes aboute our neckes, as go out to the king of Ifrail: yf happily he will saunt the lyfe. And so they gyvede this clothe aboute theyr loynes, as yur robes aboute theyr bedes, & came to yf hyng of Ifrail, & sayde, The seruante Benhabad sayeth, I praye yf let me lyue. The sayde is he yet a lyue, he is my brother. And they toke yf woudt for good lucke a hastily caught it out of his mouth & sayde: yece thy brother Zhabad. The sayd go, bring him byther. And Benhabad came out vnto hym, & he cauled him to come yf vnto yf cha-reit. And he sayd vnto him: the cyries wyche my father toke fro thy father, I wyll restore again. And thou shalt make streets for yf in Samaria, as my father dyd in Samaria.
And yf wyll make an apoyntment with the, & send the awaye. And so he made an appointment with him, and sent him awaye.

And there was a certain man of þe childre of þe prophets, which sayde vnto his neygh-bour in the wordes of the Lord: A nyte me I praye the. And the mañ wold not impte him.
Then sayde he vnto him. Because thou hast not hearkened vnto þy voyce of the Lord: behold as soone as þat ar departed from me, a lyf shall slay the. And it came to passe, þas soone as he was departed fro him, * a lyon founde him, & slayd him. Then he founde another man & sayde: Impte me I praye the. And the man knowe him, to that in smynghe he wounded þym. So þy Prophet went forth, & wayted for the kyng by the waye, & put him selfe out of knowledge wth all men, which he laped vpon hys face. And whē the kyng cam by, he crept vnto þy kyng, & sayd: þy lieuour wert thou in þy wyddes of þy battell. And beholde, there w^{as} a waye a man, w^{ho} another man brought vnto me, and sayde: kepe this man. And yf he be mysed or lost, thy lyf-fe shall go for his: or else, thou shalt paye a rent of syluer. And was gone the frumle had bene there to do, he w^{as} not gone. And the kyng of Israel sayde vnto hym: euen so shall thy judgment be, as thou hast defenyd thy selfe.

And he hasted, & toke a pallers awaye fro his face: & the kping of Iſrael knewe him, & he was of p prophesies. And he ſayde vnto him, thus ſayth y^e Lorde, becauſe thou haſt lett go a man that thy^e ſelf is in my cuelle, thy ſelf ſhall go for his life, and thy people for his people. And y^e kping of Iſrael went to his houſe, wayward: & diſpleaſure, came to Samaria:

● The.π. Chapter

¶ Jezebel commaundeth to Ahiab, Naboth, for the drtyard that he refused to sell to Ahab. Balaam reproveth Ahab, and he repenteth.

148. viii.

After these thynges, it chaunced, þat Naboth the Jezrehelite had a vyneparde in Jezrebel, hard by þe palace of Ahab kyng of Samaria. And Ahab spake vnto Naboth, sayge. * Geue me thy vyneparde, þat I maye make me a garden of yerbes therof, because it lyeth so nye my house. * I will geue the for it a better vyneparde then it is: or rather if it please the, I will geue the, þat worthe of it in money. And Naboth sayde to Ahab: the Lorde forbyd þe fro me, that I shulde geue the inheritance of my father vnto the.

And Ahab came into hys house heuy. * As he enell a payde, because of the worde which Naboth the Jezrehelite had spoken to him, for he had sayde: I wyl not geue the the inheritance of my father. And he layde him downe vpon his bed, and turned awaye his face, (to the wall) and wolde eate no bread.

But Jezabel hys wyfe came to him, and sayde vnto hym: why is thy payse so wayward, that thou eatest no bread? And he sayde vnto her: for I spake vnto Naboth the Jezrehelite, and sayde vnto hym: geue me thy vyneparde for money: or else if it please þe, I wyl geue the another vyneparde for it. And he answered: I wyl not geue the my vyneparde.

And Jezabel his wyfe sayde vnto hym: wolt thou thus gouerne the kyngedom of Israel: vp, & eate bread, and let thyne heart rest. I will geue the, þat vyneparde of Naboth the Jezrehelite. And so she wrote a letter in Ahab's name, and sealed it with hys seale, and sent the letter vnto the elders and to the nobles that were in hys cytye dwellinge with Naboth. And she wrote in þe letter, sayenge: pproclayne a fast, and let Naboth on hys amonge the people, and let two vntyffes before him, to beare witness vnto hym, as thou dydest blasphemie God and the kyng. And then carrye hym out, and stone hym to deeth.

And the men of his cytye: that is to saye, which dwelt in his cytye, did as Jezabel had sent vnto them, and as it was wyttne in the letter wherof he had sent vnto them. They proclaymed a fastyng, and let Naboth amonge the cheefe of the people, & there came in two men, the children of Belial, and stode before him. And the two vntyffes persons were, nelled agaynst Naboth, in the presence of þe people, sayge: Naboth dyd blasphemie God and the kyng. * And they caried hym out of his cytye, and stoned hym with stones that he dyed. And then they sent to Jezabel, sayge: Naboth is stoned to deeth. And it fortuneth when Jezabel heerd that Naboth was stoned to deeth: she sayde to Ahab: vp, & take possession of the vyneparde of Naboth, the Jezrehelite, which he denied to geue the for money, for Naboth is not aliv, but dead. And when Ahab hearde that Naboth was dead, he rode vp to go downe to the vyneparde of Naboth the Jezrehelite, and to take possession of it.

And the worde of the Lorde came vnto Elia the Thelbite, sayge: vp and go downe to mete Ahab kyng of Israel, which is in Samaria. For so, he is gone downe to þe vyneparde of Naboth: to take possession of it. And therefore shalt thou saye vnto him thus sayth the Lorde: halt thou kyled, & gotten possession. And thou shalt speake vnto him þe sayeng: thus sayth the Lorde * in the place wher dogges lyched the bloud of Naboth, shall dogges likee enen thy bloud also. And Ahab sayde to Elia: halt thou founde me, o thou myne enemye: he answered: I have founde the: for þat euell folde to worthe wickednesse in the syght of the Lorde. Beholde, I will bring euell vpon the, and will make cleane riddance of the posterite: & wil * destrope fro Ahab, enen him þat maileth water agaynst þe wall, & him þat is out vp & left brynde in Israel: & will make thyne house, lyke the house of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, & lyke the house of Baasha the sonne of Achia, for the prouocation, wherwith þu halt prouoked, and made Israel to synne.

150. ix.
151. i.
152. i.
153. i.

And of Jezabel sayke the Lorde sayeng: * dogges shall eate Jezabel, in the possession of Jezrehel. * And he that depeth of Ahab in þe towne, him shal dogges eate: & he þat depeth in the felde, him shal the foules of the ayre eate. But there was none lyke Ahab which dyd enen sell hym selfe, to worke wickednesse in the syght of the Lorde, and that because Jezabel hys wyfe pyched hym forwarde. He dyd erre aduynge abhominable, in folowynge foule doctores, according to all thynges, as did the Ammonites * whom the Lorde cast out before the children of Israel.

154. x.

And it fortuneth, that when Ahab hearde those wordes, * he rent hys clothes, and put sackcloth about his flesh, and fasted, and laye in sack and went bare fote. And the worde of the Lorde came to Elia the Thelbite, sayenge: seest thou how Ahab humbled hym selfe before me: because he to submyteth hym selfe before me. I wyl not bringe that euell in his dayes: but in his sonnes dayes, wyl I bringe euell vpon hys house. And they continued there yere without warre betwene Siria and Israel.

¶ The .xxii. Chapter.

ouer fyfte: (with his fyfte men) which came to him, & beholde, he satt on the topp of an hyll. And he spake vnto hym: Thou man of God, the kyng hath sayd: come downe. Elia answered and sayd to the captayne ouer the fyfte: pf I be a man of God, fyre come downe from heauen, and consume the & thy fyte. * And there came fire of God, and consumed him and his fyte. And the kyng went agayne, & sent to him another captayne ouer fyfte wryth hys fyte. And he answered and sayde vnto hym: O man of God, thus hath the kyng sayd: make hast, and come downe. Elia answered and sayd vnto them: pf I be a man of God, fyre come downe from heauen, and consume the & thy fyte. And there came fyre of God downe from heauen, & consumed hym and hys fyte.

* 2. K. 1. 10.

And the kyng went agayne and sent the thirde captayne ouer fyfte to his fyte me. And the thirde captayne ouer fyfte went up and came & fell on his knees before Elia & besought him, and sayde vnto hym: O man of God, let my lyfe and the lyfe of thyse fyte thy seruantes be precious in thy syght. Beholde, there came fire downe from heauen, and burnt vp the two foze captaynes ouer fyfte with their fytes: therefore let my lyfe now be precious in thy syght. And the Angell of the Lorde sayd vnto Elia: go downe to him, & be not asfraid of him. And he arose, and went downe wryth hym vnto the kyng.

And he sayd vnto hi, thus sayth p Lorde: for as moche as thou hast sent messengers to aske counsell at Bethel, & God of Ekro as though there had bene no God in Israll, whose worde thou mightest seke after: therefore thou shalt not come downe of the bedd on which thou art gone vp, but shalt dye the death. And so he dyed accordyng to p worde of the Lorde which Elia had spoket. And Jehoram: s the sonne begonne to raigne in his steade, in the seconde year of Jeiozabab the sonne of Jeiozabab kyng of Iuda, because he had no soune. ¶ Then the kyng sent vnto him a captayne ouer fpyte, with his fpytie men, which came to him: and beholde, he satt onf toppes of an hill. And he spake vnto him: ¶ Thou man of God, the kyng hath sayd: come downe. Eli answered and sayde to the captayne ouer the

And the kyng went agayne, & sent to him another captayne ouer fpyte with his fpytie. And he answered and sayde vnto him: ¶ Man of God, thus hath the kyng sayd: make hast, and come downe. Eli answered and sayde vnto them: yf I be a man of God, fpye come downe from heauen, and consume the & thy fpytie. And there came fpye of God downe from heauen, & consumed him and his fpytie.

¶ And the kyng went agayne and sent the thirde captayne ouer fpyte wth his fpytie men. And the thirde captayne ouer fpyte wnt vp and came & fell on his knees before Eli and brought him, and sayde vnto him: ¶ Man of God, let my lyfe and the lyfe of these fpytie, thy seruantes be precious in thy syght. ¶ And there came fpye downe fro heauen, and burnt by the two fore captaynes ouer fpyte with their fpyties: therfore let my lyfe now be precious in thy syght. And the Angell of the Lorde sayde vnto Eli: go downe to him, & be not afraid of him. And he arose, and went downe with him vnto the kyng.

¶ And he sayde vnto him, thus sayth the Lorde: for as much as thou hast sent messengers to aske counsell at Bethel, because the God of Ekron as though there had bene no God in Israel whose worde y mightest lye after: therefore thou shalt not come downe of the bedd on which thou art gone vp, but shalt dye the death. And so he dyed accordyng to the worde of the Lorde which Eli had spoken. ¶ And Jehoiam (his brother) beganne to rage in his reade, in the seconde yere of Jehoiam the sonne of Jeholaphat kyng of Iuda, because he had no sonne. ¶ Eli dreameth the waters with his mantell. He is taken vp in to heuen. The dryt & benigne waters are heate. The children that moue Eli: these other people called Eli, are rent in peces.

¶ Addit chauned, that whā the Lorde wolde take vp Eli in to heuen, by a wholse wind, Eli went with Eli from Sugil. And Eli sayde vnto Eli: ¶ here I praye the, for the Lorde hath sent me to Bethel. Eli sayde vnto him: ¶ as surely as the Lorde liueth, and as thy soule lyeth, I will not leane the. And they came downe to Bethel, And the chyldren of the prophetes y were at Bethel, came out to Eli, & sayde vnto him: knowest thou not, howe that the Lorde will take awaye thy matter fro thy head this daye? he sayde: I knowe it also holde ye your peace.

¶ And Eli sayde vnto him. Eli, saye here I praye the, for the Lorde hath sent me to Jericho. he sayde: as surely as the Lorde liueth and as surely as thy soule lyeth, I will not leane the, & so they came to Jericho. And the chyldren of the prophetes y were at Jericho came to Eli and sayde vnto him: knowest thou not, that the Lorde will take awaye thy matter from thy head this daye? he answered: I knowe it also, holde ye your peace. And Eli sayde vnto him: saye I praye the here, for the Lorde hath sent me to Iordan. he sayde: as surely as the Lorde liueth, and as thy soule lyeth, I will not leane y. And so they two went together. And ftyttemen of the sonnes of y prophetes came and rode on y other syde a farr of, and they two rode by Iordan.

¶ And Eli toke his mantell and wapped it together, & smote the waters, and they were drayned, parte the one wape & parte y other, so that they two went ouer thozowe drye lande. And it fortyned, that as soone as they were ouer, Eli sayd vnto Eli: aske what I shall do for the, per I be take awaye from the. And Eli sayde: I praye the, let thy spete be do woble wth me. And he sayde, thou hast asked an hard thyng. ¶ Nevertheless, yf thou se me whan I am taken awaye from the thou shalt haue it so: yf thou do not, it shall not be. And when the chyldren of the prophetes which were at Jericho sawe hym from a farr, they sayde: the spyrte of Elisa dothe rest on Elisa, and they came to meete him, and fell to the grounde before him, & sayde vnto hym. See: there be with thy seruantes cystic stroge men: let them go & sette thy master: haplype thy spyrte of the Lorde hath taken hym vp, and cast hym vpon some mountayne or in to some valleye. And he sayde. Ye shall see none. And when they laye vpon him tyll he was aduamed, he sayde. Send. They sent therfore cystic men, which sought him the dayes and the nyghtes, but founde him not. And when they came agayne to him, which taried at Jericho, he sayde vnto the: byd I not saye vnto you, that ye shoulde not go?

And the men of the cystic sayde vnto Elisa beholde, howe, the dwellynge of this cyste is pleasaunt as thou thy selfe seest: but the water is thought & the grounde barren. He sayde. Wrynge me a new ruse, and put salt therein. And they brought it to him. And he wete vnto the springe of the waters, and cast the salt in thither, & sayde: thus sayeth y. Lorde. I haue healed this water, ther shall not come hereafter the ether deeth or barrenesse. So y waters were healed vnto this daye, accordyng to the sayinge of Eliseus, which he spake.

And he went vnto thence vnto Bethel. And as he was goinge vnto the waye, there came cyste chyldre out of the cyste, & mocked him, & sayd vnto him. Go vp thou bald heed, go vp thou bald heed. And he turned backe, and looked on them, and cursed them in the name of the Lorde. And there came two beares out of their woodd, & tare the chyldren of them. And he went from thence to mount Carmel, and from thence he turned agayne to Samaria.

The. iij. Chapter.

¶ The kynges of Israel, Juda and Edom lache water, which ther obtayne through the prayer of Eliseus. The kynges of Moab fighteth against Israel.

Jehozam the sonne of Ihab begynne to raygne vpon Israel in Samaria the. xviij. yere of Jehosaphat kyng of Juda, and raygned twelue yeres. And he wrought euill in the syghte of the Lorde: but not lyke his father and lyke his mother, for he put awaye y. ymagines of Baal, that his father had made. Reuerthelesse, he cleaued vnto the synnes of Ieroboam the sonne of Nebat (which made Israel to synne) and departed not there from.

And Westi kyng of Moab was a Lorde of thepe, and rendered vnto the kyng of Israel an hundred thousand lamhes & an hundred thousande rammes with y. wolles. But when Ihab was deyd, it fortunied, that the kyng of Moab rebelled agaynst the kyng of Israel. And kyng Jehozam went out of Samaria the same season, and nombred all Israel, & wete, & sent to Jehosaphat y. kyng of Juda, sayyng: the kyng of Moab hath offendd agaynst me, wilt thou come with me agaynst Moab to battell? he answered: I wyll come vp, for as I am, so act y. and no my people be, so are thy people, & thy hostes as myne. And he sayde. What waye shall we go vnto? And he answered. The waye thow the wilderness of Edom.

And so the kyng of Israel toke his iourneye, and the kyng of Juda, & the kyng of Edom. And when they had compassed y. waye seven dayes, they had no water for the hoost and for the cattell that followen them. And y. kyng of Israel sayde. Alas, y. Lorde hath called these three kynges together, to deliuer the one into the hande of Moab. But Jehosaphat sayde: is there not here a prophet of the Lorde, that we maye enquire of y. Lorde by him? And one of the kynges of Israel seruaunts answered and sayde: here is Elisa y. some of Shaphat, which powred water on the haires of Elisa. And Jehosaphat sayde. Is not the woide of the Lorde w. hym? And so the kynges of Israel, & Jehosaphat and the kyng of Edom went down to him.

And Elisa sayde vnto the kynges of Israel. What haue I to do with the? Set the, to the prophetes of thy father, and to the prophetes of thy mother. And the kynges of Israel sayd vnto him. Chynape, for of the Lorde hath called these three kynges together to deliuer the into the hande of Moab. And Elisa sayde: as sure as y. Lorde of hostes lyeth in whose syght I stand, and it were not, y. regard y. presence of Jehosaphat the kyng of Juda, I wolde not loke towards the, nor yet se the. But nowe bringe me a mynstrell. And wha the mynstrell played, the hande of the Lorde came vnto him. And he sayde. Thus sayeth y. Lorde. Make this playne grounde full of dyches. For thus sayeth the Lorde: ye shall see whether wynde nor raine, & yet the broke shall be fylled w. water, that ye maye dryynke, both ye, and your beastes, and your cattell. And this is yet but a small thyng in the syght of the Lorde, for almoche as he will geue our y. Moabites alio into your handes. And ye shall synne euery thynge to wone, and euery goodlye cyste, and shall sell euery pleynne free, and stoppe euery well of water, and marre euery good platte of grounde with stones. And in the morninge, when the meate-offeryng was offred, it fortunied, that there came water by the waye from Edom, and the contreye was fylled with water.

And when all the Moabites heard of the kynges were come vp to fyght agaynst the, they gathered all to geather, fro y. youngest that that was able to put on harnesse and to vppwarde, and stode in the border of the lande.

And they were vp early in the morninge and ran sonne shone vpon the water, that the Moabites sawe the water a farre of as red as bloude, and they sayde. This is y^e bloude of slaughter: the kynges are slayne and one hath synnt another. Howe therfore Moab getteth to the people. And whē they came to the hoste of Israel, the Israelites stode vpon and smote the Moabites, so that they fled before them, but they folowed vpon them, & smote Moab. And they ouerthrew the cyties, & on euery good parcell of lāde, cast euery mā his stone, and fylled it, and they stooped all the wellies of waters, and feld all y^e good trees. And in the cytie of Iherich they the stones ther of howbeit they went aboute it with synges, and smote it.

And when the kyng of Moab sawe, that the battell was fore agaynst him, he toke wth him seuen hundred men that drew y^e sword to haue gone thowoe, euen vnto y^e kyng of Edo: but they coude not. And then he toke his eldest sonne, that shoulde haue raygned in his steade, & offered him for a burnt offering vpon the wall. And ther was great indigna cyon agaynst Israel, and they departed from him, and returned to their owne lande.

¶ The iij. Chapter.

¶ Soberth a certen pious woman vnto a floure by laetius. De alius: whom the text calleth Eliza: daughter of Sods a floure for his holles: which beeth and is left to the life. Be mactio for the portage and mactio the toke.

AND there cryed a certen woman of the wyues of the prophetes vnto Elisa, sayinge: thy seruau^t my husbande is deed, and thou knowest, that thy seruau^t dyd feare the Lorde. And the creche is come, to sett my two sonnes, to be his bondemen. Elisa sayde vnto her. Tell me what shall I do for y^e? What hast thou in thine house? She sayde, thine handmayde hath no tounge at all in y^e house, save a pether with ople. He sayde vnto her: So & doo we bestell for the, of them that are without euen of all thy neybourcs, empie vesselles and that not a fewe. And when thou art come in, thou shalt shutt the doze after the mō after thy sonnes, and pouze out into all those vesselles, and sett asyde y^e which is full.

And so the woman went from him, and shutt the doze after her and after her sonnes. And they brought to her, & she pouzed out. And it came to passe, that when the vesselles were full, she sayde vnto her sonne: bypze me yet a vessel. And he sayde vnto her: I haue no mo. And the oyle ceased. When she came, and tolde the man of God. And he sayde: go & sell the oyle, & paye the y^e thou art in debt vnto, but lye y^e & thy chyldren of y^e red. ¶

And it fell on a daye, that Elisa came to Shoun, where was a great woman, y^e toke him in, for to cate brede. And so it came to passe, that frō that tyme forth (as ofte as he came y^e waye) he turned in thither to cate brede. And she sayde vnto her husbande. Beholde, I perceaue, that this is a holy man of God, that cometh to off by ouer place. Let vs make him a chaubie (I paye the) with walles, & let vs set him there a beed, & a table, & stole & a candelstick: that he maye tunc in thither when he cometh to vs.

And it fortuned on a daye, y^e he came thither & turned into the chaubie, & laye there. ¶ And he sayde to Gehazi his seruau^t: call this Sunamite. And when he called her, she presented byr selfe before hym. And agayne he sayde vnto him: Tell her. Beholde, thou hast bene carefull for vs, and hast made all thy pious. What shall we nowe do for y^e? Woldest thou be spoken for to the kyng or to the captayne of the hoste? She answered & dwelt amonge myne owne people. And he sayde agayne, what is to be done for her? She answered. Certely she hath no chyld, & her husbande is olde. And he sayde: call her. And when he had called her, she stode in the doze. And he sayde & by such a tyme, and as she came as the fente can lue, then shalt embrace a sonne. And she sayde: Dō maye my Lorde, y^e mā of God, do not lye vnto thine hād maye. And the wyfe conceaued, and bare a sonne y^e same cralon that Eliscus had layde vnto her as lone as the fente coude haue lyfe.

And when the chyld was growne, it fell on a daye, that he went out to his father, and to the reapers. And he sayde vnto his father, my herd, my heed. And he sayd to a lad. Carpe him to his mother. And when he had taken him and brough him to his mother, he late on her knes till none, and then dyed. And he went vp, and layde him on the bed of the man of God, and shutt the doze about him, and went out, and called vnto her husbande and sayde: sende with me (I paye y^e) one of the younge mē & one of the asses, for I will runne to the man of God, and come agayne. And he sayde: wherefore wilt thou go to him seinge that to daye is nether newe mone nor Saboth daye. She answered: For health. Then she laddell an ass, & sayde to her seruau^t: leade a waye the ass, and make her not to go slowly (because I yde vpon her) but when I byd the.

¶ And so she went & came vnto the man of God, to mount Carmel. And it fortuned: that when the mā of God sawe her farre off, he sayde to Gehazi his seruau^t: Beholde, y^eder is the Sunamite. Make therfore to meete her, and saye vnto her: Is all well with the and with thy husbande, & with the ladde? And she answered: All is well. And whē she came to the

to the man of God vnto the hyll, he caughte him by the fete. But Gehazi went to her, to thrust her awaye. And y^e man of God sayde: let her alone, for her soule is vexed with hie. And the Lorde hath hidde it from me, and hath not tolde it me. Then the ladye: byd I desire a soune of my Lorde: byd I not requere the, that thou shouldest not diseraue me?

Then he sayde to Gehazi: * gyde vnto thy loynes, and take my staffe in thyn hande, and go thy waye. * If I meete anye ma^e, I salute him not. And yf anye salute the, answere him not agayne. And laye my staffe vnto the face of the chyldre. And the mother of the chyldre sayde: * as sure as the Lorde lyueth, & as thy soule liueth. I will not leaue y. And he arose and followed her. Gehazi went before them, & layed the staffe vpon the face of the chyldre. But there was nerher voyce nor any feling. Wherfore he went agayne to mete him, and tolde him, sayyng: the chyldre is not awaked.

And when Elisa was come into y^e house: Beholde, the chyldre was deed and layde vnto his bed. He went in therfore, & thus the voyce of the ladd and him, and prayed vnto y^e Lorde. * And went vnto the ladd, & put his mouth on his mouth, & his eyes vnto his eyes, & his handes vpon his handes, and whā he laye vpon the chyldre, the flesshe of the chyldre waxed warme. And he wet agayne, & walked once vnto and downe in y^e house, and then went vnto, and layed him selfe vpon him agayne. And then y^e chyldre gasped seven times, and opened his eyes. And he called Gehazi, & sayde: Call for this Summarite. So he called her: which whā she was come in vnto him, he sayde vnto her: take thy sone. Therfore she went in, and fell at his fete, & bowed her selfe to the grounde, and toke vnto her sone, and went out. * Elisa came agayne to Silgal, and there was a dearth in the lande, and the chyldre of the prophetes dwelt with him. And he sayde vnto his seruante. Set a great pot on the fyre, and make portage for the chyldren of the prophetes. And one went out vnto the felde, to gather herbes, & founde as it were a wilde vyue, and gathered thereof toptide Coloponydas his laype full, & came, & shewed them into the pott of portage: for they knewe it not. So they powdered out for the men to eat. And it fortuned, y^e when they tasted of the portage, they cryed out, and sayde: O thou man of God, there is death in the pot: and they coude not eate thereof. But he sayde: byngie meate. And he cast it into y^e pot, & sayde: fyll for the people, that they nape eate, and there was no more harme in the pot.

There came a man from Baal Salisa, & broughte the man of God bread of y^e fyrr frutes, and xx. loaves of barley, and newe cozne which was yet in his bagges. And he sayde:

Geue vnto the people, that they maye eate. And his mynster answered: why, shall I let this before an hundred men? he sayde agayne: geue it vnto the people that they maye eate. For thus sayth the Lorde: & they shall eate, and ther shall be left ouer. And he set it before them, & they byd eate, and left ouer, accordyng to the worde of the Lorde.

¶ The v. Chapter. ¶

¶ Raaman the Syrian is heale of his leprosie. Gehazi is therfore with a leprosie, because he forsooke moine and rayment of Raaman.

N Raaman, captayne of the hoste of the kyng of Siria, was a grate man, and honorable in the syghe of his master: because y^e by him the Lorde had geueⁿ health vnto syria. He was also a myghtie man, and expert in warre, but he was a leper. And the Syrians had gone out by capaynes, & had brought out of the contreye of Israel a leyle mayde, & she was with Raamans wyfe. And the ladye vnto her ladye: I wold to God my Lorde were with the prophet that is in Samaria: for he wolde deliuer him of his leprosie. And he went in, and tolde his Lorde, sayyng: thus and thus sayde the mayde, that is of y^e lade of Israel. And y^e kyng of Siria: Come and entre in, and I will sende a letter vnto the kyng of Israel. And he came, and toke with him ten talents of siluer, and by thousande peces of golde, & ten change of raimentes, and brought the letter to y^e kyng of Israel contaynyng thus renoure: I owe when this letter is come vnto the, Beholde, I haue therewith sent Raaman my seruante to the, that thou mayest rydde him of his leprosie. And it fortuned, that when y^e kyng of Israel had redde the letter, he rent his clothes, and sayde: * am I God, that I shoulde slaye, & make alpyre: for he doth sende to me that I shoulde deliuer a man from his leprosie. Wherfore sayst thou? I praye you, let he whiche seareth a quarell agaynst me, which whā Elisa the man of God had bragde, howe that the kyng of Israel had rent his clothes. he sent to y^e kyng, sayyng: Wherfore hast thou rent thy clothes? let him come now to me, & he shall knowe, y^e there is a prophet in Israel.

And so Raaman came to his lordes and with his charrettes, ab stode at the doze of the house of Elisa. And Elisa fene a pessenger vnto him, sayyng: go and wade y^e in Jordā seven tymes, & thy flesshe shall come agayne to the, & thou shalt be cleane. But Raaman was wroth, & wet a waye, & sayde. Beholde I thoughte wth my selfe: he wolde surely come out, and stande & call on the name of y^e Lorde his God, and put his hande on the place that he maye heale the leprosie. He not Abana & Pharphar, ryuers of Damasco, better then all the waters of Israel? yf I waike me also in them

The. vi. Chapter.

* 1. ſ. 1. 1. Eliſus maketh prou to ſtoppage about the ſire. The ſirians beſage Iſrael, ſo that two kynges agree together to ſale theſe alone chylde.

The chyldre of the prophetes ſayde vnto Eliſa: Beholde, the place where we dwelle with yf is to leſte for vs. We wyll therefore go vnto Jordan, and take thence euer yf a beanie, and bynde vs a place, to dwell in. And he answered: goo. And one ſayde: be content I praye the, and come with thy ſervantes. And he answered: I will come, and ſo he went with them.

And when they came to Jordan, they cutt downe wood. But it fortuned, that as one was ſellenge downe of a tre, the axe hee fel into the water. And he cryed, & ſayde: Alas maſter, it was lent me. And the man of God ſayde: Where fell it? And he ſhewed him the place. And he cutt downe a ſpyke, & caſt it in thither, & immediately the yf dyd ſwemme. Therefore ſayde he: take it vp. And he ſtreched out his hande, and toke it vp.

But the kynges of Siria warred agaynſt Iſrael, & toke counsell with his ſervantes, and ſayde: In poudre ſecrete place ſhalbe my remainyng. And the man of God ſent vnto the kynges of Iſrael, ſayinge: Beware, that thou go not ouer to ſuch a place, for there the Syrians are lurking. Therefore the kynges of Iſrael ſent to the place whiche the man of God tolde him, and warned him of, & ſaured him ſelfe from it, not once nor twyſe.

And the hart of the kynges of Siria was troubled for this thinge, and he called for his ſervantes and ſayde vnto them: wyll ye not ſewe me, which of oure men * 1. ſ. 1. 1. be the kynges of Iſrael? And one of his ſervantes ſayde: none my Lorde a kyng. But Eliſa the wyſe, that is in Iſrael, telleth the kynges of Iſrael, yea euen, the wordes yf thou ſpeakſt in thy pynne childe. He ſayde: go, & ſpie where he is, that I maye ſende and ſett him. And one tolde him, ſayinge: beholde, he is in Moſha. Therefore ſent he thither boyes and charrettes, and a myghtye hoſte. And they came by nyght, & copelled yf about.

And when the ſervant of the ma of God roſe by earlye to go out: Beholde, there was an hoſt round about the towne with boyes and charrettes. And his ſervant ſayde vnto hym:

him: Als master, what shall we do? he answered: feare not, for they that be with vs, are moo then they that be with them. And Elisa prayed and sayde: Lorde (I beseeche þe) open þys eyes, that he maye se. And the Lorde opened the eyes of the yonge man. And beholde, the mountayne was full of horses, and charrettes of fyre rounde aboute Elisa. And when they came downe to hym, Elisa prayed vnto the Lorde, and sayde: Smyte this people (I praye the) with blindness. And he smote them with blindness, according to the besye of Elisa. And Elisa sayde vnto them: this is not the waye, nether is this the towne: folowe me, and I will bringe you to the mā whom ye seeke. But he ledde them to Samaria.

And it fortuned, that when they were come to Samaria, Elisa sayde: Lorde, open their eyes, that they maye se. And the Lorde opened their eyes, and they sawe. And beholde, they were in the myddes of Samaria. And the kynge of Israel sayde vnto Elisa, when he sawe them: My father, shall I smyte them? And he answered: Thou shalt not smyte them. But smyte those that thou hast taken with thync awne swordes, and wth thync awne bowe. But rather let bread and water befoze them, that they maye cate and drynke, and go to their master. And he prepared a great refection for them. And when they had eaten and dronke, he sent the awaye and they went to their master. And so the soundpoures of Syria came no more into the lande of Israel.

¶ After this it chaunced, that Zebadab kynge of Siria gathered all his hoste & wte vp, and beseged Samaria. But there was a greate dearth in Samaria: and beholde, they beseged it, vntyll an Alles heerd (was solde) for foure hore spicer pens, and the fourth part of an Cab of bones donge for fyne flesch. And as þy kynge of Israel was gounge vpo the wall, there ceyed a womā vnto him sayinge: helpe, my Lorde & kynge. he sayde: yf þe Lorde do not succoure the: wherewith can I helpe the? & w the barne, or w the wyne presse? And the kynge sayde vnto her: what wilt þe? She answered: ponder womā sayde vnto me: byynge thy sonne, þe we maye cate him to daye, and we will cate myne to morowe. * And so we dyelled my sonne and dyd cate him. And I sayde to her the other daye: byynge thy sonne þe we maye cate hym, and the hath byrd her sonne. And it came to passe, that when the kynge hearde þe wordes of the woman, he rent his clothes, and went vp on the wall. And the people looked: and beholde he had a sack cloth vnder, vpon bys flesche. Then he sayde: * God do so & so to me, pf the heerd of Elisa þe sonne of Saphat shall scide on him this daye. But Elisa satt in his house and the elders satt by him, & the kynge sent a minit befoze him. But per the messenger came to him, he sayde to the elders: haue ye not se, howe that the sonne of this murder-er hath sent, to take a waye in mynched: he circumspect when the messenger cometh, and shut the doze, and holde him at the doze: is not the fownde of hymynaltes feete bynde him? Whyle he yet talked with the. & beholde þe messenger came downe vnto him, & sayde beholde, the threeuelt is of þe Lorde, & what more shall I tolke for of the Lorde.

¶ The viij. Chapter.

¶ Elisa propheseth the trouble of battles and other thinges to Samaria. The Syrians tunc abate & haue no man folowynge them. The Lorde that woulde not beleue the wordes of Elisa is tressed to death.

Ehen Elisa sayde: beare ye the word: of the Lorde: thus sayth þe Lorde. * to morowe this thinge shall a boultrell of thyns houre be solde for a shele, and two boultrells of barley for a shele in the gate of Samaria. ¶ Then a certayne Lorde on whose hand the kynge leaned, answered the man of God, and sayde: beholde, yf the Lorde woulde make windowes in heuen, myghte this sayng come to passe: he sayde: Beholde, thou shalt it w thyne eyes, but shalt not cate thereof.

And there were foure leperous men at þe entreng in of þe gate. And thei sayde one to another, why lyet we here, vntill we dye? ¶ If we saye: we will entre into the cite, beholde: the death is in the cite, and we shall by the-ryn. And yf we lytt still here, we dye also. ¶ Nowe therfore come, and let vs fall vpo the hoste of the Syrians: if they sawe our lyues we shall lyue: yf they kyll vs, then are we deed. And so they arose in the nyght, to go to the hoste of þe Syrians. And when they were come to the vtmost parke of the hoste of Siria: beholde, there was no man there.

¶ For the Lorde had made the hoste of the Syrians: * to beare a noyse of charrettes and a noyse of hostes, & the noyse of a great hoste. In so much þe they sayde one to another, lo, þe kynge of Israel hath byrd agaynst vs þe kyn- ges of the herbitres, and the kynges of the Egyptians, to come vpo vs. Wherfor they arose and fled in þe nyght, and left their restes their hostes, and their Alles, and the shele which they had yfchedene as it was, & fled for their lyues. And when these lippers came to the edge of the host, they wte into a tent, & dyd cate, & drynke, & carped thence spicer, & gold and raymet, and went and hyddit: came agayne and entred into another tent, and carped thence also, and went and hyddit.

¶ Then sayde one to another: We do not well this daye, for in so much as it is a daye to bringe good thynges, & we holde our pence yf we carpe tpyl þe daye tpygh, some mischefe will will come vpon vs. Howe therfore come, that we maye goo, and tell the kynges hou-

C holde. And so they came, & called vnto the porter of the cytie, and tolde them sayinge: we came to the panyons of the Syrians: & se, there was no man there, neither voyce of man, but howles and wailing, and the tentes were, such as they were wont to be.

And so the man called vnto the porters, & they tolde the kynges houle within. And the kynges arose in the myght, and sayde vnto his seruantes. I will hit you now, what the Syrians haue done vnto vs. They knowe that we be hungrye, & therfore are they gone out of the panyons, to hyde them selues in the felde, sayinge: What they come out of the cytie, we shall catch them alyue, and get into the cytie. And one of his seruantes answered, and sayde. Let men take I praye you: fyue of y^e hostes that remaine, and are left in the multitude. Scholde they are cū as all the multitude of Israel that are left in y^e cytie. Scholde I saye they are cū as all the multitude of y^e Israelites that are consumed, & we will sende, & se. They toke therfore the hostes of two charrettes, and the lyng sent after the hoste of the Syrians, sayinge: go, & se. And they went after them, cū vnto Jordan: and so, all the waye was full of clothes and vessels which the Syrians had cast from them in their haste.

And the messengers returned, and tolde the kynges. And the people went out, & spoyled the tentes of the Syrians. And so it came to passe, that a bushell of spyn flower was sold for a syke, and two bushelles of barley for a syke: according to the woide of the Loide. And the kynges appointed y^e Loide (on whose hand he leaned) to be at the gate. And y^e people trode vpon him in the gate, and he dyed, according to the woide of the man of God which he sayde, when y^e kynges came downe to him. And so came the thyng to passe y^e man of God had spoken to y^e kynges, sayinge: two bushelles of barley for a syke, & a bushell of spyn flower for another, shalbe to moow we this tyme in the gate of Samaria. Wher vnto that Loide answered the mā of God, and sayde. Yee, and yf y^e Loide made wryndowes in heauē myght it come to passe. And he sayde: Scholde, thou shalt se it with thyne eyes, & shalt not eate thereof. And euen so channide it vnto him: for the people trod vpon him in the gate, and he dyed.

¶ The viij. Chapter.

¶ Elisa prophesied vnto the Sunamite y^e birth of his sonne. And y^e death of Nabab regent of Syria in Syria. And y^e sonne of Gehazi that regent in Syria, whom slayeth from him, who had sworne to Nabab.

¶ Then spake ¶ Elisa vnto the woman whose sonne he had restored to lyfe agayne, sayinge: vp and go, thou and thyne houle, & sojourn where-

soeuer thou canst, for y^e Loide hath called for a deth, and the same shall come vpp^e stand seuen yeres. And the woman arose, and vpd after the sayinge of y^e man of God, and went both she and her household, & sojourned in the lande of the Philistines seuen yeres. And at y^e seuen yeres ende, it fortuned, that the woman came agayne out of the lande of the Philistines, and went out to call vpd the kynges for her houle and for her land. And the kynges talked with Gehazi the seruant of the man of God, sayinge: tell me I praye the all the great deades that Elisa hath done: he tolde y^e kynges, howe he had restored a dead bodie to lyfe agayne: but in the meane tyme y^e woman (whose sonne he had raysed vp agayne) cryed to y^e kynges for her houle & for her land. And Gehazi sayde: Wp Loide I saye, this is the woman, and this is her sonne whom Elisa raysed vp agayne. And when y^e kynges asked the woman, she tolde hym. And so the kynges deliuered her a chādelapine, sayinge: rest for thou vnto her all that are hers, and all the frutes of the felde, fence the daye that she left the lande, vnto this tyme.

And ¶ Elisa came to Damascus, & Ben- hadab the kynges of Siria was sick. And one tolde him sayinge. The mā of God is come hither. And y^e kynges sayde vnto hazael: take a present in thine hāde, and goo meete the man of God, that thou mayest alke the Loide by him, whether I shall recover of this dyscase. And so hazael went to meete him and toke the present with him, and of euery good thinge of Damascus, cut as much as foure Camels coulde beare, and came & presented hym selfe before hym, and sayde: Thy sonne Benhadab the kynges of Siria hath sent me to the, sayinge, shall I recover of this dyscase?

And Elisa sayd vnto him: go & saye vnto him: thou shalt recover, howbeit y^e Loide hath thewed me, y^e he shall slepe by. And he looked asyde, and was ashamed, and y^e man of God wepte. And hazael sayde: why wepest thou Loide? he answered: for I knowe the euill thinges that thou shalt do vnto the chyldren of Israel: for their stronge cryes shalt thou set on fire, and their polse men shalt thou sle with y^e sword & shalt deliue all the hapyness of their luckynge chyldren, & all to reare their women with chylde.

But hazael sayde: what is thy seruante, a dogge, that I shoulde do this great thynges? And Elisa answered: the Loide hath thewed me, that thou shalt be kynges of Siria. And so he departed from Elisa, & came to his master, which sayde to him. What sayde Elisa to the? he answered: he tolde me, that thou shouldest recover. And on the morowe it fortuned, that he toke a thicke cloth, and dypt it in water, and spred it on his face, and he dyed, and hazael sargined in his steade.

C The ix. Chapter.
This is made hono^r of Israel, and helth Jehoiā the kyng thereof, and Ahasiah, otherwise called Athaliah, the wyfe of Juda also, and caused Jezabel to be caste downe out of a wyndow, and the dogges eat her.

And Elisa the prophete called one of the chyliden of the prophetes, & sayd vnto him: *gyde by thy loynes, and inake this boze of oyle in thyne hande, and get the to Ramoth in Gilead. And when thou comest thether, loke where is Jehu the sonne of Jeholaphat, the sone of Siumi, and go to him, and make him arysle by from amonge hys brethren, & carpe hym to a secret chambye. Then take the boze of oyle, and powze it on hys bred, and saye: thus sayth the Lozde. I haue anoynted the to be kyng ouer Israel. And then opene the doze, and see without any tarsynge. And so the seruauent of the prophete gat hym to Ramoth Gilead: and when he came in, beholde, the captaynes of the host were spytynge togyther. And he sayde: I haue an erred and y^e, o captayne. And Jehu sayde: vnto which of all ys: he sayde: to the, o captayne. And he arose, and went into the houle.

And he powzed the oyle on hys heed, and sayde vnto hym: thus sayeth the Lozde God of Israel: * I haue anoynted the to be kyng ouer the people of the Lozde, euen ouer Israel. Thou shalt smyte the house of Ahab thy master, that I maye abouge the blood of my seruantes the prophetes, and the bloude of all the seruantes of the Lozde, of the hande of Jezabel, for the whole houl of Ahab shal be destroyed, and * I will destroye from Ahab, euen hym y^e maketh water agaynst the wall, and him that is y^esoned and forsaken in Israel: and I will make the house of Ahab lyke the house of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, and lyke the house of Zasaia y^e sonne of Achin. And as for Jezabel: she the dogges shall eat her in the felde of Jezabel, and there shall be none to burye her. And he opened the dore, and fledd.

Jehu came out to the seruantes of hys lozde, and one sayde vnto hym, is all well: wherfore came this madd frowe to the? And he sayde vnto the: ye knowe what manner of man it is, and what hys cōmynceyos is. They sayde vnto hym agayne: it is not so, tell vs. he sayde: thus and thus spake he to me, sayinge: Thus sayeth the Lozde: I haue anoynted the to be kyng ouer Israel.

Then they bespide the holooyge basted, and toke euery man hys garment, and put it vnder hym, and blew with trumpettes, sayinge: Jehu is kyng. And so, Jehu the sonne of Jeholaphat the sonne of Siumi conspyred agaynst Joram, Joram kepte Ramoth Gilead, he and all Israel because of hazael kyng of Siria: and *kyng Joram returned to be healed in Jezabel, of the woundes which the Sirians had geuen him, when he fought with hazael kyng of Siria.

And Jehu sayde: If it be your myndes, then let no man departe and scape out of the cite, to go, & tell in Jezabel. So Jehu gat by into a charette, and wente to Jezabel, where Joram laye, & Ahasiah kyng of Juda was come downe thether to se Joā. And the watchman that stode on þe towre in Jerusalem, spyed the company of Jehu as he came, and sayde: Is he a companye. And Jehozam sayd: take an horsman, and sende to mete the,

that he come aske whether it be peace. And to there went one on horsbacke to mete him, and sayde: thus sayeth the kyng: is it peace?
and Jehu sayde: what hast thou to do with peace: turne the behynde me. And the watchman tolde, sayinge: the messenger came to them, but he cometh not agayne.

¶ Then he sent out another on horsbacke, which came to them, and sayde: thus sayeth the kyng: is it peace? Jehu answered: what hast thou to do with peace: turne the behind me. And the watchman tolde, sayinge: he came to them also, and cometh not agayne, and the dynynge is lyke the dynynge of Jehu the sonne of Nimri: for he dyneth the cha-ret as he were madd. And Jehozam sayde: make ready. And Pharez was made ready.
And Jehozam kyng of Israel, and Ahazia-hu kyng of Juda went out ether of them in hys charret agaynst Jehu, and met hym in þe furlonge of Naboth þe Jezraelite. And it for-tuned, that when Jehozam sawe Jehu, he sayde: is it peace Jehu? he answered: What peace shaldest thou be, so longe as þe whoredoms of thy mother Jezebel, and her witchcraftes are so great? And Jehozam turned his handes, and fled, and sayde to Ahaziah: ther is fal-shed, o Ahaziah. And Jehu toke a bowe in hys handes, and shotte Jehozam betwene the armes, & the arrowe went thowre hys heart.

¶ And he fell downe flat in hys charret. Then sayde Jehu to Zibkar a captayne: take him, & cast him in the place of the grounde of Na-both the Jezraelite. For I remembre þe when I and þe roode together in a charret after Ahab his father, þe Lozbe layed this heuy burden vpon hym. I haue sene þe felle drape þe bloud of Naboth, & the bloude of his sonnes, sayde the Lozbe: I will quyte it the in this ground, sayeth the Lozbe. Nowe therfore take him, & cast hym in the plat of ground, accordyng to the worde of the Lozbe. But whē Ahaziah the kyng of Juda sawe this, he fled by the woye of the garde house. And Jehu folowed after hym, & sayde: smyte him also in the cha-ret: * (and ther cometh hym in hys charret, at þe goynge vp to Sur by Iblea, & he fled to Ba-gadda, & ther dyed. And his seruantes caried hym in a charret to Ierusalem, & buried hym there in his sepulchre, wher his fathers, in þe cite of Dauid. And in the xl. yere of Joas þe sonne of Ahab, beganne Ahaziah to ragyne ouer Juda. And whē Jehu was come to Jezabel

¶ Jezabel hearde of it, & sate herselfe at the table. And whē Jehu entered at þe gate, the sayde: heb shalme pence which thou sayest master? And he spoke by his eyes to the windowe, and sayde:

who is of myspede, who? And ther looked out to hym two of the chamberlaines. And he sayde: throwe her downe. So thep throwe her downe, and her bloude dashed towarde the wall, & toward the houses, and he trode her vnder fote.

¶ And when he was come in, he dyd eate & drinke, & sayde: goe vnto I praye you you pouder cursh creature, and hurie her: * for she is a kynges daughter. And so when they came to burye her, they founde homoge of her then the shulle, and the fece, and the palmes of her handes. Wherfore they come agayne, & told hym. And he sayde: thus is the worde of the Lozbe, which he spake by the hande of his seruant Elin the Thesbite, sayinge: * in the felde of Jezabel shall dogges cate the flesh of Jezabel. And so þe carcas of Jezabel was eaten as donge vpon the earth, in the felde of Jezabel: so that no man myght saye: This was Jezabel.

¶ The x. Chapter.

¶ Jehu causeth the xxx. sonnes of Ahab to be slayne and after þe xij. of hys brethren. He smyth a means also to hys all the priestes of Baal. After þen death, hys sonne ragyneth in the citie.

¶ And Jehu had xxx. sonnes in Samaria. And Jehu wrote letters, and sent to Samaria vnto þe rulers of Je-rue, to the elders, and to them that brought vp Ahab's children, sayinge: nowe when this letter cometh to you, þe haue with you your masters sonnes, þe haue with you both charrettes and bowes: a strong cite haue ye also: and haue, loke which of your masters sonnes is best and most mete, and let hym on hys fathers seate, & and spight for your Lozbes house. But they were exca-nding: þe sayde, & sayde: se, two kynges were not able to stande before hym, how shall we then be able to stande? And he that was gouerner of Ahab's house, and he that ruled the cite, & elders also, & þe futors came to Jehu, sayinge: we are thy seruantes, & will do all þe thou shalt byd vs: we will make no man kyng:
therfore do þe what semeth good to thine eyes.

¶ Then he wrote another letter to the, in-pynge: If ye be myne, and will beken vnto my voyce, then take the heed of the me that are your masters sonnes, and come to me to Jezabel by to morowe this tyme. And the kynges sonnes were xxx. per sonnes, and they were with the great me of the cite, which brought them vp. And when the letter came to them, they toke the kynges chylidren, and slue them, cken xxx. per sonnes, & layed thep hedes in basulletes, and sent them to him to Jezabel. And there came a messenger, and tolde hym, sayinge: they haue brought the hedes of the kynges sonnes. And he sayde: let them laye them on two benches in the enterpyng in of the gate, vntill the moynynge.

E And whā it was daye, he went out, and rode, & sayde to all þe folke: ye be ryghteous. Beholde, I conspired agāst my maister, and slue him. But who slue all these? Lerne here, & ther shall fall vnto the erth nothyng of the woordes of þe Lorde, which he spake cōcerning the house of Ahab. For þe Lord hath brought to passe the thynges þe he spake: by þe hāde of his seruānt *Eliā. And so Jehu slue all þe remayned of the house of Ahab, in Ierabel: and all þe were great wth him, & his kniſſolikes: and his prestes, so þe let nothyng of him remayne. And he arose, & departed, & came to Samaria. And whā Jehu was in the waye to the house where the shepherdes byd there their shepe, he met wth the brethren of Ahaziah king of Iuda, & sayde: what are ye? They answered: the brethren of Ahaziah are we, and go downe to salute þe children of þe kyng and of þe quene. And he sayde: take the alpine. Withō when they had taken them alpine, they slue them at the well which was by the house where the shepe are chozen, euen two and four: ye men, nether left he any of them.

And: when he was departed thence, he met wth Jehonadab þe sonne of *Rechab cōmynge agāst hym. And he blesed hym, & sayde to hym: is thyne hert ryght, as in myne hert is true wthine: And Jehonadab answered: yea that it is. (et it. be sayd be) then geue me thyne hande. And whā he had given him his hand, he toke him vp to hym into þe charēt, & sayde: come wth me, & I fe the zeale that I haue for the Lorde: so to they made him ryde in hys charēt. And when he came to Samaria, he slue all þe remaynyng vnto Ahab in Samaria, & yll he had wypte him out, accordyng to the sayyng of the Lorde which he spake to Eliā.

And Jehu gathered all þe people together and sayd vnto the: *Ahab serued Baal a lytle. But Jehu shall serue hym moze. Howe therfore call vnto me all þe prophetes of Baal: all such as serue him, & all his prestes, and let none be lackyng. For I haue a greute sacrificie to do to Baal: & therfore, whosoer is myſſed, he shall not lye. But Jehu byd it for a surteynte, to the intent that he might destroye þe seruāntes of Baal. And Jehu sayde: Proclaime an holy conuocacyon for Baal, and Jehu sent vnto all Iſrael. And all þe seruāntes of Baal came, & there was not a mā lefte helpeynde that came not. And they came into the house of Baal, & the house of Baal was full from one ende to another.

And he sayde vnto hym that was the heper of the bestre, bringe forth garmentes for all the seruāntes of Baal. And he brought them out garmentes. And when Jehu went with Jehonadab the sonne of Rechab into þe house of Baal, he sayde vnto the seruāntes of Baal: sencerbe, and loke, that there be here wth you none of the seruāntes of the Lorde, but the seruāntes of Baal only. And when they were in to offer sacrificie & burnt offering: Jehu appoynted lxxx. men without, & sayd: If any of the mē whom I haue brought vnder youre handes, escape, be that letteth him go, shall dye for hym.

And it fortuned, & a stone as he had made an ende of offering the burnt sacrificie, Jehu sayde to the men of warre, and to the captains: go in, and slepe them, let none come out. And they smote them with the edge of the sword. And the men of warre and the captaynes cast them out, and went vnto the cite of the temple of Baal, and fet the ymagis out of the temple of Baal, and burnt them. And they brake the ymage of Baal, & razed the house of Baal, & made a draff house of it vnto this daye. And so Jehu destroyed Baal out of Iſrael. But fro þe synners of Ieroboā the sonne of Nebat, which made Iſrael to synne: Jehu departed not, nether from following of them: nether for toke be, & the golde & calues that were in Bethel and in Dan.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Jehu: because thou hast done ryght well, in destroyyng to passe the thyng that is ryght in myne eyes, and hast done vnto the house of Ahab according to all thynges þe are in myne best, therefore shall & thy children vnto the fourth generation sit on the seate of Iſrael. But Jehu cared not for this, to walke in the lawe of the Lord God of Iſrael with all his best: for he departed not from the synnes of Ieroboā, which made Iſrael to synne.

¶ In those dayes the Lorde began to call Iſrael woth: & Hazael smote tē in all coastes of Iſrael, fro Jordan eastward: eue all the land of Silab, the Gadites, the Hittites, and the & were of Hamaſſes, fro Arer to vnto the ryuer of Arnon: euen Silab & Baſan. In the lxxxvi. peare of Azaria kyng of Iuda, beganne Pekahia the sonne of Menahem to raygne ouer Israel in Samaria two yere, & dyd that which was euell in the sight of the Lorde: and leste not of fro the synnes of Ieroboam the sonne of Nebat, which made Israel synne. But Pekah the sonne of Remalihu, which was a captayn of his, conspyred agains hym, and smote hym in Samaria, euen in the palace of the kynges house with Argob and Arin: and with him were fiftie men of the Silcadites: and he kyled hym, and raygned in his rowne. The rest of the wordes that concerne Pekahia, and all that he dyd, beholde, they are wyrtten in the boke of the chronicles of the kynges of Israel.

In the .liij. yere of Aharis kyng of Iuda beganne Pekah the sonne of Remaliahu, to raigne ouer Israel in Samaria. .xx. yere. & died euell in the syght of the Lorde, and turned not awaye fro the synnes of Iacoban the sonne of Israhel, that made Israel synne.
In the dayes of Pekah kyng of Israel, came Eglathael Delaier kyng of Assiria, and tohe Iion, Abel, Berthmaacha, Zanoah, Re-des, Hazoz, Gilad, Galile, and all the lande of Aschubail, & rayed the awaye to Assiria.

¶ And holan a sonne of Ela conspired treason agaynst Pekah the sonne of Remaliah, and sloute him, and slue him: and ragned in hys steade in the .xx. yere of Iotham the sonne of Azzabab. The rest of the wordes y concerne Pekah and all that he dyd, beholds, they are wyrted in the booke of the chyonicles of the kynges of Israel.

The secunde yere of Pekah the sonne of Remaliahu kyng of Israel, beganne Iotha the sonne of Azzabab kyng of Iuda to ragn-
e. .x. yere and twentye yere olde was he whe he began to ragnye: and he ragned sytterne yere in Ierusalem. Hys mothers name was Ierusa the daughter of Iadob. And he dyd y which is rpght in the syght of the Lorde: eue acordyng to all as dyd his father Azzabab, so dyd he. But the hplaulters were nott put a wyse: for the people offered ad burnt in-sic still in the hplaulters: he bupte the hygh boze of the boult of the Lorde. The rest of the wordes that concerne Iotham, and all that he dyd, are they not wirted in the booke of the chyonicles of the kynges of Iuda. In thole dayes the Lorde beganne to sende into Juda, Rezin the kyng of Siria, and Pekah the sonne of Remaliahu. And Iotham slepe w his father, and was buried w his fathers in the cite of Dauid hys father, and Ahaz hys sonne ragned in hys steade.

¶ The .xviij. Chapter.

¶ Ahaz kyng of Iuda consecrated hys sonne in syer, and had many battayles agaynst the kyng of Assria.
In the darke of Ahaz reigned Syria hys sonne.

¶ In the .xviij. yere of Pekah y sonne of Remaliahu kyng of Israel, Ahaz the sonne of Iotham kyng of Juda, beganne to ragnye. ¶ Twentye yere olde was he, when he wng made kyngye.

and ragned sytterne yere in Ierusalem, and dyd not that which was rpght in the eyes of the Lorde hys God, like Dauid hys father:
But walked in the waye of the hynges of Israel, yee, and made hys sonne to go totowe the syer, after the abominacions of the heythyn, whom the Lorde cast out before the chyldren of Israel. And he offered and burnt in sic in the hplaulters and on the hylles, and vnder euery thicket tree. ¶ Then Rezin kyng of Siria and Pekah sonne of Remaliahu kyng of Israel came vp to Ieru-salem to syght. And they fought agaynst Ahaz, but could not ouercome hym. At the same tyme Rezin kyng of Siria brought lathagapne to Siria, and rpgd the Jewes thence. And the Sirians came to Elath, and dwell therein vnto this daye.

So Ahaz sent messengers to Eglathael Delaier kyng of Assiria, sayng: I am thy seruaunt and thy sonne, come vp and deliuer me out of the hande of the kyng of Siria, & out of the hande of the kyng of Israel, which rple vp agaynst me. And Ahaz tolke the siluer and the golde that was founde in y house of the Lorde, and in the treasures of y kinges house, and sent a rewarde to the kyng of Assiria. ¶ And the kyng of Assiria confented vnto hym. For the kyng of Assiria wet vp agaynst Dauid. And when he had raked it, he carped the people a wyse to lryz, and slue Rezin.

And kyng Ahaz went to Damasco, to mete Eglathael Delaier kyng of Assiria. And when kyng Ahaz sawe an aulter that was at Damasco, he sent to Atria the prest the patene of the aulter, & the fastyon of it, and all the woorkmanshipp thereof. And Atria the prest made an aulter in all popetes lyke to the patene which kyng Ahaz had sent from Damasco: euen so dyd Atria the prest make it, agaynst kyng Ahaz came from Damasco.
And so, when the kyng was come from Da-masco, he sawe the aulter, and the kyng wet to it, & offered thero. And he burnt his burntofferinge, and hys meatofferinge, and pow-red hys drinckofferinge: and spynchled the blonde of hys peaceofferinges be syde y aulter. y was by y brasen aulter which was before the Lorde, and set it about the temple be-twene the aulter and the temple of the Lorde:
and put it on the north syde of the aultere.

And kyng Ahaz commanded Atria the prest, and sayde: vpon the greate aulter set on fyre in the moynynge the burnt offeringe, & in the euen the meatofferinge, and the kynges burntsacrifice & his meatofferinge, with the burntoffering of all the people of the lande, and their meatofferinge, & their drinckofferinges: & powze therby, all the blonde of the sacrifice offerings. But y brasen aulter will I come and se. And Atria the prest dyd ac-cordinge

De corbynge to all thynges as lyunge. Thaz comadred hym. * And kyngc Thaz brake the spere of the botomes, and toke the lauer fro of them, and toke downe the Lauatoze fro of the heauen othen that were vnder it, & put it vpon a pavement of stones. And the voyce for the Sabbath: (that they had made in the houle) & the bynges entre without turned he to the houle of the Lozde, for feare of the kyngc of Assyia. Thereste of the wordes y contere Thaz, what he djd, are they not witten in the booke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Iuda: And Thaz lepte with hys father, and was buried with hys father in the cytie of David: and hezekia his sonne ragned in hys stede.

The xlii. Chapter.

Of howe kyngc of Israel is taken. And he and all the realme brought to the Assyrians.

In the xlii. yere of Thaz kyngc of Iuda, begaune hosea the sonne of Elia to raigne in Samaria vpo Israel ix. yere, and djd y which was euill in the syght of the Lozdr, but not as the kynges of Israel that were befoze him. And Salimanasar kyng of Assyria came vp agaynst him, and hosea became hys seruaunt, and gaue hym presentes. And the kyngc of Assyria founde treason in hosea: for he had sent me letters to So, kyngc of Egypte, and brought no presente vnto y kyngc of Assyria, from yeres to yere: and therfore the kyngc of Assyria toke hym: and put hym in prison. * And then the kyngc of Assyria came vpo thowout all the lande, & gat vp agaynst Samaria, and besieged thre yere. In y fourth yere of hosea, the kyngc of Assyria toke Samaria, and carped Israel awaye vnto Assyria, and put them in bala, in haboz by the ryuer of Gosa, and in the cyties of the ebydes. For it came to passe, that the chyldren of Israel synned agaynst the Lozde theyr God, which had brought them out of the lande of Egypt, from vnder the haube of Pharao kyngc of Egypte: and feared of hyr Godas. And they walkid in the ceremonies of the hethen, whom the Lozde cast out befoze the chyldren of Israel, & in the ceremonies which the kynges of Israel had made. And the chyldren of Israel went about to hyde thole thynges that were not well, fro the Lozde theyr God. And they buyt them hyllanters, in all theyr cyties, bothe in the towres where they kept watch, and also in the strage to wones. And they made the ymagas and grones in euer yhe byll. and vnder euer yhech tre. And there they burne incense in all the hyllanters, as djd y hethen (who the Lozde carped awaye befoze them) and wrought wyched thynges to angre y Lozde withall: For they feared most vyle Idoles, wper of the Lozde had sayde vnto them.

* Ye shall do no soche thyng.

And the Lozde resstyd in Israel, and in Iuda by all the prophetes and by all y sears, sayng. * Turne fro your wyched wayes and kepe my commaundmentes and my statutes, accordyng to all the law which I commaunded your fathers, and which I sent to you by my seruantes the prophetes. For I withstandyng theyr wolde not here: * but rather hardened theyr neckes, lyke to y stubburnesse of their fathers that djd not beleeve in the Lozde their God. For they refused hys statutes, and hys appoyntment that he made with theyr fathers, & the witness (where with he witnessid vnto the) & they folowed banyte, and became vayne, and went after the hehen that were rounde aboute the: concerning whom, the Lozde had charged the, that they shuld not do lyke the. But they left the commaundmentes of the Lozde theyr God and made them Images of metall: * euen twocalles: and made Idole groves, & worshipped all the houle of heauen, and serued Baalt. * And they sacrificed the: sonnes & the: daughters in fyre, and vled with chrefit and enchauntementes: * euen sellyng them, & selues to worke wychednesse in the syght of the Lozde, and to angre hym.

And the Lozde was exceedinge woth w Israel and put them out of hys syght: that there was leste but the trybe of Iuda onely. Neuer theles, Iuda also kept not the commaundmentes of the Lozde theyr God, but walkid in the ceremonies of Israel, which they made. And the Lozde cast vp all the seed of Israel, and vcred them, and delueryed them into the handes of spoylers, vntill he had cast them out of hys syght. For Israel deuoyd them selues from the house of David, & made them a kyng, euen Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat. And Jeroboam & drewe Israel awaye, that they shulde not folowe the Lozde: and made them synne a greate synne. For the chyldren of Israel walkid in all the synnes of Jeroboam which he djd, and departed not therfro, vntill the Lozde put Israel awaye out of hys syght, as he had sayde by all hys seruantes the prophetes. And so woe Israel carped awaye out of theyr wone lade to Assyria eue vnto this daye.

And the kyngc of Assyria brought men from Babylon, from Cush, from Aua, fro Syanath, and from Sepharaim, and put the in the cyties of Samaria, in stede of chyldren of Israel. And they possessed Samaria, and dwelt in the cyties therof. And it fortuned, that at the begynnyng of theyr dwellinge ther, they feared not the Lozde. And y Lozde sent Lyons amonge them, which slue them. Wherefoze, men sayde to the kyngc of Assyria. Euen yones which thou hast traslated, & put in y cyties of Samaria, knowe not the lawe of the God of the lande, therfore he hath sent ypoung vpon them: and behold they slaye them, because they knowe not the maner of worshipping of God of the lade.

Then the king of Assyria commanded Sayerce: carry thither one of twaine of the priests, whom he brought thence, and let them go, and dwell there, and teach them þ fastion how to serue the God of the country.
And then one of the priests which they had carried thence came, and dwelt in Bethel, and taught them howe they shuld feare the Lord: howbeit euery nation made them Gods of their owne: and put them in the houses of the hyllanters which the Samaritans had made, carrye nam in their cities wherin they dwelt. Eue of Sabab made Sicoth Sicoth: and the men of Eub made A-gal: and the men of Hamath made Nima:
The Auites made Abbas, and Tharbak.
And the Serpharites burnt their children in fyre for Adamelech and Anmelech, the Gods of Serpharaim. And so they feared the Lord, and made them Images of the hyllanters, which sacrificed for them in the houses of the hyllanters. And so they feared the Lord, and serued they aunc Gods after the maner of the people, whom they caried thence.

And vnto this daye they do after the olde manner: and nether feare God, nether do after theiſe theyr ordinaunces and cuſtomes, and after the lawe and commaundement which the Lord commaunded the chyl dren of Iacob,

* who he called Israel. And the Lord made an appointment with them, and charged them, sayinge: * feare none other Goddes, nor bowe youre selues to them, nor serue the nor sacrifice to the: but feare the Lord which brought you out of the lande of Egypte with greate power and stretched out arme: hym feare, and to hym bowe, and to hym do sacrifice. The statutes, ordinaunces, lawe and commandment which he wrote for you, is that ye be diligent to do for euermore, & feare not any other goddes. And the appointment that I haue made with you, se ye forget not and feare none other goddes: but the Lord your God ye shall feare, and he shall deliuer you out of the handes of all youre enemies.
I comitt, they dyd not hearken, but dyd after thez olde custome. And so thez nacions ferre as dyd thez chyldren and thez chyldrens chyldren. & euen as dyd thez fathers, so do they vnto this daye.

The xviii. Chapter:

¶ Hezekiah king of Juda putteth downe the brazen serpent, and destroyeth the Idoles. Salmanassar bryngrith Israel to the Assyrians. The dishearing of Sennacherib or Sancherib.

The thyrd pette of holynesse of Ela hyng of Israel it came to passe, that heerein the sonne of Ahas hyng of Iuda dyd ragnye. ¶ *¶ 11. Bu.
1594.* ¶ Weltye and fyve yere olde was he, when he be-ganme to ragnye, and drayngned. ¶ *¶ 11. Bu.
1594.* ¶ First pere in Ierusalem. his mothers name also was Abi-he the daughter of zacharia, and he dyd y^e which is ryght in the syght of the Lorde accordyng to all an dyd wth and hys father. ¶ He put awaye the hyllaulers, and bryke the ymagis and cut downe the groves, and all to bryke the y^e bryken serpent that y^efolow had made. ¶ *¶ 11. Bu.
1594.* ¶ For unto those dayes the chyldren of Israel dyd burne sacrifice to it, y^e he called it y^e Asterisk. He trusted in the Lorde God of Israel, so that after hym was none lyke him amonge all the kynges of Iuda. nether were there anye suche before hym. For he clauze to the Lorde, and departed not from hym, but kepte hys commaundementes, which the Lorde commaunded y^efolow. And the Lorde was wth hym: so y^e he prospered in all thynges which he toke in hande. And he rebelled agaynst the kyngs of Assyria, and serued him not. He smote the Philistines even unto Gaza and wth coastes of it. ¶ *¶ 11. Bu.
1594.* ¶ Forth cometh where they heere watches and stronge cryed.

* And in the fourth yere of kyng Hezekia, (which was the seuenth yere of holca toun of Eln kyng of Israel) it fortuned, that Salmanaizer kyng of Assyria came vpon gopult Samaria, & beleget it. And after thre yeres the toke it euem in the fyfte yere of Hezekia: that is to saye, fyfynyth yere of holca kyng of Israel. And Samaria was wonne. And the byrges of Assyria, and pryete in halah and in haboz by the ryuer of Gosan, and in the cyties of the Aibes: because they wolde not heken vnto the voyce of the Lorde thete. God: but transgressed hys appoyntment, and all that Aioles the seruauit of the Lord commaunded, & wolde nether heare them noz do them.

* Therfore in the xiiii. yere of kynge herzin byd Sennacherib kynge of Assyria come by agaynst all the stronge cyties of Juda, and toke them. And herzin kynge of Juda sent to the kynge of Assyria to Lachis, saying, ¶ I haue offended: departe fro me, and

me. And all þ thou puttest on me, that will I beare. And the kyng of Assyria appoynted vnto hezekia kyng of Iuda thre hundred talents of syluer, & thirtie talentes of gold.

¶ And hezekia gaue him all the syluer that was foude in the house of the Lorde, & in the treasures of the kynges house. At the same season dyd hezekia rent of the dores of the temple of the Lorde & the pillars / whych the sayde hezekia kyng of Iuda had conuered ouer / & gaue the to the kyng of Assyria.

¶ And the kyng of Assyria sent Sennacherib and Rabanis and Rabshake from Lachis to hynghe hezekia with a great hoste agaynst Jerusalem. And they went vp, and came to Jerusalem, & gat them vp, & stode by the cōduyte of the wyper pole which is in þ wyper of the fullers felde. And whan they had called to the kyng, there came out to them, ¶ Eliakim sonne of Eliahi which was stuarde of houtholde, and Sobia the scribe, & Ioab the sonne of Asaph, the recorder. And Rabshake sayde vnto them: Tell ye hezekia I praye you: thus sayth the great kyng, eue the kyng of Assyria: What confidence is this þ thou hast? dost thou speake soche a lyghe worde in dede? dost thou cell and pwyse I will be ready to make warre. On whō then doest thou trust, that thou rebellest agaynst me?

¶ Dost thou truste to the staffe of this broken reede Egypte, on which yf a mā leane, it will go into his hande, and pearce it. Menis is the wharke of Egypte vnto all that trust on him. ¶ If ye saye vnto me, we trust in the Lorde oure God: Is not that he whose hil-aunters and his other outers, hezekia hath put downe, and hath sayde to Iuda & Jerusalem, ye shall worshyppe befoze this autter here in Jerusalem.

¶ Nowe therfore deliuer wardes to my Lorde þ kyng of Assyria, that ye rebell not, & I will deliuer the two thousand hoyses, yf thou be able to sett ryders vpon the. Why thynkest thou to come at the ptesence of one of the leest wykes of my maisters seruantes, & trustest to Egypte for charrettes and horse? Wo to couer, ain I come now without þ hyndinge of the Lorde to this place, to destroye it: the Lorde sayde to me go vpon this lade, & destroye it. And Eliakim the sonne of hezekia & Sobia, & Ioab sayde vnto Rabshake: speake I praye the to thy seruantes in the Syriens language, for we vnderstande it. ¶ He talke not w vs in the Iewes tonge, in the eares of this people that are on þ wall. And Rabshake sayde vnto them: hath my maister sent me to thy master and to þ, to speake their wordes? hath he not sent me because of the men which lytt on the wall, þ the men ye eate their awne donges, & depynche their awne pisse with you?

¶ And to Rabshake stode, and cryed with a lowde voyce in the Iewes language, and spake sayng: heare the sayng of the great kyng of Assyria. Thus sayth the kyng: let not hezekia begile you, for he shall not be able to deliuer you out of myne hande: neither let hezekia make you to trust in the Lorde, & sayng: þ Lorde shall surely deliuer vs, and this cytie shall not be geuen ouer into þ hande of the kyng of Assyria. hearken not vnto hezekia, for thus sayth the kyng of Assyria.

¶ And he came with me, & come out to me. And then eate euery man of his awne wyne, and of his awne fygge tree, & depynche euery mā of the water of his awne well, tyll I come, and sett you to as good a lande as poures is: a lande of coine and wyne, a lande of bread and wyneparden, a lande of ople, of olyue trees, and of honp: that ye maye lue, and not dye. And hearken not vnto hezekia, for he begyleth you, sayng: the Lorde shall deliuer vs. ¶ hath euery one of the gods of the nacions deliuered his lande out of the hande of the kyng of Assyria: where is the God of hamath, & of Arphad: and where is the God of Sepharaim, heua & Ima: dyd they deliuer Samaria out of myne hande, & what God is it amonge all the gods of the nacions, that hath deliuered his lande out of myne hande. Shall the Lorde deliuer Jerusalem out of myne hande?

¶ But they þ were of the people helde theie peare, and answered not him a worde: for þ kyng had cōmaunded, sayng: answere him not. Then Eliakim which was the stuarde of houtholde, and Sobia the scribe, and Ioab the sonne of Asaph the recorder, came to hezekia with their clothes rent, and tolde him the wordes of Rabshake.

¶ The xix. Chapter.

¶ The Angell of the Lorde sleeth an hōdred foure thousand of the chylde men of the Assyrians. Sennacherib is helde of his awne fowle.

¶ It came to passe, þ when kyng hezekia hearde it, he rent his clothes, and put on sacke, and came into the house of the Lorde, and sent Eliakim which was stuarde of houtholde, and Sobia the scribe, & the elders of þ preastes clothed in sacke, to say the prophete the sonne of Amos. And they sayde vnto him, thus sayth hezekia: this daye is a daye of tribulacion and of tribulacion and blasphem. For the chylde men are come to the byrth, and there is no strenght to be deliuered. Paraduventure the Lorde thy God will heare all the wordes of Rabshake, whō the kyng of Assyria his master hath sent, to sayle on the hynges God, and to rebuke him with wordes, which the Lorde thy God hath bearde: And lyfte thou vp thy prayer for the remnant that are left. So the cruunites of kyng hezekia came to say: And say

Thus said vnto them: So shall ye saye to your master: Thus sayth the Lorde: be not afrayde of wozdes which thou hast heard, with which the younge men of the kyng of Assyria haue rayled on me. Beholde, I will put him in another mynde, and he shall heare saynges, and so returne to his awne lande: * And I will bringe to passe, & he shall fall vpon the swerde * euen in his awne lande.

¶ And Rabshakeh went backe agayne, and founde þe kyng of Assyria fyghting agaynst Libna: for he had hearde, howe that he was departed fro Lachis. And wth he hearde men saye of Tirhaka kyng of blacke Voyces: Beholde, he is come out to fyght agaynst þe, he departed, & sent messengers vnto hezekia sayinge: Thus speake to hezekia kyng of Iuda, sayinge: let not thy God deceaue þe, in who þe trustest, sayinge: Ierusalem shall not be deliuered into the hande of the kyng of Assyria. Beholde, thou hast heard, what the kynges of Assyria haue done to all landes, howe they haue utterly destroyed the. And * shall thou * alone escape, haue the Gods of the hethen deliuered the, which myne anisties haue destroyed: As Gosai, & Haran, Reseph, & the chyldren of Ben which were in Bithlailar: where is þe kyng of Hamath, and the kyng of Arpad, the kyng of the cytyr of Sepharuaim, & of Hena & Iua?

¶ So hezekia receaued the letter of þe hande of the messengers, and redd it: And hezekia went vp into the house of the Lorde, & sayde it abroade before the Lorde. And hezekia prayed before the Lorde, and sayde: O Lord God of Israel, who dwellest betwene the Cherubs, þe art God alone ouer all the kyngdomes of the erth, thou hast made heauen & earth, howe downe thine care, & heare: Open Lorde thine eyes (þe beseeche the) & se: and heare the wozdes of Sennacherib which hath sent this man to torale on the lypynge God. O fa truste Lorde, the kynges of Assyria haue destroyed nacys and their landes, and haue sett fyre on their Gods. For they were no Gods, but the woicke of the handes of man: euen of wood & stone. And they destroyed them. Nowe therefore, O Lorde oure God, þe beseeche the, save thou vs out of this hande, þe all the kyngdomes of the earth maye knowe, that thou onely art the Lorde God. And I saye the sonne of Amoz sent to hezekia, sayinge: thus sayth the Lord God of Israel: þe which thou hast prayed me, concerning Sennacherib kyng of Assyria, I haue heard it. This is therefore the worde that þe Lord hath sayde of him: * The virgin eue the daughter of Sion hath despyed the, and laughed the to scoone (o lypynge of Assyria) the daughter of Ierusalem hath taken her head at the. * Whom hast thou rayled on, & whom hast thou blasphemed? Agaynst who hast thou exalted thy voyce, and lyked by thine eyes to hye. Euen agaynst the holy of Israel. * As the bande of thy messengers thou hast rayled on the Lorde and sayde: w the multitude of my charcetes I am come vp to the topes of the mountaynes, euen alonge by the sydes of Libanon, and I will cut downe the hye Cedar trees and the luffe fyre trees thereof: and I will go into the lodging of his nest, & into þe wood of his playne. I haue digged a bronche strange waters, and w the strepe of my gonyng will I drye all the water poyles that are belenged.

¶ Hast thou not heard, howe I haue ordeyned such a thynge a great whyle agoe, & haue prepared it fro þe begynnyng? And shall I not nowe bringe it forth, þe it maye destroye, and to bryng stronge cyties into wast heapes of stones: And þe inhabitants of the walbe of Iryle power, & saynt heret, and confounded, and * shall lyke the gralle of the felle, or grene herbe, or as þe hye on the topes of the houses: or as þe cozne þis vnyre, & smyeten w blastyng. I knowe thy dwellinge, thy commynge out, and thy gonyng in, * (and thy wozes) thy fury agaynst me. And because þe ragell agaynst me, and thynkest thy selfe to bested: this is come vp vnto myne ears, & I will put my holc in thy nactels, and my bytt in thy lypes, and will bringe the backe agayne, the same waye thou comest.

¶ And this shall be a signe vnto the: O hezekia þe shall eate this yere of such thynges as growe of them selfes, and the next yere such as come vp of thole that vye growe of their awne accorde. And the thyrde yere thou ye and scape, plant vineyardes and eate the frutes thereof. And if that is escaped & leste, of þe daughter of Iuda, shall yet agayne take rottinge downe warde and beare frute vnywarde. For out of Ierusalem shall go a remnant, and a nombre that shall escape out of mount Sion: the zeile of the Lorde of holles shall bryng thes thyng to passe.

¶ Wherefore, thus sayth þe Lorde, concerning the kynges of Assyria: he shall not come to this cytie, nor those an arrowe into it, nor come before it with shilde, nor cast banke agaynst it: but shall go backe agayne the waye he came, & shall not come into this cytie saynt the Lorde. For I will defende this cytie, to saue it, for: myne awne sake, and for wound my seruantes sake.

¶ And so it came to passe that the selfe same nyght þe angell of the Lorde wet out a smote in the hoole of the Assyrians an hidzed foure shawe and fyue thousande. And when þe remnant were vp eyle in the moynynge: they sawe, they were all deed coarles. * And so Sennacherib kyng of Assyria awok up and departed, and went agayne, & dwelt at Ninuic. And it fortuned, þe as he was in a tye wozshyping lech & Sarelar his wive sonnes sinote hym with the sword. And they escaped into the lande of Armenia, and Achabaddon his sonne raygned in his steade.

¶ The .xx. Chapter.

¶ Hezekia is sick, and recoueth the signe of his health.
He recoueth remembrance of Jeroboam, and is reprehended of Jhal because he desired hym the treasure. He dyeth and is anasled by some cruelly in his deade.

¶ About that tyme * was Hezekia sicke unto deeth. And the pro-phete Jhal & some of Amoz came to him, and sayde vnto hym.

¶ Thus sayth & Lozde: * put thy-ne hontholde in an azdyre, for thou shalt die, and not lyue. And Hezekia turned his face to the wall, & prayed vnto the Lozde, sayenge:
I beseeche the name, O Lozde, remembre howe I haue walked before the in tructh and with a perfecte herte, and haue done that which is good in thy syght, and Hezekia wepte sore.

¶ And it continued that * afore Jhal was gone out into the mybble of the courte, the wozde of & Lozde came to him, sayenge: turn agayne, and tell Hezekia the captayne of my people: Thus sayth & Lozde God of Da-uid thy father: I haue heede thy prayer, and sene thy teares. And behold, I will heale &, so that on the thyrde daye thou shalt go vp into the house of the Lozde. And I will adde vnto thy dayes yet fyfene yere, and will de-lyuer the and this cytie out of the hãde of the kynges of Assyria, and will defende thy cy-tie for myne awne sake, and for Dauid my seruauntes sake. And Jhal sayde: Take a lope of fygges. And they toke and layed it on the soze, and he recouered.

¶ And Hezekia sayde vnto Jhal, what shalbe the signe, that the Lozde will heale me, and that I shall go vp into the house of the Lozde the thyrde daye? Jhal answered: thy sygne shalt thou haue of the Lozde, that the Lozde will do that he hath spoken. * Shall the shadowe go forwarde ten degres, or go backe agayne ten degres? Hezekia answered: it is n lyght thyng for the shadowe to go downe ten degres. * (where is that my deye.) but yf the shadowe go backwarde ten degres, it is no lyght thyng. And Jhal the prophete called vnto the Lozde, * and he broughte the shadowe ten degres backwarde by which it had gone downe in the byall of Ahas.

¶ The same season Serodach Baladan the sonne of Baladã kynges of Babylon sent letters ad a pfect vnto Hezekia, for he had hearde, howe that Hezekia was sick. And Hezekia was glad of them, and shewed them all his treasure house of siluer, golde, odours, precious apyntment, all the house of hys ar-mozpe, and all that was founde in hys treasures: there was nothinge in hys house, & in all his realme, that Hezekia the wed the not.

¶ And Jhal the prophete came vnto kynges Hezekia, and sayde vnto hym. What sayde thele men, and from whete came they to the?
¶ And Hezekia sayde: they be come from a farre countree, euen from Babylon. And he sayde agayne: what haue they sene in thy house?
¶ Hezekia answered: all the thynges that are in my house haue they sene: there is nothinge amonge my treasures, that I haue not shewed them. And Jhal sayde vnto Hezekia: heare the woordes of the Lozde: Beholde, the dayes somer thy father & haue layde vp in store vnto to thy daye * shalbe carped into Babylon, and nothinge shalbe lefte sayde the Lozde.

¶ And of thy sonnes: that I shall preccade out they take awaye, and they shalbe chambelains in the palace of the kyng of Babylon.

¶ And Hezekia sayde vnto Jhal: wellcome be the woordes of the Lozde which thou hast spoken: And he sayde: shall there not be peare and true the in my dayes?

¶ Hezekia * was twelue yere olde, went and buylt up the hyllaulders, * which Hezekia hys father had destroyed. And he reared up altiers for Asal, and made Idoll cause our fathers haue not hearkened vnto the wordes of thyss booke, to do accordyng vnto all that which is wrytten therein for vs.

So Helkia the hye preast and Ahikam, Achob, and Saphan and Afsia went vnto hylia the prophete the wyfe of Shullia the sonne of Chikna the sonne of Harham keeper of the wardrobe: whyche propheticke dwelt in Ierusalem in the house of the doctrine, and they communed with her. And he answered them thus sayth the Lord God of Israel: Tell the man that sent you to me: thus sayth the Lord-bolde, I will byynge enell vpon this place, and on the inhabitants thereof: (cutt all the wordes of the booke which the kynges of Iuda hath red) because they haue forsaken me, and haue burnt incense vnto other Gods, to angrie me with all the wordes of thess handes: they wrauth also shalbe kindled agaynst this place, and shall not be quenched.

But to the kynges of Iuda (which sent you to the counsell of the Lord), so shall ye saye: thus sayth the Lord God of Israel as touchyng the wordes which ye haue heard: Because thynge herte byd me, and because thou hast builded thy selfe before me the Lord, when I heardst what I spake agaynst this place, and agaynst the inhabitants of the same (howe that they shulde be destroyed and accursed:) and hast rent thy clothes and wepte before me: of that also haue I heard, sayth the Lord. Beholde therefore, I will reuenge the vnto thy fathers, and thou shalt be put into thy graue in peace, and thynge eyes shall not se all the enell, which I will bringe vpon this place. And they brought the kyng wordes agayne.

¶ The xxiii. Chapter.

¶ Josia readeth Deuteronomy before the people. He quitted downe the Idolles, after he had killeth the preast thereof. He killeth the preast thereof. He was burned in the sacrifice, and his sonne Achob: rage: with in his death, after he was taken, his sonne Josiah was made kyng.

And then the kyng sent, and there gathered vnto hym all the elders of Iuda and of Ierusalem. And the kyng went vp into the house of the Lord, with all the men of Iuda and all the inhabitants of Ierusalem, with the preastes, and prophetes and all the people both small and greete. And he red in the eares of them all the wordes of the booke of the conuenance, which was founde in the house of the Lord. And the kyng stode byn pylle: and made a conuenance before the Lord, that they shulde walke after the Lord, and keepe his commandmentes, his wynticelles, his statutes with all thess herte, and all thess soule, and make good the wordes of the lapyd appointment that were wrytten in the fowlyde booke. And all the people consented to the appointment.

And the kyng commanded Helkia the hye preast, and the inferior preastes and the keepers of the ornaments, to bringe out of the temple of the Lord, all the vessels which were made for Baal, for the Idole groues, and for all the hostes of heauen. And he burnt the without Ierusalem in the feldes of Cedon, and carped the ashes of them vnto Bethel. And he put downe the ministers of Baal whom the kynges of Iuda had founded to burne incense in the hyllantes and cyties of Iuda, that were rounde aboute Ierusalem, and also them that burnt incense vnto Baal, to the sonne, to the moue, to the planetes, and to all the hostes of heauen. And he brought out the groue from the temple of the Lord without Ierusalem vnto the broke Cedon, and burnt it there at the broke Cedon, and stampe it to powder, and cast the dust thereof vpon the graues of the chyliden of the people. And he brake downe the selles of the male stues that were by the house of the Lord, where the women woune hangynges for the Idole groue.

And he brought all the preast out of the cyties of Iuda, and despyed the hyllantes, where the preastes had burnt incense: cunctes Sebata, Scerleba, and destroyed the altars of the Sates, that were in the entreynge in of the gate of Josia the gouernour of the cite which were (as a man goeth by) on the left hande of the gate of the cytie. Where the preastes of the hyllantes came not vp to the altar of the Lord in Ierusalem, but only they byd entre of the breche among thess brethren.

And he despyed the sepulchres, which is in the valeye of the chyliden of Ammon, because no man shulde offer hys soule or hys daughter in fyre to Moloch: he put downe the hostes that the kynges of Israel had giuen to the sonne at the entreynge in of the house of the Lord, by the chabur of Nathanielch the chamberlaire which was ruler of the suburbs, and burnt the charrettes of the sonne with fyre. And the altars that were on the toppe of the parloure of Ahas (which Phynoges of Iuda had made) and the altars which Chanaas had made in the two corners of the house of the Lord, byd the kyng brake downe, and raine thence, and cast the dust of them into the broke Cedon.

And the hyllantes that were before Ierusalem on the ryght hande of the mounte Sion: (which Salomon the kyng of Israel had buylded for Baaloth the Idoll of the syons, and for Chamos the Idoll of the Abanites, and for Milchom the abhomyable Idoll of the chyliden of Ammon) toke the kyng despyed: and brake the pylages, and cut downe the Idole groues, and fylled thess places with the bones of men.

¶ The autler that was at Bethel, the hyllautler made by Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat (which made Israhel speme) bothe the autler and also the hyll, he brake downe and burnt the hyll autler and stampe it to powder, and burnt þe Beole grone. And as Josia turned hym selfe, he spied the graues that were in the mount, and sent and fette the bones out of the graues, and burnt them vpon the autler, to pollute it, accordyng to þe woordes of the Lord that the man of God proclaimed: which tolde the same woordes.

* iii. Regu.
xiii. a.

¶ Then he sayde: what graue stone is yonder that I see? And the men of the cytie tolde hym, it is the sepulchre of the man of God, which came from Juda, and tolde the selfe same thynges that thou hast done to the autler of Bethel. And he sayd let hym be: that no man moue hys bones. And so hys bones were laied with þe bones of a prophete that came out of Samaria.

¶ And all the houses of the hyllautlers in the cyties of Samaria which the kynges of Israhel had made, to aunge: (the Loide) with all those Josia put out of the waye, and dyd to them accordyng to all the actes that he had done in Bethel. And he sacrificed all þe pictures of the hyllautlers þe were there euen vpon the autlers, and burnt mennes bones vpon them, and returned to Ierusalem.

And the thre of the thre cheefe captaynes went to a rocke to Dauid, into the caue Adullam. And the hoste of the Philistines abode in the valeys of Jerplaim. And when Dauid was in the holde, þ Philistines watch was at Bethlechem þ same tyme. And Dauid longed, & sayde: * Whither one wolde geue me dryncke of the water of the well that is at the gate at Bethlechem. And the thre hake thorowe the host of the Philistines, and drewe water out of the well, that was by the gate at Bethlechem: & toke it, and brought it to Dauid. Neuerthelesse, Dauid wolde not dryncke of it, but rather offered it to the Lorde, and sayde: my God forbidde me, that I shulde do this thynge. Shall I dryncke the bloude of these men, that haue put theyr lyues in jeopardy: for with the jeopardy of theyr lyues they brought it: therefore he wolde not drinck it. And this did the thre myghtyest.

And Abisai the brother of Joab: he also was captayne amonge theyr: for he lyfte vpon hys spere agaynst thre hundred, & wounded them, and had a name amonge the thre: hee amonge theyr, he was more honorable then þ two, for he was their captayne. howbeit, he attayned not vnto the * same thye.

¶ What they were that went with David when he fledde from Saul.

These are they that came to David to sitlag, whyle he yet kept hym selfe close, because of Saul y sonne of Cis: and they were very stronge helpers in battell. They were weapened with bowes, as coude huelle stones with the ryght hāde and with the left and thote arrows oute of a bowe, as were of Soulds biethen, eue of Benjamin. The cheffest were Abiezer, and Joas y sonnes of Shamma a Gibeonite, and Joziel and Pelet the sonnes of Amasiah. Bereach and Jehu of Anathoth. And Ismaia a gibeonite a mygh-

These are they that went ouer Jordan in the fyfth moneth wher he had spled ouer all hys banckes. And they put to flyght all them of the valeye borth towarde the East and West.

And there came of the chyldren of Beniamin and Juda to the holde vnto David. And David wet out to meete them and answered, and sayde vnto the, If ye be come penfabye vnto me, to helpe me, myne jert shall be mynt vnto you. But and ye you come to betraye me to myne aduersaryes (I synghe there is no wykednes in myne handes) the God of oure fathers loke thereon and rebuke it. And the syrpte came vpon Amasai which was the chefe amonge thyrte, and he sayde, thyrte are we David, and on thy syde thou sonne of Isai: as Peace, peace be vnto the, and peace be to thyrte helpers, for thy God is thyne helpe. Then Dauid receaued them, and made them heedes of compaynes of the men of warre.

And there fell some of Aiaasse to David when he came with the Philistines agaynst Saul to battell, as but they helped them not for y Lordes of the Philistines toke aduysment and sent hym a waye agayne saynghe he wpll fall to hys Master Saul to the scarpard of oure herdes. As he went to sitlag, there fell to hym of Aiaasse: Abia Zozadab, Jediel, Michael, Zozabab, Eliu and zilthai, heedes of the thousandes that were of Aiaasse. And they holpe David agaynst the rousers, for they were all myghtie int of warre, and captaynes in the hoost. For at that tyme there came one or other to David daie by daie to helpe hym: vntill it was a greate hoost, lyke the hooste of Gad.

And this is the noblye of the chefe captaynes that were preparid to battell, and came to David to Hebron, to turne the kyngdome of Saul

And Zadock a yonger man strong and valiant & of his fathers householde. xxii. captyues. And of the chyldren of Benjamin the bethren of Saul, thre thousande. And a greate parte of them dyd (vnto that tyme) folowe the house of Saul.

And of the chyldren of Ephraim. xx. thousande & eght hundred myghtye men of warre and famous men in the householde of their fathers. And of the halfe trybe of Manasse xviii. thousande, which were appoynted by name to come and make David kynge. And of the chyldren of Issacar, which were men yf had vnderstandyng in the eght tyme, to knowe what Israel ought to do. The heeded of them were two hundred and all thre which were at their will. And of Zabulon that went out to the battayll and proceeded forth to the warre, w all maner of instrumentes of warre, fyfye thousand that were prepared to the warre, without anye dubiousse of hart. And of Asephthal a thousande captyues, and with them, with thyld a spere xxxvi. thousande. And of Dan prepared to battell xviii. thousande & fyve hundred. All these were men of warre, keepyng the forefront of the battell with perfect hart, and came to hebron to make David kynge ouer all Israel. And all the rest of Israel was of one accord, to make David king. And there they were with David thre dayes, carryng and dylligence, for they bethren had prepared for them. And ouer they that were nye them, vntyll Issacar, zabulon and Asephthal, broughte breade on A asses, Camels, Mules, & oren, and mares, floure, fygges, ralynges, wyne and oyle, oren, and thre aboundantie. ¶ The xiii. Chapter.

¶ The Arcke is broughte agayne from hebrath Ierim to Ierusalem. The which was called Obede.

A And David conueiled the captiues of thousandes and hundredes, & with all y Lorde, and sayd vnto all the congregation of Israel: If it seme you good, and to be of the Lorde oure God, we will take and sende vnto oure bethren that are left in all the lade of Israel, & with them also, to the prestes and Leuites which are in their cyties & suburbs, togyther the together vnto vs. And we will beynge agayne y Arcke of the Lorde to vs: for we regarded it not in the dayes of Saul. And all the congregacio was cōtent that he shuld do so, for the thyng seemed good in y eyes of all the people.

So David gathered all Israel together from y Shihon in Egypte, vnto y entreyge of hemath, to bringe the arcke of the Lorde from hebrath Ierim. And David went wyth all Israel to an hye place towarde hebrath Ierim, that was in Iuda, to see thence the arcke of the Lord God, that dwelleth betwix the Cherubes: where bys name is called on. And they caried the Arcke of God in a new cartte out of y house of Abinadab. And Aza & yss brother guyded y cartte. And David & all Israel playd before the arcke of God w all the thyng myght, with syngyng, and harpes, psalteries, &ymbrells and trompettes. And when they came vnto the thretyng floure of Chidon, Aza put forth his hande to holde the arcke, for the oren: & byng a litle wyde, stōbled. And the Lorde was wroth wth Aza, and smote hym, because he put his hande to the arcke. And there he dyed before God. And David was out of quyre, because the Lorde had rent a rent in Aza, & he called the name of that place: y retyng of Aza vnto this dape. And David was a feynde of God that dape sayng: howe shall I bringe the arcke of God home to me? And so David broughte not the arcke home to hym, to y cytie of David: But caried it into the house of Obede Edom a Gethite. And the arcke of God remayned with Obede Edom, euen in his house, thre monethes. And he blessed the house of Obede Edom and all that he had.

¶ Asephthal smeth moche and worketh to David which hath two wyues of the Philistines.

S D Hyram the kynge of Tyre sent y mellers to David & ymbyre of Cedar trees, with masons and carpenters, to buyde hym an house. And David perceaued, that the Lorde had confirmed hym kynge vpon Israel, and that his kynge dome was yfste vp on hye, because of his people Israel. And David toke yet mo wyues at Ierusalem, and begat mo sonnes and daughters. These are the names of his chyldren, which were borne vnto him at Ierusalem: Samua, Shobab, Nathan and Shalomon: Tibhar, Elisia and Eliphalet, Hoga, Reueg and Iaphia. Elisama, Beclanda and Eliphalel.

And when the Philistines heard y David was anointed kynge vpon all Israel, all the Philistines Philistines went by to seeke David. And David heard of it, and went oute agaynst them. And the Philistines came in, & painede the rowe the valey of Rephaim. And David asked counsell at God saying: Shall I go agaynst the Philistines, and wylt thou deliuer them into myne hande? And the Lord sayde vnto hym: go vp, for I will deliuer the into thine hande. And so they came vp to Bana Perazim & David smote them thre. And David sayd: God hath deuised myne enemies with myne hande, as a man wolde deuyde water. And therfore they called the name of that place Bana Perazim. And whā they had lefte thei gods there, David gaue a commaundment, and they were burnt with fyre.

And the Philistines came together agayne & rushed into the valley. And David asked agayne at God. And God sayde to hym: go not vp after the, but turne away from the, that thou mayest come vpon them ouer a gageynst the pererers. And when thou hearest a sounde go in the toppes of the pererers, the go out to battell: for God is gone forth before the, to smyte the hoste of the Philistines. David therfore byd as God commaunded him: & he smote the hoste of the Philistines, fro Sibron to Gazer. And the fame of David went out into all landes, and the Lord made all nacions feare hym.

Chapter.

The Lord bringe the Arche agayne. David building before it, in the temple of his wyfe Achis.

And David made hym houses in the city of David, and prepared a place for the arche of God, pitched for it a tent. Then David sayde the arche of God ought not to be caried but of the Leuites. for them hath the Lord chosen to beare the arche of the Lord, and to minister vnto hym for euer. And David gathered all Israel together to Ierusalem, to fetch the arche of the Lord vnto hys place which he had ordeyned for it. And David brought together the chyldren of Aaron and the Leuites. Of the sonnes of Cabath was Ariel the chefe, and of hys brethren there were an hundred and .xx. Of the chyldren of Merari: Aminai the chefe, and of hys brethren two hundred and .xx. Of the sonnes of Gerion: Joel the chefe, and of hys brethren an hundred and thyrtye. Of the chyldren of Elizapan: Semai the chefe, and of hys brethren two hundred. Of the sonnes of Iehoyon: Eliel the chefe, and of hys brethren .lxx. Of the sonnes of Izziel: Aminadab the chefe, and of hys brethren an hundred and twelue.

And David called Zadock and Abiathar the prelatres, and the Leuites, Ariel, Aminai, Joel, Semai, Eliel and Aminadab: & sayde vnto them: ye that are the principall fatheres of the Leuites, let that ye be holy with pour brethren, that ye make hynges in the Arche of the Lord God of Israel, vnto the place that I haue prepared for it. For ye because ye were not there at the first, the Lord oure God made a rent amonge vs, for that we fought hym not as the fashyon ought to be. So the prelatres and the Leuites sanctified them selues, to sett the Arche of the Lord God of Israel. And the chyldren of the Leuites bare the Arche of God, vpon they: shuldres with flauers thereon, as Moyses commaunded accordyng to the worde of the Lord.

And David spake to the chefe herdes of the Leuites, that they shuld appoynte certayne of they brethren to syng with instrumentes of musike, psalteries, harpes and symboles that they might make a sounde, and to syng on hye with Joyfullnesse: And the Leuites appoynted Heman the sonne of Joel: and (of his brethren) Asaph the sonne of Merari. And of the sonnes of Merari and of they brethren: Ethan the sonne of Eufaihu. And with the they brethren of the secde degree: zacharia, Ben, Jaaziel, Semiramoth, Iehiel, Aminai, Eliab, Benaiah, Chanaiab, Athabaihu, Eliphalehu, Ephanaihu, Obed Edd, & Joel, porters. So Heman, Asaph & Ethan the syngers made a sounde with symboles of brasse. And zacharia, Izziel, Semiramoth, Iehiel, Aminai, Eliab, & Maasabaihu and Banaiah played with psalteries on an Alamoth. Athabaihu, Eliphalehu, Ephanaihu, Obed Eddom, Iriel, and Jaaziah played vpon harpes an egyptian boue, with courgers. And Ephanaihu the chefe of the Leuites, was master of the songe, for he taught other to syng, because he was a man of vnderstandyng.

Berecia and Elcana kepte the doze of the Arche. And Benaiah, Iehosaphat, Aethanai, Amasai, zachariahu, Banaiah & Eliezer the prelatres byd blowe with trompettes before the Arche of God. And Obed Eddom and Iehia were keepers of the doze of the arche.

And David and the elders of Israel, and the captaynes ouer thousandes, went to fet the Arche of the appoyntment of the Lord: be out of the house of Obed Eddom with gladnes. And when God helped the leuites, that bare the Arche of the appoyntment of the Lord, they offered seven oxen, and seven rammes. And David had on hym a linnen garment, lyke as had also all the Leuites that bare the Arche, and so had the syngers, and Chenania ruler of the songe, with the syngers. And David had vpon hym an Ephod of linnen. And all they of Israel brought the Arche of the Lordes couenent with howyng, and blowing of the Hawme and trompettes: makinge a noyse with symboles, psalteres, and harpes.

And as the Arche of the appoyntment of the Lord came into the city of David, Elisymboles makynge a sweete melody with instruments of dulcyke and godly songes. And the sonnes of Ierubshum were porters. And all the people departed, euer man to his house: and David returned to his house.

The xvii. Chapter.

¶ David is forbidden to buye an house vnto the Lord. Whyt is promysed vnto the figure of Salomon.

AD did fortune it when David dwelt in his house, he sayde to Nathan the prophete: lo, I dwell in a house of Cedar tree: but the Arke of the Lordes covenant remaineth vnder curtaynes. And Nathan sayd to David: do all that is in thine herte, for God is with the.

And the same nyght it fortuneth that the woꝛde of God came to Nathan, sayinge: go and tell David my seruauit, thus sayth the Lord, thou shalt not buyde me an house to dwell in: for I haue dwelt in no house since the daye that I brought out the chyldren of Israel vnto this daye: but haue gone from tent to tent, and from one habitacon to another. And wherfore I haue walked with all Israel, I spake I euer one woꝛde to anye of the iudges of Israel: whom I commaunded to fede my people, sayinge: why haue ye not buyde me an house of Cedar tree? Howe therefore, thus that I saye vnto my seruauit David: thus sayth the Lord of hostes: I toke the out of the pastures whan thou wentest after shepe, that thou thyself be captayne ouer my people Israel. And I haue bene vnto the wither foreuer thou hast walked, & haue webed out all thine enemyes out of thy fighthe: I haue made y^e name, lyke y^e name of one of the greatest men that are in the earth. And I haue ordeyned a place for my people Israel and made it fast, so that now they maye dwell in thy place, and moue nomore. After shall the chyldren of wyckednesse bere them any moore as at the begynnyng. And sente the tyme that I commaunded iudges to be ouer my people Israel, I haue subdued all thyn enemyes, and I toke the, that the Lord wolde buyde the an house.

¶ Thus also shall come to passe: when thy dayes be expired, y^e thou must go vnto thy fathers, I will raise vp thy seed after y^e which shall be of thy sonnes, and I will prepare for hym the kyngdome. He shall buyde me an house, and I will establish his seate for euer. I will be his father, and he shall be my sonne, and I will not take my mercy awaye from hym, as I toke it from hym that was before the. But I will let hym in myne house and in my kyngdome for euer, and his seate shall be sure for euermore.

According to all these woꝛdes, and according to all thys wyse, vnto Nathan tell kinge

David. And David the kynge came & sat before the Lord, & in pde: what am I O Lord God, and what is myne household, that thou hast promoted me thus farre? And yet thou sendest spirit in thine eyes, O God: But thou hast also spoken of thy seruauits house for a greates whyle to come: and hast looked vpon me as vpon a man of hye degree (O Lord God.) What shall David besee more of the for the honour of thy seruauit? For thou hast knowne thy seruauit: O Lord for thy seruauits sake, cutt accordyng to thine awne hert: thou shalt haue all thys magnificence, to shewe all grent thynges. O Lord, there is none lyke the, neither is there anye God saue thou, accordyng to all that we haue hearde w our eares. Howeouer, what nation on the earth lyke thy people Israel, to whom God hath vouchsafed to come and ordeine the to be his awne people, and to make the a name of excellencye and terriblenesse, with casting out nations from before thy people, wdo thou hast deliuered out of Egypte?

¶ The people of Israel dydest thou make thine awne people for euer, and thou becomest the y^e God. Therefore name the Lord, let the thyng that thou hast spoken concerninge thy seruauit and his house, be true for euer, that thou do as thou hast sayde: let it come to passe, that thy name maye be magnified for euer, that it maye be sayde: the Lord of hostes is the God of Israel: (cutt the God of Israel) & the house of David thy seruauit endureth stable before the. For thou (O my God) hast tolde thy seruauit, y^e thou wilt buyde him an house. And therefore thy seruauit hath founde in his hert to praye before the. And nowe Lord, thou art God, and hast promised thys goodnesse vnto thy seruauit. Howe therefore, let it be thy pleasure to blesse y^e house of thy seruauit, that it maye continue before the for euer. For whom thou blessest (O Lord) the same is blessted for euer.

The xviii. Chapter.

¶ The battles of David against the Philistines.

AD after this it fortuneth, y^e David smote the Philistines, and subdued them, & toke Gethse the towne y^e longed therto, & toke it out of the hande of the Philistines. And he smote Gath, and the Gathites became Davids seruauits, and payde hym tribute. And David smote Hadadzezer kynge ofoba vnto Hinnath, as he went to stablishe his dominion by the riuier Euphrates, and David toke from hym a thousand charrettes, & seuen thousande horse men, & twelfe thousande footemen, & lamed all y^e charret horses, & restrued of them an hundred charrettes. And whē the Syrians of Hamath came to helpe Hadadzezer kynge ofoba, David slue of the Syrians xxii. thousande, and David subdued subdued Syria Damascus: And the Syrians became Davids servants, & brought him tribute. And the Lord preferred David in all that he went to.

And David took 6000000 of golde that were on the servants of Hadadzer, and brought them to Jerusalem. And 6000000 of silver, & from Chem (cities of Hadadzer) brought David exceeding much brass. And when Solomon made 6000000 of brass, & the pillars, & the vessels of brass.

And when Thou King of Harnath heard how David had beaten all the strength of Hadadzer King of Zobah, he sent Harnath his sonne to King David, to make peace with him, & to bless him, because he had fought against Hadadzer, & beaten him: for Thou hadst warred against Hadadzer, & David brought, all manner of Jewels of golde, silver and brass to him. And King David dedicated them unto the Lord, with 6000000 of gold, & he brought from all nations, from Edom, from Moab, from the children of Ammon, from the Philistines, & from Amalec. And Abisai 6000000 of silver, & 6000000 of the Edomites in the salt valeys, 6000000, and put 6000000 in Edom, and all the Edomites became Davids servants. Thus the Lord kept David in all that he did in his day.

And David reigned over all Israel, & executed judgment and righteousness among all his people. And Joab 6000000 of 6000000 was over the host, and Jehoshaphat the sonne of Asaph recorder, and Zadok the sonne of Abiathar were 6000000 of 6000000, and Banaiah the sonne of Jehoiada was over the Cherethites, and the Gileadites, & the eldest 6000000 of David were next unto the King.

¶ The xix. Chapter.

¶ When King of the Sonnes of Ammon, doth execute injury: to the servants of David.

After this, it chanced that 6000000 of the King of the children of Ammon, & his sonne reigned in his stead. And David said, I will be a kindness unto Hanon 6000000 of 6000000, because his father dealt kindly with me: And David sent messengers to comfort him over the death of his father. And the servants of David came into 6000000 of the children of Ammon to Hanon, to comfort him. But the Lord of the children of Ammon said to Hanon: thou hast thou 6000000 of David doth honour thy father in thy sight, & he hath sent comforters unto thee: Are not his servants come to search, to look, and to spy out the land?

Wherefore Hanon took Davids servants, & put them in bonds, and smote them, and cut of their clothes hard by their buttocks, and sent them away. And there went certain and told David, how 6000000 of men were served. And 6000000 of sent to meet them: for 6000000 of were exceedingly ashamed, and 6000000 of said: take ye at Jericho, until your bread be grown, and then returne.

And when the children of Ammon saw that they stank in 6000000 of David, Hanon & the children of Ammon sent a thousand talents of silver to hire their chariots & horsemen, out of Ethiopia, and out of Syria, & out of 6000000. And they hired 6000000 of chariots, and the King of Ethiopia & his people, which came, and pitched before Hebron. And the children of Ammon gathered them selves together to fight with them, & came to battle. And when David heard of it, he sent Joab and all 6000000 of strong men. And the children of Ammon came out, and put them selves in array to battle before the gate of the city. And 6000000 of King David were come, kept them by themselves backe in the field.

When Joab also saw that 6000000 of the battle was against him before 6000000 of Israel, he chose out of all the chosen men of Israel, and put them in array against 6000000 of Syrians. And 6000000 of the people be delivred unto the hands of Abisai his brother, & they put them selves in array against 6000000 of Ammon. And he said: If the Lord be for me, I will overcome me: & 6000000 of children of Ammon shall be a prey against 6000000 of I will help 6000000 of by thine hand, & let us play the men, for our peoples sake: for 6000000 of our God, & the Lord shall do which is good in his own sight. So Joab & the people 6000000 of were with him, and 6000000 of Syrians into 6000000 of battle, & they fled before him. And when 6000000 of Ammon saw 6000000 of the Syrians were fled, they ranne away like a flock before 6000000 of. And Joab came to Jerusalem.

And when 6000000 of saw 6000000 of they were put to the worse before Israel, they sent messengers & set out 6000000 of 6000000 of were beyond 6000000 of, & Shobach captain of 6000000 of of Hadadzer went before them. And it was told David, & he gathered all Israel, & went to gather over Jordan, & came, and set upon them. And when David had put him self in array against the Syrians, they fought with him. But 6000000 of fled before Israel. And David destroyed of the Syrians seven thousand chariots, & 6000000 of footmen, and killed Shobach captain of 6000000 of of host. And when 6000000 of servants of Hadadzer, saw that they were put to the worse before the of Israel, they made peace with David, & became his servants. Neither would the Syrians help 6000000 of Ammon any more.

¶ The thirde most victorious battell of David.

And it came to passe, that after the yeare was crept, (* aboute the tyme þe hynges go out a warrefare.) Ionaþ carried out the armye of the hoste, and * destroyed the contreye of the chyldren of Ammon, & came, & besieged Rabba, & destroyed it: But Dauid camped at Ierusalem whyle Ionaþ smote Rabba and destroyed it: * And Dauid toke the crowne of their hynges: from of hye hebd, & founde that it had þe wayght of a talent of golde, and there were precious stones in it, and it was ordeyned for Dauides heade. And he brought also exceedinglye moche spoyle out of þe prye. And he brought out the people that were in it, and formed them with sawes and harrowes of yron, and with other sharpe instrumentes, and so dealt Dauid with all the cryptes of þe chyldren of Ammon. And Dauid & all the people came agayne to Ierusalem. * After this it foryned, that there arose warre at Gazer with þe Philistines. ¶ The .xxi. Chapter.

¶ Dauid causeth the people to be nombred: and there wpe. lxx. thousande men of the pefillence.

And Satan stode vp agaynst Israel, & provoked Dauid to nolye Israel. And Dauid sayde to Ionaþ and to the rulers of þe people. Go ye and nolye Israel from Beer Seba to Dan, and byngge it to me that I maye knowe the nombre of them. And Ionaþ answered: the Lorde make hye people an hundred tymes so manye mo as they be. But my Lorde D^hig. are they not all my Lordes seruauntes: why then doth my Lorde requyre this thyng? why wylt my Lorde be a cause of trespass to Israel? Neuerthelesse, the hynges wode prepared agaynst Ionaþ. And Ionaþ departed and walked thozowt out all the of Israel, and came to Ierusalem agayne & gaue the nombre of the counte of the people unto Dauid. And all they of Israel were a thousand thousande & an hundred thousande men that due sword: and Iuda was. cccc. lxx. thousande men that due sword. But þe Leuites and Ben Iamin counted be not amonge the. For þe hynges wode was abhominable to Ionaþ. And the Lorde wode displeased with this thyng, and smote Israel. And Dauid sayde unto God: I haue sinned exceedingly in doyngge this thyng. And now I beseeche the, do awaye the wickednesse of thy seruaunt. For I haue done very folyshep.

And the Lorde spake unto Gad Dauides sear, sayinge: goo and tell Dauid, sayinge: Thus sayth þe Lorde: I geue the, the choise of these thynges: chofe the one of them, that I maye do vnto the. And Gad came to Dauid, and sayde vnto hym. Thus sayth the Lorde. Chofe the, ether the yeaeres sumpment, or the monethes, to be destroyed before thyne aduersaryes, and that þe sword of thyne enemyes maye ouertake the: or else the sword of the Lorde and pestilence in the lande these dayes, and þe Angell of the Lorde destroyinge thozowt out all þe coastes of Israel. And nowe boult thy selfe, whate wode I shall byngge agayne to hym that sent me. And Dauid sayde vnto Gad. I am in an exceedinglye strait: let me fall nowe into the hande of the Lorde, for passynge great are hye mercyes, but let me not fall into the hand of men.

So þe Lorde sent pestilence vpon Israel, and there were ouerthrowen of Israel. lxx. thousande men. And God sent the Angell in to Ierusalem to destroye in it. And as he was about to destroye, þe Lord behelde, and had compassion on the euill, and sayde to the Angell þe destroyed: it is ynough, let nowe thyne hande cease. And the Angell of the Lorde stode by þe threshylinge flowre of Oman the Jebulyte. And Dauid lyfte vp hye eyes, and sawe þe Angell of the Lord stonde betwene Iereth and heanen. Haunged a bewen sword in hye hande, stretched out toward Ierusalem. Then Dauid & þe elders of Israel whych were clothed in sacke, fell vpon theyr faces. And Dauid sayd vnto God: Is it not I that commaunded þe people to be nolyed? It is I that haue synned & done cuell in dede, & what haue these people done: let thyne hade O Lorde my God be on me and on my fathers house, but not on thy people that they shulde be punished.

And the Angell of the Lorde commaunded Gad to saye to Dauid, that Dauid shulde go vp, and set vp an auter vnto the Lorde, in the threshylinge flowre of Oman the Jebulyte. And Dauid went vp accordynge to the sayynge of Gad, which he spake in the name of þe Lorde. And Oman turned aboute, and sawe the Angell, & hye four sonnes were with hym, and byd them selues: But Oman

Man was theſſaying wheat. And as David came to Dina, Dina looked & ſawe David, and went out of the theſſaying flour, and bowed hym ſelfe to David with his face to the ground.

And David ſayde to Dina: geue me the place of the theſſaying ſlowe, that I maye buyde an altier therein vnto the Lord. Thou ſhalt geue it me for as moche money as it is worthe, that the plage maye ceaſe from the people. And Dina ſayde vnto David: take it to the, & let my Lord ſaying do that which ſeemeth good in his eyes. loo, I geue the oren alſo for burntſacrifices, & theſſaying ſlowes for woodde, & wheate for meat offering: I geue it all. And kynge David ſayd to Dina: not ſo, but I will bye it for as moche money as it is worth. ſo: I will not take that which is thyn for the Lord, ner offer burnt offerings without coaſt.

And ſo David gaue to Dina for that place, ſpices of gold. vi. hidzed by weight. And David buyde there an altier vnto the Lord, and offered burnt offerings & peace offerings, and called vpon the Lord, and he heard hym from heauen in fyre vpon the altier of burnt offering. And when the Lord had ſpoken to ſ Angel, he put vp his ſword agayne into ſhe the of it. At that tyme whe David ſawe, that the Lord had heard hym in the theſſaying ſlowe of Dina the Jebuſyte: he ſlede to offer there. ſo: for the tabernacle of the Lord which Moſes made in the wilderneſſe, and the altier of burnt offering were at that caſon in the hyll at Gibeon. And David coulde not go beſore it to aſke counsell at God, for he was aſerde of the ſwerde of the Angell of the Lord.

¶ The xxiij. Chapter.

¶ David willeth his ſonne Salomon to buyde the temple of the Lord: wherch thinge he dynt ſelte was forbidden to do.

And David ſayde: this is ſ house of the Lord God, and this is the altier for the burnt offeringe of Iſrael.

And David commaunded to gather together the ſtraungers that were in the lande of Iſrael, and he ſett maſons to hewe ſte ſtone, for the buylding of the houſe of God. And David prepared plenty of pry for maples and dozes of ſ gates, and to copen withall, and aboute of braſſe without wyght, and Cedar trees without nombre. ſo: the ydons and they of Tyre brought moch Cedar wood to David. And David ſayde. Salomon my ſonne is younge and tender, and the houſe that is to be buyld for the Lord, muſt exceden in greatneſſe, ſo: it maye be ſpoken of and praiſed in all lades. I wyll therfore make ordinaunce for it. And ſo David prepared many thynges beſore his deeth.

And he called Salomon his ſonne, & charged hym to buyld an houſe for the Lord God of Iſrael. And David ſayde to Salomon. * my ſonne, I thought / as it was in myne heart / to buyde an houſe vnto the name of the Lord my God. But the worde of the Lord came to me, ſaying: ſhalt thou moche londe, and halt make grete battelles: thou ſhalt therfore not buyld an houſe vnto my name, for ſhalt thou moche bloude vpon the erth in my ſyght. Beholde, a ſonne is donne to the, & he ſhalbe a man of reſt, for I will geue hym reſt from all his enemyes round about. ſo: his name ſhalbe Salomon: & I will ſende reſt and peace vpon Iſrael in his dayes. he ſhall buyde an houſe for my name, and he ſhalbe my ſonne, and I wyll be his father, & wyll prepare the ſeat of his kynge dome vpon Iſrael for ever. Nowe therfore my ſonne, ſo: the Lord be with the, & proſpere ſo: ſo: ſhalt thou buyde the houſe to the name of the Lord thy God, as he hath ſayde of the. And the Lord ſhall geue the wyſdome & vnderſtanding, & ſhall geue the commaundmentes for Iſrael, that ye maye kepe the lawe of the Lord thy God. ſo: then thou ſhalt proſpere: cut what thou takeſt brede & fulfilleſt the ſtatutes & lawes which the Lord charged Moſes with, for Iſrael. Plucke vp thynne heart therfore, ſo: be ſtronger, dread not, nor be diſcouraged. Beholde, in myne a buerſyre haue I alſo prepared for ſ house of the Lord, an hidzed thouſande talentes of golde, & a thouſande thouſande talentes of ſyluer, & as for braſſe & pry it canot be numbred, for it is very moche. And I haue prepared tymber and ſtone, and thou mayeſt pryde more thereto. Whereouer, thou haſt workemen with the pynowe, & maſons and carpenters to worke in ſtone & tymber, and many men ſo: be actiue for euery worke. And of golde, ſyluer, braſſe and pryon, there is no nombre. Cyp therfore, and be doyng, & the Lord ſhalbe with the.

And David commaunded all ſ lordes of Iſrael, to helpe Salomon his ſonne, ſaying: Is not the Lord yd God w you: & hath he not geue you reſt on euery ſyde: ſo: he hath geuen ſ inhabitaunt of ſ lande into my hande, & the lade is ſubbed beſore the Lord & beſore his people. Nowe therfore ſet your breſtes & pry ſoules, to ſeke the Lord your God. Cyp, and buyde ye the temple of the Lord God, to bezyng the Arche of the couenaunt of ſ Lord and the holy veſſelles of God, into the houſe ſo: buyld for the name of the Lord.

¶ The xxiiij. Chapter.

¶ David beinge olde, admyrned Salomon beinge. he counſaild the Levites to be numbred, & alſo geue them to the ſ officers.

When David was olde and full of dayes, & he made Salomon his ſonne kynge ouer Iſrael. And then he gathered together all ſ lordes of Iſrael with the prelates and the Levites. * v. reg. 26. b. 6. iii. lxxv. b. a.

not many sonnes, therefore they were in one

Israel hath geuen rest vnto his people, that they may dwelle in Ierusalem for euer. That the Levites also shuld no more beare y^e my soune, knowe thou y God of thy father, and serue hym with a pure hert, and wyth a fowete courage. * For the Lorde fercheth all herces, and vnderstandeth all the pynagyns of thougthes. And yf thou seke hym, he wyll founde of the: But yf thou forsake hym, he wyll cast the of for euer. Take hede now, for y Lorde hath chosen the, to bypde hym an house of a Sanctuary. We stronge therfore, and plape the man.

¶ And Dauid gaue Salomon his sonne the paterne of the porche: ^{¶ of the temple also} of y houses that longed therto, of the store houses, upper chambers, ynnere parlours, & of the house of the mercyscate: & the example of all that he had in his mynde, for the courttes of the house of the Lorde, & for all the rellid rounde about, for the treasures of the house of God, and for the treasures of the bedecate thynges, & for the dysposons of the yceastes and Leuites that wayted by course, & for all the workmanshipp, that shulde serue for the house of the Lorde, & for all the vessels that shulde serue in the house of the Lorde. For golde & for the wyght of golde, for all vessels of sondry ministracions: for all maner of vessels of syluer in wyght, & for all vessels, whatfor euer purpose they serued vnto.

¶ The wyght of golde for the candlestyes, and the golde for their lampes, with the wyght for euery candlestye, & for the lampes thereof. And for the candlestyes of syluer by wyght, both for the candlestye and also for her lampes according to the diuersite of y use of euery candlestye. And by wyght [¶] we golde for the tables of shewe bread, euen for euery table: and lyke wyse syluer for the tables of syluer. And golde for scetherboles, cypres and dymchynng potres: And pure golde in wyght for basens, eue for euery basen. And lyke wyse syluer by wyght, for euery basen of syluer. And for the autter of incense, pure golde by wyght. And gold for the paterne of the charett of the Cherubim y stretched out their wynges, and couered the Arche of y couenant of the Lord. All sayde Dauid, was geuen me by wytyngne of the hande of the Lorde, whych made me vnderstande all the workmanshipp of the paterne.

¶ And Dauid sayde to Salomon his sonne: We stronge, and do manfully, feare not, nor be faynt hearted. For the Lorde God, eue my God, is wyth the, and he shall not fayle the, nor forsake the, vntyll thou hast fynyshed all the worke that must serue for y house of the Lord. Beholde, the yceastes and Leuites are deuised in compaynes, for all maner of seruce that pertaineth to the house of God: they are wyth the for all maner of workmanshipp, and so are all that excell in wysedom for any maner of seruce. ¶ Thou hast also the Lorders and all the people for euery thyng that thou hast nede of.

¶ The xxx. Chapter.

¶ The offerings of Dauid & of the princes for the burnyng of the temple. Dauid writ, & gaue Salomon his sonne raguard in hyr deade.

¶ And Dauid the kynge sayde vnto y to all the congregacyon: * God [¶] hath speciallly chosen Salomon my sonne whych is yet yonge & reuer, & the wyche is greute, for the house shall not be for me, but for the Lorde God. Whereouer, I haue prepared w all my myght for the house of God: golde for vessels of golde, syluer for the of syluer, brasse for thynges of brasse, yron for thynges of yron, & wood for thynges of wood: and onix stones, and stones to be sett, glysting stones and of diuers colour, and all maner of yceolous stones, and marble stones in greut aboundance. And because I haue lust to y house of my God: I haue of myne owne propre good, of golde and syluer wherch I haue seuerally geue to the house of my God, brydyng all I haue prepared for y holy house: euen the thousande talentes of golde of Ophir, and seven thousande talentes of tryed syluer: to ouerlape the walles of the houses withall. y golde for thynges of golde syluer for them of syluer, & for all maner of wyche by y handes of artifycers. And who forer is willing, maye this daye consecrate hyr hande vnto the Lorde.

¶ And so the ancient fathers and the Lorders of the trybes of Israel, the captaynes of thousandes and hundredes, with the Lorders that were rulers ouer the kynges wyche, were wyllynge and gaue for the seruce of the house of God, yve thousande talentes of Golde, and ten thousande pices of golde: and ten thousande talentes of syluer, and xviij. thousande talentes of brasse, and an hundred thousande talentes of yron. And they with whom precious stones were solide gaue the to the treasure of the house of y Lord, by the hande of Zebiel the Seruante.

¶ And the people reioyced, wha they were so wyllynge to geue their goodes, and wyth a perfecte hert they offred vnto the Lorde. And Dauid the kynge reioyced wyth greut gladnesse. And Dauid blessed the Lorde before all the congregacyon, and sayde: Blessed be thou Lord God of Israel ouer father, from euer and for euer. Thyne (O Lorde) is greatnesse, and power, glorie, victorie and ypple: for all that is in heauen and in erth is thyne, & thyne is the kyngdom (O Lorde) and thou excellest aboue all, euen as the bedd of all. And ryche and honoure come of the, and thou ryngnest ouer all, and in thyne hande is power and strength, and in thyne hande is to make greut & to geue strenght vnto all.

And nowe oure God, we thanke the, and praye thy glorious name. But who am I, and what is my people: that we shulde enforce oure selues to geue these thynges so willingly? But all thynges come of the: and of that which we receaue of thyne hande we haue geuen the. * For we be but straungers before the, and sojourners, as were all oure fathers. Where dayes on the earth also are but as a shadowe, and there is none abydinge. * Lorde oure God, all this stuffe I we haue prepared to buyde the an house for thy holy name, cometh of thyne hande, * is all thyne. (I wrote also my God) that thou trespast the hertes, and hast pleasure in vnsaynednesse. And in the vnsaynednesse of myne herte. I haue willingly offered all these thynges. And nowe haue I sent the thy people which are soude here, to offer vnto the willingly and with gladnesse. * Lorde God of Abahā, Iabac, of Israel oure fathers, kepe this for euer, as the begynnyng of the thoughtes of the herte of thy people, and prepare their hertes vnto the. And geue vnto Salomō my sonne, a perfecte herte, to kepe thy commaundementes, thy testymonies and thy statutes, and to do all, * to buyde the house for the which I haue made prouision for.

And Dauid sayde to all the cōgregation: Howe blest is the Lorde oure God. And all the cōgregation blessed the Lorde God of their fathers, and bowed downe their heades and worshipped the Lorde and the kyng. And they offered offerynges vnto the Lorde. And on the morowe after I sayde apace, they offered burnt offerynges vnto the Lorde, eue a thousande yoke oxen, a thousande rāmes, * a thousande shepe, with their dyniche offerynges. Many incense offered they for all Israel, * dyd eate & dyniche before the Lorde the same daye wth greute gladnesse. And they made Salomon the sonne of Dauid kyng the seconde tyme, and annoynted him pryue before the Lorde, and yadock to be the hye prynt. * And Salomon sat on the seate of the Lorde, and was kyng in seade of Dauid his father, & prospered, and all they of Israel obeyed him. And all the Loides and men of power, and all the sonnes of kynges Dauid submitted them selues, * were vnder kyng Salomon. * And the Lorde magnified Salomon in dignite, in the sight of all them of Israel, and gaue him so gloriouse a kyngdome as no kyng had before him in Israel.

And so Dauid the sonne of Iſſuraygned ouer all Israel. And I space that he raygned ouer Israel, was fouertye yere: seuen yere raygned he in helyd, * xxxij. yere raygned he in Ierusalem. And he dyed i a good age: full of dayes, ryches and honoure. And Salomō his sonne raygned in his steade. The actes of Dauid I sayne fyyst and laste, beholde, they are wylten in the boke of Samuel the sear, and in the boke of Athany prophet, and in I boke of Gad the sear. wth all his kyngdome and power & tymes, I wele ouer him and ouer all Israel, & ouer all I kyngdomes of Ierth.

And to Salomō & all the cōgregation with him * went to the hie place that was at Gibeon: for * there was the tabernacle of the witness of God. * which stood the tēraunt of the Lorde made in the wilderness. But the Arche of God * had Dauid brought fro Iairath Icarim, into I place which Dauid had prepared therfore. For he had pytheda tēte for it at Ierusalem. Whereour, the braſen autter * I Bezakeel the sonne of Eiri, the sonne of Buc had made, was there, before the tabernacle of the Lorde. And Salomon and the cōgregation went to vplet it. And Salomon gat vth there before the Lorde to the braſen autter that was before the tabernacle of wylt.

And Salomon begynne to buyde the house of p Loze at Ierusalem in mount Moia * where the Loze appeared unto Dauid his father: euen in the place that Dauid prepared in the thersyngne house of Dynan p Iebuspte. And * he began to buyde in the seconde daye of the seconde moneth: the fourth yere of his raygne. And there are the patenes wherby Salomon was instructed to buyde p house of God. The length was thze shore cubytes after the olde measure, and the bredthe. xx. cubytes. The porch, p was in bredth as large as the temple, had. xx. cubytes: and the hegth was an hundred & .xx. cubytes. And he overlaid it on p pinner syde with pure golde.

And the greater house he spied with fyve fete, which he overlaid with the best gold, and graued therto palmetrees and cheynes. And he overlaid the house with pretious stone beautifull. And the golde was golde of Baerain. The house (I saye) p brames, postes, walles and doores therof, overlaid with gold, and made grauen worke vpon the wallis.

And he made p house most holpe, whose length was. xx. cubytes lyke to the bredthe of the house, and the bredthe therof was also. xx. cubytes. And he overlaid it with good golde, euen with. vij. hundred talentes. And the waighe of the naples of gold was fette fyve. And he overlaid p upper chabres with golde.

¶ C. lxxxvii.

* And in p house most holpe, he made two Cherubyns of ymage worke, lyke chyldezen, and overlaid them with gold. And p wynges of the Cherubyns were. xx. cubytes longe. The one wyng was fyue cubites, reaching to the wall of the house, and the other wyng was lyke wyle fyue cubytes, reaching to p wyng of the other Cherub. And euen so the one wyng of the other Cherub was fyue cubytes, reaching to the wall of the house, and the other wyng was fyue cubites also, and reached to the wyng of the other Cherub. So that the wynges of the sayde Cherubyns were stretcht out. xx. cubytes. And they stode on their fete, and looked in wardes. And he made a faze hanging of yelow sylke purple, cremosyne, and fyne white, and caused the pictures of Cherubyns to be broderd theron. And he made before the house, two pylles of. xxxv. cubytes hie. And the lierd that was aboue on the toppe of euerie one of the was fyue cubytes. And he made chapynes of wicthe worke for the quere, and put them on the herdes of the pylles, & made an hundred pomegranates, and put them on the cheynes. And he reared vp the pylles before the temple: one on the ryght hande, and the other on the left, and called p ryght Tachin, and the left Boaz.

¶ The liij. Chapter.

¶ The antler of baste the Lianatoze, the bestell to wathe the wylde, the canelstykkes, &c.

And he made an antler of baste. xx. cubytes longe, and. xx. cubytes broade, and ten cubytes hie. * And he cast a baste Lianatoze of ten cubytes from bym to bym, rounde in compase, and fyue cubytes hie: and a lyne of thypre cubytes by deapase it rounde aboute. And vnder it was the fasthyd of oren which byd compase it rounde aboute: with ten cubytes byd they compase the Lianatoze rounde aboute, and there were two rowes of oren which were call of lyhe molten worke. And it stode also vpon twelue oren: thie loked towarde the North, thie towarde the west, thie towarde the South, and thie towarde the East, and the Lianatoze was set vpo them, and all their backed were towarde the Lianatoze. And the threliert of it was an hundred, and the bym lyke the bym of a cuppe, with floures of lylyes. And it receaued and helde thie thousande bates.

* And he made ten lauers: and put fyue on the ryght hande, and fyue on the left, to wathe and clesse in them, soch thynges as they offered for a burntofferpyng. But the great Lianatoze was for the priestes to wathe in. And he made ten canelstykkes of golde: according to the patene p was geue of them) and put them in the temple: fyue on the ryght hande and fyue on p left. And he made also ten tables, and put them in the temple: fyue on the ryght syde, and fyue on the left. And he made an hundred balens of golde. And he made the court of the priestes, & the great court and doores to it: and overlaid the doores of them with baste. And he set the great Lianatoze on p ryght syde of the East ende, ouer agaynst the South. And hyram made postes, thornelles and balens, and fynished the worke that he was appoynted to make for hynges Salomons in the house of God. The two pylles, the couerpynges of two herdes on the topes of the pylles: & the two wythes to couer the two scales of herdes that were on the topes of the pylles: and foure hundred hundred pomegranates on the two wythes, two rowes of pomegranates on our wythe, for euer the two rowes of herbes that were on the pylsters. And he made two bot-tomes, and launders made he vpon the botto-mes: the great L anafory, and twelue ouen vnder it. Dottes also and shouelles, flesshe hooks, and all these vessels byd hyra. hys father made to hyngz Salomon for y^e house of the Lorde, of bynght brasse. In the playne of Jordan byd the kynge cast them, euen in the claye ground that is, betwene Scorchy & yaredatha. And Salomon made all these ves-selles in greute aboundance, for the wright of brasse coulde not be rehened.

And Salomon made all the vessels that were for the house of God: the golden autler also & the tables to set the shewbrzd vpon. Moreover, the candlesticks with their lam-pes: to burne after the maner before the que-^rre and that of precious golde: and the flou-^rres and the lampes, and the snuffers made of golde, and that perfect golde: and y^e di-^rtyngz kypures, basins, spones and censers of pure golde. And y^e maner the doze of the temple, and the pynr dozes within the place most holye, and the pynr dozes of the tem-^pple, were gyfyt. And so was all the worke y^e Salomon made for the house of the Lorde fynishyd.

¶ The v. Chapter.

¶ The Autler is brought into the temple, which is setted within the gart of the Lorde.

And so all the worke that Salomon made in the house of the Lorde was fynishyd, and * Salomon broughe in all the thynges that Dauid his father had deuyoted, with the siluer and golde and all the Jewelles, and put them amonge y^e trea-sures of the house of God.

¶ Then Salomon * gathered the elders of Israel together and all the heedes of the trybes, and auient fathers of the chyldren of Israel, vnto Jerusalem to bryng y^e Arche of the couenant of the Lorde out of the cytie of Dauid which is yon. Wherefore all the men of Israel recolectyd vnto the hyngz in the feast, euen in the feasth moneth. And all the elders of Israel came, and the Leutes toke v^y the Arche. And the prestes and the Le-^uites brought a waye the Arche and the ta-^bernacle of wyntre, and all the holy vessels that were in y^e tabernacle, and they bare them. And hyngz Salomon and all the con-gregacyon of Israel y^e were assembled vnto him before the Arche, offered theye and oten, so manye, that they coulde not be tolde nor nombred for multytude.

And the prestes brought the Arche of y^e appoyntment of the Lorde vnto his place, euen vnto the quere of the temple within the place most holye, and set it vnder the wyyn-ges of the cherubs, that the Cherubs stret-ched out their wynges ouer the place of the Arche, & the Cherubs couered both y^e Arche & her barres about on hye. And the barres of the Arche, were so longe, that the heades of the barres were sene without the Arche within y^e quere, but not without. And three y^e Arche remainyd vnto this daie. But there was nothyngz in the Arche, * saue the two tables which Moyses put therein at Horeb, when the Lorde made a couenant with the chyldren of Israel, after they were come out of Egypt. And it fortunyd, that when the prestes were come out of the holy place the sanctuarie was fylled with smoke, for all y^e prestes that were present, were sanctifyed and byd not then wayte by couste, that both the Leutes and the syngers, vnder Asaph, Heman and Jeduthun, were appoynted to sonde y^e offyces with their chyldren and be-^utyen & were araped in syn wytt, hanging Symbales, Plasteries, and harpes, a robe at the East end of the autler, and by them au-^hdyed and xx. prestes blowing with tro-^ppettes. And the trompett blowers and the syngers so agreed, y^e it senced but one voyce in prauyng and thankyng the Lorde. And when they lyt v^y their voyce withy^e trom-^ppettes, spinbales and other instruments of musyck, and when they playyd the Lorde, ^h howe that he is good, and that his mercye lasteth euer, y^e house of God was fylled wth a cloude: so that the prestes coulde not endure to mynister by the reason of the cloude. For the maiestie of the Lorde had fyl-^led the house of God.

¶ The vi. Chapter.

¶ The wynges of Salomon to the people, and the prayer that he made vnto God.

¶ When Salomon sayde: * the Lorde hath spoken, howe y^e he wyll dwell in the cloude. And I haue buyt an habytacyon for t^e, and a place for the dwellynge for euer. And the hyngz tur-ⁿed his face, and blessed the hole congrega-^yon of Israel, and all the congregacyon of Israel stode. And he sayde: blessed be y^e Lorde God of Israel which hath with his handes, fulfilled it, that he spake with his mouth to my father Dauid, sayyng: * since the daie that I brought my people out of the lande of Egypt, I chole no cytie amonge all y^e trybes of Israel to buyde an house in, y^e my name myght be there, nether chole I any man to be a ruler ouer my people Israel: sayyng y^e * I haue cholen Jerusalem, that my name myght be there, and haue cholen Dauid to be ouer my people Israel.

* And when it was in the herte of w^ond^r and my father to buyde an house for y^e name of y^e Lorde God of Israel: y^e Lorde sayd to w^ond^r my father: for as much as it was in thyne

¶ The viij. chapter.

¶ The first continueth the sacrifice. The Lorde approacheth to Salomon the second synne.

¶ And * when Salomon had made an ende of playnge, * there came downe the fyre from heauen, & consumed the * burnt offeringe and the sacrifices. And the house was fylled with the glorie of the Lorde, & the people coulde not go into the house of the Lorde, because the glorie of the Lorde had fylled the Lorders house. And when all the chyldren of Israel sawe howe the fyre, and the glorie of the Lorde came downe vpon the house, they fell downe flat vpon their faces to the erth vpon the pavement, and worshypped and confessed vnto the Lorde, that he is gracious, and that his mercie is everlastinge.

And the kynge and all the people offered sacrifices before the Lorde. And kynge Salomon offered a sacrifice of. xxij. thousande oxen, and an hundred & twenty thousande sheepe. And so the kynge and all the people dedicated the house of God. And the priestes waped on their offeres, and the Levites had the instruments of musycke of the Lorde, which kynge Dauid had made to chesse vnto the Lorde, that his mercie lasteth euerr, playge a psalme of Dauid with their hande. And the priestes blew with trumpets before the: and all thep of Israel stood. Moreover, Salomon halowed the myddle of the court, that was before the Lorde: for there he offered burnt offerings and the fette of the peace offerings, because the brasen altar which Salomon had made, was not able to receaue the burnt offerings and the meate offerings and the fette.

So at the same tyme Salomon kepte a * feast of seven dayes, and all the of Israel * with him, an exceeding great cōgregacyō, euen from the entering in of Hamathi, vnto the cytye of Egypt. And in the eighth daye they made a gatheringe. For they kepte the dedicacyon of the altar seven dayes, and the feast seven dayes. And the. xxiij. daye of the seventh moneth, he let the people departe into their tentes glad and merie in hert, for the goodwille that the Lorde had shewed to Dauid, and to Salomon, and to Israel his people. * And so Salomon finished the house of the Lorde, and he kynges house: and all that came in his hert to make in the house of the Lorde, and in hys awne house, went prosperouslye forwarde.

And the Lorde apere to Salomon by nyght, and sayde to him. I haue hearde thy prayer, and * haue chosen this place for my selfe, to be an house of sacrifice. For I shut vp heauen, that there be no rayne: or yf I commaunde the locustes to deuoure the lande, or yf I sende pestilence amonge my people: and yf they that are of my people, amonge whom my name is called vpon, do humble them selues, and make intercessyon, and seke my presence, and turne from their wicked wayes, then will I heare from heauen, and be mercifull to their synne, & will heale their lande. And fob hence forth myne eyes shalbe open, and myne eares attend vnto the prayer that is made in this place. And therefore now * I haue chosen and sanctified this house, & my name maye be there for euer: and myne eyes and myne heart shalbe there perpetuallye.

And yf thou wilt walke before me, as Dauid thy father walked, to do all yf I haue commaunded the, and shalt obserue my statutes and my lawes: then will I stablish the seat of thy kyngedome, accordinge as I made the cōuenant with Dauid thy father sayinge: * yf shalt not be without a man, to be ruler in Israel. But * yf thou turne awaye, and forsake my statutes, and my commandementes, which I haue set before you, and shalt go & serue other Gods, and worshyppe them: then will I plucke them vp by the rootes out of my lande which I haue geuen the, and this house, which I haue sanctified for my name, will I cast out of my syght, and will make it to be a p̄ouerbe & a leake amonge all nacjōns

¶ The. viii. Chaptr.

¶ The cities, that Salomon builded after that the house of God was finished.

20 And it softimed, that after .xx. yeare, when Salomon had buylt the house of the Lord, and bys aduice house : he buylt the cyties that hyram gaue him, and put of the chyldren of Israel in them. And Salomon went to Hamath soda, and strengthed it. And he buylt Tadmora in the wydernesse, and repayred all the those cyties which were in Hamath. And he buylt Bethhoron the upper and Bethhoron the nether, stronge cyties, hauynge walles, gates and barres. And Baalath and all the those cy-ties that Salomon had, and at the chayer cy-ties, ad the cyties of the howse, and euery pleasant place, that Salomon had luff to repyde in Jerusalem and Libanon, and thore bryde out all the lande of his dominion.

And all the people that were left of the Hebrews, Amozites, Thersaphes, Ichnites & Iebudites, which were not of the children of Israel: but were the children of them, which were leife after them in the land, and were not consumed of the children of Israel, them did Salomon make to paye tribute vnto this daye. But of the children of Israel did Salomon make no bondage for his worke:
but they were men of warre and rulers and great Lordes with hym, ad captaynes ouer his chariotes and horsemen. And hys Salomon offiers that ouerlawe and ruled the people, were ftye hundred and foure.

And Salomon brought the daughter of Pharaon out of the cytic of Dauid, into the house that he had buyded for her. for he sayd my wyfe shall not dwell in the house of Dauid kyng of Israel, for it is holy, because that the Arke of the Lorde is come vnto it.

Then Salomon offered burnt offerings unto the Lord, on the altar of the Lord which he had built before the porch, burning every thing in his due time and offering according to the commandment of Moses, in the sabbathes, newmoons, and to lempne feastes, * three tymes in the yeare, that is to say, in the feast of waete bread, in the feast of weakes, and in the feast of tabernacles.

And Salomon set the courses of priests to three officers, as Dauid his father had ordered this, and the Levites in the watch were to appoint a minister before the pulpit at every daye by daye, and the posters by course at every age. ¶ So so had Dauid the man of God commaunded. And they omitted not the commaundement of the hynge vnto the penitentes and the Leuytes, concerninge the manner of thynge, and concerninge the treasures. ¶ So Salomon made psonifio for the charges. ¶ From the fyfth daye that the foundation of the house of the Lorde was layde: eyll it was spithed, that the house of the Lorde was perfect. Then went hynge Salomon to Eyon Gaber, and to Edoth at the city of Ierusalem by the hande of his seruantes. ¶ He payed ad seruantes that had knowledge of the fee: and they came with the seruantes of Salomon to Byrrit, and carped thence foure hundred and ffyfte talents of golde, and brought it to hynge Salomon.

The. ix. Chapter.

C The communication of Salomon with the queen of Saba, and the gifts that she brought: ch. 10. The death of Salomon, after whom successeth Rehoboam.

And whā the queene of Saba hearde of the fame of Salomon. she came to proue hym in hard questions at Jerusalem. With a very great company, with camelles that bare spices & plentye of golde and preecious stones. And when he was come to Salomō, she communed with hym of all that he had in her berce. And Salomon soyled her, all her questions, and there was not one woorde hyd from Salomōn, whiche he tolde her not.

And when the queene of Shaba had leene the wyldeome of Salomō and the house that he had buylte, and the meate of hys table, the fyrtyng of his leuallies, and the llandyng of his wapteres, they apparell, hys burtelars, they apparell, hys goynge vp. by the whych he went into the house of the Lo:de, ther was nomore surete in her.

And the sayde to the kynge: the sayenge which I heard in myne awne lādre of thyne actes, ad of thy wysdome is true. I beloued not þ' wordes of the, untill I came, & myne eyes had sene it. And beholde, the one halfe of thy wysdome was not tolde me: for thou exceedest þ' fame that I heard. happye are they men, and happye are they thy seruantes which stande before the alwaye, & heare thy wysdome. Blessed be the Lorde thy God, which had lust to the, to set the kpyge on his seat, that thou mygdest be kyng, ordered by the Lorde thy God. I praye: maye God loeth Itraell, and hath delpte to make them continue euer, therefore made be the kyng ouer them to do righte and equyte.

C And he gaue the hyng an hundred a .xx. talentes of golde, and of hyppes recea dyng great abundance and precious stones, as there was there any more for hyppes, as the queene of Saba gaue hyng Salomon. And the seruantes of hyram and the seruantes of Salomon which brought golde from Ophir, brought also for Agume wood and precious stones. And the hyng made of the Agume wood, steyres in the house of the Lord, and in the kynges palace, and harpes and psalteries for syngers. And there was no lack wood sent before in the lande of Iuda. And kyng Salomon gaue to the queene of Saba euery pleasaunt thing that she asked but not for moche as he brought vnto the hyng. And so he turned and went a waye to her a new lande with her seruantes.

D The weyght of golde that came to Salomon in one yere, was fyue hundred. lxvi. talentes of golde, besydes that which chayne and marchauntes brought: and all the kynges of Arabia and rulers of that countrey, brought gold and syluer to Salomon. And kyng Salomon made two hundred bucklers of beaten golde, and .vi. hundred cycles of beaten gold were spint vpo one bucklar: and the hundred cycles made he of beaten gold, and one cycle cost thre hundred peeces of golde, and he hung put them in the house that was in the forest of Libanon.

And the kyng made a great seat of Iuorie, overlape it with pure golde. And there were fyue steyres to the seat with a fote stole of golde fastened to the seat: and pomelles on eche syde of the fyrtynge place, and two pons standynge by the pomelles. And thus stode on the one syde and on the other: vpo the fyue steyres, so that there was no lacke worke made in any kyngdome.

E And all the bypynginge vessels of hyng Salomon were of golde, and all the vessels of the house that was in the forest of Libanon, were of precious golde: for syluer was counted nothyng worth in the dayes of Salomon. For the kynges hyppes wente to Charis with the seruantes of hyram: euery thre yere once came the hyppes to Charis, and brought golde, syluer, Iuorie, and apes and peccocks.

F And kyng Salomon passed all the kynges of the earth in wysdomme and wysedome. And all the kynges of the earth sought the presence of Salomon, to heare his wysdome that God had put in hys herte: And they brought euery man his present: vessels of syluer, and vessels of golde, rayment, harness, hyppes, horses and mules, and what soeuer myght be gotten, yere by yere.

G And Salomon had foure thousande chariots for horses and charettes, and twelue thousande horsemen, whom he bestowed in the charet cyties, and some were with the hyng at Ierusalem. And he raygned ouer all the kynges that were fro Euphrates vnto the labe of the Byblus, and to the border of Egypt.

H And the kyng made syluer in Ierusalem as plenteous as stones, and Cedar trees as plenteous, as the mulberry trees that growe in the valleys. And they brought vnto Salomon horses out of Egypt, and out of all lades.

I The rest of the actes of hyng Salomon, first and last, are they not wrote in the saynges of Nathan the Prophete, and in the prophesye of Ihuah the Salomite, and in the visions of Jedo the sear of visions, agaynst Jerobon in the sonne of Sabat: And Salomon raygned in Ierusalem vpon all Israel fourty yeres. And Salomon slepe with hys fathers, and they buried hym in the cytie of Dauid his father, and Rehoboam his sonne raygned in his steade.

¶ The folowynge of Rehoboam, and the despyte of hys realme.

A And Rehoboam went to Sichem: for to Sichem were all Israel come together, to make hym hyng. And when Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, which was fled into Egypte from the presence of Salomon the kyng, hearde it, he returned out of Egypt. And they sent ad called hym. And so Jeroboam and all they of Israel came and comoned with Rehoboam, sayng: Thy father laped a greuous poche vpon vs: nowe therfore remitte thou somewhat of the greuous seruipe of thy father and of his heuye poche that he put vpon vs, and we will serue the. And he sayde to the: come agayne vnto me after thre dayes. And the people departed.

And kyng Rehoboam counsayled with the elders that had stode before Salomon his father, whyle he yet lyued, and he sayde: what counsell geue ye me, to answer this people agayne? And they tolde him, sayng: If thou be kynde to this people, and shewe thy selfe lowely to the, and speake lowng words to the, they will be thy seruantes for euer. But he left the counsell whiche the elders gaue him, and toke counsell with the yongemen, that were growe vp with hym and that stode in his presence. And he sayde vnto the: what answere geue ye, that we may answer this people, which haue comoned with me, sayng: What some what of the poche, which thy father dyd put vpon vs.

And the yonge men that were growen vp with hym, spake vnto hym, sayng: Thus shalt thou answer the people that spake to the, sayng: Thy father made oure poche heuye: but make thou it some what lyghter for vs. Thus shalt thou saye vnto the, my litle synger shal be heuier then my fathers, loped

And to Jeroboam & all þe people came to Rehoboam the thyrde daye, as the kynge hadde sayng: come agayne to me the thyrde daye. And þe kynge answered them cruelly: and kynge Rehoboam left þe counsell of the aged men, and answered them after þe aduise of þe yonge men, sayng: My father made your pocke greuous, and I will adde thereto: my father chastised you with whypes, but I will chastise you with scorpions. And to the kynge hearkenid not vnto þe people: but þe occasion came of God, þe Lord myght make good his sayng, * which he spake, by the hande of Ahia the Silonite, to Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat.

And when all they of Israel sawe that þe kynge wolde not agree vnto them, þe people answered þe kynge sayng: what parte haue we wth Dauid, or enheritaunce wth the sonne of Isaac: let euery man of Israel go to his rent. * And now Dauid, se to thyne awne house. And to all Israel gat them to their tentes, so þe Rehoboam raghed ouer no moore of þe chyldren of Israel, then dwelt in the cities of Iuda. Then kynge Rehoboam also sent Hadiram þe was ruler ouer þe tribute, and þe chyldren of Israel stoned hym wth stones þe he dyed. But kynge Rehoboam made speede to get him vp to his charret, to fflye to Ierusalem. And they of Israel rebelled agaynst þe house of Dauid wito this daye.

¶ The xi. Chapter.

¶ Rehoboam is forbidden to fight agaynst Jeroboam, he hath vniuersities, and is concubines, and he hath vniuersities, and is concubines.

And wha Rehoboam was come to Ierusalem, * he gathered of the house of Iuda & Beniamin, nyne score thousande chosen men of warre to fight agaynst Israel, & to byrge þe kyngdome agayne to Rehoboam. And the word of the Lord came to Semaihu the man of God, sayng: speake vnto Rehoboam the sonne of Salomon kynge of Iuda, & to all them of Israel that are in Iuda & Beniamin, & saye: thus sayeth þe Lord. Ye shall not go vpon to fight agaynst your brethren: retorne euery man to his house, for this thynge is done of me. And they obeyed þe wordes of þe Lord, and returned fro goynge agaynst Jeroboam.

And Rehoboam dwelt in Ierusalem, and buylded vpon Bethleem, and Bethan, and Betho: Bethzur, Socho and Beilan: Gath, and Maresha: and zibb Aburathim, Lachis and Asdoda: sozei Maalon and Hebzon, which is in Iuda & Beniamin, stronge cities. And he repaired þe stronge holdes & put enprynses in them, and store of vitaple, & wyne, & oyle. And in all cities he put wyrted & speares, and made them cecceadryng stronge, buyng Iuda and Beniamin on his syde.

And the prestes and þe leuites that were in all Israel, resorted to hym out of all there coastes. For the leuites left their suburbs and their possession, and came to Iuda and Ierusalem: * for Jeroboam and his sonnes had cast them out from many stronge vnto the Lord. * And he ordeyned hym prestes for the hyplautares, for the densples and for the calues which he had made. And after þe leuites there went of all þe tribes of Israel, soche as submitted their hertes to seke the Lord God of Israel, and came to Ierusalem, to offer vnto the Lord God of their fathers. And to they strenghted the kyngdome of Iuda, and made Rehoboam the sonne of Salomon myghty the peare longe, for there pere they walked in þe waye of Dauid and Salomon.

And Rehoboam toke hym Mahalath þe daughter of Jerimoth the sonne of Dauid to wyfe, and Abihail the daughter of Eliab the sonne of Iai, which bare hym chyldren Iesus, Samaria, and Zaba. And after her he toke Maaca þe daughter of Abialon which bare hym Abia, Attai, Ziza, & Selomith. And Rehoboam loued Maacah the daughter of Abialon aboue all his wyues & concubynes, for he toke eyghene wyues and thre score concubynes, and begat xxviii. sonnes and ix. daughters. And Rehoboam made Abiah the sonne of Maacah the chefe ruler amonge his brethren, and to haue the ouersyght of the kyngdome. And he played wth wylly, and sented all his chyldren thorow out all the countreys of Iuda and Beniamin vnto euery stronge cite. And he gaue them aboundance of vitaple, and obray and many wyues.

¶ The xii. Chapter.

¶ Asa kinge of Iuda rebeld the temple of the Lord. Rehoboam dyeth, & Asa his sonne succeedeth hym.

* And it fortuned, that in the fyfte yere of kynge Rehoboam, Sefac the kynge of Egypte came vpon agaynst Ierusalem. becaufe they had transgressed agaynst the Lorde wth xii. C. charrettes, and lx. M. horsmen. And the people were without nombre, that came with hym out of Egypte Lubim, Sukkum, and the blackmores. And they toke the stronge cities in Iuda, and came to Ierusalem.

Then came Semeia p prophete to Rehoboam & to the Lordes of Iuda, that were gathered together within Ierusalem for Sefac. And sayd vnto them: thus sayd the Lord, ye haue left me, & therefore haue I also left you in hādes of Sefac. Wherupon the lordes of Israel and the kynge humbled them selues, and sayde, the Lorde is ryghteous. And when the Lorde sawe that they submitted them selues, the worde of p Lorde came to Semeia, sayinge: They submitte them selues, therefore I will not destroye them. But I will deliuer them somwhat, and my wrath shall not burne vpon Ierusalem by hāde of Sefac. Keenerthelisse, they shall be vps seruantes, to knowe what difference is betwene my seruice, and the seruice of the kyngdomes of the worlde.

C And so Sefac kynge of Egypte came to Ierusalem, and toke awaye the treasures of the house of the Lorde, and the treasures of p kynges house: to keue euen all. And he caried awaye the cyphres of golde, * which Salomon made. In steade of which, kynge Rehoboam made cyphres of brasse, and comytted them to the hādes of the captaynes which had power to fyght of the foreinen, and that kept the entrance of p kynges house. And it came to passe, that when the kynge entred into the house of the Lorde, the garde came & set them, and brought them agayne vnto the garde chambr. And when he humbled hym selfe, the wrath of the Lorde turned from hym, that he wolde not destroye all together. And in Iuda all was well.

D And so kynge Rehoboam waxed myghty & ragged in Ierusalem. And Rehoboam was xli. yere olde, whē he began to ragge, & he ragged xlii. yeres in Ierusalem, the cytie which the Lorde had chosen out of all the trybes of Israel to put his name there. D Showte. And as the men of Iuda showed, it came to passe, that God smote Jeroboam and all Israel before Aha and Iuda. And the children of Israel fled before Iuda, and God delivered them into their hands. And Aha and his people slew a great slaughter of the: there fell downe wounded of Israel. v. c. li. thousand men. And so the chyldren of Israel were brought vnder, at that tyme, and the chyldren of Iuda prevailed: because they leaned vnto the Lorde God of their fathers. And Aha followed after Jeroboam, and toke cities from hym. Ascher was the towne belonging therto, and Ephraim with her towne. And Jeroboam recovered no strength agayne in daies of Aha. And the Lorde plagued him, and bedyed.

But Aha wored myghty, and mared xliij. wryces, and begat. xliij. sonnes, and. xviij. daughters. The rest of the actes of Aha, his customs and his sayings are wrytten in the booke of the prophete Iddo.

¶ The xliij. Chapter.

¶ Of Aha king of Iuda.

¶ Math. i. b.

Aha slepe with his fathers, and they buried hym in sepulchre of Dauid, and Aha his sonne ragged in his strende. In whose daies the lande was in quietnes ten yere.

¶ Math. i. b.

And Aha dyd that was good and right in the eyes of the Lorde his God: for he toke awaye strange altars and the hyllaltars, and brake downe the ymages, and cut downe the groves, and commaunded Iuda to see the Lorde God of their fathers, and to do accordyng to the lawe and commaundement. And he put awaye out all the ctycs of Iuda the hyllaltars and the ymages: and the kyngdome was quiet before hym. And he buylte stronge cities in Iuda: because the land was in rest, and he had no warre in those yeres. For the Lorde had given hym rest.

¶ Therefore he sayde to Iuda: let vs buyld these cities, and make about them walles, to wyes, gates and barres, for the lorde is yet in rest before vs, because we haue fought the Lorde our God: we haue fought hym, and he hath given vs rest on euery side: so they buylt and it prospered with them. And Aha had an armie of men that bare shylde and speares, out of Iuda, the hundred thousand: and out of Benjamin that bare shylde and bue bowes, two hundred and foure thousand, all these were valeaunt men.

¶ Math. i. b.

And there came out agaynst them zarab the black mozan with an host of dondyed thousande, and the hooded charrettes, and came as farre as Harela. And Aha wote out before hym, and they toynded the battayll in the vale of Sephata be hyde Harela. And Aha cryed vnto the Lorde his God, and sayde: Lorde, it is no harde thig with y to deliue ether many, or that haue no power: helpe vs therefore, O Lorde our God, for we trust to the, and in thy name we go agaynst this multitude. Thou arte the Lorde our God, and no man shall preuail agaynst the.

So the Lorde smote the blacke mores before Aha and Iuda, and the blacke mores fled. And Aha and the people that was with him, followed after them vnto Gerar. And the blacke mores host was ouertrowen, that there was none of them left, but were destroyed before the Lorde and before his host. And they carped awaye a myghty greate praye. And they smote all the ctycs rounde about Gerar. For the feare of the Lorde came vpon them. And they spoyled all the ctycs and there was exceeding moche spoyle in them. They smote also the tents of catell, and carped awaye plentye of shepe and camels, and returned to Ierusalem.

¶ The xv. Chapter.

¶ Of the measure of the prophete Azaria: and how he was with his meeter of her domynion.

And the spere of God came on Azaria the sonne of Obed. And he went out to mete Aha, and sayde vnto him: heare me Aha, and all Iuda, and Benjamin. The Lorde is with you, whye ye be with hym, and when ye see hym, he will be founde of you: and agayne, when ye forsake hym, he also will forsake you. And truly, for a longe season in Israel no man sought the true God, no man regarded the pfect that taught them, no man cared for the lawe. And when any man in this trouble dyd turne vnto the Lord God of Israel, and sought hym, he was founde of them. And in that tyme there was no peace to hym, that dyd go out and in: but greate sedicion was there amonge all the inhabitants of the earth. And naeyon was destroyed of naeyon, and ctye of ctye: for God dyd mooue all aduersite amonge them. Playe ye therefore the men, and let not your handes slacke, for your wothe shall be rewarded.

And when Aha hearde those wordes, and the prophete of Azaria the sonne of Obed prophete, he toke courage, and put awaye the inhumaine dolours out of all the cities of Iuda and Benjamin, and out of the ctycs which he wane in mount Ephraim, and rigned the altar of the Lorde, that was before y porch of the Lorde. And he gathered all Iuda and Benjamin, and the strangers with the out of Ephraim, Manasse, and Simron. For there fell many to hym out of Israel, when they sawe that the Lorde his God was with hym. So they assembled at Ierusalem the thye de moneth, the ffteenth yere of the reigne of Aha. And they offered vnto the Lord the same tyme of the spere which they had brought. vi. oxen, and. viij. thousande shepe.

And the messenger y wet to call Achiba, spake to him, saying: behold, the wordes of the prophetes spake good to the kyng with one assent, lett thy wordes therefore be lyke one of theys, that thou speake that which is pleasaunt. And Achiba sayd: as truly as the Lozde liueth: euen what my God sayth, that wyl I speake. And all Iuda stode before the Lorde wth their yongones, they wipues & they chyldren: & ther was Jehoiel the sonne of zacharia the sonne of Banani & sonne of Jeiel the sonne of Athanai, a leuite of the sonnes of Iaph, and vpon hym came the spere of the Lorde, cut in the myddes of the cōgregation. And he sayde: herken all Iuda, and ye enhabitors of Ierusalem, & thou king Jeholaphat: Thus sayeth y^e Lorde vnto you: be not afrayd nor feare herte by reason of this greute multitude: for y^e battayll is not pones: but

Ye shall not neede to feght in this battayll: but stepe for a stode, & beholde y^e helpe of the Lorde which is with you: feare not, nor let poure hertes saile you, & ye of Iuda and of Ierusalem. To morowe go out agaynst the: for the Lorde wyll be with you.

And Jeholaphat bowed hys face to the erth, and all Iuda and the enhabitors of Ierusalem fell before the Lorde wth shynnyng the Lorde. And the leuites of the chyldren of the Cahathites and of the chyldre of the Cobathites stode by, to praye the Lorde Sod of Israel wth a loude voyce on hye. And whā they arose earlye in the mornynge, they gat them out vnto the wilderness of Iebekon.

E And as they went out, Jeholaphat stode and sayde: heare me, O Iuda, & ye enhabitors of Ierusalem. Put your trust in the Lord your God, that ye maye be fōide saythfull. True credence to hys prophets, & so shall ye prosper. And he gaue the people counsell, and set some to syng vnto the Lord, & to praye him in the bewte of holynes, & to go out before the army, as they went, and to saye: praye y^e Lorde for hys mercy lasterthener. And what tyme as they began to laude & praye, then the Lorde stered by certayne of the chyldren of Ammon and Moab, which layed wayte for the that were of mount Seir: which were come agaynst Iuda. And they were ouerthrowen wth strokes amonge their selues. For the chyldren of Ammon and Moab rose agaynst y^e enhabitors of mount Seir. And they slewe and destroyed them. And whan they had made an ende of the enhabitors of Seir, euery one helpe to destroye another amonge their selues.

F And whā Iuda came to the edge of y^e wilderness, they looked vnto the multitude. And beholde, they were deede carcases falle to the erth, & none escaped. And whan Jeholaphat and hys people came to take awaye y^e spoyle of the, they founde amonge the aboundaunce of goodes, rayment and pleasant Jewels,

And the fourth daie they assembled in y^e valley of blessing: for there they blessed y^e Lorde. And therfore they called the name of y^e same place, the valley of blessing vnto this daye. And so all the men of Iuda & Ierusalem returned with Jeholaphat they beade, for to go agayne to Ierusalem wth gladnesse: for the Lorde had made them to crye ouer their enemies. And they came to Ierusalem wth platters and harnes, & thawmes, cut vnto the house of the Lorde. And the feare of God fell in the lyngdomes of all lades, whā they had hearde that the Lorde fought agaynst y^e enemies of Israel. And to the realme of Jeholaphat was in tranquillite: and hys God gaue hym rest on euery syde.

After this byd Jeholaphat king of Iuda ioyned him selfe to Athaziah king of Israel, whose mynde was to do wyckedly. He coupled hym selfe with hym, to make shippes to go to tharsis. And they made the shippes in Ezion Gaber. And Eliezer y^e sonne of Dodanah of Moab prophesied agaynst Jeholaphat, saynge: because thou hast ioyned thy selfe with Athaziah, the Lorde hath broken thy workes. And the shippes were broken, y^e they were not able to go to Tharsis.

In hys dayes the Edomites rebelled, whā they were vnder the dominyon of Iuda, and made the selues a kinge. And Jehozā went forth wth hys lordes, and all hys charettres were wth hym: & he rose vp by nyght, & smote y Edomites, which escaped him, & the captaynes of y charettres. But Edom rebelled still, so y they wolde not be vnder the hande of Iuda vnto this daye. That same time also byd Iudā departe from bryng vnder his hande, because Jehozā had forsaken y Lorde God of his fathers. Wherefore, he made hylluliers in the cyties of Iuda, and caused the inhabytantes of Jerusalem to comyt fornyccacyon, and promoued Iuda to Idolatrye.

And ther came a wysyng to him from Eliā y prophete, sayng: Thus sayth y Lord God of David thy father: because y hast not walked in the wayes of Jehosaphat thy father, & in the wayes of Aia kinge of Iuda, but walkedst in the wayes of the kynges of Israel, & hast made Iuda a the dwellers of Jerusalem to goe wozoyng, lyke to y whozome of the house of Ahab, & hast slayne thy byrthien, euē thy fathers house, which were better then thou: beholde, wā grente plage wyll the Lorde smyte thy folke, thy chyldre, thy wyues, and thy goodes. Wherefore he dyd that which was euell in the syght of the Lorde, as dyd they that were of y house of Ahab: for they were hys cōcellers after the death of his father, to his bēstruceyn. And he walked after thei counsell, and went wth Jehozam sonne of Ahab king of Israel, to fight agaynst Hazael king of Siria at Ramoth in Galaad: and the Siria sloute Josā. And Azabab the sonne of Jehozam kyng of Iuda went downe to se y Jehozā the sonne of Ahab at Jezrel, because he was diseased. And it cam of God, y Azabab shuld be despyed for hys comynge to Jehozā: for whā he was come, he wet out wth Jehozā agaynst Jehu the sonne of Nimī, y whom the Lorde had anoynted to destroye the house of Ahab.

Ad * in the seventh yere Jehoiada beynge boide, toke the captaynes of hundredes, Azariahu the sonne of Jerohaim, and Jimael the sonne of Jehohanan, Azariahu the sonne of Obed, Azaniahu the sonne of Adaiahu, and Elisaphat the sonne of sicah, and made a bonde with them. And they went aboute in Juda, and gathered the Leuites out of all the cyties of Juda and the auntynt fathers of Israel: and they came to Jerusalem. And all the congregacion made a bonde with the kynge in the house of God. And he forp vnto them: behold, the kynge's sonne must raigne, as the Lorde hath sayde of the chyldren of Dauid.

This is it therefore that ye shall do: The chylde parte of you shall (on the Sabbath) come to the preastes, Leuites, and keepers of the porches. And another chylde parte shall be of the house of the Lorde, and another chylde parte shall be at the gate of the foundacion, and all the people shall be in the court of the house of the Lorde. But ther shall none come into the house of the Lorde, save the preastes & they that minstre vnto the Leuites. They shall go in, for they are holy: but all the people shall kepe the watch of the Lorde. And the Leuites shall cōpasse the kynge rounde about and euery man shall haue his weapon in his hand: and what other man forer doth come into the house of the Lorde, he shall be slayne: and let them be with the kynge, when he cometh in, and when he goeth out.

And the Leuites and all Juda dyd accordynge to all thynges y^e Jehoiada the preaste had comaunded, & toke euery man his men, & came in on the Sabbath, with y^e went out on the Sabbath day: neither did Jehoiada y^e preast let the captaynes departe. And Jehoiada y^e preast deliuered to the captaynes of hundredes, speeres, shyldes, and bouclers, that had perfayned to kynge Dauid, and were in y^e house of God. And he let all the people enu^rma hanging his wep in his hande, fro the right syde of the temple, to the left syde of the temple, alonge by the altar and the temple, rounde aboute the kynge. And they brought out the kynge's sonne, and put vpon him the crowne, and y^e the testimoine, and there gaue hym in his hande, the sawe that was to be kept: And made him kynge. And Jehoiada & his sonnes annointed him, & sayde: God saue the kynge.

When Athaliah hearde the noyse of the people, runninge & psalmyng the kynge, she came to y^e people into the house of the Lorde. And she looked, and beholde, the kynge stood in his place at the enterynge in, & the Lorde's and the trumpettes were by the kynge, & all the people of the lande reioyced, blowynge wth trumpettes, & dyd playe with instruments of musyke, & taught to synge & psalm. But Athaliah rent her clothes, and sayde: treason, treason. And Jehoiada the preast went out to the captaynes of hundredes that were gouernours of the host, & sayde vnto the: haue her out without the doore of the temple: and whoso foloweth her, let hym be slayne with the sword. For y^e preast sayde y^e they shulde not slew her in the house of y^e Lorde. And they layde handes on her, tyll she was come to the enterynge of the hostgate besyde the kynge's house and there they slue her.

* And Jehoiada made a bonde betwene hym and all the people and the kynge, that the y^e shulde be the Lorde's people. And all the people w^{nt} to the house of Isaai, & destroyed it, and brake hys alters and hys ymages, & slue Athan the preast of Isaai before the alters. And Jehoiada put the offes for the house of the Lorde vnder the hyde of the preastes and Leuites, * as Dauid had distributed them in the house of the Lorde, to offer burnt offerynge vnto the Lorde, * as it is wyrtten in the lawe of Moyses, with reioysynge and synnyng, as it was ordeyned by Dauid. And he let posters by y^e gates of the house of the Lorde, that none which was vncleane in any thyng shulde entre in.

And he toke the captaynes of hundredes & all the nobles, and the gouernours of the people, & all the folke of the lande, and caused the kynge to come downe out of the house of the Lorde, and they came thowse the y^e gate into the kynge's house, and let the kynge vpon the seate of the kyngdome. And all the people of y^e lande reioyced, and the cytie was in tranquillite, after y^e they had slayne Athaliah with the sword.

The. xciiii. Chapter.

How Joas buryng the p^{re} of Jehoiada, keepeth the lawe, but after his death he regardeth it not. He breitheth vnto the prophete, Jehoiada is buried in his owne treasurie: and after hym raigneth Amaziah.

Was was seven yere olde when he beganne to raigne, * & he raigned fourty yere in Jerusalem: hys mother's name also was iabin of Beer Seba. And Joas dyd that which was right in the syght of the Lorde all the dayes of Jehoiada the preast. And Jehoiada toke hym two wyues, and he begat sonnes and daughters.

And it chaunced after this, that Joas was mynded, to renewe the house of the Lorde and he gathered together the preastes & y^e Leuites, and sayd to them: go out vnto the cyties of Juda, & gather of all Israel money, to repaie the house of your God from yere to yere, and se that ye haue the thyng: howbeit the Leuites were slacke. And the kynge called Jehoiada that was the chiefe, and sayd vnto hym. Why requirest thou not of the Levites to bring in, out of Juda & Jerusalem, * the collection of money according to the commandment of Moses the servant of the Lord: and the congregation of Israel shal offer it for the tabernacle of witness. For weked Amaziah and her chyldre brake by the house of God, and all the thynges that were dedicat for the house of the Lord dyd they bestowe for Seclum.

83 v hym

* And at the kynges commaundment, * they made a chest, & set it without at the gate of y house of the Lord, and made proclamacion thowme Juda and Jerusalem, to bring into the Lord: as the taccation of money, & Moses the servant of God set upon Israel in the wylderneffe. And the Lordes and all the people receyved, and brought in, and cast into the chest, untill it was full. And it fortuned, that at the same tyme they brought in y chest: unto them which were in the kynges busynesse) by the hande of the Levites. And when they sawe y there was moche moiney, the kynges scribe: and our appointyd by the hys prelat) came, and emptied the chest, and tolde it, and caryed it to his place agayne: thus they dyd daye by daye, and gathered moche moiney.

* And the kyng & Jehoiaha gaue it to such as dyd the labour and worke in the house of the Lord, and yhera masons and carpenters to repayre the house of the Lord, and to dyd they artificers in yron and bras, to make the house of the Lord. And so the workmen wrought, and the workmen ended thowme they hades: and they made the house of God as it ought to be, and strengthened it. And wht they had finished it, they brought y rest of the moiney before the kyng and Jehoiaha, and ther with were made vessels for y house of the Lord: euen vessels to minstre with all, and to serue for burnt offerynges: charyers and spoones, vessels of golde and syluer. And they offered burnt offerynges in the house of the Lord continuallye all the dayes of Jehoiaha.

¶ But Jehoiaha waxed olde, and dyed full of dayes, for an hundred & thyttye yere olde was he when he dyed. And they buryed hym in the cytie of David amonge the kynges, because he dealt well with Israel, and with God and with his house. And after the deeth of Jehoiaha, came the Lordes of Juda, and made obeyssaunce to the kyng. And the kynges bekened vnto them. And so they sette the house of the Lord God of theyr fathers. & serued groues and ydols. And then came the wrath of God vpon Juda and Jerusalem, for this they trespassed sake. And he sent prophetes to them, to bring them agayne vnto the Lord. And they reskipped vnto them: But they wolde not heare.

¶ And the oppyte of God came vpon zacharia y soune of Jehoiaha the prelat, which rode by the people, & sayde vnto them: Thus sayth God: why transgresse ye the commandmentes of the Lord, & ye cannot prosper: For because ye haue forsaken the Lord, he also hath forsaken you. * And they conspyred agaynst him, and stoned him with stones at the commaundment of the kyng: euen in the court of the house of the Lord. And so Joas the kyng remembered not the hyndres which Jehoiaha hys father had done to him, but slue his soune. And wht he dyed, he sayd: the Lord loke vpon it, and requyre it.

¶ And when the yere was out, it fortuned, that the host of Syria came by agaynst him: and they came agaynst Juda & Jerusalem, and destroyed all y Lordes of the people scg amonge the people, & sent all the spoyle of the vnto the kyng to Damasco w a small copayre of men, & the Lord deliuered a very great hoste into their hade, because they had forsake y Lord God of theyr fathers. And moreover they serued Joas according to his dedes.

¶ And whan they were departed from him, they left him in great bicauses. & yds a wone seruantes colpyied agaynst him for y bloude of the chyldren of Jehoiaha the prelat, and slue hym on hys bryd, and beedyed, & they buryed him in the cytie of David: but not in the sepulchres of the kynges. And there are they that conspyred agaynst him: zebad the sonne of Simcath an Ammonite, and Jothabab the sonne of Simcath a Moabite. And hys sonnes, and the summe of the care that was rayed in hys tyme, and the repaynyng of the house of God, beholde, they are written in y booke of the boke of the kynges. And Amaziah hys sonne raygned in hys strade.

¶ The xxv. Chapter.

¶ Amaziah our counsell the Chometen. And Joas kyng of Israel our counsell Amaziah.

¶ Amaziah was. xxv. yere olde, when he began to raygne, and he raygned xxv. yere in * Jerusalem. Hys motheres name was Jehoiaha of Jerusalem. And he dyd that which is ryght in the syght of the Lord: but not with a perfecte hert. And as sone as he was settled in the kyng dome, he slue hys seruantes, that had kylled the kyng hys father. But he slue not their chyldren, because it is witten thus in the law a boke of Moses, where the Lord commaunded, saying: * the fathers shall not dye for the chyldren, neither shall the chyldren dye for the fathers, but every man shall dye for hys owne synne. And Amaziah gathered Juda together, and made them captaynes ouer thousandes and ouer hundredes, according to the houses of theyr fathers, thowme out all Juda and Benjamin. And he nombred them from twety yere olde and aboue, and founde amonge them, three hundred thousand chosen men, able to go to battell, and that coulde handle speare speare and shilde. he hyed also an hundred thousand stronge fyghtinge men out of Israel, for an hundred talents of syluer.

E And there came a man of God to him, and sayde: Whynge, let not the armie of Israel come with the: for the Lorde is not with Israel, neither with all the house of Ephraim. But if thou wilt needs be saythele, come on, and take the battell in hãde, and God shall make the fall before þe enemye. for God hath power to helpe, & to cast downe. And Amaziah sayde to the ma of God: what shall we do then. for the hidid talents, which I haue geuen for the hoste of Israel: The man of God answered: the Lorde is able to geue the moche more then they be.

And Amaziah senered them to the armie that was come to him out of Ephraim, to go home agayne. Wherefore they were excreadyng wroth with Iuda, and returned home in greate anger.

And Amaziah toke hert and carped out hys people, and went to the salt balley, and smote of the chyldren of Seir ten thousand. And other ten thousande dyd the chyldren of Iuda take slayn, and carped them vnto þe toppe of a rocke, and cast them downe from the toppe of the rocke, that they all to burst: but the souldiers of the armie which Amaziah sent away, that they shulde not go wth his people to battell, fell vpo the ctyes of Iuda, from Samaria vnto Bethhorã, & smote the thousande of them, & toke moche spoyle.

E And it chawnced, after þe Amaziah was come from the slaughter of the Edomites, he brought the Gods of the chyldren of Seir, & set them vp to be hys Gods, and bowed hym selfe before the: and burned encke vnto the. Wherefore the Lorde was wroth with Amaziah and sent vnto hym a prophete, whych layd vnto hym: why hast þe soughte the Gods of the people, which were not able to deliure they: a vane people out of thyne hande. And it chawnced, that as the prophete talked with hym the kynge sayde vnto hym: haue men made the of the kynges counsell: reule, why wilt thou be beate. And the prophete crafd and sayde: I am sure that God is mynded to destroye the, because thou hast done this, and agrecst not vnto my counsell.

E Then Amaziah kynge of Iuda toke abuse, and sent to Joas the sonne of Jehonahs the sonne of Jehu kynge of Israel, & sayde come, that we maye se ether other. And Joas kynge of Israel sent to Amaziah kynge of Iuda, sayinge: a thyself that is in Libanon, sent to a Cedar tree of Libanon, sayng, & geue thy daughter to my soune to wyfe. And there came a wyld beust of Liban, & tread f downe the thyself. Thou sayest þe thou hast beate þe Edomites, and thine bert maketh the poudre, to glorye thy selfe. Nowe persore hyde at home: why dost thou prouoke vnto euell, that thou mayest perishe, both thou and Iuda with the?

But Amaziah wolde not herke to him: for it came of God, euen to deliure them into þe hãde of theyr enemye because they sought counsell at the Gods of Edom. And so Joas the kynge of Israel came vp: and they lawe ether other, both he and Amaziah kynge of Iuda at Bethsanies which is in Iuda. And they fled euery ma to his tent. And Joas the kynge of Israel toke Amaziah kynge of Iuda the sonne of Joahas the sonne of Jehonahs at Bethsanies: and brought hym to Jerusalem, & tare the walke of Jerusalem from the gate of Ephraim vnto the gate that was ouer agaynst it, foure hundred cubytes. And he toke awaye also all the golde and syluer, and all the Jewelles that were founde in the house of God with Sber Edom, and þe treasures of the kynges house, & the ponge warbes, and returned to Samaria.

And Amaziah the sonne of Joas kynge of Iuda lyued after the deeth of Joas sonne of Jehonahs kynge of Israel sixtyn yere. The rest of the actes of Amaziah before & last, are they not written in the boke of the kynges of Iuda and Israel: And after the tyme that Amaziah dyd turne awaye from the Lorde & they conspired treason agaynst him in Jerusalem: and when he was fled to Lachis, they sent to Lachis after hym, and slue hym there: and brought hym vp with shuffes, and buryed hym with hys fathers in a ctye of Iuda.

¶ The xxvi. Chapter:

E After the birth of Amaziah raguchet Shahu (after wyfe called Oula, but sh is thersen with the lepe, and Joasham raguchet in bywretime.

Ahen all the people of Iuda toke Azia, which was a syrtene yere olde) and made hym kynge in the rowne of hys father Amaziah. Hys mothers name also was Jeholia of Jerusalem. And he did that which was right in the sight of the Lorde, accordyng to all, as dyd hys father Amaziah. And it came to passe, that he soughte God in the dayes of zachariah (which mayntened the feare of God) & as long as he soughte the Lorde, God made hym to prosper.

And he went to battell agaynst the Philistines, and brake downe the wall of Geth, & the wall of Jabne, and the wall of Adob, & buryt ctyes about Adob & among the Philistines. And God dolpe him agaynst þe Philistines, and agaynst the Arabians þe dwell in Surbaal Gurbaal and Hammehunim. And the Ammonites gave tribute to Uzia, and his name spied be abroad eue to pnterpyng in of Egypte: for he played the man exceedingly. And he reuered Uzia buyle towres in Ierusalem by the corner gate, & by the valeye gate, and at the turninge of the wall, and made the stronge. And he buyle towres in the wybernesse, and digged many welles: for he had moche cattell, in the valeys and playnes, plowmen and vnytychellers in the mountaynes and in Charamel, for he loued busbandrye.

And Uzia had an host of fyghthyng men that went out to warre in the armye accordyng to the nombre of theyr office vnder the bande of Ieriel the scribe & Azaiah the ruler, & vnder the bande of Hannaniah which was one of the kynges Loides. And the hoile nombre of the ancient fathers, & of the men of myght were two thousande and fyve hundred: & vnder the bande of them was the armye of the men of warre, euen thre hundred & seuen thousande, & fyve hundred. & made warre with the powere of an armye, helppynge the kyng against fyenemies. And Uzia provided them thorow out all the host, children, speares, helmedes, habercelunes, bowes and slunges for to cast stones. And he made forte engynnes in Ierusalem, which he inuented & layd on p towres and corners, to shote arrows and grante stones with all. And his name spredd farre abroad, because he was helpe to excellently, so p he became very myghty.

But in his strength, his hert arose to hys destruction: for he transgressed against the Lorde hys God, & went into the temple of p Lorde, to burne ense vpon the alter of incense. And Azaiah the preaste went in after him, and with him foure thore preastes of the Lorde that were valiant men. And they stode by Uzia the kyng, and sayde vnto hym: * it peracheth not to p Uzia to burne incense vnto the Lorde, but to the preastes the chyldren of Aaron, that are consecrate for to offere incense. Come therfore out of the sanctuarye for thou hast trespassed, and it is no wo: thpy to the before the Lorde God.

And Uzia was worth, & had incense in his hand to burne it: & so mych he had indigna-

And Azaiah the cheff preaste with all the other preastes lokt vpo hym: and beholde, he was become a leper in his forehead, & they weted him thence. And he was fayne to go out, because the Lorde had smitten hym. And Uzia the kyng continued a leper vnto the daye of hys deeth, and dwelt seuerall in an house beyng a leper and shutt out of the house of the Lorde. And Jotham hys sonne had the gouernance of the kynges house, and iudged the people of the lande.

The rest of the actes of Uzia fayst & last, dyd Iai p prophete the sonne of Amos, wyte. And so Uzia slepe with hys fathers, and they buried him with his fathers in the feilde of the buerall which was belyde the sepulchres of the kinges. For they sayde: he is a leper. And Jotham hys sonne reigned in hys steade.

¶ The xxvi. Chapter.

¶ Jotham reigned and ouer cometh the Ammonites: & what hys sonne reigned after hym.

Jotham was fyue and twentye yere olde, when he beganne to reigne, and reigned fyfteen yere in Ierusalem. hys mothers name also was Ierusa the daughter of Zadoc. And he dyd that which was ryght in the syghte of the Lorde in all poyntes as dyd hys father Uzia saue, that he came not into the temple of the Lorde, and the people dyd pcrweyckely. he buyle the hie gate of the temple of the Lorde, and on the walle (where the house of ordinnance was) he buyle moche. And ouer he buyle cpyes in the mountaynes of Iuda, and in the wood countrepe he buyle castles and towres.

he fought with the hynges of the chyldren of Ammon, and pcrwalyd against the. And the chyldren of Ammon gaue hym the same p yere an hundred talentes of syluer, and ten thousande quarters of wheate, & ten thousand of barleye. So moche dyd the chyldre of Ammon geue hym the seconde yere and the thyrde also. So Jotha became myghtie, becom he directed hys waye before p Lorde his God.

The rest of the actes of Jotham & all hys D warres, & his conet sacpon, so, they are written in the boke of the kynges of Israel and Iuda. he was xxv. yere olde when he beganne to reigne, & reigned fyfteen yere in Ierusalem. And Jotham slepe with his fathers, and they buried hym in the cytie of Dauid: & Aha3 hys sonne reigned in hys steade.

¶ The xxviii. Chapter.

Aha3 was * twety yere old whē he beganne to reigne, & reigned
* iij. cc. lxx. fyfteen yere in Ierusalem, and he dyd not that which is ryght in the syghte of the Lorde, as dyd his father dauid: for he walked in p wayes of p kynges of Israel, & made molten ymagines for Baalim. he offered incense in the valeye of the sonne of hinnom, and burnt hys chyldren in fyre after the abominacions of the heathen, wch the Lord callt out before the chyldren of Israel. he offered also, and burnt incense in hilasalters and on mountayns and vnder euery grene tre.

* wherfore the Lorde his God deliuered him into the hāde of the kyng of the Syrians, which which beſieged, & carried awaye a great multitude of hyrcapriue, and brought them to babilon. And he was deliuered into the hande of the kynge of Aſſyria, which ſmote him with a great ſlaughter. For Iehoiach the ſonne of Iehoiakim kinge in Iuda an hundred & twentye thouſande in one daye, which were all fightinge men: and that becauſe they had forſaken the Lorde God of theppre fathers. And zichai a mighty man of ephraim kinge Aſſachub the kyngeſ ſonne, & Aſſira the gouernour of the houſe, and Eleana ſwas next to the kynge. And the childre of Iſrael toke priſoners of theſe brethren, two hundred thouſande women, ſonnes, & daughters, & carried awaye moche people of them, & brought the ſpoyle to ſenaria.

But there was a prophete of the Lordes (whose name was Obed) and he went out before Holoth that came to Samaria, a sayd vnto them, Behold, because the Lord God of youre fathers is wroth wth Iuda, he hath deliuered them into youre hande. And ye haue slayne them with cruelnesse, & reacht by to heauen. And now ye purpose to hepe vnder the cytyben of Iuda and Ierusalem, and to make them bondmen and bond women. And do ye not labe youre selues with synne in the syght of y Lord your God: Nowe heare me therefore, and deliuer the captiues agayne (which ye haue taken of youre bretheren. for I will not beare wroth of Godd byd you so.

¶ Therefore, certayne of the bretheren of the and Amasa the sonne of Abiah, stood up aggainst them that came from the warre, and laide vnto them: bringes net in the captiues uondre God alletyde, ye enefee to adde more to our synnes and trespass. For our trespass is great alleyside, and there is a ferece wrath against Israel. And vpon that, the men of armes ledde the captiues, and the people before the Loorders and all the congregacyon.

And the me that were nowe rehearsed by name, rose vp, and folle the prisoners, & with the spoyle clothed all y^e were naked amonge them, and arayed them, & shod them, & gaue them to eate and to drinke, & anoynted them, and carped all that were feble of them vpon asses, & brought them to Jericho (the ctye of Dauides trees) to the y^e bethsam. & then they returned to Samaria againe.

And the Philistines innaded the cingeth in the same: Gimslo, and the towncs thereof, and dwelt there. For the Lord brought Iuda lo-made Iuda naked, & traſſed her ſore againſt the Lorde. And Eſbutha puluer ſpyng of Aſſyrians came vpon him, and troubled him

¶ The xxix. Chapter.

Ethiopia (otherwise called Ethiopia, or Tethiopia) rejoyced into the temple of the Lord all the things that had not been regarded of her predecessors.

Ezechia beganne to raygne, whē he was fyue & twenty yere olde,

 I was borne in a twelfth yere in Jerusaleme. And his mothers name was Abia y^e daughter of zach-ariah. And he dyd that which was right in the syghte of the Lorde, in all poyntes as dyd Dauid hys father. He opened the doore of the house of the Lorde, in the first yere and first month of hys reigne; and repayment them. And he brought in the priests and y^e Levites, and gathered them together in to the rest strete, and sayde vnto them.

* In 1246.
 1246.12.

Heare me ye Kntes, & now be sanctified and halowe the house of the Lorde God of your fathers, bypise fylthinesse out of the holy place. For our fathers haue trespassed, and done euell in the eyes of the Lorde our God. And haue forsake him, & turned a waye theyr faces from the habitation of the Lorde, and turned theyr backs on it. And beyde y they haue shut wy the doores of the porch: and queneched the lampes, & haue nether burnt incense.

cruse, nor offered burnt offerings in the holy place unto the God of Israel.

Wherefore the wrath of the Lord fell on Juda and Jerusalem: & he hath brought the people into trouble, to be wounded on, and to be cursed at, as ye be with your eyes. For, lo, our fathers were overthrowen with the sword, and our sonnes, our daughters & our wives were carryed away captiue for the same cause. And now it is in my heart, to make a covenant with the Lord God of Israel: & he maye turne away his heuie indignacion from vs. Nowe therefore my sonnes, be not negligent for the Lord & hath choosen you to stand before him, and for to minister and serue hym, and to burne incense.

¶ Then the Levites arose: Shathar & sonne of Amasai, & Joel the sonne of Abiathu of the chydren of the Gabaathites. And of the sonnes of Merari, Bus the sonne of Abi, and Abiathu the sonne of Ichaleel. And of the sonnes of the Gerfonites, Joah the sonne of Summa, and Eden the sonne of Joah. And of the sonnes of Eliphaz, Simri & Jehiel. And of the sonnes of Afsap, Zechariahu and Nathaniahu. And of the sonnes of Merari, Jehiel & Simri. And of the sonnes of Jedutha, Summa and Uzziel. And they gathered their brethren, & purified them selves, & came according to the commandement of the kyng and the wordes of the Lord, for to cleanse the house of the Lord. And the priests went into the inner partes of the house of the Lord to cleanse it, and brought out all the uncleanness that they found in the temple of the Lord into the court of the house of the Lord. And the Levites toke it, to carpe it out into the brook Cedron. They beganne the first daye of the first month to purifye, and the eighth daye of the month came they to the portie of the Lord: and purged the house of the Lord in eight dayes, and in the syxtene daye of the first month they made an ende.

¶ And they went into Hzechia the kyng: & sayde: we haue cleansed all the house of the Lord, the altar of burnt offering, with all his vessels, & the shewbread table with all his apperell, and all the vessels which kyng Ahas bid cast a fyre when he ragened & transgressed, them we haue prepared and sanctified: and behold, they are before the altar of the Lord. ¶ And Hzechia the kyng rose earlye, & gathered the Loides of the cyte and went by to the house of the Lord. And they brought seven oxen, seven rāmes, seven shepe, and seven he-goates, to be a fyne offering for the kyngdome, for the sanctuary, & for Juda. And he commanded the priests the sonnes of Aaron, to offer them on the altar of the Lord. ¶ And they slue the oxen, & the priests receaved the bloude, & sprinkled it on the altar: lyke wyse, when they had slayne the rāmes, they sprinkled the bloude upon the altar: they slue also the shepe, & they sprinkled the bloude upon the altar. And then they brought forth the he-goates for the fyne offering before the kyng and the congregacion, & put the he-goates upon them. And the priests slue them, and with the bloude of them they cleansed the altar, to make satisfaction for all Israel: for the kyng commanded, the burnt offering and the fyne offering shoulde be made for all Israel. And set the Levites in the house of the Lord with tymbales, psalteries and harpes: according to the commandement of Dauid and of Gad the kynges sear, and Baruch the prophete. For so was the commandement of the Lord thow the hande of his prophetes. And the Levites stode, playinge the instrumentes of Dauid, and the priests helde the trompettes. And Hzechia commanded to offer the burnt offering upon the altar. And when the burnt offering beganne, the songe of the Lord beganne also, & the trompettes & the instrumentes that were ordered by the hande of Dauid kyng of Israel. And all the congregacion worshipped, singinge a song, and blowinge with the trompettes, & all this continued, vntill the burnt offering was finished.

¶ And when they had made an ende of offeringe, the kyng and all that were present vnto hym, bowed them selves, & worshipped. And Hzechia the kyng & the Loide saie to the Levites to playe the Lord with the wordes of Dauid, & of Afsap the sear. And the Levites sauge playd with gladnesse, and yet other bowed them selves, and worshipped.

¶ And Hzechia answered, & sayde: now ye haue consecrate your handes to the Lord: go to therefore, & bringe in the sacrifices & thank-offerynges into the house of the Lord. And the congregacion brought in the sacrifices & thanke-offerynges & burnt offerings, as many as were of a free libellall hart. And the number of the burnt offerings which the congregacion brought, was. lxx. oxen, an hundred rāmes, & two hundred shepe: which were, all for the burnt offeringe of the Lord. And there were dedicated lxxr hundred oxen, and thre thousand shepe.

¶ And the priests were to fewe, to sleve all the burnt offerings: but their brethren the Levites dyd helpe them, till they had ended the worke, and vntill the priests were sanctified. For the Levites were purer hearted to be sanctified, then the priests. And thereto the burnt offerings were many with the fatte of peace offerings & the drinke offerpings: so longe to the burnt offeringe. And so the Levites pertayninge to the house of the Lord was finished. And Hzechia cryed & all the people, that God had made the folke so ready: and that the thyng was so soone done.

The xxx. Chapter.
Of hezekia a remembrance the feast of pascouer.

And hezekia sent to all israel and juda, and wrote letters to ephraim & manasse, that they shoulde come to the house of the lord at ierusalem, and offer pascouer vnto y lord god of israel. And the kynge helde a counsell with his lordes and all the congregation of ierusalem * to kepe y feast of pascouer in the seconde moneth. For they coulde not hepe it at that tyme: because the priestes were not sanctified sufficiently, neither was the people gathered together to ierusalem. And the kynge pleased the kynge and all the congregation. And they decreed that it shoulde be proclaimed thowout all israel fro ierusalem to dani, y they shoulde come, & holde the feast of pascouer vnto y lord god of israel at ierusalem: for they had not done it of a greateson as they shoulde haue done by the lawe.

So the postes wente with letters of the hande of the kynge, & of his lordes thowout all israel and juda: & at the commaundement of the kynge they sayd: Ye childre of israel, turne agayne vnto the lord god of abraham, israhel & israel, ad let euery one retorne to the remnant that is escaped you out of the hande of the hynges of assur. And be not ye lyke your fathers, & your brethren which trespassed agaynst the lord god of thes your fathers, which gaue them vp to be destroyed, as ye be. And now be not ye stiffnecked, lyke as were your fathers, but yelde your selues vnto the lord, & entre into his holy place, which he hath sanctified for cure and serue the lord your god, & the fearcellesse of his wrath shal turne away fro you. For yf ye turne agayne vnto the lord, then shall your brethren and your children fynde compassion in the presence of them that take the captiue, and they shall come agayne vnto this lād: * for y lord your god is gracious & merciful and wil not turne away his face from you, yf ye conuerete vnto hym.

And so the postes went from egypt to egypt in the lande of ephraim & manasse, cū vnto zabulō. But they laughed the thowne & mocked the newe helde, yet dwuerse of assur, manasse and of zabulō libympted them selues, ad came to ierusalem. And the hande of god was in juda, so that he gaue them one hert, to do the commaundement of the kynge and of the rulers, accordyng to the woode of the lord. And there assembled to ierusalem moche people, and there was present a myghty great congregaciō, to holde the feast of iwee bread in y second moneth.

And they arose, & renoued the * altiers that were in ierusalem. And all the vessels of incense byd they a waye, and cast them in, to y broke cedars. And they slue pascouer the fourtenth daye of y second moneth. And the priestes & leuites, & which were ashamed, sanctified them selues, ad brought in the burnt offerynges into the house of the lord. And they stode in thes offer after thes maner, and accordyng to the lawe of moyses the man of god. And the priestes sprinkled the bloude, which they receaued of the hāde of the leuites. For there were many in the cōgregaciō, y were not sanctified: & the leuites byd they pascouer for al y were not cleane, & that myght not execute y holy woike of the lord. For many of y people, and verp many out of ephraim, manasse, israhel and zabulō were not cleane, & yet byd eate pascouer agaynst y lawe apoynted. Wherefore hezekia prayed for the, and sayd: the good lord be merciful vnto thes. For he set hys whole hert, to like the lord god euen the god of his fathers: but all the other byd not to accordyng to vnspayed holynesse. And the lord hearde hezekia, and healed the people. And the chyldre of israel that were present at ierusalem, helde the feast of iwee bread seven dayes with great gladnesse, and the leuites and the priests prayed, and magnified the power of the lord daye by daye, byon instruments.

And hezekia spake hertely vnto all the leuites that had vnderstandyng and were of a good mynde toward y lord. And they byd eate thowout that feast, seue dayes longer, & offered peaceofferpynges, & thanked the lord god of thes fathers. And y holc assemble toke counsell, to do so other seue dayes, and they helde those seue dayes with gladnesse. For hezekia kynge of juda toke out (from amonge his ratel) for the congregaciō, a thousande pōge ore, and seue thousande shepe. And the lordes gaue out to the congregaciō a thousande pōge ore, and ten thousande shepe. And a greateson of the priests were sanctified.

And all the congregaciō of juda with the priestes & leuites, & al the congregaciō that came out of israel, and the draungers that came out of the lande of israel, ad that dwell in juda, reioysed: & there was great gladnesse in ierusalem. For sence the tyme of salomon the sonne of dauid kynge of israel there was no soche ioye in ierusalem. And the priestes and the leuites arose, ad blessed the people, and thes voyce was heard of the lord, and thes prayer came vp vnto heauen, his holy dwelling place.

The xxxi. Chapter.

After that hezekia had calid agayne the people vnto the waye of the lord, he cōmyned the yssuers vnto whon he commaunded to geue ryte.

And when all thes thynges were fulfilled, all thes of israel that were present in the ctyes of juda, went out &

out and brake the ymagines, and cut downe the Idoles grones, & al to brake the yre places, and anilers, thozow out all Iuda and Beniamin, in Ephraim also and Manasse, vntyll they had utterly destroyed them al. And all the childe of Israel returned euery ma to his possessions & to their auncient cities.

And Hezekia appointed sondre companies of the prelatres & Leuites after the dyrecturye of their ministracions, euery ma accordyng to his office: both prelatres and Leuites, for the burnt offeringes & peace offeringes, to minstre, & to geue thanks & prayse in the gates of the holt of the Lord. And he kynges porcion of his substance he geue, were dayly burnt offeringes in the morning and evening, & burnt offeringes for the Saboth dayes, newmoones, & solemne feastes, accordyng to as it is wyrtten in the lawe of the Lord. And he had people that dwelt in Ierusalem, geue the parte to the prelatres & Leuites, that they might substantially aplye the selues to the lawe of the Lord. And as sone as the kynges comendement came abroad, the childe of Israel broughte aboundance of first frutes, of corne, wyne, oyle, honye, & of all manner of frutes of the felde, & the tythes of all manner of thynges broughte they in plenteously. And schylde of Israel and Iuda that dwelt in the cyties of Iuda, they also brought in the tythes of oren and figyr, and other holt tythes which were collected vnto the Lord the Lord God, they dyd offre, and brought the all by heapes. In the thyrd moneth they begonne to laye the heapes, in manner of a foundation, and finished them in the seuen month.

And when Hezekia and the Lordes came and sawe the heapes, they blessed the Lord & his people Israel. And Hezekia questioned with the prelatres & the Leuites concernyng the heapes. And Azaria the chiefe prelate of the house of Zadock, answered him, & sayde: sence the people begonne to bringe the heave offeringes into the house of the Lord, we also haue had enough to eate, there remayned so much, for the Lord hath blessed his people and this heape is left. And Hezekia had prepare the chambers in the house of the Lord. And they dyd prepare them, & carped in the first frutes, the tythes, and the dedicat thynges, saythfully.

Once which Chonanihu the Leuite had the rule, ad Semei his brother next to him. And Iehiel, Azaziah, Sabath, Aclai, Jeremoth, Josabab, Elul, Ismachiah, Anahath, Ananihu were ouer sears ordeined by Chonanihu, & Semei his brother was an officer of Hezekia the kyng, and Azaria was the ruler of the house of God. And thozow all these thynges belonged. And thozow the sone of Anna the Leuite and poster of the Cast doze, had the oversight of the thynges that were offered of a freewill vnto God (and were geue in maner feerally vnto the Lord) ad ouer the thynges most holy. And vnder his hand were Eden, Amminan, Ischun, Sennachib, Amarihu, and Sechemiah in the cyties of the prelatres appointed of theyr schylde to geue to their brethren theyr porcions, as wel to the small as to the greute.

Except that to the males that were reckoned from the pere & above (amonge al that went into the house of the Lord) they schylde geue daye by daye, for theyr ministracion, & for theyr geuyng attendance, & for their deuere wastrynges by couris. And to the prelatres & Leuites thozow out the householde of theyr fathers, from twetye pere & above to wyte when their conies came. And to the families of all their babes, wyues, sonnes & daughters thozow all the congregacion. For vpon the schylde of them were the holy thynges becoued. And to the schylde of Aaron, the prelatres, which were in the felde & suburbs of their cyties, cyrie by cyrie the ma (whose names were expelld afore) schylde geue porcions, euen to all the males amonge the prelatres, and to all the Leuites accordyng to theyr nombre.

And of this maner dyd Hezekia thozow out all Iuda, & wrought it that is good, and right and true, before the Lord his God. And in all the workes he beganne for the seruce of the house of God, for the lawe, and for the comendementes, he fought his God, & that dyd he with all his hert, & prospered.

¶ The xxiii. Chapter.

¶ Sennacherib (or Sancherib) beseyge Ierusalem to Ierichu of the Angell. Hezekia dreyt, after whom Sennacherib was slaine.

After this deed was saythfully done, Sennacherib kyng of Assur came, & entred into Iuda, & compassed the strong cyties, and thought to winne them for him selfe. And so wote Hezekia sawe that Sennacherib was come, & that he was purposed to fight agaynst Ierusalem, he toke counsell with his Lordes, and men of myght to stop the water of the fountaynes without the cyties: they dyd helpe him. For they gathered many of the people together, & wyte al the welles, and the broke that ranne thoro the myddes of the lande, sayenge: why shall the kynge of Assur come, and fynde moche water? And Hezekia went to lulkelye, and built up all the wal where it was broken, & made ordynance vpon the towres and to y other wall without, and repayed Mylo in the cyle of Dauid, and made many bartes and myldes.

And he sett captaynes of warre ouer the people, and gathered them together to hym in the large strecte of the gate of the ctyte, and spake sentely to them, saying: Blucke vp yd herthes, and be strog: We not afrayed ner discouraged for the kynge of Assur, and for all y multitude that he hath with him: * for there be moo with vs then with him. With him is anie arme of flesh. But with vs is the Lorde our God, for to helpe vs, and to fyght oure batayles. And y people toke a courage thoro the wordes of Hezekia kynge of Iuda.

* After this dyd Sennacherib kynge of Assur send of hys seruantes to Ierusalem, (but he hym self remayned besyde Lachis: huryng all his power with him) vnto Hezekia kynge of Iuda and vnto all Iuda y were at Ierusalem, sayenge: Thus saith Sennacherib kynge of Assur: * wher do ye trust, O ye that dwell in Ierusalem which is beseged? Moth not Hezekia carye you to geue ouer yowr selues vnto deeth, hunger, and thurst, sayenge: the Lorde our God shall ridd vs out of the hande of the kynge of Assur: hath not the same Hezekia put downe hys hys places and hys altars, and commaunded Iuda and Ierusalem, sayenge: Ye shall worshyppe before one altier, and burne incense vpon the same?

Know ye not, what I and my fathers haue done vnto the people of all landes: were the Gods of the people of other landes able or myght to saue thei lades out of my hãd: which of all the Gods of those nacions (y my fathers destroyed) coulde deliuer hys people out of myne hand? And shall yd God be able to deliuer you out of myne hãd: Wherefore, nowe lett not Hezekia deceaue you, ner persuade you of this facion, nor yet beleue him. For as no God among all nacions and kingdoms, was able to rydde hys people out of my hande and out the hande of my fathers: how moche lesse shall yowr goddes be able to kepe you out of myne hand: And yet moche lesse hys seruantes spake agaynst y Lord God, and agaynst his seruaut Hezekia. And (Sennacherib) also wrote a letter, to ryle on the Lord God of Israell, & spake agaynst him, sayinge: as the Gods of the nacions of other landes haue not bene able to deliuer thei people out of myne hande. Euen so shal not the God of Hezekia deliuer hys people out of myne hand. And they cryed w a loud voyce in the Jewes speech vnto the people of Ierusalem y were on the wall, to frace them and to make thei saynt harted, & that the y might to take y ctyte. And they spake agaynst the God of Ierusalem, as agaynst the Gods of the nacions of the earth, which were the woekes of the handes of men.

But Hezekia the kynge, and the prophet Iai the sonne of Amoz prayed agaynst that blasphem, and cryed vp to heauen. And the Lord sent an angell, which destroyed all the men of warre and the Lordes and captaynes of the host of the kynge of Assur, y he turned his face agayne w shame toward hys owne land. * And when he was come into y house of his God, they that came of hys owne body, slue hym there with the sword. And so y Lord saued Hezekia and the inhabitants of Ierusalem out of the hand of Sennacherib hig of Assur, and from the hand of all other, and mainteined them on euery syde. And many brought offerynges vnto the Lord to Ierusalem, and presented to Hezekia king of Iuda: so that he was magnified in the yeght of all nacions from thence forth.

* In those dayes Hezekia was syche vnto the death, & prayed vnto the Lord, which answered him, & the wey hym a wonderfull miracle. But Hezekia dyd not agayne vnto God according to it y he had the wey hym, for his hert was: there came wryth vpon him and vpon Iuda & Ierusalem. For withstanding Hezekia submitted hym self after that hys hert was copen yd, & the inhabytors of Ierusalem: and the wrath of the Lord came not vpon them in the dayes of Hezekia.

And Hezekia had exceeding moche ryches and honour. And he gat hym treasures of syluer and golde, precious stones, and spices, myldes, and of all manner pleasant Iuelles: and made store houses for the frutes of coyne, for wyne and oyle, and stalles for all maner of bestes, and foldes for shepe. And he made him ctytes, and had of shepe and otre great abundance. For God had geuen him substance exceeding moche. This same Hezekia stoppeth the vpper water springes of Sion, and brought them downe to the well syde of the ctyte of Dauid. And Hezekia prospered in all hys woekes. And when the prynces of Babylon sent vnto him Ambassadors, to enquyre of the wonde y chaunced in the lande, God lett hym * to trye hym, and that all that was in hys hert, myght be knowne.

The rest of the dedes of Hezekia, and hys goodnes, behold, they are wryten in the byyon of Iai the prophete the sonne of Amoz in the boke of the higes of Iuda and Israell. And Hezekia slepte with his fathers, & they buried hym in the most worthy place of the sepulchres of the sonnes of Dauid: and all

R Iuda

Juda and the inhabitants of Jerusalem dyd hym worshippe at his death. And Manasse hys sonne raygned in his stede.

¶ The xxxij. Chapter.

Manasse was xij. yeare olde * when he beganne to raygne, & he raygned lxx. yeare in Jerusalem. But dyd euill in the syght of the Lord, lyke vnto the abominations of y^e heathen, whō the Lord cast out before the children of Israel. For he went to, and buyt the hyllaulter, * which hezechia hys father had broken downe. And he rered vp alters for Baalim, and made groues, and worshipped all the host of heauen, and serued them. And he buyt alters in y^e house of the Lord: where as the Lord per had sayd: * in Jerusalem shall my name be for euer. And he buyt alters for all the host of heauen, in the two courtis of the house of the Lord. And he burnt hys chyldren in fyre, in the valley of the sonne of himus. he was a forcecer, he regarded the crenpce of byders, y^e d^eu^echauntements, and mayntened workers w^h spyzes, and feare of foreynes: ad wrought moch euill in the syght of the Lord, to anger hym with all.

13 And he put the kerued ymage an Idole which he had made, in the house of God. Of which house God had sayd to Dauid and to Salomon his sonne: in this house and in Jerusalem whych I haue chosen afore all the trybes of Israel, * wyll I put my name for euer, and will nomore bring the seate of Israel from of the lande whych I haue ordeyned for your fathers. If so be that they will be diligent and do all that I haue commaunded them in all the lawe, and statutes, and ordinaunces by the hande of Moyses. And lo Manasse made Juda and the inhabitants of Jerusalem to erre, and to do worse then the heathen, whom the Lord destroyed before the chyldren of Israel. And the Lord spake to Manasse & to hys people, but they wolde not regarde.

¶ Afterfoze, the Lord brought vpon the captaynes of the host of the kyng of the Assyrians, whych toke Manasse in bolde, and bounde hym with chaynes, and carped hym to Babilon. And when he was in tribulation, he besought the Lord hys God, & humbled hym selfe exceedingly before the God of his fathers, and made intercession to hym and God was entreated of hym, and hearde his prayer, and brought hym agayne to Jerusalem into his kyngdome. And then Manasse knewe, that the Lord was God.

After this he built a wal without the cytie of Dauid on the west syde of Gibi in the valley as they come to the fish gate, & round about Ophel, and brought it vpon of a very great heighth, ad put captaynes of warre in all the strong cyties of Juda. And he toke awaye straunge Gods & ymagis out of the house of God, and * all the alters that he had buyt in the mount of the house of God, and in Jerusalem, and cast them out of the cytie. And he prepared the altare of y^e Lord, and sacrificed thereon peace offerpnces, and thankofferpnces, and charged Juda, to serue the Lord God of Israel. Nevertheless, y^e people dyd offer styll in the hyllalters, howbeit vnto the Lord their God only.

¶ The rest of the actes of Manasse, and his prayer vnto his God, and the wordes of the feare and of them that spake to hym in the name of the Lord God of Israel, behold, they are written in the sayenges of the kynges of Israel. And his prayer, and howe that he was hearde, and all his synnes, and his trespasses, and the places where he made hyllalters, and let vp groues, and ymagis: before he was mehed) behold, they are written among the sayenges of the feare. And Manasse slept with hys fathers, and they buried hym in hys awne house: and Amon hys sonne raygned in his rowme. And he was two and twenty yeare olde, when he beganne to raygne, and raygned two yeare in Jerusalem. But he dyd euill in the syght of the Lord, lyke as dyd Manasse his father, for Amon sacrificed to all y^e kerued ymagis whych Manasse hys father had made, and serued them, and submitted not him selfe before the Lord as Manasse hys father had mehed) hym selfe. But Amon trespassed greatly. And his awne seruantes conspired agaynst him, ad slue hym in hys awne house. But the people of the lande slue all them that had conspired agaynst hys kyng Amon. And the same people of the lande made Josia hys sonne kyng in hys rowme.

¶ Josia destroyeth the Idoles, and rethorsh the temple, in which is founde the booke of the lawe. He sendeth to Babilon the prophete say counsell.

Josia was eyght yeare olde when he began to raygne, * and he raygned in Jerusalem thyrtye and one yere. And he dyd that which was right in the syght of the Lord, and walked in the wayes of Dauid his father, ad bowed nethe to y^e ryghte had net to y^e left. In y^e viij. yere of hys raygne, whē he was yet a chyld) he beganne to leake after the God of Dauid hys father. And in the tweluenth yere he beganne to pouerze Juda and Jerusalem from hyllalters, groues, kerued ymagis, and ymagis of metall. and they bzale downe the alters alters of Saalim enen in hys presence: and other pynages that were in greater honoure then they, he caused to be destroyed. And the groues, kered pynages, and pynages of metall he brake and made dust of them, and strewed it vps the granes of them that had offered to them. And he burnt the bones of the prelates vps the alters of them, and censed Iuda and Ierusalem. And euen so vps bein the cyties of Manasse, Ephraim, Simeon vnto Asaphthai. And in the wyl-dernesses of them rounde about, he plucked a sonbe the alters and the groues, and vps bente them and stampt them to powder, & bente downe all the pynages thowout all the lande of Israel: and returned to Ierusalem agayne.

In the eyghthene yere of his ragnye when he had purged the lande and the temple: he sent Shaphan the sonne of Amasiah, and Azariah the gouernour of the cytie & Iosh the sonne of Ioshaz the recorder, to repayre the house of the Lorde hys God. And when they came to helkiah the hys prelat, they de-lyuered them the money that was brought in to the house of God, whych the Leuites that kepte the entrees had gathered of the hande of Manasse and Ephraim, and of all that yet remayned in Israel, and of all Iuda and Ben Iamin, and of the inhabytors of Ierusalem. And they put in the handes of the workemen, that had the ouersight of the house of the Lorde: and they gaue it to the labourers that wrought in the house of the Lorde, to repayre and mend the house.

¶ Euen to masons and carpenters gaue they it, to get stons and tymbre, for couples and for beames of the houses, which the kynge of Iuda had destroyed: And the men vps the worke saye fullyl.

And the ouersesars of them to courage the forwarde, were Iahath and Obabiah Leuites of the chyldren of Ierem: & Secharia & Azariah, of the chyldre of the Cahathites, and other of the Leuites whych all coulde skyle of instrumentes of Musike. And ouer the beuerys of burthes and ouer all y wou-ght, in whatsoeuer workemāthyppe it were, were there Scribes, officers and porters of the Leuites.

And when they brought out the money that was brought into the house of the lord, helkiah the prelat: founde the booke of the lawe of the Lord geu by Moyses. And helkiah answered and sayde to Shaphan the scribe: I haue founde the booke of the law, in the house of the Lorde, and helkiah gaue the booke to Shaphan. And Shaphan carryed the booke to the kyng, and brought the kyng worde agayne, sayenge: all that was committed to thy seruantes, that do they. And they haue gathered together the money that was found in the house of the Lord, and haue de-lyuered it in to the hādes of the ouersars of the worke, and to the handes of the worke-men. And then Shaphā the scribe shewed the kyng, saying: helkiah the prelat hath geuen me a booke, & Shaphā read in it before y kyng.

And it foryned, that when the kyng had heard the wordes of the lawe, he tare his clo-thes: and the kyng commaunded helkiah and Azariah the sonne of Shaphan, and Azibon the sonne of Ahicah, and Shaphan the scribe, and Aiaia a seruaut of the kynge, saying: go & enquire of the Lorde for me and for the pāre left in Israel and Iuda, concerning the wordes of the booke that is found. For great is the wyath of the Lorde that is fallen vps vs, because oure fathers haue not kepte the wordes of y Lorde, to do after all that is wyte ten in this booke.

And helkiah and they that the kynge had appoynted, went to Iulda a propheticke the wyfe of Shallum the sonne of Ockabaz the sonne of Iahaz keeper of y wardrobe: for she dwelt in Ierusalem with in the scod wall) and so they conuined with her. She answered them: thus sayth y Lorde God of Israel: tell ye y man that sent you to me. Ene thus sayth the Lorde: Behold, I will bring euill vpon this place, & vpon the inhabytors thereof: euen all the curstes that are wyte in the booke which they haue read before the kyng of Iuda, because they haue forsaken me, and haue offered vnto other Gods, to angre me w all maner workes of they handes, therfore is my wyath set on fyre agaynst this place and shall not be quenched.

And as for the kyng of Iuda whych sent you to enquire of the Lorde, so thill ye saye vnto him: thus sayth the Lorde God of Israel concerning the wordes whych y haue heard. Because thine hert dyd wyl, & thou dydest make thy self before God, wyl thou hearest his wordes agaynst this place & agaynst the inhabytors thereof: a humbledst thy self before me, and tarest thy clothes, and wipst before me, that haue I hearde also sayth the Lorde. Behold, I will take y to thy fathers, and thou shalt be put in thy graue in pece, and thine eyes shall not se all the mysche that I will bring vpon this place, & vpon the inhabytors of y lāme. And they brought the kynge worde agayne. ¶ Then the kynge sent, and gathered to gether all the elders of Iuda and Ierusalem. And the kyng went vnto the house of the Lorde, and all the men of Iuda, and the inhabytors of Ierusalem, & the prelates & Leuites and all the people great & small: & the kyng vps read all the wordes of y booke of the cōuenant that was found in the house of the Lorde. And y kyng tode at hys standyng, & made a cōuenant before the Lorde, to folow the Lorde, and to kepe his commaundementes, his wynt-nells, and his statutes, with all his hert & with all his soule, & to fulfyll the wordes of the appoyntment wyrtten in the booke.

And he set in theyr rowme all them that were founde in Jerusalem and Ben Jamin, and the enhabiters of Jerusalem byd according to the commaund of the Lorde God of theyr fathers. And Jolia put awaye all manner of abhominacions out of all landes that pertayned to the chyldren of Israel, and brought in all that were found in Israel, to worshyp, and to serue the Lorde theyr God.
And they turned not a syde from after the Lorde God of theyr fathers, as longe as he lyued.

CCIII. Chapter.

¶ Jolia boldeith passouer. He dygredid agaynst the kynge of Egypt, and dyed. The people be-trayle hym.

II. C. C. III. A.

And Jolia helde the * feast of pascouer vnto the Lord in Jerusalem, & theyr due passouer in the fourteyn daye of y first moneth.
And he set the preastes in theyr offices, and apoynted them in the seruice of the house of the Lorde. And he sayde vnto the Leuites that taught all Israel, and were sanctified vnto the Lord: put the holp archie in the house wherby Salomon the sonne of Dauid kynge of Israel, dyd buyld, there shall no other burthen be layd vpon youre shoulders: But now serue the Lorde youre God and his people Israel. And prepare your self ies by youre ancient householdes and com-paines, according to the wyrtpyng of Da-uid kynge of Israel, and the wyrtpyng of Salomon his sonne. And stande in the holy place according to the deuision of the auncient householdes of youre brethren the chyldren of the people, & after the deuision of the auncient householdes of the Leuites, vntill passeouer, & sanctifie and prepare youre brethren, that theyr maye do according to the word of the Lorde by the bande of Moyses.

B And Jolia gaue to the people flockes of shepe and kyddes, all for passouer and for all that were present, thysie thousand by tale, and the thousand oxen, and thes were euen of the kynges substaunce. And his Lozdes gaue willinglye both vnto the people & to the preastes, & vnto the Leuites. Bilchia also, zacharia and Ichiel, rulers of the house of God, gaue vnto y preastes for passouer offerpynges two thousand and fpre hundred shepe, and the hundred oxen. Conania & Hemeiahu and Jethanel his brethren, and Jasabiab and Jaclad Jolias ad, rulers of the Leuites, gaue vnto the Leuites passouer offerpynges, euen fpre thousand shepe, & fpre hundred oxen.

And so the seruice was prepared, and the preastes stode in theyr places, and the Leui-tes in theyr distincte copanics of the kynges commaundment. And theyr due Passouer, and the preastes spynckled the bloude with theyr hande, & the Leuites pulled of the suppers of the beastes. And theyr set awaye the burntofferinges, to geue them vnto the people that were drynked by auncient houses, & that theyr shuld offer vnto y Lorde, lyke as it is wyrtte in the booke of Moyses. And so byd theyr with the oxen also. And * they deyled the passouer with fpre as the manner was.

And the other becreat beastes: sodde they in pottes, caulderns & pannes, and deyled the among all the people. And afterwarde, they made cradde for them selues & for the prea-stes: for the chyldren of Aaron were buyed in offerpyng of burntofferinges and the fete vntill nyght: therfore the Leuites prepared for them selues and for the preastes the son-nes of Aaron.

And the syngers, the chyldren of Asaph stode in theyr standyng: * according to the commaundment of Dauid and Asaph, heman Jeduthun the kynges sear: and the po-ters wayted at euery gate, and myght not departe from theyr seruice: for theyr beeth the Leuites & prepared for them. And so all the seruice of the Lorde was prepared the same daye, to offer passouer, and to offer burntofferinges vpon the auter of the Lord according to the commaundment of kyng Jolia.

And so the chyldren of Israel that were present, offered passouer the same tyme, ad kepte the feast of swete breade seven dayes.
And ther was no passouer lyke to y kepr in Israel fro the dayes of Samuel y pyphete: neither byd all y kynges of Israel hold such a passouer feast as byd Jolia and the prea-stes and Leuites and all Juda, and Israel y were present, and the enhabiters of Jerusalem. This passouer was holde in the egh-tene yere of the raygne of Jolia.

* After all this, when Jolia had prepared the temple, Serbo kynge of Egypt came vp to ffight agaynst Carcanis besyde Euphrates, and Jolia went out agaynst hym: whych sent messengers to hym, & sayd: what haue I to do with the thou kyng of Iuda:
we not thou agaynst thy self this daye: for my warre is agaynst another house, & God hade me make had. Leue of therfore & medle not with God whych is with me, lest he destroie the. Shierthelelle, Jolia wolde not aduise to ffight with him, but rather toke vnto the wordes of Jeho out of the mouth of God, and came to ffight in the valepe of Bagebo, & the Moyses thort dartes ad kyng Jolia. And the kyng sayd to his seruantes:

seruantes therfore had him out of that chacet, and put him on (as a hynde) in another chacet y they had. And when they had brought him to Jerusalem, he dyed, and was buryed in the sepulchre of his fathers. * And all Iu-da and Jerusalem mourned for Josia. And Jeremia lamented Josia, and all synngre men and synngre women mourned for Jo-sia in their lamentacions, to thys daye, and made the same lamentacions an ordinance in Israel, & behold, they be wryten in the lamentacions. To be rest off the actes of Josia & hys goodnes which he dyd in folowynge the wrytyng in the lawe, and his sapences, first and last: behold, they are wryten in the boke of the Princes of Israel and Iuda.

The xxxvi. Chapter.

¶ After Josia captured Jehoashay, after Jehoashay Jeho him, after Jehoahim Jeho him, after Jehoahim Jeho him, in whose time all the people were carried away to Babylon & were brought againe the thirtieth yeere after, by king Cyrus, otherwile called Choise.

3 And the people of the land toke Jehonadas the sonne of Josia, and made bihoping in his fathers steade in Jerusalem. And Jehoahaz was thre and twentie yeare olde, when he beganne to raigne, and he raigned thre monethes in Ierusalem. And the king of Egypt put him downe at Jerusalem, and ann merced the lande in an hundred talentes of syluer, and a talent of gold. And the kynge of Egypt made Eliakim his brother king vpon Iuda and Ierusalem: and he turned hys name vnto Jehoakim: and Jeho-haz toke Jehoahaz hys brother, and caried him to Egypt. Jehoakim was fyue and twenty yeare olde, when he began to raigne, and he raigned elcuen yeare in Ierusalem: and he dyd euill in the sight of the Lorde his God.
Agapunt him then came vp Nabuchodonosor king of Babilon, and bounde hym with two chaynes, to carrie him to Babilon. The king Nabuchodonosor also caried of vessels of the house of the Lorde to Babilon, and put them in his temple at Babilon. The rest of the actes of Jehoakim, and his abominations which he did, and caried vngods that were layde to hys charge, beholde, they are written in the booke of the kynges of Israel: and Jehoacin his sonne raigned in hys steade. Jehoacin was egypte yeare olde whē he beganne to raigne, and he raigned thre monethes and ten dayes in Ierusalem: and dyd euill in the sight of the Lorde. And whē the peace was out, kynge Nabuchodonosor sent, and fet him to Babilon with the goodly vessels of the house of the Lorde, and made Je-hoakin his fathers brother / kynge ouer Iuda and Ierusalem.

*Jehelias was one and twenty yere olde, when he beganne to raygne, & raygned cleue yere in Ierusalem. And he dyd euell in the fyght of the Lozde hyis God, and humbled not him selfe before Jeremia the prophete at the mouth of the Lozde. And he rebilled against Sabuchodonosor, which had recei-ued an oth of hyin by God. But he was stif-necked, and to hardeneth to turne vnto the Lozde God of Israell. Wherefore, all the rulers, the prestes, & the people trespassed more synnyng after all maner of abhominacyons of the heathen, and polluted the house of the Lozd, which he had halowed in Ierusalem.

* And the Lord God of their fathers sent to them, by hys messengers, rising up by Emes and senþenge: for he had compassiõn on hys people, and on his dwelling place. But they mocked the messengers of God, a despised his wordes, and misle bled hys peoples, untill the wrath of the Lord arose against his people, and evilthere was no cemedy. And so he brought upon them the kingdom of Caldeye, which slue their yong men with the swerde be their holie temple, and spard neither pongeman, mayden, olde man, nee byrn that stooped for age. he gaue them all into his hande.

And all the vessels of the house of God. (both great and small); and the treasures of the house of ^{the} Lozde, and the treasures of the kynge, and of hys Lozdes: all these caried he to Babilō. And they burnt the house of God and brake downe the wall of Ierusalem, and burnt all the places therof with fyre, and destroyed all the goodly Jewes therof. And yrest that had escaped the sword, caried he to Babylon, where they were bound to him and his chyldre, vntyll the tyme that Ierusa had the empire. To fulfill the word of the Lord * by the mouth of Ieremie, vntyll the lande had her pleasure of her Sabbathes: for as long as the laye desolate, the kype Sabbath, vntyll seventy yeares were fulfilled.

* And the first pearce of Cyrus kyng of Perlia (whan the worde of the Lorde + spoke by the mouth of Ieremia, was fynished) the Lord stered by the sperte of Cyrus kyng of Perlia, that he made a proclamation thro-row out all his kyngdome, and that by wytyngge, sayinge: Thus saith Cyrus kyng of Perlia: all the byngdomes of the earth hath the Lord God of heauen geuen me, and hath charged me to buyde him an house in Jerusalem, that is in Juda. Wherfore, whosoeuer is amonge you of all kynges people, the Lorde his God be with hym, and lett hym so do.

The iij. Chapter.

After the foundation of the temple was comen: they carrye vnto the Lorde.

Ad when the threthyn moneth came, and the chyldre of Israel were come in theyr cyties, the people came together (euen as one man) vnto Ierusalem. And there stode vp Iesua & some of Iosedec and his brethren the prestes, and zoobabel the sonne of Salathiel & his brethren, and buyde the altar of the God of Israel, to offere burnt offrynges theron, as it is wyte in the lawe of Moyses & ma of God: and the altar set they vpo hye socheres: for ther was a feartulnes amonge the because of the nations and landes: therfore they offered burnt offrynges theron vnto the Lorde: in the morning & at euen. And they helde the feast of tabernacles: as it is wyte, & offered burnt sacrifices dayly, according to & nybbe & custome, daye by daye. Afterwarde they offered dayly burnt offrynges also, & in & new mones and in all the feast dayes that were consecrate vnto the Lorde, and for all them wherby byd (of their awne fre wyl) offre vnto the Lorde.

From the first daye of the threth moneth beganne they to offere burnt sacrifices vnto the Lorde: euen when the foundation of the temple of the Lorde was not yet layd. They gaue money also vnto & mannos and carpen, ters, and mirre and dyrrhe and oyle vnto them them of yidon and of Eire, to bypnye the temple tymber fro Liban⁹ by see vnto Toppa, accordyng to the graunt that they had of E Cyrus the kynge of Persia.

In the seconde yere of their coming vnto the place of þe house of God at Ierusalem in the second moneth, beganne zojobabel the sonne of Salathiel, & Iesua the sonne of Josedece, and the remaunt of theyr brethren the prestes and leuites, and all they that were come out of the captiuite vnto Ierusalem, & appoynted the leuites from twentye yere olde and aboue, to be, that the worke of the house of the Lorde went forwarde. And Iesua stode with his sonnes and brethren, and Admichell with his sonnes, and the chyldre of Iuda, to forther the workemen of the house of God, euen the chyldre of benadab, with their children and their brethren the leuites.

And when the builders layd the founda-cyon of the temple of the Lorde, the prestes stode in theyr raipe, with tympanes. And the leuites the chyldren of Asaph with cymbales, to playe the Lorde * after the manner of David kynge of Israel. And they sang together, what they gaue playe & thanks vnto the Lorde, because he is gracious, and because his mercy endureth for euer vpon Israel.
And all þe people shouted loude in playyng the Lorde, because the foundacion of the house of the Lorde was layde. Many also of the prestes and leuites and auncient fathers, which had seene the first house: whē the foundacion of this house was layde before theyr eyes, wepte with a loude voyce. And many shouted with ioye, so that the noyse gaue a grete sounde, in so much þe people coulde not bikerne the ioyful sounde and gladnes, from the noyse of the wepyng amonge the people: for the people shouted with a loude cry, and the noyse was herde farre of.

¶ The .iiij. Chapter.

¶ The buyldyng of the temple to hyndered, and let.
¶ Bet * the aduersaries of Iuda and Beniamin herde, that the chyldren of the captiuite buylded the temple vnto the Lorde God of Israel. And they came to zojobabel and to the principall fathers, and sayde vnto the: We will builde with you: for we seke the Lorde your God lyke as ye do. And we haue done sacrificy vnto hym, sence the tyme of Isor hadon the kynge of Assur * which brought vs by hy-ther. And zojobabel & Iesua and the other auncient fathers of Israel sayde vnto them:
It can not be, that you and we together shuld buyld the house vnto our God: for we our selues wyl buyld alone vnto the Lord our God of Israel, * as Cyrus the king of Persia hath commaunded vs.

And it came to passe, that the folke of the land hyndered the people of Iuda, and troubled them as they were buyldyng, and hydered counsellors agaynst them, to hynder the deuyce, as long as Cyrus the kynge of Persia liued, vntill the raigne of Darius king of Persia. And in the raigne of Darius, (euen in þe begynnyng of his raigne) wrote they vnto him a complainte agaynst the in-habytours of Iuda and Ierusalem.

And in the dayes of Artaxerxes, wrote Richyrdath Tabeel and the other of hyss councell, vnto Artaxerxes the king of Persia with saye wordes. And the scripture of the letter was writen in the Syrians speach, & interpreted in the language of the Sarias Rechum the recorder and Samai the scribe wrote a letter from Ierusalem to Artaxerxes the kynge, as it foloweth.

¶ Then Rechum the recorder, & Samai the scribe, and other of their compaigne of Babilon, of Eryphath, of Carpa, of Persia, of E-rach, of Babylon, of Sulan, of Mocha, of Elan, & other of the people * whu the grete & noble Linapir brought ouer, and sett in the cytes of Samaria, & other, that are now on this syde the water. ¶ This is the cople of the letter that they sent vnto kynge Artaxerxes.

¶ Thy seruantes, & the men that are now on this syde the water. ¶ We it knowe vnto the king, that the Jewes which came by þe the to vs, are come vnto Ierusalem (a cytie sedicious and frowarde) and buyld the same, and sett vp the walles thereof, and laye the foundacions. ¶ We it knowe now also vnto the kynge, that þe this cytie be buylded, and the walles thereof made by agayne, then shall not they geue, tolle, tribute, and custome, and the kynge's profyte shall incurre damage. And now in the meane reason we haue destroyed the temple, and woulde no longer be the kynge's dishonoure: ¶ Therefore sent we out also, and certified the kynge: that it maye be sought in the booke of þe Chronicles of thy progenitours, and so shall thou fynde in the booke of the Chronicles, and percerne that this cytie is sedicious and noysome vnto kynge's and landes, and that they cause other also amonge them to rebell of aide, & for the same cause was this cytie destroyed.
¶ Therefore do we certifie the kynge that þe this cytie be buylded agayne, and the walles thereof made by, thou shalt hereafter haue no poicion on this syde the water.

¶ Then sent the kynge an answer vnto Re-chum the recorder, & Samai the scribe, and to the other of theyr compaignes that dwelt in Samaria, & vnto the other þe were beyonde the water, in Seila and Elebeth. ¶ The letter which he sent vnto vs, hath bene openyred before me, and I haue commaunded to make search: & it is founde, þe this cytie of olde hath made insurrection agaynst kynge's, and that so at Ierusalem, which haue raygned ouer all bute, & custome was geuen vnto the: Gene-re now therfore commaundement, that the same men be forbydden, and that the eptie be not buylded agayne. Tyll I haue geuen another commaundement. Take hede now that ye be not negligent to do this: for why shulde I kynges haue haue there thowse?

Now when the coppye of kynges Artaxerses letter was red before Bichim and Sam-sai the scribe and their companions, they went vp in all the haste to Ierusalem vnto the Jewes, and forbad them with violence and power. Then called the woeker of the house of God at Ierusalem, and continued so vnto the seconde yere of Darius kyng of Persia.

the prophetes, Aggeus and Zachary the sonne of Iddo, prophesied vnto the Jewes that were in Iuda and Ierusalem, in the name of the God of Israel. * Then gat vp zorobabel the sonne of Salathiel, and Jesua the sonne of Josheber, and beganne to buyde the house of God at Jerusalem, and with them were the prophetes of God, which helped them. At the same tyme came to the Cathnai which was captayne on thys syde the water, and Starbaznai, and their companions, and sayde thus vnto them. Who hath commaunded you to buyde thys house, and to make vp these walles? Then tolde we them the names of the men, that made thys buyldynge. But the eye of their God was vpon the elders of the Jewes, that they coulde not cause them to cease, tyll the matter was brought to Darius, and then they answered by letters thus vnto.

This is þe coppye of þe letter, that Cathnai (which was captayne on thys syde the water) and Starbaznai, and the counsellors of Apharsach (which were on thys syde the water) sent vnto kyng Darius. And the matter that they sent vnto him, was written thus within the letter: Unto Darius the kyng, all peace. Be it knowen vnto the kyng, that we went into the lande of Jewry to þe house of þe great God, which is buylded w myghty greate stones, and beames are layed in the walles, and the woerke goeth fast forth, and prospereth in their handes. Then asked we the Elders, & sayde vnto the as it foloweth:
Who commaunded you to buyde this house, & to make vp the walles thereof? We asked their names also, that we myght certifie the,

and wryte the names of the men that were these rulers.

But they answered vs with these wodes, and sayde. We are the seruantes of him that is God of heauen and earth, and buyde the house that was buylded many yeres a goe * which a greate kyng of Israel buyl-ded, and set vp. But after þe ouerthrowe it prouoked the God of heauen vnto wrath,
* he gaue them ouer into the hande of Nabuchodonozor the king of Babylon, & of the Caldees, which brake downe this house, and cared þe people awaye captiue vnto Babilo.

* But in the first yere of Cyrus the kyng of Babylon, the same kyng Cyrus gaue comaundement concerning this house of God, that it shulde be buylded agayne. And þe vessels of golde & syluer of the house of God, which Nabuchodonozor toke out of the temple that was at Ierusalem, & brought them into the temple at Babylon, those dyd Cyrus the kyng take out of the temple at Babilon, * and they were deliuered vnto one Salsazar by name, who he made captayne, and sayde vnto him. Take these vessels, and go thy waye, and sett them in the temple that is at Ierusalem, and lett the house of God be buylded in þys place. Then came the same Salsazar, and layde the foundation of the house of God which is at Ierusalem. Since þe tyme also vntill now hath it bene in buyldyng, and yet is it not finished. If it please the kynges now therfore, lett there be se-arche made in the kynges librarie which is there at Babilo, whether it haue bene kyng Cyrus commaundement, that this temple of God at Ierusalem shulde be buylded and let hym sende vs the kynges mynde concernynge the same matter.

¶ The vi. Chapter.

When commaunded kyng Darius, there was foude in a cofre, in the place that there in was it thus wyrtten, and soche a me-moriall: In the first yere of kyng Cyrus, tes breedth. The rowes of rhyckle stones,

Of the children of Signai, Elhai, and zabud, and with the se- uentie men. And I gathered them together by the water that runneth towards Bana, and there abode we the daies. And I told amonge the people and the priests a founte there none of the children of Levi. Then sent I to Eliezer, to Briel, Semera, Elnaham, Iarib, Elnaham, Natham, zachary and to Wehsullam the rulers, and to Ioiaribd El- naham which were men of vnderstanding, and to those gaue I commaundement vnto Iddo the chiefe at Caspbia, that they shuld fetch vs mynisters for y^e house of oure God, and I tolde them what they shulde sape vnto Iddo, and to his brethren the Acthunis at Caspbia.

And (thow the good hãde of oure God vpon vs) they brought vs a wyse man frõ amonge the children of Moholi the sonne of Leui, the sonne of Israel, and Sarabia with hys

hys sonnes and his brethren, euen cyphrene. And hasabab, and with him Iai of p chydien of Egerai, with his brethren and thre sonnes, twelfe. And of the Achunims, who mauid & the Daners gaue to mynstre vnto the Leuites, two hundred & twentye of Achunims, which all were named by name.

And euen thre at the water, besyde Ahaia, I proclaimed a fast, that we myghte blyboure selues before oure God, and seke of him a ryght waye for vs, and for oure children and for all oure substance. For I was a turned to requyre of the kynge, souldiers & horsen, to helpe vs agaynst the enemy in p waye: but we sayd vnto the kynge: We haue of oure God vs vpon all the that like hym in goodness, and we haue donnen oure violence and wrathis agaynst all them that forsaue hym. Shewe faile, and be foughte oure God for this, and he hearde vs.

And I toke out twelue of the cheste prelaters, Shabab and Hasabab, and ten of the brethren with thein, and weped them p syluer and golde, & vessels that were appoynted for the house of oure God, which the kynge and his counsellors and his Lordes, and all Israel that were there at haube, had geuen together. And I weped vnto their haube six hundred & syfte talentes of syluer, & in syluer vessel an hundred talentes, & in golde an hundred talentes: twentie balens of golde of a thousande piece, and two collyornaments of good basile, as cleare as golde: And I sayde vnto them: Ye are consecrate vnto the Lord, lyke as p vessels are holy also, and the golde and syluer are geue of a good wyll vnto the Lord God of your fathers. Watch ye, and kepe it: for ye shall wepe it downe before the cheste prelaters and Leuites, and auncient fathers of Israel at Ierusalem in the treasuries of the house of the Lord. Then toke p prelaters and Leuites that weped syluer & golde and vessel, to bringe it to Ierusalem, vnto p house of oure God. And we brake vp, from the water of Ahaia on the tweluen daye of the syfte moneth, to go vnto Ierusalem: and the hande of oure God was vpon vs, & deliuered vs from the hande of the enemies, & of such as layde waye for vs by the waye. And we came to Ierusalem, and abode thre thre dayes. But on the fourth daye was the syluer & golde and vessel weped in the house of oure God, by the hande of Hecemoth the sonne of Elia the prelatre, and with hym was Eleazar the sonne of phineas, & with them was Josabab the sonne of Iesua, and Aodab the sonne of Benoi the Leuites.

According to the nombre and weryght of euery one, was the wepght all wyrtten vp at the same tyme.

And the children of the captiuite, which were come out of pelson, offered burnt offerynges vnto the God of Israel: twelue bullocks for all Israel, syxe and nyntye enimmes, seuen and seuentie lambers, twelue he-goates for a synofferynge, all to the burnt-offerynge of the Lord. And they deliuered the kynges commision vnto the kynges officers, & to the capitaynes that were on thys syde the water. And they promoted the people and the house of God.

namely of the Cananites, hechites, pherelites, Jebusites, Ammonites, Moabites, Egyptians, & Amosites. For they haue taken the daughters of the same to the selues, and to their sonnes, and the holy sebe is mixt with the nacions in the land: and p hande of the pynners & rulers hath bene principall in this trespace.

* And when I heard thes sayngs, I trefte my clothes and my rayment, and I luct of the heer of my heade, and of my beerd, and sate mourning. And there relosed vnto me all such as feared the wordes of the Lord God of Israel, because of the trasgression of the people of the captiuite. And I sate mourning vntill the euenyng sacrifice. And aboute the euenyng sacrifice, I roke vp fro my heuyngs, and rente my clothes and my rayment, and fell vpon my kners, and spied out my handes vnto the Lord my God, and sayde.

the house of oure God, and to redresse the desolation thereof, and to geue vs a wall in Iuda and Ierusalem.

And now, O oure God, what shall we saye after this: for we haue forsaken thy commandementes, wherby thou hast commiauded by thy seruantes the prophetes, sayeng: The lande vnto which ye go to possesse, it is an vncleane land, because of the fylthyenes of the people of the landes, wherby with theyr abominacions haue made it full of vncleane: ^{Deut. 32. 17.} And on euery hyde. * Therefore shall ye not geue youre daughters vnto the sonnes, and their daughters shall ye not take vnto youre sonnes, nre selue their peace & welth for euer, that ye maye kee the troughe, & enioye the good in the land. & yf ye & youre chyldren maye haue the enheritaunce of it for euermore.

And after that all these thynges are come vnto vs, because of oure euell dedes & greate trespasses: I thinke oure God hath: ^{Deut. 32. 17.} I thinke done oure wickednes, & hath geue vs a deliuerance. ^{Deut. 32. 17.} (as it is com to passe this daye.)

And yf we turne backe agayne, to let go thy commandementes, and make contracts with the ye people of these abominacions, wilt thou not then be wroth at vs (as not without cause: yf we be vetterly consumed, so that nothing remayne, and tpyll there be no deliuerance: O Lord God of Israel, part ryghteous, for we remayne yet escaped, at it is to se this daye. Behold us, in thy presence are we in oure trespasses, & because of it maie we not stand before thee.

Chapter.

The people repente, and tume, and put awaye theyr straunge wyues.

AND when * Eldras prayed after this maner, & knowleged, wepte, & laye before y house of God, there refozored vnto him out of Iherusalem a very greate congregacion of men and women, and chyldren: & the people wepte very sore. And Sechania the sonne of Zebiel one of y chyldren of Efram, answered, and sayde vnto Eldras. We haue trespassed agaynst oure God, and haue taken straunge wyues of the people of the land. Nowe ther is hope yet in Israel concerning this thyng: for now we wyl make a couenauent with oure God, and put awaye all the wyues (and soch as are borne of them) accordyng to the counsell of the Lord, and we wyl be in the feare of the commandementes of oure God, that we maie do accordyng to the lawe. Get the by, for this matter belongeth vnto the. we also wyl be wryth the, be of good conforte thereto, and do it.

^{Itō. c. 14.} * Then rose Eldras, and toke an oth of the chiefe prentes and Leuites, and of all Israel, that they shulde do accordyng to this woorde: & they sware. And Eldras toke by from before the house of God, and went into the chamber of Iohanan the sonne of Elasib. And when he came thither, he dyd eate no bryd, nor drinke water: for he mourned because of the trasgression of the people that had bene in captiuite.

And they caused a proclamacion to go thorow out Iuda and Ierusalem, vnto all the chyldren which had bene in captiuite, y they shulde gather the selues together vnto Ierusalem. And that whosoever came not wythin the dayes accordyng to the beirpe of the rulers and Elders, all hys substance shulde be forfett, and he shulde be put out fro the congregacion of the captiue.

Then all the men of Iuda and Ben Iamin gathered them selues togethere vnto Ierusalem wythin the dayes, men yf wote the daye of the nyenth moneth: and all y people late in the strete before the house of God, and trembled because of this matter, & for the rapine. And Eldras the puerle toke by, and sayde vnto them. * Ye haue trasgessed, ^{Deut. 32. 17.} and haue taken straunge wyues, to make y teefuence of Israel yet more: for he nowe therefore vnto the Lord God of youre fathers, and do hys pleasure, & separate youre selues from the people of the lande, & from the straunge wyues. And all the congregacion answered, and sayd with a loud voyce: It shalbe so, and we will do as thou hast sayde. But the people are many, and it is a rayne wyther, and the people are to sayne to lare without in y strete, nether is this a worke of one daye or two, for we haue offensed very sore in this thyng. Let oure rulers stand therefore in all the congregacion, and lett all them whych haue taken straunge wyues in oure cyties come at the tyme appointed, and let the Elders of euery cytye and theyr Iudges be wryth them, tpyll they haue turned the wrath of oure God awaye from vs concerning this matter.

Then were appointed Jonathan the sonne of Elab, and Iahasia the sonne of Ehekia oure this matter: And Abolulian and Sabatha the Leuytes helpe them. And the chyldren of the captiuite dyd euen so. And Eldras the puerle, and the auncient heades thorow the donic of theyr fathers, all men of great fame, separated the selues, and lat them downe on the fyft daye of the tenth moneth, to examen the matter. And on tpyll the fyft daye of the fyft moneth they were fynishyng the busyness wryth all y men that had taken straunge wyues.

And amonge the chyldren of the puerles there were men founde that had taken straunge wyues, namely amonge the chyldren of Iehua the sonne of Iosede: and of hys brethren, Ehasiab, and Ehezzer, Iarib and Sebalia, and they geue theyr handes there

After hym buylded they of Bethinims the other pece ouer agaynst the greates tower, that lyeth out wards, vnto the wall of the strong holde.

But from above the housegate forth, buylded the prestes, euer ouer ouer agaynst hys house. And after they buylded Azbub the sonne of Immer ouer agaynst his house. The liij. Chapter.

¶ The buyldynge of Ierusalem is finished and let, but the Jewes buylded, erringe readye barres, lest theye enemies wold invade them.

But when Shanababai heard that we buylded the wall, he was wroth in hym selfe, and toke grente indignacion, & moched y^e Jewes, and sayde before his brethren & the souldiers of Samaria: what do these impossible Jewes? wyl the hethen suffre them? Shall they offe? Shall they performe it in one daye? Hal they make y^e stones whole agayne that are brought to dust, and bent? And Tobiah y^e Ammonite was beynde him, ad sayde: Though they buylded, yet y^e fore go vp, he shall breake downe theye stronge wall. heare (O thou our God) for we are bespiled, turne their shame vpon their awne heads, & geue the ouer into despyling in the lande of their captiuitie. Couer not their wickednesse, & let not their synne be put out of thy presence: for they haue prouoked y^e buylders. And so buylded we the wall, & it was rayned whole together, vnto y^e half bergh ther of. And the people were mynbed to labour.

25 And it fortuned, þ when Sanabalar, and Tobiah, & the Arabians, Ammonites, & Adobites heard, þ the walles of Ierusalem were mad vp, and þ the gappes begane to be stopp'd, they were very wroth, & conspired all together to come, & syghte against Ierusalem, ad to make the people an hynderaunce therein. Nevertheless, we made our prayer vnto our God, & set watchmen by the, which buylded daye & nyghte ouer agaynst them. And Iuda sayd: the strenght of the bearrers is to feble, & there is yet much more moztie, & we are not able to buyld on the wall. And our aduersaries sayd: they shall not knowe nether se, eyll we come in the middes amonge the, and slaye the, and hinder the woztke. But it fortuned þ when the Jewes (which dwelt besyde the) came, they tolde vs as good as ten tymes, þ in all places where ye go vnto, they are appointed to slay vs. Therefore I þ people after their liffes in their swordes, speares & bowes bent in þ lower places behynd the wal, & I tolde, & gat me vp, & sayd vnto the chiefe me, to þ rulers, & to þ other people, be not ye afrayed of the, & but thinke rather vnto the greates Lord, whye thought to be feared, & fight for your brethren, your sonnes, yd daughters, your wyues, & your houses. Nevertheless, it chanced that when our enemies heard, that we had gotten woztke of it. God brought their conseil to naught, & we turned all againe to þ wal, euery one vnto his labo. And fro that tyme forth it came to passe þ the half parte of the yong men did the labour, & the other half parte of the helde the speares, shylde, bowes, and best plates: & the rulers stode behynd all the house of Iuda, which buylded on the wall, and bare burthens fro those þ laden the. And I sayd vnto the principal men, to the rulers, and to the other people: the woztke is great and large, & we are separated vpon the wall one farrre from another. Loke in what place therefore ye heate the noyse of the trouper, reioyce þ they thre vnto vs, & our God that fight for vs, & we will be labouryng in the woztke. And the halfe part of the helde þ speares fro þ moztie sygh, tll the starcke came forth. And at the same tyme said I vnto the people: euery one abyde with hys seruauant at Ierusalem, that in the nyghte sent we maye watch, and labour on the daye tyme. As for me and my brethren, my seruantes, and the me of the watch (which were beynde me) we put neuere of oure clothes, no more then the other yd they barnelle, (saue onely because of the water.

The v. Chapter.

The people are wroth with Iuda. The captaynes are wroth with the buying of a captayne.

27 And there arose a great complaine of þ people, and of thez wyues agaynst their brethren the Jewes. For there were some that sayd: our sonnes and daughters and we are to many, therefore wyll we take coine for the, & we maye cate, and lye. Some also there were that sayd: let vs lett our landes, vyneyardes and houses to pidge, and take vp coine in the barch. But some there were that sayd: let vs borrowe money for the kynges trybute & that vpon our landes and vyneyardes. I shold, our bodies as the bodies of oure brethren, and oure children as thez chyliden: elles synde we shal due our sonnes and daughters vnto bondage, and some of oure daughters are subdyd vnto bondage all ready, & no strenght is there in houre hādes, and other men haue our landes and vyneyardes.

28 And when I heard their complaine and such woztke, it displeased me sore, ad I aduised to in my mynde, þ I rebuked the counsellors, and the rulers, and sayd vnto them: Euery one of you is to chargeable vnto hys brother. And I brought a greates congregacion agaynst them, and sayd vnto them: we (after oure abillite, haue bought oure brethren the Jewes, which were sold vnto of the heathen, after that they haue bene selde vnto vs. Then helde they theyz peace, and could fynde nothyng to answer.

29 And Achemai sayd: It is not good that ye do. Wughte ye not to walke in the feare of God, because of the rebuke of the heathen þ are our enemyes? I and my brethren, and my seruantes do lend them money: & coine: but as for blurye, let vs leane it. Therefore, this same daie I pray vnto that ye restore them thez landes agayne, theyz vyneyardes, oyle gardes, and their houses, and remytte the haded part of the money, of the coine, wyne and oyle that ye haue wome of them. Then sayd they: we will restore the agayne, & wyll requyre nothing of the, and will do as þ hast spoken. And I called þ prestes, & toke an oth of them, þ they shuld do so. And I shole my lappe, & sayd: God shalke ouer euery man after the same maner from hys house & labour, & maynter neth not this wozt: euen thus be he shaken out, and voyde. And all the congregacion sayd: Amen, and praised the Lord. And the people dyd so.

30 And fro the tyme forth þ the kyng comitted vnto me to be a captayne of the that were in the land of Iuda, euen fro the .xx. yere vnto the .xxii. yere of kyng Artatheres (that is .xii. yere) I w my brethren nyd not of such sustenance as was gene to a captayne. ¶ The burying is yet agayne byrdes and left.

AND whē Sannabalar, Tobiah, & Seleus the Arabian, and the other of our enemyes heard that I had buylded y wall: and that there were no mo gappes therin: howbeit at the same tyme had I not hangd the dores vpon the gates. Sannabalar & Seleus sent vnto me, sayenge: that we maye mete and take counsell together in the villages that are in the playne of the cytie Dno. Heruerthelasse, they thought to do me euill. And I sent messengers vnto them, sayenge: I haue a great busynes to do, and I cannot come downe. The worke shulde stande still, yf I were nedyggt, and came downe to you. Howbeit, they sent vnto me as good as foure times after the same maner. And I gaue the the same answer. Then set Sannabalar hys seruant agayne vnto me the fyfth tyme, w an open letter in hys hand, wherein was written: it is toke the heathen, and Seleus hath sayde it, that thou and the Jewes thincke to rebel: for the which cause thou buyldest the wall, that thou mayest be theire kynge in these matters, and hast ordeyned the prophetes to preach of it. For they were all mynded to make vs asrayed, sayenge: they shall withdraue theire handes from the worke, that it shall not be fynished. Howbeit, I strenghted my hande the more. And I came vnto the house of She-maria the sonne of Delaia the sonne of Sheb-e-tabel, and he had put hym self wethin, and sayde: let vs come together into the house of God, euen vnto the myddes of the tple, and shutte the dores of the temple: for they wyll come to slaye the, yer, euen in the nyggt wyll

And I perceaued, that God had not sent hym. Per spake he prophesy vpon me, neuer-thelesse, Tobiah and Sannabalar had byred him for money. ¶ Therfore toke he the money that throught feare I shulde do, and synne: that they might haue an euill repoyte of me, to blaspheme me. ¶ By God, thinke thou byd Tobiah and Sannabalar accordyng vnto these theyr wordes, and of the prophet Sannabalar, and of the other prophetes, that wolde haue put me in fere.

And the wall was fynished on the fyue and twety daye of the moneth Elul, in two and forty dayes. And when all our enemyes heard thereof, all the heartes that were about vs, were asrayed, and theyr courage fayled them. And they perceaued, that thys worke came of our God. And at the same tyme were ther many of the chefe of Iuda, whose letters wente vnto Tobiah, and agayne from Tobiah vnto them: (for there were many in Iuda, that were sworne vnto hi: for he was the sonne in lawe of Sechania, the sonne of Arah, & his sonne Iehonathab had the daughter of Shefullam, the sonne of Sarachia, ad they spake good of hym before me, and tolde hym my wordes) and Tobiah sent letters, to put me in fere.

NOW when the wall was buylded, I charged on the dores also, and the porters, syngers & leuites were appointed. And whyle they were standing in the watch, they shutt the dores and barred the. And all the people gathered them selues together as one man in the street that was before the watergate, and they sayde vnto Edoas the scribe, that he shulde fetch the booke of the lawe of Moses, whiche the Lorde commaunded to Israel. And Edoas the prelat brought the lawe before the congregation both of men and women, and all people vnderstande byd herken vnto it, vpon the first daye of the seuenth moneth, and be red therein in the street y was before the watergate (from the morninge vntyll the noone daye) before men and women that byd herken to it: and the eares of all the people were inclyned vnto the booke of the lawe. And Edoas opened the booke before all the people, for he stode aboue all the people. And when he opened it, all the people stode by. And Edoas prayed for the Lorde the greates God. And all the people answered Amen, Amen, with their handes by, & bowed them selues, and wooshypped the Lorde, fallinge downe vpon their faces to the grounde. And the Leuites shalld ball the people, and sayd: holde poure peare, for the daye is holy, here not ye poure selues. And all people wepte theyr waye to eate and drinke, and to sende parte vnto other, and to make greates mynth, because they had vnderstande the wordes that were declared vnto them.

And on y nexte daye were gathered together the chefe fathers amonge all the people and the prelatres and Leuites, vnto Edoas the scribe, that they myght vnderstand the wordes of the lawe. * Now therefore our God, thou greates God, myghtye and terrible, thou that hepest counsaile & mercy, regarde not a lyele all the trouaile that hath happened vnto vs, and oure kynges, oure princes, oure prelates, oure prophetes, & oure fathers, and all thy people, since the tyme of the kynges of Assur vnto this daye. And truly, thou art iust in all þ thou hast broughte vpon vs: for thou hast done ryght. As for vs, we haue bene vngodly, & oure kynges, & oure princes, oure prelates, & oure fathers haue not done after thy lawe, nor regarded thy commandementes, & thy earnest exhortacions, wherewith þ hast exhorted them, & they haue not serued the in their kyngdome, & in thy greates goodes that thou gauest them, and in the large and plentiful lande which thou gauest before this, & haue not conuerted fro their wycked wyckes. Aschold, we are in bondage this daye: so is the lande that þ gauest vnto oure fathers, to enioye the frutes & goodes thereof, be holde, there are we bondmen. And greates is the increase of it vnto the kynges, whom þ hast fer ouer vs, because of oure synnes, & they haue domynion ouer oure bodies and catell: eue as they will them selues, & we are in great trouble. And all this make we a sure tounaunt, & wypte it, and oure princes, Leuites & prelates sente vnto it,

The xij. Chapter.

¶ The pyrales and Leuites wherewith they were brought to Jerusalem and to the wall to be kept.

These are the pyrales and Leuites that wente up with zoroabel the sonne of Sathabai & with Iesui: Saraia, Jeremi, & Edras, Ama-ria, Maluch, Hatus, Serchania, Rehum, Serimoth, Iddo, Serimoth, Abia, Shimam, Sharaia, Selga, Semai, Joarib, Iadua, Senu, Amok, Helcia, and Ja-daia. These were the headres amog the pyra-les, and they brethren, in the dayes of Iesua. The Leuites were these: Iesui, Benimini, Cadmil, Sarabia, Iuda and Nathania which was ouer the office of thankesgeuyng, he and hys brethren: Sachinias and himin and they brethren, were aboute them in the watches.

Iesua begat Joakim. Joakim also begat Eliashib, & Eliashib begat Joiada. Joiada begat Jonathan, and Jonathan begat Iadua.
In the dayes of Joakim were these the chefe fathers amog the pyrales: vnder Saraia, Saraia: vnder Jeremi, Hanania: vnder Edras, Selulam: vnder Amaria, Iehonnan: vnder Shilco, Jonathan: vnder Sebania, Ioseph: vnder Harim Adna: vnder Marath, Helca: vnder Iddo, zachary: vnder Serimoth, Iesuliam: vnder Abia, sichi: vnder Shimam and Iadua, Iulai: vnder Selga, Samia: vnder Semcia, Iehonathan: vnder Joarib, Iathenai, vnder Ja-daia, Eli: vnder Selai, Isai: vnder Amok, Eber: vnder Helcia, Malabai: vnder Ja-daia, Nathanael.

And in the tyme of Eliashib: Joiada, Jo-hanan & Iadua, were y chefe fathers amog the Leuites and the pyrales, written vnder the reigne of darins the Persian. The chyldre of Leui, y principall fathers were written in the Chronicles, vntill the tyme of Jonathan the sonne of Eliashib. And these were the chefe among the Leuites, Malabai, Serebia and Iesua the sonne of Cadmil, and they brethren in their pasture, to geue pray-se & thankes, accordyng as Dauid the ma of God had ordeyned it, one watch ouer agaynst another. Nathania, Babilucia, Iada-ia, Iesulai, Talmon and Iudub were porters in the watch at the threholdes of the gates. These were in the dayes of Joakim the sonne of Iesua the sonne of Ioseder, and in y dayes of Seremia the captayne, and of the pyrales Edras the scrpe.

And in the dedycacion of the wall at Jerusalem, they sought the Leuites out of all the places, that they myghte be brought to Jerusalem, to kepe the dedycacion & glad-nesse, with thankesgeuynges, and singinge with Cyntales, Psalteries, and harpes.
And the chylidren of the syngers gathered them selues together from euery syde out of the playne countrey aboute Jerusalem, and from the byllages of Ierho phathi, from the house of Gilgal, and out of the countreys of Seba and Minaceth: for the syngers had brylled them byllages rounde aboute Jerusalem. And the pyrales and Leuites were purified, and censed the people, and the gates and the wall.

And I brought the pyrales of Iuda by vpon the wall, and appoynted two greates queres of men to geue thankes, whych were on the ryghte hande of the wall towarde the donggate, and after them wente Iohania, and halfe of the pyrales of Iuda, and A-maria, Edras, and Iesuliam, Iuda, Beniamin, Semia and Jeremi: and certayne of the pyrales chylidren with trompettes, namely zachary the sonne of Jonathan, the sonne of Seremia, the sonne of Iadua, y sonne of Ithai, the sonne of Iacur, the sonne of Iaph, and hys brethren Semcia, Ma-rael, Iesulai, Gilalai, Iuan, Nathanael & Iuda and Hanani, with the musickall instrumentes of Dauid the man of God.

And Edras the scrpe went before the,
and before the welgate. they wente vpon agaynst them vpon the steeppes of the cytye of Dauid at the goyng vpon of the wall beyonde the house of Dauid, vnto the Watergate Eastwarde.

The other quere of them that gaue thankes, went ouer agaynst them, and I after them, and the halfe parte of the people vpon the wall, beyonde the fornergate, vntill the brode wall, and beyonde the porte of Ephraim, & beyonde the Wlgate, beyonde the syngate, and the tower of Hananuel, and the tower of Eden, vntill the shepegate. And they stode still in the pefongate, and so stode the two queres (of them that gaue thankes) in the house of God, and I and the halfe of the rulers with me, and the pyrales, namely Eliashib, Iosua, Shimam, Iudua, Elioenai, zachary and Hanania, with trompettes, and Iada-ia, Semcia, Iesai, Ieli, Iehonnan, Ierichin, Iam and Ser. And the syngers singe loude, haupnge Iesuliah for their ouersee.

And the same daye, they offred greates sacrifices and reioyced: for God had geuen the grete gladnesse, so that both the wyues & chylidren were ioyfull, and the mynth of Jerusalem was herbe farr of.

At the same tyme were there men ap-poynted ouer the treasure houses (wherin were the heue offeringes, the syngers & the rythes) that they shoulde gather them out of the felde about the cytye, to de-tribute them vnto the pyrales & Leuites ac-cordyng to y lawe: for Iuda was glad of the pyrales

preastes, & Leuites, that they shoulde waite vpon y office of their God, which is a pure office. And y singers & porters shoulde after y commandment of Dauid & of Salomō his sonne: for in the tyme of Dauid & Asaph, were the cheefe syngers souled, & y songes of praise & thankesgeyving vnto God. In the tyme of Iosababel & Nehemia, dyd all they of Israel, geue portions vnto the syngers & porters, euery daye hys portion, and they gaue tythes vnto y Leuites: and y Leuites gaue tythes agayne, vnto the children of Aaron.

¶ The xliij Chapter.

¶ The Luce inuad, & when they haue heard, they separate from them all strangers &c.

I And y daye dyd they reade in the booke of ysaies, & y people herkened thereto, & there was sounde written therein, y the Ammonites & Moabites shoulde neuer come into the congregacion of God, because they meet not y childen of Israel w hand ad water, & but hyed ynsaia agaynst them, y he quid curse them: and oure God turned the curse into a blessing. Now when they herde the lawe, it fortuned, y they separated from Israel: euery one that had myrte hym selfe therein. And before this had y preast Eliash y ouer syght of y treasurie of y house of oure God, & he was kyneman vnto Tobia: & had made him a great chambze, & there had they afoze tyme layd y offerings, frankensce, vessel, & the thythes of corne, and wyne and oyle (accorpyng to the comaundement geue to the Leuites, syngers and porters) and the breuoffer pynges of the preastes:

But in all this tyme was not J at Jerusalem: for in y two & thyrtye yere of Artaxerxes kyng of Babylo, came J vnto the kyng, and after certayne dayes obtayned J lyce of the kyng to come to Jerusalem. And J gat knowledge of y well that Eliash dyd vnto Tobia, in y he had made him a chambze in the court of the house of God, and it grieved me sore, & I cast forth all the vessels of the house of Tobia out of the chambze, and commaunded them to clybe the chambzies. And thither brought J agayne the vessels of the house of God, with the incense offering, and the incense.

And J prearraned, that the portions of the Leuites were not geue them, and that euery one shoulde to his labyd, euery y Leuites and syngers y executed y woken. The reproued J y rulers, & sayde: why is y house of God forsaken? And J gathered the together, & set the in their place. Then brought all Iuda y thythes of corne, & wyne and oyle vnto the treasure. And J made treasuries ouer y treasurie, euery Schiemiad the preast, & adoc the scribe, and of the Leuites, yshabania, & vnder their hand was hanan the sonne of zacur the sonne of Mathania: for they were counted sayethfull, and these office was to distribute the portions vnto their brethren. & Thynke vpon me O my God here in, and wpe not out my mercy that I haue shewed on the house of my God, and on the offices therof.

At the same tyme sawe J some treydyng wyne presses on the Saboth, & byngpyng in theses, & asses laden w wyne, grapes, figges & bynging all maner of burthen vnto Jerusalem, vnto the Saboth daye. And J rebuked the carnell y same daye that they sold the vitayles. There dwelt me of Eze also therein, which brought yd and all maner of ware, & sold on the Saboth vnto y children of Iuda in Jerusalem. Then reproued J the rulers in Iuda, & sayde vnto the: what cuell thyng is this y ye do, & breake the Saboth daye? Wd not your fathers cūe thus, & our God brought all this plague vpon vs & vnto this crye? And ye make the wath more pr vpon Israel, in that ye breake the Saboth.

And it fortuned, y wnt the porters of Jerusalem beganne to be darke in the eueryng before the Saboth, J commaunded to shut the gates, & charged, that they shuld not be opened till after the Saboth: & some of my seruantes let J at the gates, y there shulde no burth be brought in on y Saboth daye. Then remayned y chaymen & marchantes ouer y wyer ouer nyght without Jerusalem wyth all maner of wares. Then reproved J thein sore, and sayde vnto the: why tary ye all nyght about the wall? If ye doit once agayne, I wll laye handes vpon you. From y tyme forth came they nomore on the Saboth. And J sayde vnto the Leuites y they shulde cense the felues, and that they shulde come and kepe the gates, to halowe the Saboth daye. Thynke vpon me O my God, concerning this also, & spare me, accorpyng to the great mercy.

And at the same tyme sawe J Iewes, that married wyues of Moab, of Ammon and of yshob, & their children spake halse in y speech of Moab, & coulde not speake in the Iewes language, but by the song myght a my pcrane euery people. Then J reproued them, & cūed them, & smote certayne men of the, & made the bare, and toke an oath of the by God: Ye shal not geue your daughters vnto their sonnes, neether shal ye take their daughters vnto your sonnes, or for your felues. Wd not Salomō the kyng of Israel speme for soch, and yet among many brethren was there no hyngc lyke him, whych was deare vnto his God, & God made him kyng ouer all Israel, & yet neuer theles, outlandish women caused hi to speme: Shall we then obeye vnto you, to do all this great euill, & to trasgresse agaynst oure God, and make strange wyues?

And one of the children of yshobania the sonne sonne of Eliab the hye priest, had made a cōtracte with Sanababai the Mozonite: but I chased him from me. (W my God) thynke thou vpon them that despye the presthode, & the cōuenant of the presthode & of the Leuites. Thus clenest I the from all such as were outlandish, and appoynted the courses of p prestres & Leuites, eury one in his office, & to offre the wod at tymes appoynted, and the fyre frutes. I thinke thou vpon me (W my God) for the best. (Amos)

In the dayes of Ahasuerus whych enygned from India vnto Ethiopia (ouer an hundred and seuen and twenty landes) euen in those dayes when the kyng Ahasuerus late on his seate royall, which was in Sulan the chetye, in the thirde yere of his reygne, he made a feast vnto all his princes & seruantes. This pleased the kyng & the prynces: and the hyng dyd according to the word of Chy-micain. For he sent letters forthin to all the hynges lades, in to euery land, accordyng to the wytyng therof, & to euery people after

In the cyte of Sulan there was a Jewe, hadatta; that is Esther; his uncles daughter: for the had neither father nor mo-was dead & deceased for his wive daughter.

So it fortuned that when the hynged commandment of cõmellion was published, and many damoysels were brought together in the cite of Soutun vnder the bande of hõgei. After was brought also vnto the hynges houle vnder the hand of bagei the keper of the women, & the damisell yclead him, and the founne fauoure in his syght. Hathelucius, after that he had bene twelue monethes in the deuyche of the women; for ther deuyching must haue fo mocht tyme, namely fyue monethes with 13 alme a daye, and fyue monethes with good wyces, to worre the women bentwyche; then went there one damefoel vnto the kyng, and what lauerce he requyred. ¶ So that it was comely, that he must be geuen her to go wyth her one of the wyemens bryding vnto þy kynges palace. In the chynnyng he went, and in the morow agayne into the seconde house of the women abyding vnder the hand of Waalgins the kyngs chamberlaier, whych kept the couche-nys. And he came in vnto the kyngs nomaer, excepte it pleased the kyng to haue her, and that he called her by name.

Now when the tyme came of Elther the daughter of Abihau the vncle of Mardocheus (whych had receaued her as hys owne daughter) that the child come into hys king, he despyed nothing, but what haue the kinges chamberlayne the keeper of the women sayde.

And Esther found fauoure in the syght of all them that looked vpon her. And Esther was taken vnto kyng Ahasuerus into his house royall, in y^e tenth moneth which is y^e moneth
* Tebeth in y^e seveneth yere of his reygne.

X-December.

And the kyng loued Esther above all the women, & he found grace and fauoure in his syght before all the virgins: so that he let her crowne of the kyngdome vpon her head, and made her quene in steade of Tashim. And the kyng made a great feast vnto all his princes and seruantes: which feast was becaule of Esther & caused his landes to be in quietnes, & a quietnes, as became fyt to be of a kyng.

And when the virgins were gathered to gether the seconde tyme, Martha chous sat in the lynes gate. And as yet had not Ether shewed her kyndred and her people, acording as Martha chous had byddyn her: for Ether dyd after the wyse of Martha chous, lyke as y^e had bene pet vnder lyys gouernance.
 At the launc tyme, whyle Martha chous sat in the lynes gate, two of the lynes chāberlaines Sighard and Ceres which kept the quisiſion was made, it was founde so. And they were both banysed on the: and it was writen in the chāncels before the lynes.

¶ The.iii.Chapter.

Wantan the first dominion after he was created obtained of the king that all the French should be put to death, because Marbocheus had not done him wrong, as other had.

After theſe actes dyd þ kyng Ahaſuerus promote Haman the ſonne of Amadatha þ Agagite, & ſet him ope, & ſet hym ſeat about all þ pynces that he had with him. And all the kynges ſeruautes that were in the kynges gate, bowed theiſe knees, and woꝝſhypped Haman: for the kyng had ſo commaunded concerning him. But Mardocheus bowed not the knee, and woꝝſhypped him not. Then the kynges ſeruautes whych were in the kynges gate, ſayde vnto Mardocheus: why traunſgreſſeſt thou the kynges commaundment? And whē theſe ſpake thus daylie vnto him, he ſolowed theiſe not, and theiſe tolde Haman, that they myght ſe how Mardocheus maters wolde endure: for he had told them, that he was a Jewe. And when Haman ſawe, that Mardocheus bowed not the knee vnto him, noꝝ woꝝſhypped him, he was full of indignacio, and thought it to ſpellell to laye handes onely on Mardocheus: for they had thewed him þ naclo of Mardocheus, wherfore he fought to deſtrope all the Jewes, that were thoꝝout the whole empyre of Ahaſuerus, and that were of the nation of Mardocheus.

In the fyrſt moneth (that is the moneth Niſan) in the twelueſe yere of kyng Ahaſuerus they caſt whur (that is a lot) befoze Haman from daye to daye, and from moneth to moneth, to the twelueſe moneth that is the moneth Adar. And Haman ſayde vnto kyng Ahaſuerus: There is here a people ſcattered abroad and diſperſed among all people in all the landes of thyne empyre, & they haue theiſe lawes contrarye from all people, & do not after the kynges lawes, neether is it the kynges proſer to ſuffice them after thyſe maner. If it pleaſe the kyng, let it be woꝝtten, that they maye be deſtroied, & ſo wyl I weye downe ten thouſand talentes of ſyluer, by the handes of þ woꝝkemen, to be brought into the kynges treaſure. And the kyng toke his rynge from his hand, & gaue it vnto Haman the ſonne of Amadatha the Agagite the Jewes enemye. And the kyng ſayde vnto Haman: Let the ſyluer be geuen the, and do with that people as it pleaſeth the.

D Then were the kynges ſeruyes called on þ thirtieth daye of þ fyrſt moneth. And there was woꝝtten (according as Haman commaunded) vnto all the kynges officers & to the captaynes that were in all the landes, and to the enclers of euery people in the countreyes on euery ſyde, according to the woꝝtyng of euery nation, and after theiſe langage, in the name of kyng Ahaſuerus was it woꝝtten and ſealed with the kynges rynge. And the woꝝtynges were ſent by poſtes into all the kynges landes, to rote out, to kyll, and to deſtroie all Jewes, both pong & olde, chyldren & women in one daye (namely vpon the thirtieth daye of the twelueſe moneth, whych is the moneth Adar) & to ſlaye theiſe their goodes.

This was the ſumme of the woꝝtyng, þ there ſhulde be a commaundment geuen in all landes, and publiſhed vnto all people, that they ſhulde be ready agaynſt the ſame daye. And the poſtes went in all þ paſt, according to the kynges commaundment. And in Suſan the cheſt cyte was the commaundment deuſed. And þ kyng & Haman ſate a dyſchere: whan in the meane tyme the cyte of Suſan was diſquieted.

¶ The iij. Chapter.

Mardocheus geueth the queene knowledge of the cruell decreet: whych agaynſt the Jewes.

When Mardocheus perceiued all þ was done, he rente his clothes and put on ſack cloth, with aſhes, and went out into the myddes of the cyte, and cryed loud and lamentably, & came befoze the kynges gate: but he myght not entre within þ kynges gate, becauſe he had ſack cloth on. And in all lades, courtes, & places, & ſo farre as the kynges woꝝde, & commaundment extended, there was greāt lamentacion among the Jewes, ſaſting, weping, and mourning, and many laye in ſack clothes & aſhes. So Eſthers damoſels and her chāberlaynes, came & told it her. Then was the queene exceedingly ſorry. And ſhe ſent rapier, that Mardocheus ſhulde put on, & laye the ſack cloth from him. But Mardocheus wold not take them. Then called Eſther hathari one of the kynges chāberlaynes (whych ſtoode befoze her) and gaue him a commaundment vnto Mardocheus, þ he myght knowe what it were, wherfore he dyd ſo. So hathari wet forth to Mardocheus vnto the ſtrete of þ cyte, whych was befoze the kynges gate.

And Mardocheus told him of all þ had happened vnto him, & of the ſumme of ſyluer þ Haman had promiſed to weye downe into þ kynges treaſury, becauſe of þ Jewes þ he wolde deſtroie the (þ he gaue hym the coppe of the kynges commaundment, that was deuſed at Suſan, to deſtroie the, that he myght ſee what it was to Eſther) & to ſpeake to her, and charge her, that ſhe ſhuld go into the kyng, and make her praye and ſupplicacion vnto him for her people.

And whē hathari came in, he told Eſther the woꝝdes of Mardocheus. And agayne, Eſther ſpake vnto hathari, & commaunded him to ſape vnto Mardocheus: all the kynges ſeruautes, & the people in the landes of the kyng, knowe that whoſoer cometh within the court vnto the kyng, wherþ he is man or woman, whych is not called, þ commaundment is, þ the ſame ſhall dye, excepte the the kynge holde out the golden scepter vnto him ^{in token of grace and fauour} for then he shall liue. As for me, I haue not bene called to come into the kyng now this thyrtye dayes.

And they certified Ahabdocheus of Esthers wordes, & Ahabdocheus had saye agayne vnto Esther, thinke not to sue thynne a- lone lyfe, while thou art in y^e kynges house, before all Jewes: for yf thou holdest thy peace at this tyme, the shall the Jewes haue helpe and deliuerance out of another place, & thou & thy fathers house shall be destroyed. And who knoweth whether thou art come to the kyngdom, for this causes sake? Esther had the gene Ahabdocheus this answer: So thou thy waye, & go together together all the Jewes that are found at Suslan, and fast ye for me, that ye may not be nyght in this dayes, neither daye nor nyght. I and my damoysels will fast lyke wyse, and so will I go into the kyng, which thing yet, is contrary to the commaundment: and yf I perishe, I perishe. So Ahabdocheus went his waye, & dyd all that Esther had commaunded him.

¶ Esther cometh vnto the kyng and upbraideth hym and Haman to a feast. Haman prepareth a gal- leys for his mocheus.

AS TO on the thyrtye daie it fastened, that Esther put on her royall apparell, & stode in the court of the kynges palace within, ouer agaynst y^e kynges house. And the kyng late vpon his royall seate in the kynges palace ouer agaynst the gate of the house. And when the kyng sawe Esther the queene standing in the court, he found grace in hys syght. And the kyng helde out the golden scepter that was in his hande towarde Esther. So Esther strept forth, and touched the toppe of the scepter. Then sayde the kyng vnto her: What wilt thou queene? ²⁵ Esther: and what requyredst thou: aske euery halfe of the empyre, and it shall be geuen the. And Esther answered: If it please the kyng, let the kyng & Haman come this daie vnto the banquet, that I haue prepared for hym. And the kyng sayde: cause Haman to make hast, that he maye do as Esther hath sayde.

So the kyng & Haman came to the banquet y^e Esther had prepared, & the kyng sayde vnto Esther at the banquet of wyne: what is thy petition: that it maye be geuen the. And what requestest thou? It is for euery halfe of the empyre, it shall be done.

¶ Then answered Esther, and sayd, my petition and desire is, yf I haue founde grace in the syght of the kyng, and yf it please the kyng, to geue me my petition, & to fulfill my request, then let the kyng & Haman come to the banquet yf I shall prepare for thm, and so will I do to morow, as the kyng hath sayde. Then went Haman forth the same daie to fall and merch in his mynde. And when the same Haman sawe Ahabdocheus in y^e kynges gate, y^e he stode not vp & kneled before hym, he was full of indignacion at Ahabdocheus. Nevertheless, Haman restryed him selfe: & when he came home, he sent, and called for his frendes, & saies his wyfe, and Haman tolde them of the glory of his ryche, and the multitude of his chyldren, & all together howe y^e kyng had promoted him so greatly, & howe that he had set him above the princes & seruantes of the kyng. Haman sayd moreover: See & Esther y^e queene dyd let no man come in with the kyng vnto the banquet that she had prepared, excepte me, & to morow am I bid- den vnto her also with the kyng. But in all this am I not satisfied, as longe as I see Ahabdocheus the Jewe springing at the kynges gate. Then sayd sares hys wyfe and all hys frendes vnto him: Let them make a galow of fytte cubites hie, and to morow strake thou vnto y^e kyng, that Ahabdocheus maye be hanged thereon, & go thou in meryly with the kyng vnto the banquet. And Haman was wel content with all, & caused the galowes to be made.

¶ The vi. Chapter.

¶ Ahabdocheus saies the Chananites & seuereth the heide of Ahabdocheus, & Haman is put to death in his owne house.

THE SAME nyght could not the kyng slepe, & he commaunded to bryng the Chananites and slopyes: to wch when they were red before the kyng they laypt on the place where it was wynten, how Ahabdocheus had told that Balthana and Theres y^e kynges two chāberlaynes (which kept the thre holdes) sought, to laye handes on kyng Ahasuerus. And the kyng sayd: what worthyppe & good haue we done to Ahabdocheus therefore? Then sayde the kynges seruantes that mynded vnto hym: There is nothinge at all done for hym. And the kyng sayde: Who is the kyng is the queene (for Haman was gone into the court without before y^e kynges house, that he myght lyeake vnto the kyng to hang Ahabdocheus on y^e tre (that he had prepared for hym.) And the kynges seruantes sayde vnto hym: beholde, Haman standeth without in the court. And y^e kyng sayd: let him come in. And when Haman came in, the kyng sayd vnto hym: what shall be done vnto the man, whom the y^e kyng wolde sayne bringe vnto worthyppe? Haman thought in his hert: Whom desireth the kyng to bryng vnto worthyppe more then me? And Haman answered the kyng: Let the man whome the kyng pleasest to bryng vnto worthyppe, be brought before, that he maye be arrayed with the royall garmentes which the kyng vseth to weare: & the heide y^e the kyng pordeth vpon, and that the crowne royall royall maye be set vpon his heed. And let this rayment and hofe be deliuered vnder the hand of one of the kynges pynces, that they maye araye the man withall (whoe the kyng is disposed to hying to honoure) & carry hym vpon the hofe thorow the streete of the cite, ad proclaiming before him: thus shall it be done to the man, whom the kyng pleasech to hying to honoure.

And the kyng sayde: make hast, and take as thou hast sayde, the rayment & the hofe: and do euill so vnto Mardocheus the Jewe, & lycet before the kynges gate, & let nothing fayle of all that thou hast spoken. Then toke Haman the rayment & the hofe, and arayed Mardocheus, ad brought him on hofe backe thorow the streete of the cite, and proclaimed before him: ¶ Even thus shall it be done vnto y man whoe the kyng is disposed to honoure.

And Mardocheus came agayne to the kynges gate, but Haman gat hym home in all þ hast in ournyng bare headed, ad tolde yares his wyfe and all his frendes, eury thing y had happened him. Then sayd his wyfe men and yares his wyfe vnto him: ¶ It ys be Mardocheus, of the seede of y Jewes, before whoe thou hast begonne to fall, thou shalt not preyale agaynst hym, but shalt surely fall before him. And wyle they were yet talking with him, came the kynges chamberlaines, & caused Haman to make hast, to come vnto the banquet that Esther had prepared.

¶ The viij. Chapter.

¶ The kyng vnder the kyngs Haman in agayne, and prayeth for her selfe and her people. Mardocheus Haman, & herbe hangen on the gallows, wherby he had prepared for Mardocheus.

And the kyng and Haman came in to the banquet that queene Esther had prepared, and the kyng sayd vnto Esther on the seconde daye at the banquet of wyne: what is thy petition (queene Esther) that it maye be geuen thee? And what requestest thou? For, as much half of the empyre, as I shall be done. And Esther the queene answered, & sayd: ¶ If I haue found grace in thy sight (O kyng) and yf it please the kyng, then graunt me my lyfe at my desyre and my people, for my petitions sake: for we are solde, I & my people, to be destroyed, to be slayne & to perishe. And wold God we were solde to be bondmen and bond women, then wold I hold my tounge: for the enemye vndersteth not the kynges haime. The kyng & Haman answered, and sayde vnto queene Esther: wher is he? And where is he, y barre presume in hys mynde, to do after y manner? And Esther sayd: the enemye and aduersary is this wicked Haman.

Haman, was exceedingly afrayed before the kyng and the queene. And the kyng arose from the banquet and from the wyne in hys displeasure, & went into the palace garden.

And Haman stode vpon, & besought queene Esther for his lyfe: for he sawe, that there was a mischance prepared for him of y his all ready.

And when the kyng came agayne out of the palace garden into the place where they drank wyne, Haman had layd him vpon y bed, & Esther sat vpon. Then sayd the kyng: wyllye force the queene also before me in the house? As soon as that word was went out of the kynges mouth, they covered Hamans face. And Mardocheus one of the chamberlaines that stode before the kyng, sayde: ¶ Behold, there standeth a galowes in Hamans house fyfte cubytes hie, wherby he had made for Mardocheus, that spake good for the kyng. The kyng sayde: hang him thereon. So they hanged Haman on the galowes, that he had made for Mardocheus. Then was the kynges wyrt pacified.

¶ The viij. Chapter.

¶ After the death of Haman in Mardocheus exalted, and then are ther comfortible letters sent vnto the Jewes.

In the same daye vpon kyng Abasuerus geue the house of Haman the Jewes enemye, vnto queene Esther. And Mardocheus came before y kyng: for Esther tolde, howe that he belonged vnto her. And the kyng put of his fnger rpyng, wherby he had taken fro Haman, & gaue it vnto Mardocheus. And Esther set Mardocheus ouer y house of Haman. And Esther spake yet more before the kyng: & fell downe at his fete weeping, & besought him, that he wold put awaye y wickednes of Haman the Agagite, and bys deuyce that he had ymagined agaynst the Jewes. And y kyng (as alwayes to be maide) helde out y golden scepter toward Esther: (wherby was declared a token of gracifullnes.) Then rose Esther, and stode before the kyng, and sayd: yf it please the kyng, & yf I haue found grace in thy sight, and yf it be acceptable before the kyng, then let it be wyrtte, that the letters of the deuyce of Haman the sonne of Haman datha the Agagite, maye be called agayne: wherby letters he wrote, to destroye the Jewes, which are in all the kynges landes. For how can I suffre and se the euill, that shall happen vnto my people? How can I loke vpon the destruction of my kynred?

And y kyng Abasuerus sayd vnto queene Esther, & to Mardocheus y Jewe: ¶ Behold, I haue geuen Esther y house of Haman, whoe they haue hanged vpon a tree, because he laped hand vpon the Jewes. Wyrtte ye also for the Jewes, as it ys wrytten in the kynges name, & seale it with the kynges rpyng (for the wyrttynges that were wyrtten in the kynges name, and sealed with the kynges rpyng, durst no man vsuall.) Then were the kynges letters called at y same tyme, & in y thirde moneth moneth, that is the moneth * Sinan, on the thre and twentieth dape.

And it was written (accordynge to all as Haradocheus commaunded) vnto the Jewes, and to the princes, to the debtyres and captaynes in the landes which are fro India vntill Ethiopia, namely an hundred and seven and twentye landes, vnto euery one accordynge to the writing therof, & vnto euery people after theyr speche, & to the Jewes accordynge to theyr wyrtynge and language.

And he wrote in fyngre Abasurus name, and sealed it with the kynges ringe. And by postes that rode vpon hoxes, and wyrtynge it: thus sent he the wyrtynge, wher in the kyng graunted the Jewes (in what cyties forer they were) to gather them selues together, and to stande for their lyfe, and for to rote out, to slaye, & to destroye all the power of the people and land that wold trouble the. with egypten and weme, and to spoye their good vpon one dape in all the landes of kyng Abasurus, namely vpo the thyrtyenth dape of the twelcth moneth, which is the moneth * Adar.

¶ The some of the wyrtynge was, how there shulde be a commaundment geue in all landes and published among all people, and that the Jewes shulde be ready agaynst that dape, and to ouercome them selues on their enemyes. And so the postes that rode vpon the swift hoxes and chylles, made hast with all speche, to execute the kynges worde: & the commaundment was deuised in Susau the cytie.

¶ And Haradocheus went out ^{from the palace} from the hyngre, in royall apparell of yelow and whyte, and with a great crowne of golde, beynge arayed with a garment of sylke and purple, and the cytie of Susau reioysed and was glad: and vnto the Jewes there ^{was come} was come ^{new} light and gladnesse, ioye and whyspyre. In all landes & cyties, into what places forer the kynges worde ad commaundment reached, there was ioye & myrth, prosperite & good dapes among the Jewes: in somoch, that many of the people in the lande became of the Jewes belefe, and the feare of the Jewes came vpon them.

The .ix. Chapter.

¶ At the commaundment of the kyng, the Jewes put their abudances to dect. The sonnes of Adar in are hauned. The Jewes kept a faste daye in remembrance of their deliuerance.

¶ At the twelcth moneth, that is the moneth Adar, vpo the thyrtyenth dape of the same, when the kynges word and commaundment shulde be done, euen vpon the same dape that the enemyes shulde haue destroyed the Jewes to haue oppressed the, it turned contrary wyse, euen that the Jewes shulde subdue their enemyes. For then gathered the Jewes together in their cyties: wythin all the landes of kyng Abasurus, to laye hand on such as wolde do them euill, and no man could withstand them: for the feare of them was come ouer all people. And all the rulers in the landes, and princes & debtyres, & officers of the kyng, promoted the Jewes, for the feare of Haradocheus came vpo the. For Haradocheus was greute in the kynges house, and the repute of him was noised in all landes, how he increaled and grewe.

¶ Thus the Jewes smote all theyr enemyes with a sore slaughter, and slew & destroyed, and vpo after their wyll vnto suche as were their abudances. And at Susau the cytie slew the Jewes, and destroyed fyue hundred men: a slewe Abasurabast, Dalphou Abasurtha, Phozatha, Adalia, Aridatha, Pharmastha, Atilai, Aridai, Ad Clazatha, the ten sonnes of Haman the sonne of Hamanata the enemye of the Jewes: but on his goodes they layed no handes. At the same tyme was the kyng certyfied of the nobite of those that were slayne in the cytie of Susau. And the kyng sayde vnto quene Esther. The Jewes haue slayne ad destroyed fyue hundred men in the cytie of Susau, & the ten sonnes, of Haman. What haue they done thence in the other landes of the hyngre: And what is thy petition, that it maye be geunthe: or what requierst thou more to be done: Esther answered: If it please the kyng, let him suffice the Jewes tomorrow also to do accordynge vnto this dapes commaundment, that they maye hang Hamans ten sonnes vpo the tre. And the kyng charged to do so, ad the commaundment was deuised at Susau: & they hanged Hamans ten sonnes. For the Jewes that were in Susau gathered the selues together, vpon the fourteenth dape of the moneth Adar, & slew the hundred men at Susau, but on their goodes they layed no handes.

¶ As for the other Jewes that were in the hynges landes, they came together, ad stood for their lyues, & they myght haue rest from their enemyes: & slew of their enemyes fyue and twentye thousand, howbeit, they layed no handes on their goodes. Thus they dyd on the thirteenth dape of the moneth Adar, and on the fourteenth dape of the same moneth rested they, which dape they helde to fastynge ad gladnesse. But the Jewes that were at Susau, came together both on the thyrtyenth dape and on the fourteenth, and on the fyfteenth dape of the same they rested, and helde that dape with fastynge and gladnes. And therefore the Jewes that dwelt in villages and vnto walled towines, helde the fourteenth dape of the moneth Adar, with gladnes and fastynge, and kepte holy dape, and euery one sene gyfres vnto another.

¶ And Haradocheus wrote these actes, and sent the sent the writinges vnto all the Jewes that were in all the landes of kynge Abasuerus, both nye & farr: that they shuld make a law among them: selues & holde the fourtenth & fiffeth daye of the moneth Adar. as þ dayes wherein the Jewes came to rest fro their enemyes, and as a moneth wherein their payne was turned to ioye, & their sorowe into a holp daye, & that in those dayes they shuld make feastes and gladnes, & one to lende gyftes vnto another, & to distribute vnto the poore.

And the Jewes were content with it: & they had begonne to do, and þ Mardocheus wrote vnto them: how that Haman the sonne of Hamanatha all the Jewes enemy, had deuised against þ Jewes, how he might destroye the ad caused to cast iþur (that is a Lot) for to put them in feare, & to bying the to naught: & how he went, and spake to the kynge, & how he wrote letters his wicked deuyce (which he imagined against þ Jewes) myght be turned vpon his owne head, & how he & his sonnes were hanged on the tre. For the which cause they called this daye iþurim, because of the name of the lott, & because of all the wordes of this writing: & what they the selues had sent, & what had happened vnto the.

And the Jewes set it vpon, and toke it vpon them and their febe, & vpon all such as toged them: their selues vnto them. that they wolde not misse but obserue these two dayes yere-ly, accordinge as they were wyrtten and appoynted. how that these dayes are not to be forgotten, but to be kepte of childrens children among all kynredes in all lades and cyties. They are the dayes of iþurim, which are not to be overslipped among the Jewes, & the memoiall of them ought not to perishe fro their febe.

And when Esther the daughter of Abihail and Mardocheus the Jew wrote w all auctorite: to confirme this seconde writing of iþurim: and sent the letters vnto all the Jewes in the hundred & seven and twentye landes of the empyre of Abasuerus, w freddy and fynesfull wordes, to confirme these dayes of iþurim, in their tyme appoynted, accordinge as Mardocheus the Jew & Esther the queene had appoynted them. And they bound their soule and their febe to fasting, & prayre. And Esther stablished the wordes of these lotters, as it is wyrtten in the boke.

And the kynge Abasuerus layd tribute vpon the lande, and vpon the Iles of the see. And all that he dyd by his power and auctorite, & the great worshippe of Mardocheus, which the kynge gaue him, he they not wyrtten in the Chronicles of the kynges of Media and Persia: For Mardocheus the Jew was the seconde next vnto kynge Abasuerus and greates among the Jewes, and accepted among the multitude of his brethren, as one þ sebeth the welth of his people, and he eareth the best for all þys febe.

The boke of Job.

¶ The fyrst Chapter.

¶ Job is placed of God by the losse of his goodes and chyldren.

In the lande of * Ihus there was a man whose name was Job: & the same was a perfect & iust man, such a one as feared God & eschued euill. And he had seue sonnes, & three daughters: * his substance also was seuen * thysse, & thysse, & thysse, camel, v. C. pouche of oxen, & thysse. C. she asses, and a very greates householde: so that he was one of the most principall me among all them of the east countre. And his sonnes wote and made banquettes: one daye in one house, another daye in another, and sent for thysse thysse, to eat & drinke with the. And it fortuned, that when they had passed ouer the tyme of their banquettinge & feastinge, Job sent for them, and sanctified them, and gat vpe early, and offered for every one a byt offeringe. For Job sayde: lest peraduenture my sonnes haue done some offence, & haue bene vnthankfull to God in their brethes. Thus did Job every daye. And vpon a daye * when the children of God cam & stode before the Lord, it fortuned that Sathan also among them. And the Lord sayde vnto Sathan. From whence comest thou? Sathan answered the Lord, and sayde: * I haue gone about the lande, and walched thow wite.

And the Lord sayde vnto Sathan: hast þ not considered my seruant Job, how þ there is none lyke him in the land: a perfect & iust man: such a one as feareth God, & eschued euill? Sathan answered, and sayde vnto the Lord. Woth Job feare God for naught? hast thou not persecuted him, & his house, and all þ he hath on euery syde? Thou hast blessed the workes workes of hye handes, and hye possession is encreased in the lade. But lape thynne had now upon hym ¹⁰ (a lye) and touch all that he hath, and he shal curse the to thy face. And the Lorde sayde vnto Satan: lo, all that he hath, be in thy power: onely vpon hym selfe I that thou lape not thynne banbe. And Satan went forth fro the ptesence of the Lorde.

And vpon a certayn daye it fortuned, that his sonnes and daughters were eatynge and drinking wyne in their eldest brothers house, and there came a messenger vnto Job, ad sayde: Whye the oxen were a plowing, and the asses goynge in the pasture besyde them, the Sabees came in vpolently, and toke the awaye: yee, they haue slayne thy seruantes with the edge of the sword, and I onely remye waye, to tell the.

Whyle he was yet speaking, there came another, and sayde: The fyre of God is fallē from heauen, and hath bzent vp all thy shepe and seruantes, and consumed them: & I only ranne my waye, to tell the. And whyle he was yet speaking, there came another, and sayde: The Caldees made thre armys, and fell in vpo the camels, and haue carped them awaye: yee, and haue thy seruantes with the sword: and I onely am gotten awaye, to tell the. And whyle he was yet speaking, there came another, and sayde: Thy sonnes and thy daughters were eatynge and dynckyng wyne in the: eldest brothers house, and beholde, there came a myghtye greate wynde out of the south, and smote the foure corners of the house: which fell vpo thy children, and they are ded, and I am gotten a waye alone to tell the.

Then Job stode vp, and rent his clothes, and shaued hys head, fell downe vpon the ground, worshipped, and sayd: * Alled ge-me I out of my mothers wombe, and naked shall I turne thither agayne. The Lorde ga-ue me, and the Lorde hath taken a waye: *
as it hath pleased the Lorde, so is it come to passe: blessed be the name of the Lorde. * In all these thyn-ges dyd Job not offend, nee murmured foolyshly agaynst God.

* Eccl. x. 1.
12. Job. 1. 6.

Job. 1.

¶ The. ij. Chapter.

¶ Job. 30. played with soie byres, and afterward he morked of hys wyfe. He remembred bysle hym, & haue compassion of hym.

¶ And the children of God came and stode before the Lorde, and Satan came also amonge them, and stode before the Lorde. And the Lorde sayde vnto Satan: From whence comest thou? Satan answered the Lorde, and sayde: I haue come about the lād, and waleked thorow it.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Satan: hast thou not considered my seruant Job: for there is none lyke him in the land. For he is a perfect and iust man, such a one as feareth God, and exchueeth euell, & contumeth still in hys godlynesse. And thou moudest me agaynst him. ¶ I shulde punyssh him for naught. And Satan answered the Lorde, & sayde: Shyn for sapine: yee, a man will geue all that euill he hath, for hys lyfe. But lape thynne had now vpon him, and touch once his bone and flesh, and he shall curse the to thy face. And the Lorde sayde vnto Satan: lo, there hast thou hym in thy power, but spare hys lyfe.

So went Satan forth from the ptesence of the Lorde, and smote Job with maruelous soe byres, from the sole of hys fote vnto hys croune: so that he sat vpon the ground in the ashes, and scraphed of the fleshy of hys foet:
with a postherde.

Then sayde hys wyfe vnto hym: * Dost thou contynue yet in thy ptesence: curse God & dye. But Job sayde vnto her: Thou speakest lyke a folysd woman. Shal we receiue prosperite at the hand of God, and not receiue aduersite: * In all these thinges, did not Job synne with his lyffe.

¶ Job. 1. 6.
¶ Job. 1. 6.

Now when Jobs friends hearde of all the trouble, that happened vnto hym, there came thre of them, euerly one from hys owne place: namely, Eliphaz the Temanite, Bil-dad the Shubite, & Zophar the Naamathite.

And they were agreed together to come, to shewe their compassion vpon him, and to comforte hym. So when they lyfte vpo their eyes a farre off, they knewe him not.

Then they cryed, and wepte: & euerly one of them rete his clothes, and spynckled dust vpon the: heades in the ayre. They sat the downe by hym also vpon the ground seuen dayes and seuen nyghtes. Neither was there any of them that spake one worde vnto hym: for they sawe, that hys payne was very greate.

¶ The. iij. Chapter.

¶ The wordes of Job, wherein he declareth that thys present lyfe is vnstable, and that the death of the righteous is joyous, and to:
be tunable.

After this opened Job his mouth and he cursed hys daye. And Job answered, and sayde: I loft be that daye, when I was boz-ne, and the nyght, in the which it was sayde: there is a man chyldre conceiued. The same daye be turned to darkness, and not regarded of God from aboue, neither lett hym thynke vpon it with lycht, but let it be stayned with darkness, and the shadowe of death. Let the dynmme clout fall vpon it, and lett it be lapped in with sorowe on the daye tyme. Let the darkness looke ouercome that nyght, and lett it not be ioynd vnto the

the dayes of the yere, ner counted in the monethes. To solate be that night, and without gladnesse, lett them that curse the daye, and that be ready to saye by morninge, geue it also their curse. Let the starres of that night be dymme, & showe darcknesse of it. Let it looke for lyght, but lett it se none, nether the rpynging vp of the fayre morninge: because it shyt not vp the wombe that bare me. For then shulde these sorrowes haue bene hys frō myne eyes.

* Job. 1. 17

¶ Job. * why dyed I not in þe byrth? Why dyd not I perlysh, as soon as I came out of my mother's wombe? Why let they me vpo their knees? Why gaue they me suck with their brestes? Then shulde I now haue lyeu still. I shulde haue slepte, and bene at rest, lyke as the chynges and lordes of the earth, which haue bypried them selues speciall places. Or as the wyrces that haue had grente substance of golde, and theyr houses full of spicer. Why was I not hys, as a thyng bozne out of spire, ether as yongchylde, which neuer sawe the light? There must the wycked crasse from theyr pymanne, and therfor as are ouerlaboure be at rest: there are those lett out fre, which haue bene in prison, so that they heare nomore the voyce of the opprellow. There are small & great, and the seruaut is fre from hys master.

¶ Job. Why for is the lyght geuen to hym that is in myr: and lyfe vnto them, that haue heuy heres? Why longe for death (and though it come not) why wolde bygg it oute of hyd places which also wolde be receyving glad and reioyce, yf they coulde fynde theyr graue any where. That shulde be iope to that man, whose waye is hys, and God kepeth it backe from him. For my syghes come before I ate, and my roarings fall out like the water. For the thyng that I feared, is come vpon me: and the thyng that I was afrayed of, is happened vnto me. Was I not happy? had I not quyetnesse? Was I not in rest? And now cometh such mysery vpo me.

¶ The .iiij. Chapter.

Job. is reprehended of impatience and inuoluntie, and of the presumption of hys owne rightnesse.

¶ Job. Ad Eliphaz the Chemyante answered, and sayde: Yf we begynne to commun with the, wylt thou be discontent: but who can withhold him selfe from speaking? Behold, thou hast bene a chaffener of many, and hast comforted the weepyng haundes.

¶ Job. By wordes haue let vp those that were fallen, thou hast refreshed the weake knees. But now that the plague is come vpon the, thou art greued: now yf hath touched thy selfe, thou art saynt harted. ¶ Job. Is not this thy scare, thy feblehnesse, thy patience, and the perfectnesse of thy wayes? O whyd I praye the? whoeuer perished byng an innocent? Why were the godly destituted? For as I haue proued by experience, I thep plome iniquyte, & some wickednesse, reape the same. With the blast of God they perish, and with the breath of hys anghels are they consumed awaye. The conyng of the lyon, and the voyce of the lyon, & the teeth of the lyons whelpes are pulled out. The lyon perissheth for lacke of praye, and the lyons whelpes are scattered abrode.

¶ Job. And vnto me came the word secretly, & myne care hath receaued a lytell thereof. In the thonghes and visages of the night (when slepe cometh on men) feare came vpon me, and drede, which made all my bones to shake. The wynde passed by, before my presence, and made the heares of my flesh to stande vp. He stode there, and I knew not hys face, an ymage ther was before myne eyes, and in the stillnesse hearde I a voyce. ¶ Job. Shall man be more iust than God? Shall man be purer than hys maker? Behold, he founde no treuth in hys seruantes, and in hys anghels ther was foly. How much more in them that dwell in houses of claye, and whose foundacion is but dust: which shalbe consumed as it were with a wyth? They shalbe smitten from the morninge vnto the enynging: yee, they shal perissh for ever, where no man thynketh thereof. Is not their royaltie gone awaye with the: they shal dye trulye, and not in wysdome.

¶ The .v. Chapter.

Job. The end of a tale. The rightnesse of God, the lord chaunceth hys, and deliuereth them agayne.

Job. Jye (I praye the) yf happye I there be any that wylt answere the, and loke thou vpon eyn of the holy men. As for the foolyshe man, displeaure spylleth hym, and anger smytheth the innocent.

¶ Job. I haue seue my selfe, when the folysh was depe coted, and soberly. I cursed hys bitacon. Hys chyldren were without respect, and they were slayne in the gate, and three was no man to deliuer the. Hys haruest was eaten vp of the hungry, & the wenched man spoyled it, and the thursty drake by the labour. It is not the earth that byngeth forth iniquyte, nether cometh sorrowe out of the ground: but man is borne vnto labour, lyke as the sparke flye vp out of the hote coles.

¶ Job. But I wyl aske counsell at the Lords, & wyl talke with God: which doth thynges, that are vnsearchable, and maruels without nombre. ¶ Job. he geueth rayne vpon þe earth, and poureth water vpon the dryetes, to set vp them that be of lowe degree, ad that those which

which are in heynesse may come to prosperite. he destroyed the deuyces of the sorpyll. so that they handes are not able to perfoyme any stedfast thing. * he compaseth the wofle in their awne craftynesse, and ouerthroweth the counsell of the wyched. In somoche that they runne into darchenes by fapye dape, and * grope aboute them at the none dape, lyke as in the myghe.

he shall deliuer the poze fro the tweard, and from the threatenynges of the vngodly, and from the violence of the myghe. he is the hope of the poore, and the mouth of the wyched shalbe stopped.

Beholde, * happye is the man, whom God punisheth: therfore, refuse not thou the challeynge of the almyghtye. For though he make a wounde, he getueth a playster: though he smyte, hye hande maketh whole agayne.

And he shall deliuer the in lyke troubles, and in the seuenth there shall no euell come to the. In hope he shall saue the from death: and when it is warre, from the power of the twearde.

Thou shalt be kept from the euell tonge, and when trouble cometh, thou shalt not neede to feare. In destruction and death thou shalt be mery, and shalt not be afrayed of beastes of the earth. For as yf stones of the lande shalbe confederate with the, & the beastes of the fild shal geue the peace.

And thou shalt knowe that thy dwelling place shalbe in rest: and thou shalt go and beholde thy habytacpon, and shalt not synne. Thou shalt se also, yf thy sede shall encrease, and that thy posterite shalbe as the grasse vpon the earth. Thou shalt come also to thy geauie in a fapye age, lyke as when they take vp a cozne these in due season. Lo, thys we oure selues haue proued by experyence, and euen thus it is. When thou to it also, that thou mayest take hede to thy selfe.

The. vii. Chapter.

Job answered, that yf payne is more greuous then dyng, yett woulde he abyde the deluynt thera.

When answered also, & sayde. * That the dispicature which I haue weert leys wyched, and my punishment trayled in the balnances together: for now is it heuier then the sande of the see. And thys is the cause, that my woordes are so forowfull.

For the acowes of the almyghty are roude about me, whose indygnacyon hath vponcke wyppyn sperte, and the terrible feares of God are lett agaynst me. * Wofe the wyde assenore whyle he hath graue. * Oureth the oxe, when he hath fodder proung. * That which is vnswayp, shall it be eaten without salte, or is there any talke in the wyte of an egge:

The thynges that some tyme I myght not awaye withall, are now my meate for very forowe. O that I myght haue my desyre: and that God wolde graunte me the thynges that I longe for. O that God wold begynne and smyte me: that he wolde let hye hande go, and take me cleane awaye. Then shoulde I haue some comforte: yet, I wolde desyre hym in my payne, that he shoulde not spare, for I wyl not be agaynst the wordes of the holy one.

For what power haue I to endure? And what is myne ende, that my soule myght be pacient? Is my strength the strength of stones? Or, is my fleshe made of brasse? Is it not so yf there is in me no helpe: and that my substance is taken from me. he that is in tribulacpon ought to be comforted of hye neyghbour: but the feare of the Lord is cleane awaye. Whene a wone betwene passe ouer by mens the water brooke, and as the ruce of water, do hastily go awaye. But they that feare the hope frost, the snowe shall fall vpon them.

When they tyme cometh, they shalbe destroyed and perthe: when they be sett on fyre, they shalbe remoued out of the place, for yf pathes that they go in, are croked: they haile after vayne thynges, and shall perishe. They turne them to the pathes of Deiman, and to the wayes of Saba, wherin they haue put their trust. Confounded are they that put eny confidence in them. For when they come to obtayne the thynges that they loke for, they are brought to confusion.
